Elsewhere results were as expected. The Western Mustangs edged past Queen's by 5-4, Ottawa Rough Riders smacked down Hamilton Tigers 11-0 and Balmy Beach rode roughshod over the Tiger offsprings, Hamilton Panthers, by a 34-3 score.

It meant second-straight triumphs for Argos and Western and double losses in as many starts for Tigers and Queen's. Balmy Beach have tied and won, leaving the issue in the Ontario Union to the result of the Beach-Barrie clash next week on Imperials' home field.

A Dizzy Finish

Six thousand McGill rooters saw the craziest finish a college clash has had in many seasons. Time officially was up when Cam MacArthur faded back and tossed a 20-yard pass to Russ Merrifield across the goal for a touchdown that wiped out a 5-1 lead Toronto built in 59 of the game's official 60 minutes.

The Redmen were given the extra play because of Toronto interference on a forward pass in the previous play. The interference penalty set up the ball on Toronto's 17. Merifield made no mistake on MacArthur's pass, nor did he fail on the unneeded convert.

For 59 minutes Toronto stopped McGill cold while Cam Gray booted a field goal from placement and two singles. The Blues were superior along the line and through the air but it all meant nothing against the freak touchdown.

15,000 See Argo Game

Fifteen thousand in Toronto saw Argonauts hand Indians their first beating on a sound display, featuring a powerful line, end-running by Johnny Edwards and Art West and steady punting by Earl Selkirk and Bob Isbister. Ahead 2-0 at half time, Argos scored a third-quarter touchdown when Wes Cutler and Clarry Burt blocked a kick at Montreal's 15. Edwards swept around the end for a try on the first play.

They got another near the game's end as West intercepted a forward pass and ran 18 yards unmolested. That was the way the game went, Indians erring and Argos capitalizing on every break. Only once did Indians threaten seriously.

They marched 79 yards to Argos' six in the second quarter, then threw away the profits on an off-side pass across the line. After that only little Chappie O'Connor, with some brilliant running, made any impression against the Argo defence.

Feature at Ottawa.

Stan ONeil raced 66 yards—longest run of the day—for Ottawa's only touchdown against Hamilton. It was hardly needed, however, for Tigers never threatened to overcome an early five-point deficit, built mainly on Tiny Herman's field goal.

In the second quarter, an Ottawa crowd of 8,000 saw the 1936 champions at their best.

Tigers were in scoring position only once—in the first quarter, when Doc Painton fired a 30-yard forward pass to Huck Welch near the Rider line. Law's attempted placement went wide and Arnie Morrison ran it out. Ottawa's bulky front line hardly was dented at any time, and Dave Sprague and Bunny Wadsworth gave Riders a wide edge in plunging.

At Kingston Queen's went down to defeat after Bernie Thornton gave them a 3-0 lead on a placement field goal two minutes after the start. A single and Boyce Sherk's field goal, kicked after a Queen's man knocked the ball into touch on his 20, gave Mustangs a 4-3 edge at half-time.

Queens tied the score early in the second half but Western forced them back with a great ground and air attack, led by Sherk, in the last quarter. Doug Shales hoofed the winning point.

No Match For Beaches.

Panthers were no match for the Beaches, who ran over six touchdowns before a home-town crowd of 4,000. Herbie Moores scored two—one on a 55-yard run—and John Hogan, Reg. Turnbull, Frank Seymour and Ed Thompson got the others.

MAX SWANSTON IS RE-ELECTED C.O.B.L. PREXY

Max Swanston of Peterborough was returned as president of the Central Ontario Baseball League on Saturday at the league's annual meeting in Belleville. He had served five years in this office but the clubs refused to permit his retirement. Newt Thompson of Belleville was returned as secretary-treasurer, and Art Casterton was re-elected vice-president.

It was a quiet meeting with but three clubs represented. The Kingston delegates phoned the secretary that they intended to attend the college football game and would abide by anything passed at the meeting. Jim Dorris and Bill Prindible represented Peterborough, Walter Gerow voting for Napanee, Neal Hazelwood and Moose Mathews being on hand for Oshawa, and Newt Thompson and Ken Colling for Belleville—this club having a leave of absence from the C.O.B.L.

Following a reading of the minutes and the correspondence, President Swanston addressed the delegates. He sympathized with Oshawa on losing out in Ontario finals and pointed out that financially the C.O.B.L. was the best ball league in the Province. Mr. Swanston thanked the press for its work in aiding the circuit and stated that it was a pity Belleville had been forced to drop out the past year. He felt that baseball in Belleville had slumped since the death of the late Robt. Colling, former league president, and hoped this town would be back in the league again soon. Mr. Swanston said he would not run for office this year as he felt he had been in this office long enough. He admitted it was as hard to drop out of a baseball office as he had found it to quit playing the game some years efore, but he did not wish to act selfish and run for the same office indefinitely. He thought Art Casterton, the vice-president, would fill the office most satisfactorily.

A Good Balance

Secretary-Treasurer Newt Thompson of Belleville made his report, which showed a balance on hand of $366.34. The election of officers was the next order of business.

The Oshawa delegate stated that his club would like to see the same officers returned. Napanee felt the same and Peterborough had no objections. The various delegates urged Mr. Swanston to stand for re-election, and after much persuasion, he agreed and was returned unanimously. Mr. Thompson also received an acclamation, and Art Casterton of Kingston was returned as vice-president of the league.

The president suggested that neutral umpires should be the order for 1938, as the league was now in better financial condition than in the past and the fans wanted unbiased arbiters. He said that good umpires make for good ball games and would get away from the inter-club bickering of the past. The different delegates heartily endorsed this suggestion, which will be acted upon at the spring session.

Belleville was asked of the chances of senior ball there in 38, but Mr. Colling stated that the interest was high enough but no one was willing to start work toward re-organizing the club. Some of the clubs objected to playing twilight games in Kingston, owing to the distance there, but Napanee stated that twilight games in that town might be tried out next summer to help gate receipts.

The usual honorariums were voted the president and the secretary. General discussion followed, with the league deciding to write a letter of protest to the O.B.A.A. regarding the T.A.B.A. changing umpires in the Ontario finals. The meeting then adjourned.

REGINA FADES WESTERN LOOP

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18 (CP).—Western Canada sought new football champions today as Regina Roughriders, kings of the prairie gridiron a year ago, passed from the picture.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday swept aside the last Regina chance of reaching the two-team Western Interprovincial Union playoff, Bombers whipped Calgary Bronks 16-2 here to qualify for the home-and-home final with the Albertans November 6 and 13.

In other Saturday games University of Saskatchewan won the Western Intercollegiate title with a 22-1 triumph over Alberta at Edmonton; North Shore Lions trimmed University of British Columbia 24-2 in the Vancouver Big Four; and Calgary Ponies, Bronks' second stringers, scored an exhibition 8-0 victory over Edmonton Athletic Club at Edmonton.

Calgary hopes of winning the Western title were dimmed as their great halfback, Ray Olsen, fractured a leg in the Winnipeg game and will be lost for the season. From Gonzaga University, Spokane, Wash., Olsen was Bronks' best punter and passer.

The forward pass played a major part in the Winnipeg win. After Olsen kicked a Calgary single in the first quarter, little Fritz Hanson fired a 38-yard pass to Art Stevenson, who ran another 50 yards for a touchdown.

The last score in the closing minute came from a pair of successive passes, Bob Fritz to Grey Kabat and Fritz to Cliff Roseborough, the latter for a touchdown.

Winnipeg's second-quarter touchdown went to Bob Fritz, who plunged from the 6-yard line after Stevenson had raced 22 yards around the short end. It was converted by Kabat.

The second Bronk point was a deadline kick by big Ed Norvig, whose attempted placement went wide and to the fence.

The boys gave the customers plenty of action, there being eight knockdowns in the four stanzas. Means called it a draw.

Collegiate Gridders Split Decisions At Bowmanville

Seniors Swamp Opposition For 24-0 Victory—Juniors Lost Out 2-1

BOWMANVILLE, Oct. 18.—The Peterborough C.V.S. senior rugby squad put on a repeat performance of their victory over Oshawa last week, when they beat their way to a 24 to 0 win over Bowmanville High School in Bowmanville on Saturday. The juniors were not so fortunate however being handed a loss by the baseball score of 2 to 1. The inexperienced home towners held their own with the powerful Petes for the first half, the score at the half-way mark being only 2 to 0 for the visitors. But lack of condition told in the second thirty minute stretch as Peterborough put up a mighty offensive to tally four touchdowns. The first two were converted. Clark, Creighton, Thornton and Kelly carried the mail for the winners, with Bowmanville giving Kelly a rough passage. The Petes had a big edge in terial attacks an dalso gained much ground through plunges, with Kelly being the most effective. An onside kick went for the Petes first point in the initial quarter and their second point was gained when a Peterborough fumble near the Bowmanville line rolled over and Spencer was rouged. An end run enabled Creighton to score the first touch in the third quarter and Thornton booted the convert and the second major of the period went to Clark with Thornton again kicking the extra point. Curtin crossed the line for the third five-point score and Kelly marked up the fourth touch just before the end of the game.

Help Senior Squad

Three of the Bowmanville juniors donned senior togs for the afterpiece and all told toiled for 120 minutes of rugby. Outstanding for B.H.S. was Charlie Spencer who included in his lusty booting several that travelled over fifty yards. One rolled out of bounds 75 yards from where he had booted it. His runing back of kicks and general play earned many cheers.

The line-ups:

Peterborough: Flying wing, Parnell; halves, G. Clark, Creighton and Kirkton; quarter, Thornton; snap, Johnston; insides, Ascott and Turner; middles, Kelly and Curtin; outsides, Duncan and Craig; subs, Diplock, W. Turner, Northcutt, Csumrik, Ward.

Bowmanville: Flying wing, Gibbs; halves, C. McIlveen, Tighe and Little; quarter, Spencer; snap, Casborne; insides, Fagan and Stevenson; middles, Colville and Nickerson; outsides, D. McIlveen and Crombie; subs, Wiseman, Jackman, Rowe.

A Close Struggle

The junior game was a nip and tuck struggle throughout with Bowmanville outplaying the Petes except in the third quarter. Both teams showedan inability to get anywhere when within scoring distance. Once B.H.S. had the ball on the one-yard line after two forwards had clicked for 35 yards, but the defending Petes braced and hurled them back, similarly Peterboorugh were only able to count one point in the third period although they were in the Bowmanville end the whole fifteen minutes. Penalties were many but while it hampered both teams to a great extent the breaks were even. Peterborough missed a placewere offside on the play. Depewment in the first quarter when they hoisted a spiral to the dead line from 35 yards out for Bowmanville's first point in the second quarter. Peterborough tied it up in the third period, with Moldaver hoofing the equalizer. In the last quarter Rickard grabbed a Peterborough blocked kick and after a forward from Mason to Wiseman had carried the ball to the Peterborough tenyard strip Depew kicked the winning point.

Line-ups:

Peterborough: Flying wing, McPherson; halves, K. Gillespie, Scriver and Miller; quarter, Moldaver; snap, McMann; inides, Scott and Dewart; middles, Ainslie and Douglas; outsides, Rose and Elliott; subs, Ferguson, C. Gillespie, Freeman, Prete, Graham, McWilliams, Harvey, Northcott.

Bowmanville: Flying wing, Depew; halves, Crombie, Colville and Fagan; quarter, Mason; snap, James; insides, Casbourne and Crawford; middles, Rickard and Modern; outsides, Wiseman and McIlveen; subs, Hoar, Elliott, J. Gorman, C. Gorman, Bird, Jackman, Cole, Rheder and Graham.

Officials for both games—Referee, Ames; umpire, Kirkwood; head linesman, Paterson.

ODD ITEMS FROM A SPORT SCRAP BOOK

(By Bradley)

PAUL RUNYAN

There is a mistaken idea by some of the onlookers at the field of sport, that the one prerequisite for success in any branch of athletic endeavor is a great, manly physique. Perhaps this is a relic of the old days, when anyone with the approved physical gifts was automatically looked upon as a potential world beater.

But since that time many athletes have put an end to this idea, and diminutive Paul Runyan is one of that number. Though he is small in size, and cannot get the distance off the tee that some of his burly rivals do, his skill with the irons and the putter more than make up for this disadvantage.

And as proof of the fact that he is the equal of his heavy-handed brethren, just question and ranking golfer as to Runyan's ability, and you will quickly be enlightened.

Orfuns Cop 7-1 Victory In Home Rugby Debut

Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts Lost Out In Hard-Fought Struggle

After two neat wins on the road Peterborough Orfuns made an auspicious home debut at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon when they defeated Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts 7 to 1 in an intermediate O.R.F.U. fixture that loomed up as the crucial battle in the group series.

A big crowd of fans, including Mayor George A. Macdonald, a former rugby star himself in his own right and who gave the game an official start by taking the first kickoff, saw the struggle which was a tense and hard-fought argument. It was not brilliant or spectacular football for the most part but the importance of the result and the battling spirit of both teams made it an interesting conflict all the way.

The final score does not give a picture of the battle. As a matter of fact the teams were tied with one point each with a little over two minutes to go and five of the Orfuns' points represent an intercepted forward pass in the dying seconds of the fray when the Cobourg twelve had to throw caution to the winds and take to the air in a last desperate effort to pull the game out of the fire. Maurice Giardino it was who bobbed up from nowhere to snag the pass on the run almost out of the arms of the potential receiver and galloped thirty-five yards untouched to cross the Cobourg goal line for the only major of the day.

The Orfuns however deserved to win. They had the edge in territorial play over most of the route, ecored the first point early in the second period, held that slender lead successfully until a forward pass play went sour in the last session and gave Cobourg a chance to tie the score and then had fight enough to battle out of danger and eventually to a fine victory. It was a peculiar game inasmuch as neither goal-line was serious threatened at any time until the last-moment break set the stage for Giardino's gallop for a try.

The Orfun Stars

Most prominent in the Peterborough win were Don Crowe who more than held is own in a kicking duel with Meikle, the much-touted Cobourg hoofer, and also did some very effective ball-earying and Mike Loucks whose cut-in slices through the Cobourg team were responsible for most of the Orfuns' yardage gain. It was Loucks' effective dashes in the last few minutes that finally assured the Petes' victory. Giardino turned in a useful card, climaxed by that spectacular touchdown and Harry Marsh was the defensive star for the homesters, spilling the Cobourg ball-carrier time after time.

Meikle's booting was Cobourg's most effective weapon and the former Toronto youngster did some fine kicking. Williams was outstanding for his running plays. Several times he took Crowe's long punts deep behind his own goal-line and ran them out smartly and it was his runback of one of Crowe's kicks that paved the way for Cobourg's only point and nearly led to a placement goal that might have meant a win for the Galloping Ghosts.

The teams:

Cobourg: Flying wing, Cooper; halves, Edwards, Meikle and Henderson; quarter, Lucas; snap, Spooner; inside wings, Schrum and Boyce; middles, Pratt and Bulger; outsides, Jacobs and Jones; alternates, Brown, Johnston, Mackie, Kitchener, Ibey, Benson Young, Goody, Williams.

Referee Bobby Armstrong, Toronto; umpire, Fred Rose, Toronto.

The first period was scoreless. Cobourg kicked off and for some time neither side could make much headway and it was simply a case of the old army game, two drives at the line and then a kick. Both Crowe for the Orfuns and Meikle for Cobourg were getting nice distance in their hoofing and the hard tackling of the opposing forward walls made it a tough job running the ball back. Play was mostly between the 40-yard stripes and the period was nearly over before either side made yards, the Orfuns finally doing the trick when Crowe picked a hole in Cobourg's left side for nine and Archibald went through the centre for yards. This advantage was thrown away shortly after when Kearns lost the ball when tackled at midfield and Cobourg secured possession. Edwards got away for a nice gain and Meikle boomed a long one over the Orfuns' goal line which Crowe ran out to his own 20-yard line, saving a point. The home talent gained in an exchange of kicks and finally when Meikle dropped the ball in trying to run a punt back, the Petes recovered on Cobourg's 40-yard line. Kearns smashed through for eight yar on a spinner and Archibald completed the necessary yardage. Just before the period ended Crowe cracked through for seven more and the Orfuns were in a scoring position to start the second period.

The First Point

Cobourg's defence tightened however and finally Orfuns had to kick, Meikle taking Loucks' punt at his own 10-yard line. They could make no headway against the Petes' line and Meikle was forced to kick, getting off a cross field effort that left the Orfuns again in a threatening position. Loucks made eight yards on a nice run and a Cobourg offside gave the Orfuns a first down at Cobourg's 25-yard line. Two plays failed to gain much ground and on the third down Loucks kicked to the deadline for the first point of the game. The Orfuns pressed for the balance of the period but could not add to their slender margin. Crowe twice kicked over the line to Williams but the stocky little back dodged out brilliantly with the ball to save a couple of points.

The Orfuns again had the edge in the third period but not by much and the session passed without a score. Several times penalties cost the Petes yardage when they had a march under way but just before the period ended they got a break themselves on a no-yards penalty given against Cobourg and Crowe followed this up by getting away for a nice gain on a fake forward pass.

When the final period opened the Petes were threatening and they intesified the threat by making yards just after the session opened. Then came a break that for a few minutes changed the whole complexion of the game. Crowe tried a long forward pass and quarterback Lucas of the invaders intercepted the toss at midfied. Cobourg took to the air themselves and made a big gain when a Meikle-to-Lucas forward was ruled complete because of Orfun interference. The Petes' line held and Meikle boomed a long punt over the goal line to Crowe who ran it out smartly. Orfuns were forced to kick and Williams taking Crowe's punt at the Petes' 40-yard line ran the ball back 20 yards before being downed. Cobourg tried two line plays and then gambled on a placement, Meikle's kick going just outside the upright to Loucks who managed to get outside. Again Orfuns had to kick and this time Cobourg decided to take the sure point and tie up the ball game, Meikle booting a high one to Crowe back of the Orfuns goal line and he was thrown into touch-in-goal for a point.

The Fighting Orfuns

Then the Orfuns showed their fighting spirit by taking possession of the game after starting play from their quarter line. Twice in succession they made yards with Loucks doing most of the ball carrying. Then they were halted and Crowe kicked to Williams at Cobourg's 25-yard line. Cobourg failed to click on a couple of forward pass attempts and Meikle had to kick. Then Loucks picked a hole around Cobourg's left end and ran thirty-five yards to Cobourg's thirty, Williams, the visitors' safety man dropping him. The Orfuns wisely chose to accept a point at this stage of the game and Crowe lifted one high and far over the Cobourg line and Williams was dragged down for a rouge, putting the Petes ahead 2 to 1 with just over two minutes to go. There was nothing left for the invaders but to gamble for a touch and the play went haywire a few seconds after when Giardino got in front of a Cobourg pass-receiver, grabbed Meikle's forward toss and galloped thirty-five yards unmolested over the Cobourg line for a touchdown to put the game on ice. The attempt at converting failed but the Orfuns were in front 7 to 1 and had no trouble holding on for the short time remaining.

IN MEMORIAM

DARLING.—In loving memory of a dear Son and Brother, Raphael Clifford Darling, who departed this life October 18, 1930.

Silent his voice and vacant his chair,
Sweet are the memories that linger there;
We miss him and mourn him in silence unseen,
And live in the memory of joys that have been.

—Always remembered by Father, Brothers and Sister.

McARTHUR.—In loving memory of Clifford McArthur, who died October 17, 1933.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled
The one His love had given;
And though the body moulders here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

NICHOLLS.—In loving memory of dear Mother, Mrs. Peter Nicholls, who passed away October 19, 1932.

In the lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are always near;
We, who loved you, sadly miss you
As it dawns another year.

—Husband and Family.

BOLTON.—In loving memory of a dear Wife and Mother, Elizabeth Mae Bolton, Lakefield, who passed away October 17, 1930.

What would we give to clasp her hand,
Her happy face to see
To hear her voice, to see her smile
That meant so much to us.
No pen can write, no tongue can tell
Our sad and bitter loss.
But God alone has helped so well
To bear our heavy cross.

—Lovingly remembered but sadly missed Husband and Family.

LAWSON LITTLE

The main reason that amateur golfers, on stepping up to professional play, as did Lawson Little, fail to match their efforts as "simon pures" is because of the fact that the pros conduct the majority of their matches on the medal play system (one man against the field), whereas the amateurs play under the match play rules (one man against another).

In match play the golfer has only to deafet the man he is playing at the time to advance, and it is possible to play a couple of comparatively poor rounds and yet reach the finals. However, in medal play, the competitor's every stroke counts, for it is his total score that decides his success.

Little was almost unbeatable as a match player, but he has been anything but a signal success in pro ranks.

EX-BANDIT DEPORTED

DETROIT, Oct. 18 (C.P.).—Harry Watson, Welland, Ont., chauffeur for bandits that held up a newspaper office here in 1928, was deported to Windsor during the weekend. He had just been paroled from Jackson State Prison.

Watson was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Sergeant George Barstad, killed in the robbery. His sentence was later reduced to from 15 to 30 years, but he only served nine.

Badminton

R. O. BENSON

GATHER ROUND, fans and fanbettes, while we discuss the local badminton situation and prospects for the coming season. Dashing debonair devotees (how's that?) of this increasingly great winter craze turned out "en masse" on Saturday evening as the Peterborough Club opened their season and the Armouries Club players began their second week of practice play. About half of the total membership of the military squad were getting their racquets tuned up and the stiffness out of their joints, many of them displaying almost mid-season form.

IT IS DIFFICULT to select stars so early in the term, but it was interesting to notice the large number of tennis stars cavorting round in grand style. Under the watchful eye of Prexy Bob Allin, his charges went through their paces in the regular Saturday social evening. Bill Brown, (he of the large fashes), was turning in a good performance, finding a clever opponent on the other side of the net in the person of Johnny Sparrow whose returns from smashes were frequent and whose net play was pretty, to say the least. Tom Thompson and Russ Kitchen, mainstay of the Petes' pitching staff, looked like the makings of a nice team. Way down at the far end Cliff Cadd, all-round athlete, was wielding a potent stick in a mixed doubles combination. Cliff, you know, began playing badminton last season and liked it so well he's back at it again and he carries a mighty nice assortment of strokes.

THE LADIES were there in goodly numbers, the fine attendance of whom points to a successful year. Helen Coig showed that she can quickly change over from the off-season game. Then there were Mrs. Preston (nee Mildred Morphet), Irene Cox and, oh a host of others; but we'll catch up with them later. We'll keep our good eye on these starlets and let you know of their playing progress as the season advances.

THE PRESENCE of Bob Hewitt, starry exponent of the game, brought to mind the keenly regretted passing of Francis Hewitt, one of the most outstanding players of the city and district. The sport suffered a distinct loss as a result of his demise. A good sportsman and a great player.

OF COURSE the Armouries Club has held its annual meeting and selected its officers to carry on during the current campaign. Brigadier W. B. Anderson, C.M.G., D.S.O., was chosen Honorary President. Honorary vice presidencies were conferred upon Hon. Lieut.-Col. H. A. Morrow and Lieut.-Col. J. A. Dewart, M.C. President of the club is Lieut. R. S. Allin, a popular choice and who turns in a nice game, as witnessed. The role of vice president is being taken by Lieut. G. Dobbin while Captain G. Armstrong is acting as secretary of the organization. Lieut. N. M. Gemmell will keep track of the cash balances when not taking a workout on the courts.

BESIDES THESE mentioned above, there are three other members of the general executive, Major R. J. Bolton, Col. C. H. Stuart, and Major H. K. Clifton, M.C. Plans are not yet complete, but it is proposed to carry on with practice games and matches among the players within the club until the tournament play commences later in the year. In addition to the senior section, a junior membership is also being planned, definite arrangements in this connection being left till a little later. One hundred and ten members comprise the senior group.

A SPIRIT of optimism is easily apparent among the members of both the Armouries and the Peterborough Clubs. Both are already looking forward to the big Central Ontario Tournament in April and teams will be prepared all season in anticipation of that event. Walter Perks, who maintains that badminton enthusiasm runs in cycles, believes that this year the enthusiasm cycle will reach its peak. Mr. Perks, as you know, is president of the Peterborough Club. At our next session, we'll have some interesting news on this latter group.

BUT BADMINTON, that colossal snow-time pastime, in its sweep across the city touches many other points besides the two major clubs. Over the bridge in East City they play in the former market hall. More about them later. Trinity and Knox are two church clubs with sizable memberships. Both Y's include it on their menus and the Collegiate teachers indulge. Who doesn't? Caught in a shower of shuttles, we're beginning to wonder. These last named badminton clubs are organizing now or will be in the very near future. Secretaries can get on the good side of the members, put their clubs on the map and incidentally, help this nosy newshound by saving exciting information and notices of tournaments etc. and turning them over to phone number 1600. At this point we pause for station identification, as they say over the ether waves.

Titanic Survivor J. B. Ismay Dies

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(AP).—Joseph Bruce Ismay, 74, British shipowner and former chairman of the White Star Line, died here yesterday.

Mr. Ismay was one of the survivors of the Titanic disaster in 1912 and was the target of bitter criticism because, as head of the line, he had left the vessel safely in one of the lifeboats.

His conduct was investigated by the United States' Senate and the British Board of Trade and he was exonerated in both instances. He resigned as chairman and managing director of the White Star Line the following year.

DEAD RECKONING

BY

BRUCE HAMILTON

READ THIS FIRST:

Tim Kennedy graduated into wouldbe homicide from the school of armchair murderers. With a lucrative dental practice and an enviable social position in a small town near London, Tim at middle age, feels happy and secure. Then Esther is run down by a truck, returning home weeks later a physical wreck, with all her former beauty shattered. Tim loses all interest in his wife and is greatly attracted by Alma Shepherd, a widow and a new client. He maneuvers to invite her to their annual tennis party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 13.

As the tennis party ended, Tim and Esther entered the house. Kennedy went upstairs for a bath and a change; when he came down dinner was on the table. Esther was still in great spirits, definitely overexcited in fact. Throughout the meal she talked feverishly and much more than usual. Kennedy let her run on, making what responses were necessary; but his mind was elsewhere, harking back with warm satisfaction to that talk in the pavilion.

There was no doubt Alma liked him. Indeed she had made the running, setting a quicker pace than he would have dreamed of doing at this early stage. But he saw quite clearly the factors which had brought him success and the limitations they imposed. It was the way he had with him, his habit of gentle modesty and quick sympathy, the manner in which he could encourage a confidential relationship and convince that he was incapable of abusing it; and more than anything else, an impression he conveyed of fundamental decency and stability.

Alma's remark about his attitude to Esther was significant; it was hopelessly wide of the mark, but it was the sort of thing nearly everybody thought about him. And it showed which way the wind was blowing; any attempt to force matters was likely to prove disastrous. . . . On the other hand it was possible to be too slow. So ripe a fruit was not going to remain indefinitely unplucked. . . . And then there was Esther. Taking it all around it was hard to know how the matter could terminate successfully. For a while his mind reverted to certain idle speculations that had occupied it not infrequently during the past few months.

"Now it's high time you went to bed, Mrs. Kennedy," said the nurse breezily as they were finishing coffee in the drawing room. "You've had a tiring day, and we don't want a repetition of last night. Come along with you!"

"I don't feel like bed just yet, Nurse," replied Esther, sharply for her.

"But you know you ought to, you're overtired. Don't you agree with me, Mr. Kennedy?"

Tim looked up from his book. He was pleasantly tired, and felt a wish to be alone.

"I think perhaps Nurse is right," he said.

"I tell you I don't want to go to bed!" Esther's voice trembling. "Surely I've some say in the matter!"

"Please yourself, my dear."

The nurse, used to bouts of temper from patients, though not hitherto from this one, accepted the flouting of her authority with professional tact. She was a woman of discretions. It was her discreet habit to remain half an hour in the drawing room after coffee, long enough to remove any ambiguity as to her status in the household, too short to offend by presuming on it. This evening, however, she withdrew after about ten minutes. Kennedy read on placidly. But presently Esther, after one or two vain attempts to distract him from his book, got up and went over to the sofa where he was sitting.

"Tim," she said, "I want to talk to you."

He put down the book, assuming the particularly bland expression with which he concealed annoyance. "Well, talk away, dear. What's the trouble?"

She was nervous, and found difficulty in beginning. But presently his level gaze compelled her eyes to meet his.

"Tim, you were right about this afternoon. The party I mean. . . . It has done me good. I feel absolutely different." She spoke defiantly.

"Why that's splendid, my dear. I was sure you would."

"I feel more as I used to than I ever have, since. Less hopeless about things. And as if I were going to begin to enjoy life again."

He patted her shoulder kindly.

"That's the best news I've had for a long time."

"I think I'm looking better, too, Tim." She moved her face close to his.

He had hardly looked at her since coming down to dinner. Now for the first time he saw that she must have spent at least twenty minutes at her toilet table, after returning to the house. Her face was covered with a thick mask of paint and powder, her eyebrows were drawn out by pencil, her mouth rouged and enlarged in an attempt to conceal its disfigurement. Thick bluish patches of powder indicated the position of the scars on her nose and cheek. In her attempt to recapture beauty by storm she had clearly used all the art of which she was capable; and the result was as pathetic as it was futile.

He studied her in silence, making no motion. Perhaps the look in his eyes answered her unspoken query; presently she dropped her head on to his shoulders and fell into a paroxysm of silent tears.

"Oh, Tim, Tim," she sobbed. "Is it quite hopeless? Won't you ever be able to love me again?"

He patted her head in dismay.

"Of course I love you, Esther. What in the world are you talking about? I've never stopped loving you—never."

"You hardly ever kiss me now."

Her words were hardly audible.

"But I do, Esther dear. That's not true."

"Not as you used to."

He raised her head.

"Listen, my dear!" He managed to get a ring of emotion and sincerity into his voice. "You're letting things prey on your mind. I want you to understand this. Nothing that has happened to you, or can happen to you, will ever make any difference to me. The only thing that matters to me is getting you really well. You say you're feeling better. I can see you're looking better. We've only got to be patient. You understand me? Now sweetheart, don't let me ever hear you talking like that again, or I shall be very angry with you."

All the time he spoke he kissed her, gently and incessantly, on her hair, her neck, her shoulder. She lifted her head at last. The mask was stained and streaky, but there was a new light in her eyes.

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S GOLD PILE

"Excuse me," squeaked the lady Mouse Teacher of the Hollow Tree to her animal children pupils one afternoon. Excuse me a moment."

"Yes, thank you," politely said Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit who lived in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow.

"If Miss Mouse goes out of the room we can have a lot of fun," whispered Jackie Bow Wow to his boy brother Peetie.

But Miss Mouse didn't leave the room. She stepped to the telephone, the bell of which was ringing, and said into it:

"This is Miss Mouse speaking." Immediately afterward a large smile made her pretty little whiskers twiddle like a cherry in a glass of lemonade and she said:

"Oh, hello, Uncle Wiggily! Why of course I will! Glad to! Goodbye!"

Promises Surprise.

Without telling the animal pupils what the rabbit gentleman had said Miss Mouse squeaked:

"Go on with you lessons, my dears.

Then I have a surprise for you. Study well."

The animal boys and girls studied as well as they could except for thinking of the surprise and in a little while, about an hour before it was time to dismiss school for the day, Miss Mouse said:

"School is out and you are all, please, to go to Uncle Wiggily's bungalow. He has the surprise."

Oh, hurray!" quacked Lulu Wibblewobble, a duck girl. "Is it a party?"

"Well, it's a sort of party," said Miss Mouse. "And in order you may not be too disappointed if you think it isn't enough of a party, Uncle Wiggily said I was to tell you he wants you to help him bring in his pile of gold."

"His pile of gold!" exclaimed Jangle, one of Uncle Wiggily's own little rabbit girls.

"Unkie Wig hasn't a pile of gold," said Bunty the orphan.

"I think he must have or he wouldn't have said so," spoke Miss Mouse gently. "At any rate school is out so you may go. Help Uncle Wiggily all you can as he always helps us."

"We will!" promised the animal boys and girls as, with merry shouts of joy they hopped, ran or flew out of the Hollow Tree School to go to the bungalow. "We'll help Uncle Wiggily get in his p'l. of gold."

Enemies Approach.

"Did you hear that?" whispered the Fuzzy Fox to the Woozie Wolf as they slunk along behind a hedge near the school.

"Yes, I did," growled the Wolf.

"I always knew Old Longears was rich," growled the Fox, "but I never knew he had such a pile of gold he had to get the animal school children to help him carry it in. He must be like Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves."

"That's right," agreed the Wolf "Well what about it?"

"This about it," whispered the Fox who, with the other Bad Chap, had been sneaking around trying to make trouble. "We'll help carry in that gold ourselves. Maybe we'll take some ourselves, too. And maybe we'll nibble Uncle Wiggily. Come on, we'll take the back road and get there first."

So, by different roads the Bad Chaps and the animal children were going to Uncle Wiggily's bungalow. But don't worry. If the baby carriage doesn't drop the ice cream from its cone on the sidewalk I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's treat.

HALL'S BRIDGE W.I. HEAR RELIEF TALK

HALL'S BRIDGE, Oct. 18. — The regular meeting of the W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Galvin Dunford on the evening of Oct. 13. Mrs. Walalce Shearer took charge of the meeting in the absence of Mrs. H. Pearson.

The business part was started with discussion of the fowl supper on Oct. 29 in Buckhorn, also the play from Bobcaygeon. It was planned to send a delegate, Mrs. Sam Wood, to the convention at Toronto. Mrs. F. Armstrong took charge of the program as she is relief convenor. Mr. K. Stewart was introduced and gave a wonderful talk on relief, as to what it means and how it can be dealt with. He said the people of Norway and Sweden were of such strong character and phyisque that they would under no consideration go on relief. Relief should be under these headings:

1st—The greatest business of the government is that it must secure information regarding the extent and nature of the need.

2nd—The government should keep a record of all receiving relief. There are 618,663 people in Canada on relief.

3rd—The government should see that the individual be made to look for work while on relief.

4th—Educate people to value their bodies that they may work out a means not to be on relief.

"Let's get rid of the nurse, Tim," she pleaded in a low voice. "I'm really better, far better than you think."

He stroked her hair.

"Not just yet, dear. You see this thing is like a campaign—like a siege. Your provisions are your strength and nervous energy, and you've got to conserve them . . . you mustn't make it harder for yourself, Esther—nor for me."

She pushed back her hair.

"But how will you manage, Tim?"

He answered softly, "I guess you're worth waiting for, my dear."

She pressed his hand to her lips.

"I couldn't bear you to think of anyone else."

"I couldn't think of anyone else."

"Not even Mrs. Shepherd?"

GIFTS FEATURE MEETING OF Y.P.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 18 — Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gillespie, who were recently married, were guests of honor at the regular meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Young People's Society on Wednesday evening, when they were presented with a beautiful rose Kenwood blanket, a pair of plaid blankets, and a silver relish dish. The president, Mrs. Stewart Whitred, presented the gifts as Miss Lily Dodd read the address, congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie on their marriage and welcoming Mr. Gillespie to their midst. Mrs. Gillespie (nee Annie Spooner) has been a valued member of the Y.P.S. and was a most efficient president for a number of years; and it is the wish of the members of the society that she and her husband will continue to attend the meetings. Mr. Gillespie graciously acknowledged the kindness shown them, and after unwrapping the parcels, Mrs. Gillespie, in her witty and capable manner, also expressed her thanks.

The meeting, which was presided over by the president, opened with devotions. Miss Edna Graham read an interesting topic before the singof "Jesus shall reign." Mrs. D. K. Perrie then gave as a piano solo, Brahm's Waltz.

A most amuzing part of the program was a debate, "Resolved, That the groom has a better time at the wedding than the bride." The affirmative was ably upheld by Roy Johnston and Miss Alice Whitred, and the negative by V. Findly and Miss Daisy Graham. The debate, which was most humorous, was judged by Rev. D. K. Perrie and Mrs. R. King, who gave the decision in favor of the negative.

The members were then divided into groups and each group assisted in the making of a scrap-book for Annie and Clarence, pasting pictures to illustrate their childhood, school days, marriage, and home life. The same groups also took part in a "Bouquet of Well-known Flowers" contest, the winners being Miss Daisy Graham's group. Lunch was served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

SPEAKER TELLS MILLBROOK W. A. WHAT WEST NEEDS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 18.—Mrs. J. L. Byam was hostess for the October meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's church, the gathering, attended by over thirty members and visitors, being at her home, Bank street, on Wednesday at 3 p.m., with the president Mrs. (Rev.) A. L. Sicoe, occupying the chair for the opening devotional and business periods.

"The Church, a Living Power," was the worship theme, the leader offering the prayer, and the lesson being Luke's story of the Great Commission. Announcement was made that the November meeting, in charge of Mrs. T. H. Aiken's group, will be the annual fall thank offering gathering, Mrs. A. J. Henderson being appointed assistant leader with Mrs. Aiken, the latter requiring help on account of ill health.

The bale of clothing, etc., which is to go to the West will be packed Wednesday, October 27, and members were reminded to leave donations at the Parsonage. The fall Sectional Rally will be on October 20 in Fairmount church, with Miss Mitchell, field secretary of the W.M.S. as the special speaker, and the president urged a large attendance from the local society.

Miss Widdis took charge of the program for which her group was responsible, Mrs. J. McKnight reading the devotional leaflet, with Mrs. F. P. Johnson, Mrs. O. Williamson, and Mrs. C. E. Thornton assisting. Miss Estella Hetherington led in prayer and played soft music while the offering was being received.

Mrs. Siscoe introduced the guest speaker for the day, Mrs. (Rev.) G. Malcolm, who has spent twenty years in the West, chiefly in Saskatchewan, first as a school teacher and later as a minister's wife, and who brought an instructive message relative to the needs of the drought area. Briefly sketching the conditions following 1929 when the drought, now in its eighth year, began, Mrs. Malcolm went on to mention what might be most needed in the bales sent to the West, emphasizing boys' clothing, flannelitte to make warm underclothing for the children, bedding, blankets, etc.

"There is a mind hunger, too, and if you could send your Sunday School papers which you have saved up in monthly packages, they would be so much appreciated. They are too heavy to be included in the bales, but I will leave some addresses with Mrs. Siscoe in case any of you would undertake to mail such papers, and possibly salso some of your magazines, to these women who need this help so much.

"Do not delay too long in preparing your bale; the railways carry them free, but for that reason there is not much haste in getting them off, and the need is great. Any pieces of floor covering you can spare, these women of the prairies would like to have, or material of any kind that will help in the cold weather." The speaker concluded with an account of the struggles of a young girl to obtain her high school education under great financial difficulties, her clothing for the year away from home being supplied from a bale sent from the east.

Mrs. W. W. Kennedy sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and the meeting closed with the W.M.S. Watchword, after which Miss Widdis and her committee served tea, for which a charge of fifteen cents was made. The vote of thanks to Mrs. Malcolm, the hostess and the group was moved by Mrs. L. H. Rea seconded by Mrs. M. McDowell, and unanimously approved.

ARCHITECT STRUCK BY CRASHING DOOR

By Beverley Sutton.

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 18—(CP).—Injured when a 2,900-pound door of a bank vault fell upon him, J. Jackson Beck, Toronto architect, lay in hospital here to-day with a fractured pelvis, chipped bone in the left knee, and probable internal injuries. Hospital authorities gave him a good chance to recover.

An inspector for the Toronto architectural firm of John A. Lyle, Mr. Beck was pinned beneath the vault door in the new branch of the Dominion Bank in downtown Sudbury yesterday when wooden props fell from under the door.

Mr. Lyle said in Toronto last night he was "gravely concerned" over the injury to his associate, and added he was constantly in touch with the hospital. In the confusion attending the accident, it was reported erroneously Mr. Lyle was the victim.

The injured man came to Sudbury from Toronto yesterday on one of his frequent inspection trips to the renovation job. With M. Knight, the contractor, and G. Heath Ross, manager of the Sudbury branch of the Dominion Bank, he was assisting in moving the door when it crashed. Observers said a plank which checked one corner of the door momentarily in its fall saved their lives.

FAMILY PAYS GANG $50,000 ROSS NOT FREED

Wife Sets Deadline 8 a.m.; Gets No Word

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.— (AP).—D. I. Ladd of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced to-day the family of Charles S. Ross, retired greeting card manufacturer, had paid $50,000 ransom for Ross' return.

Ladd's statement said his department could give no information as to the details of the payment as it was "handled entirely by the family upon what they believed to be definite proof they were in contact with the kidnappers."

Ross was kidnapped 24 days ago and at 8 a.m. to-day, the deadline set by Mrs. Ross for word from the abductors, she had received no word from them.

Make Final Appeal

"We of course could not be a party to the payment of a ransome in a kidnapping case," Ladd's statement said, "and necessarily same was handled by the family. As we are advised, the family upon payment of the money waited for a reasonable period of time beyond the time the kidnappers indicated they would release Mr. Ross and then made a final appeal to the kidnappers for the release of Mr. Ross, as was received by the various papers Sunday afternoon, October 17."

Ladd said the payment was made in bills of $5, $10 and $20 denominations.

"We, of course, desire the papers give as wide publicity as possible to these lists (of serial numbers of the bills) which have been distributed to the usual sources and that you indicate to the public that it is the desire of the Federal Bureau of Investigation that the public be on the alert for the appearance of these bills either as now in their possession or as subsequently may be received by them."

Stock Prices Break In Worst Slump Since '29 Debacle

New York Tumble Takes World Markets With It; "Wall Street Conspiracy," President Is Told

(By the Canadian Press)

Stock prices were shattered anew on Wall street today as a heavy wave of selling, largely necessitated by weakened margin accounts, hit the market. Prices dropped as much as $10 a share in the first feverish hour, but improved a little in the second hour when some investment trust stepped into Wall street with a sizeable buying order.

At London steels lost 10 points. Golds and industrials also fell away and the closing tone was weak.

A flood of overnight orders washed away quotations at the opening of the Toronto and Montreal exchanges. At the start declines of $1 to $3 appeared in such leaders as Steel of Canada, International Nickel, Noranda, Distillers Seagrams and Dome.

As a total of 2,210,000 shares changed hands in Wall street in the first hour of trading, largest volume in four years, A. J. Sabath, Democratic congressman of Illinois, charged in a telegram to President Roosevelt that the financial slump grew from a "Wall street conspiracy."

"I have just been informed the bankers and brokers are advising people to sell their securities before it is too late," Sabath wired. He urged "strong measures be taken against them immediately to save the nation from a recurrence of the 1929 debacle."

However, one usually well-informed official who discussed the situation unofficially said:

"It seems that people just are afraid to buy. It is a psychology

CHINESE ASSAULT FORCES JAP FRONT BACK HALF-MILE

SCHANGHAI, Oct. 19 (A.P.). — Chinese troops struck back at Japanese to-day in a counter-offensive near Tazang, centre of Chinese supply lines on the Shanghai front.

Chinese sent back word the Japanese had lost the half-mile gain they had made yesterday. In that engagement an entire detachment of 1,400 Chinese, and 3,000 Japenese were reported killed when Japanese attempted to sever Chinese food and munitions supply routes.

At noon to-day Chinese authorities announced the Japanese had retreated to their original position three miles east of the village which lies about five miles north of Shanghai.

Balked in successive attempts to crack Chinese Shanghai lines, the Japanese military served notice all Chinese railway trains, stations, warehouses, and equipment will be considered military objectives subject to bombardment because military supplies are being moved by rail.

Bomb Inland Junks.

The annonucement followed the daily widening shadow of Japanese wings over China. New air raids were made on the Tientsin-Pukow and Peiping-Hankow railways in North China, the Hankow-Canton line in the south, and the Shanghai-Hangchow route. Japenese also bombed junks on inland waterways.

One of the heaviest engagements in the Shanghai area to-day centered about the Tunwuchih Temple, which changed hands three times. Japanese continued their systematic bombardment of the Chinese Chapei section of Shanghai and Chinese communication lines.

Reports from North China said the Japanese advance into North China provinces had been slowed. The Japanese were said to be meeting stiff resistance along Southern Hopeh Province.

In Shantung Province they were said to have withdrawn northward 15 miles.

A major conflict was reported in progress 60 miles north of Taiyuan, Shansi Province capital. Reports Chinese threatened destruction of thousands of Japanese troops in North Shansi gained ground.

New Province Invaded

(At Peiping, the Japanese announced the invasion of Honan, the sixth North China Province to be entered by Japanese. A military communique said an armored train had crossed the provincial border.)

MEDICAL OFFICIALS RECALL NEW DRUG

CHICAGO, Oct. 19 (A.P.). — The American Medical Association warned publicly yesterday of a drug preparation which the Association said apparently caused deaths in Tulsa, Okla., and which had been widely distributed elsewhere.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, released "for the protection of the public" an editorial to be published in the Journal, attributing the deaths to an elixir of sulfanilamide.

Dr. Fishbein said the preparation in question was only recently placed on the market by one firm and that 375 shipments had been made to drug stores throughout the United States. These shipments, he said, were being recalled.

Dr. Fishbein explained sulfnallamide is a "very valuable" new drug used principally in treatment of streptococcus infection, meningitis, and gonorrhea, but that it can have dangerous effects when used in improper quantities and without a doctor's advice.

Tax Labor-Saving Machinery Urged By Ottawa Council

Blames It For Unemployment--Wuold Place Burden Where It Rightly Belongs

OTTAWA, Oct. 19.— (CP).—The Ontario government may be asked by the city of Ottawa to levy a tax on labor-saving machinery "responsible for unemployment."

After a long debate last night, the city council sent to the Board of Control Ald. Dan McCann's motion which read as follows:

"That in order to place the burden of taxation where it rightly belongs for the payment of wages and relief, the Ontario government be requested to levy a tax on labor saving machinery responsible for unemployment or give to municipalities the authority to levy a tax where necessary for the payment of wages to employables and relief to unemployables."

Ald. McCann said putting relief taxes on property was misplaced and dishonest. They should be levied against the machines which threw them out of work.

Several aldermen claimed the Ontario government should have left the amusement tax in operation and turn over the receipts to municipalities for relief purposes.

At the same time, Controller G. M. Geldert gave notice of a motion to request the government to pass new legislation enabling municipalities to lighten relief taxation loads on property, spreading the difference where it could be carried without excess hardship.

She faltered when about to step into a car that was to drive her to the wedding breakfast, collapsed and died before medical attention could be summoned.

PROPOSE TO COUNT ALL VOLUNTEERS

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(CP Cable)—A neutral commission will, it is expected, be sent to Spain to determine how many volunteers are fighting for General Franco and how many for the Valencia government This is considered a necessary preliminary to actual withdrawal.

For the moment nobody agrees over numbers. Estimates for General Franco vary from the Italian official figure of 40,000 to the Valencial figure of 110,000. Estimates for government volunteers vary from 20,000 to 50,000. Therefore, it is argued, before the non-intervention committee can decide the ratio in which the volunteers are to be withdrawn, it must be in possession of more accurate figures on the volunteers actually in Spain.

France, backed by Great Britain and Russia, holds by proportionate withdrawal. But even if the committee accepts the proportionate principle a ratio fair to both sides cannot be determined till the numbers are known.

It is considered essential in British circles, however, that there should be no delay and that if a commission is to be sent it must report speedily.

Rowe To Remain Tory Leader

TORONTO, Oct. 19 (CP). — The Evening Telegram said today it had learned definitely that Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative leader, would retain that position. Mr. Rowe was defeated as candidate in Simcoe Centre in the October 6 general election.

Several of the 23 successful Conservatives have offered their seats to Mr. Rowe, the Telegram said. The one to be accepted has not been decided.

Announcement of Mr. Rowe's decision to continue as party leader would be made next week when he consults his followers, the newspaper said.

Premier Hepburn offered following the election not to oppose Mr. Rowe if one of the Conservative seats was opened for him.

BIRD'S LEG HEALS

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 19.—(CP).—Milton Corbett's blue heron, its leg repaired, was freed in the Dundas sanctuary during the week-end. Several weeks ago the bird crashed into Corbett's car and broke one of its long legs, which was placed in a splint by Thomas Etchells, traffic officer and bird surgeon. The heron's limb seemed in good working order when released.

BRITISH SAPPERS DYNAMITE HOMES OF ARAB SUSPECTS

JERUSALEM, Oct. 19 (CP).—Unsuccessful in a search for rifles stolen in an Arab raid yesterday on the police station, British army sappers today dynamited three Arab homes at Dahario, near Hebron.

When the rifles were not forthcoming, expert searchers, assisted by Arab women, sought the stolen property. The women were employed because Arabs often rely on the "untouchability" of their womenfolk to conceal arms and munitions.

When the search finally proved fruitless, sappers mined the houses and blew them up. The troops then withdrew. It was understood such punitive measures would be pursued until the rifles are recovered.

Military reinforcements were sent to the northern frontier of the Holy Land to prevent a possible incursion of Syrians following yesterday's report of a border incident.

Syrians Repulsed.

Unconfirmed advices said heavy casualties were inflicted on a large band of Syrians who attempted to cross the border between French-mandated Syria and British-mandated Palestine.

Homes of five Arabs suspected of incendiary fires which destroyed new buildings at the Lydda airport were blown up Sunday by military sappers.

(A London spokesman of the Colonial Office said "Only the government on the spot knows what is appropriate action in a given circumstance and they are naturally guided by conditions.")

Arab raiders attacked a Jewish colony near Artuf in Southern Palestine. Hard-pressed local police, seeking to disperse the attackers, sent up red flares. These were seen by troops some distance away and reinforcements were sped to the scene. Order was soon restored.

GREEK KING TO TOUR

ATHENS, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—King George will leave shortly for a few weeks' visit to London, Paris and Rome, it was announced officially to-day. It will be his first foreign tour since he was restored to the throne of Greece two years ago.

Mountaineers Toil Hours Up Peak To Reach Wreck

Crash Costs Highest Toll, U.S. Airlane History; Luxury Liner Found Strewn on 10,000-Foot Peak

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—All 19 occupants, four women and 15 men, of the United Airlines "Mainliner" were found dead when searching parties reached the crash scene early today, they reported to the company.

Mountaineers had toiled hours over great cliffs and snow-filled gorges to reach the scene 10,000 feet up.

Ralph Johnson, a United Airlines pilot and one of a group of four who kept going all night in the treacherous snow, informed L. D. Cuddeback, division superintendent, a survey of the wreckage by flashlight showed no sign of life.

After Johnson brought out word of the tragedy—the greatest number of persons ever killed in a United States airplane crash—the air line quickly assembled officials, airplanes and ground workers to bring out the bodies.

The Knight, Wyo., airport, 26 miles to the north, was made the base of operations.

Cuddeback said Johnson went up to the big airplane, "peered in and found that the 16 passengers and crew of three were dead."

Back for Help.

Because of the condition of the wreckage on towering Chalk Peak, Johnson was unable to make a complete investigation. He wasted no time, but started immediately down the mountainside for help.

Manning, the "mainliner" with Pilot Woodgerd were Co-Pilot John Adams of Denver and Hostess Leah Derr of Salt Lake City. Greatest previous death toll in United States airlane history was at Goodwin, Ark., January 14, 1936, when a transport plunged into a swamp, killing 17 persons.

Airline officials refused to hazard an opinion as to definite cause of the crash other than to say it was attributable "in some degree to adverse weather and flying conditions."

Although the crash scene is only 10 minutes' flight from Knight, Wyo., it took rescue parties many hours to force their way into the rugged region, 26 miles south of that village. Crews worked in from Knight and Evanston, Wyo., and Coalville, Utah.

Crashes on Bare Ridge

There were no trees around the plane. The ridge was partially bare.

BALANCED BUDGET HOPES OF U.S. FADE AS REVENUES SKID

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP).—An unexplained drop in estimated revenues has postponed until next year, at least, the long-sought goal of a balanced budget in the United States.

President Roosevelt, in a revised budget statement, estimated at $696,245,000 the net deficit for the fiscal year ending next June 30. Inclusion of debt retirement, he said, creates a gross deficit $200,000,000 higher.

Despite the backslide since January, a gross deficit of $89,245,000 would be less than for any fiscal year since 1930. Last year's gross deficit of $2,811,318,310 was the smallest since 1931.

The president noted the difference between net and gross deficits in his statement. He said the estimated net deficit was $2,012,000,000 less than the net deficit for last year.

Plans to Retrench.

He also re-emphasized his announced determination to retrench. He said no further commitments would be made by two agencies which in days gone by have utilized billions—the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Public Works Administration.

The same attitude was voiced by the President in a speech last night starting the annual community chest drives. Discussing the need for curtailed relief spending, he said:

"Unless Federal taxes are to be greatly increased, the expenditures have to be brought within the existing tax receipts."

This statement, together with the budget figures, again raised discussion of possible tax increases despite recent administration assurances there would be none.

Members of Congress gathering for their special session next month were especially concerned with this phase. They noted that the chief cause given for the upward revision of the estimated deficit was a drop in expected revenues.

Last January, the President estimated this years tax receipts at $7,293,000,000. Yesterday he estimated them at $6,650,000,000, a drop of $643,000,000.

He made no attempt to explain the difference except to say it was "more than accounted for by the reduction in the estimate of income and social security taxes."

Noting these two items are primarily dependent on business conditions, some tax authorities blamed the lowered estimates on the stock market drop and evidences of lessened industrial activity in some fields.

BLANKET OF FOG WRAPS ONTARIO

TORONTO, Oct. 19 (CP).—From the Great Lakes to Northern Ontario a fog blanket was stretched today. Mild, foggy weather prevailed in most parts of Eastern and Western Ontario and extended into the Sudbury district of the north.

Foggy and heavy weather was the description from Sudbury. In the Niagara Peninsula the weather continued mild, with the mercury ranging around the 60 mark. Nearly an inch of rain fell in the peninsula during the night.

More rain was recorded Monday at St. Thomas than during any day of last spring's devastating floods. Official measurements show three inches fell Monday compared with .67 on the heaviest day last April.

The rain stopped for a while in the St. Thomas district, but rain started to fall lightly today. Farmers said the moisture will be welcomed.

For a while this morning the heavy mist left Kitchener district only to fall again as a drizzling rain started. The fog settled over Toronto area with great density.

Finding of Perfect 'Phone Bell To End Sudden Frights

New London Instrument Meets Approval Of Special Musicians' Jury

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(CP).— The alarm clock's raucous notes may profit by the discovery of post office engineers of a "perfect telephone bell."

The bell, approved by a specially engaged jury of musicians, will be incorporated in the 1938 telephone The note chosen is said to be of medium pitch, but average volume. It can be heard well, but will never give anyone a fright when it rings.

Other features of next year's telephone will include what is considered a greater aesthetic appeal. The shape of the stand has been altered so there will be a more imposing front, although it will be more compact; a little drawer pulls out and provides a pad for notes and new rubber feet of the non-skid type prevent slipping on polished tables.

Dr. W. G. Stroble, coroner, said the victims were Mrs. Halen McKash, 52; her three sons, Abe, 23; Peter, 21 and John, 19; a daughter, Olgo, 17, and a hired man, Harry Cechill, 50

Magistrate Raps Police Laxity

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., Oct. 19. — (CP).—"There seems to be a laxity on the part of the police in charge of this case," remarked Magistrate Compton Jeffs in police court yesterday when Reeve Sam Patton, Sunnidale Township, was arraigned for preliminary hearing on a charge of manslaughter.

The court was displeased because the Crown did not have all its witnesses present, and an adjournment was granted to October 25. The case arises from a highway crash October 3 in which Mrs. Alvin Crooke, Goderich, suffered fatal injuries. Cars driven by Patton and Mr. Crooke collided.

Return True Bill In Abernethy Case

COBOURG, Ont., Oct. 19.—(CP).—true bills were returned by the Grand Jury to-day against Russell Abernethy, Campbellford, charged with manslaughter, and John Beggs, Port Hope, charged with rape.

No bill was the verdict in the manslaughter charge against William Churchill of Forest, Ont.

Defence Minister Ridicules Belief Africa Must Aid Britan In War

Klerksdorp, Transvaal, Oct. 19.

DEFENCE Minister Pirow of the Union of South Africa in a speech here yesterday ridiculed what he described as a belief that the South African government had agreed to assist Great Britain in a time of war or to defend British colonies.

Mr. Pirow told a by-election meeting that "if ever you are called on for active service or told to take up your rifles because we have a contract with England to go to war, I tell you now that, as Minister of Defence, I give you permission to rebel and to refuse to go to war."

He added that "I will be the first to rebel in such circumstances."

ONTARIO GIVING DREW, FERGUSON THEIR K.C. BACK

Queen's Park Rumors Move Been Regretted

TORONTO, Oct. 19 (C.P.). — The Ontario Government is restoring to G. Howard Ferguson, former Premier and former High Commissioner in London, and to Col. George A. Drew, former provincial organizer for the Conservative party, the titles of King's Counsel taken from them after the Hepburn Government assumed office in July, 1934, says a newspage story in the Toronto Globe and Mail to-day.

The Globe and Mail story continues:

The Order-in-Council authorizing the return of the honors is sponsored by Attorney-General Conant, and will be passed by Cabinet at an early date—if it is not already operative.

Although there is no official confirmation of the Government's action yet available, unofficial Queen's Park contends that the Government has long regretted the action that was taken with regard to Messrs. Ferguson and Drew, and has been anxious to make amends.

Mr. Ferguson and Col. Drew, among two or three score others, were stripped of their K.C.'s for alleged failure to pay the fees required to lift their patents. Col. Drew's fee was the charge prevailing in the year it was granted, it is understood, but Mr. Ferguson's was reportedly only nine or ten dollars, dating back as it did some 30 years.

It is rumored that Mr. Hepburn and his Cabinet may order a complete reconsideration of all the cases.

ALBERTA DEFENDS THREE NEW BILLS

EDMONTON, Oct. 19.— (CP).— Validity of three bills passed by the Alberta Legislature in special session early this month and referred to the Governor-General-in-Council for consideration is reafirmed ni a brief submitted by Alberta to the Dominion government.

The brief, made public here yesterday by Premier Aberhart, also proposes a court reference on the question of Federal right to disallow legislation of any province. Three bills for which assent was withheld by Lieutenant-Governer J. C. Bowen dealt with newspapers, taxation of banks and regulation of credit. No objection was raised in the brief to a court reference on the bill "to ensure the publication of accurate news and information" if its constitutional validity were questioned. The bill provides for enforced publication in newspapers of corrective statements on government policy and mandatory disclosure of news sources.

The brief claimed, however, test cases in courts rather than a straight court reference were necessary to determine validity of legislation providing for bank taxation and the Alberta Credit Regulation Act.

The tax measure would increase from one-tenth to one-half of one per cent the tax on paid up capital and impose a tax of one per cent on reserves and undivided profits. Total revenue would be an estimated $2,000,000 annually.

Regulation of credit institutions and creation of local credit boards to direct credit policy are provided in the Credit Act, amended at the special session after being disallowed in August by the Federal government.

Provincial rights to tax banks had already been proven in the courts, the brief said, and it contended the new taxes were not excessive.

YOUTH IN IRON LUNG HEADS FOR MIAMI

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(AP). — Medicine's Marco Polo completed plans yesterday to run the mileage on his respirator past the 10,000-mile mark.

Fred B. Snite, Jr., smiling victim of infantile paralysis, arranged to leave to-day for Miami Beach, Fla., in the "iron lung" that has kept him alive for 18½ months.

He looked forward to the 1,497-mile journey with eagerness, and exhibited no anxiety. He's an experienced traveller in his grotesque steel and glass barrel. Encased in the respirator, he was borne 9,300 miles by train, truck and ship from Peiping, China, to Chicago last summer.

Ensconced in the device fashioned by science to perform the functions of paralyzed breathing muscles, he will be moved from the University of Chicago's Billings Memorial Hospital to a van equipped with batteries to furnish power for his "iron lung."

The vehicle will proceed to a special train and then man and machine will be transferred to a club car transformed to a hospital on wheels. With him will travel two doctors, two male orderlies, seven nurses, his banker father and mother, his sister Mary Loretto, and a Notre Dame classmate, T. J. Dillon.

Upon arrival in Miami Beach the prisoner of the "iron lung" will be transported to the winter home of his father to bask in the sun through the cold months.

Snite—now 27—was stricken on March 31, 1936, while visiting China in a world tour.

Key to Normal Life Quint Problem

DETROIT, Oct. 19.—(CP).—First problem in the early days of the Dionne Quintuplets was simply to keep them alive and well, but in the future the difficulty will be to enable them to lead normal lives, Miss Yvonne Leroux, former nurse of the famous five, told an audience before whom she lectured yesterday.

Miss Leroux, dark, pretty and 24, was the first nurse on the scene after the multiple birth in the farm house of Oliva Dionne at Calander. She attended the babies from 12 hours after their birth until last December, when she resigned.

"The little girls are reaching the age when they are beginning to notice things and be aware of their surroundings," Miss Leroux said. "Until recently they could be regarded as babies, not consciously aware of their environment."

THREE WITNESSES NAME JOSEPH LEE AS PISTOL WIELDER

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 19.—(CP).—Evidence of three witnesses that Joseph C. Lee, 58-year-old former restaurateur, was the man who shot and critically wounded Anthony Anderson during an altercation before a manufacturing plant here last June 4 was written in Supreme Court records to-day, second day of Lees trial on a charge of murder.

Lee is charged with the murder of Charles Jackson and John Anderson and with the attempted murder of Anthony Anderson, brother of Charles. Anthony is in hospital with a bullet in the spine which has left him paralyzed. At the opening of the trial yesterday Crown Counsel C. L. Snyder said he proposed to have the three charges heard separately.

Harold Noseworthy, John Evanson and Adolph Miller, at work in a factory adjoining the Atlas Rubber Horseshow plant at the time of the shooting, testified yesterday that Lee shot Anthony Anderson in the back as he emrged from the Atlas plant. The Andersons, Jackson and Lee once were assocalted in the management of the plant.

Saw Man on Ground.

The three said the shooting occurred shortly after they had found a man lying against the wall of the plant. The man was bleeding from wounds in the knee. Miller also testified that shortly after he had seen Anthony Anderson shot down, he had run around to the factory's east door in time to see John Anderson fall to the floor.

"A man came out behind John Anderson," Miller added. "He was holding a gun like that,' demonstrating by holding his right hand close to his hip. Miller identified Lee as the man he saw holding the gun. All three witnesses pointed to Lee as the man who shot Anthony Anderson.

MOUNTAINEERS TOIL UP PEAK

Snow covered firs were 100 yards from the wreckage.

The area is known as the Grand-Daddy Lakes region—a summer vacation resort. Few people ever have climbed Chalk Peak. Much of the region adjacent to the plane never has been explored.

Late last night Otis J. Pusey, Associated Press reporter, reported spending six hours climbing over Gumpy Ridge which leads up to Calk Peak.

"There's a foot and a half of snow on the ridge; it's almost impossible to make headway," Pusey said. "There are soft spots where you plunge in above your knees.

"It's cloudy, making searching almost impossible. The thermometer is below freezing. All phones in the region are down because of the storm."

Pusey, veteran Associated Press reporter who has participated in three searches for crashed planes in the Salt Lake City region the past two years, reported:

"This search is the toughest I've ever participated in.

"Roads are quagmires. Our car ran in mud up to the axles. Most of the time we had to run in low gear and sometimes I had to get out and push. (Pusey is accompanied by J. B. Howat, Associated Press Photographer).

"Even when the plane is found it will be several hours before reporters can reach telephones. The same storm which caused the plane to crash, ripped down telephone wires."

Dr. M. Richard Boe, prominent Alameda, Calif., surgeon, sped here in the faint hope he might aid his adopted daughter, Mrs. Ferreira, who was aboard the airliner. Mrs. Ferreira was en route to Oakland for the birth of her baby in the hospital where she trained as a nurse.

MEET IS CALLED OFF

PAWTUCKET, R.I., Oct. 19.—(A.P)—With loaded National Guard machine guns set up at the entrance of the Narragansett Park race track, officials of the track today called off this afternoon's racing "because of martial law."

Armed National Guardsmen patrolled the area about the racing plant to enforce Governor Robert E. Quinn's command that the plant be closed.

Judge Raymond J. McMahon said entries would be accepted for tomorrow.

NO BLAME PINNED IN NEW TORONTO 2 POISON DEATHS

NEW TORONTO, Oct. 19 (Special) —More rigid inspection by the Provincial Government of drug labelling methods was recommended in a rider attached to a verdict returned last night by a coroner's jury, probing the death of two women, which blamed no one, but named James G. Armstrong the dispenser of the fatal medicine taken by the victims.

The two victims, Mrs. Lydia Cardy and Mrs. Helen Heron, died in convulsions shortly after taking a druggist's prescription for a minor stomach ailment.

Urge Distinctive Bottles

The jury also urged that all bottles containing poison and carried on the shelves of a licensed pharmacy be of a shape and pattern distinctive from those containing ordinary drugs and that they be kept in a separate, marked compartment.

The verdict read: "We, the coroner's jury, find that Helen Heron died on October 9, 1937, as the result of taking a dose of cyanide, and that the said medicine came from a store known as the J. G. Armstrong drug store and was dispensed by one J. G. Armstrong."

Potassium cyanide caused the death of Mrs. Heron, Dr. Joslyn Rogers, Provincial analyst, who examined the dead woman, said.

Mrs. Heron and Mrs. Lydia Cardy died as a result of drinking medicine allegedly wrongly dispensed by James G. Armstrong, druggist, who is under arrest on two charges of manslaughter.

Dr. Rogers said the cause of death seemed to him to be conclusive. He said he found nine-twentieths of a grain of potassium cyanide in the stomach of Mrs. Heron. He also analyzed a bottle of poison which was seized in the drug store along with a bottle containing potassium citrate.

Protection Sought

R. H. Greer, K.C., asked for and obtained the protection of the court for Armstrong. The latter was on the witness stand for less than a minute.

In a low voice which scarcely carried to the Crown, he identified the bottle of medicine and said he had dispensed it. This was all. Then he left the stand.

It was brought out in evidence that most drug stores group their drugs alphabetically as had Armstrong. There was no law or regu-

Mission Closed At Hastings

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 19. — Father Howard of the redemptorist fathers of London, delivered the closing sermon and gave the Papal blessing to a very large attendance at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel on Sunday night. The occasion was a renewal mission which was begun Sunday, Oct. 10. Father Keogh, also of the Redemptorist order and Father Howard, preached to a packed church for the eight nights.

Father Costello left on Monday for Hamilton to attend the consecration of Bishop Joseph F. Ryan on Tuesday.

BOAT VS. SHARK

STOCK PRICES IN NEW SLUMP

that has developed. We can't explain it and we don't know any steps the Government might take which would dissipate it."

The down swing was general. Curb market issues, commodities, along with high-grade corporate and United States' Government bonds slumped on American boards.

Scenes of confusion on the New York Exchange and brokerage houses were reminiscent of the historic break of 1929. Shouting of bids and offers on the exchange floor were deafening. The roar could be heard a block from the building. Board rooms were crowded to overflowing by anxious investors seeking to "cover" their margins.

London Follows Suit.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(AP).— Wall Street's slump lay heavily on the London stock market to-day.

Brief mid-day firmness of British Government securities failed to halt a general decline, especially of speculative stocks in which trans-Atlantic issues fell sharply from yesterday's close.

Steels at 57¾ lost to 10¾ points. Gold Mines and Industrials also were lower and the market closed weak.

Dealers, expressing disappointment at Wall Street's drop, marked prices down in fear of further forced selling. The decline was viewed with discouragement because it was considered conditions here were ripe for an upward trend, now halted pending clarification of the situation in the United States.

Metal markets were weak. Tin broke nearly $70 to about $1,030 a ton. Tin has lost more than $250 a ton in the past three weeks. Copper was forced down $13.75 a ton. Its price was slightly above $213.

TAPE 22 MINUTES BEHIND

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—Stock market leaders toppled 1 to more than 13 points today in the heaviest selling witnessed in more than four years.

Reported investment trust buying on the way down, however, attracted support in the latter part of the proceedings and extreme losses were substantially reduced in many cases near the fourth hour. Nearly 4,000,000 shares were turned over in the first two hours.

The ticker tape was as much as 22 minutes behind during the great portion of the session and bids and offers swung over a wide orbit.

Canadian shares slumped sharply. Hiram Walker dipped around three points, followed closely by McIntyre Porcupine. Off a point or more were Lake Shore, Dome and Distillers Seagram. Fractional losses were noted in Dominion Stores and Canadian Pacific. Dominion funds remained at 100904 1-16.

Delayed openings were frequent. American Telephone and Chrysler appeared 20 to 25 minutes late. It required almost two hours for a trade to be negotiated in Nash-Kelvinator. In an initial 25,000-share transaction it was off 5½ at 5. Among other long-postponed openings at sizeable declines were Calumet & Hecla, Murray Corp., Studebaker, International Telephone, Sperry Corp. and American Zinc. Most pared their losses before the finish.

Prominent on the losing side most of the day were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Crucible, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Western Union, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Macy, J.I. Case, Douglas Aircraft, Goeing, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, National Lead, American Can, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Texas Corp., Socony Vacuum, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Northern Pacific, Pullman, Loew's Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, Allis Chalmers and Phillip Morris.

Toronto Prices Off 10 Points

TORONTO, October 19—(C.P.). — The Toronto Stock Market was buffeted by waves of selling to-day and prices were hammered to their lowest levels since 1936. All index grouping were off 6 to 10 points at the close and over the board individual losses ranged up 9 points. The afternoon brought a moderate rebound as investment buying and short covering out-stepped the flow of selling and the market quieted down on the rise. Sales totalled about 2,000,000 shares, the heaviest since April 21 last.

The heavy slump came in the opening stage and after an hour and a half of fast selling from impaired margin accounts in which period the tape was at times 8 to 15 minutes behind the market, offerings lightened and prices began to come back moderately. By early afternoon the market had effected a considerable rebound among the big leaders, the result of both short covering and investment buying. The market was quieter, however, on the recovery than in the early decline.

About 600,000 changed hands in the first hour and 993,000 in the first two hours. At noon the Toronto Exchange indices showed a loss of seven points for both the industrials and the golds, while the miscellaneous mines indicator was off 11 points. All indices were at new lows for the last two to three years.

Some of the leaders were down 3 to 5 points in the early stage. Smelters, Noranda, Steel of Canada and some of the preferred issues had losses of 5 points and Hudson Bay, Nickel, Dome, McIntyre and Lake Shore lost 1 to 3 points each. Nickel had recovered to show a narrow net gain by early afternoon.

NOTED WRITER IS COMING TO CITY

The man who obtained the first eye-witness story of the assassination of the Romanoffs in Russia, who duplicated the feat of Hannibal by riding an elephant in the tracks of the historic conqueror over the Alps into Italy and who lived as guest of Halle Selassie while Italians were preparing to conquer his kingdom, is to visit Peterborough on November 22. He is well known to those who love to read of travel and adventure in the far places of the world—Richard Halliburton.

The foot-loose world roamer is being brought here by the Lions' Club and will make his appearance in the Collegiate auditorium, proceeds from the lecture to be devoted by the Lions' Club to their boys' band project. For the first time, a Peterborough audience will be afforded the opportunity to hear at first hand the story of the young man who left Princeton University to yield to a wanderlust that has taken him during the past ten years through the most romantic adventures left to the 20th century traveller. Many local readers are followers of Halliburton through his five famous books—The Royal Road to Romance, The Flying Carpet, New Worlds to Conquer, The Glorious Adventure and Seven League Boots.

Typical of the adventures of which Hallburton will tell are a few of those related in Seven League Boots. Santiago, Cuba—visited the bulk of the Merrimac of Spanish War fame — on to Fort Jefferson, the Civil War seafortress in the Gulf of Mexico—guest of Venezolas before the Greek revolution—in the Holy Land explored the ruins of the palace where Salome danced for the head of John the Baptist—pitches his tent in the dungeon cave where the prophet was beheaded—disguised as a pilgrim attempted to enter Mecca—turned back—later granted interview with Ibn Saud, the giant King of Arabia. These and many more adventures including his interview with the chief assassin in the massacre of the Russian royal family in 1918 are included in the tale he has to tell.

Poultry prices nominal.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Wheat futures plunged three cents lower on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day on liquidation induced principally by drastic declines in Wall Street stocks. Feeble recoveries were made in late dealings with final prices 2¼ to 2 ¼cents lower; October, $1.20⅞; November, $1.20½ to ⅝; December, $1.15⅝ to ⅞, and May $1.11¼.

Nine cents a bushel crash of November wheat future at Buenos Aires, where restriction in the trade of that future was reported clamped down, proved a factor in earlier weakness here. Unofficial reports to Winnipeg indicate trading of November wheat in the Argentine was confined to liquidation of outstanding contracts.

Heavy commission house selling sent prices more than a cent lower at the start. Despite overseas support, prices nervously moved lower and were three cents off shortly after mid-session.

47 Patients Given Treatment In Outpost Hospital During Past Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Oct. 19.—The annual meeting of the Apsley Branch of the Red Cross Society was held on Saturday evening in the Parish Hall with a good attendance, the Rev. C. A. G. Spence acting as chairman.

A short program before the business, consisted of Junior Red Cross songs rendered by scholars of S. S. 4 and 5, Anstruther, and "The Maple Leaf" sung by S. S. 4, and short addresses on the work of the Red Cross by the Rev. F. C. McMulkin and Warden Roy Brown. The warden, speaking of his own personal experience, stressed the importance of more attention being paid to the case of children's eyesight and hoped that eye clinics would be established, which he was sure would receive the support of the local municipal councils and the County Council.

The financial report, submitted by the auditor, showed receipts for the year, $595.25, with expenditures of $458.75, leaving a balance in the bank of $136.50 as against $92.63 for the year previous. Included in the receipts were the county council grant of $300. Donations amounting to $246, and membership fees $33. A payment of $200 to the Ontario Division of the Society was made by the local branch.

The report on the year's activities at the hospital was presented by the nurse, Miss Finnemore, and, contained the following interesting statistics: Patients admitted to hospital 47; hospital days 330; confinements in hospital 12; confinements at homes 9 (there was no doctor in attendance at any of the child births, only the Red Cross nurse); 18 clinics were held, some in Peterborough, with 120 cases treated; school visits numbered 38 at which 661 children were examined.

In receiving this report the chairman made a praise-worthy reference to the diligence, efficiency and skill of the nurse, who is held in high esteem by the community.

Mr. John Edgar, Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, in a brief speech, referred to the valuable collaboration of the nurse in cases coming under his jurisdiction from this part of the county.

G. K. Fraser, commenting on the fact of the district having no resident physician, and the difficulty in securing one due to the small subsidy available from the township ($250) evoked an outburst of enthusiastic applause when he announced that he and Mrs. Fraser had decided to augment this at the rate of 1.00 a day for two years in the hope that this difficulty would be overcome. An incoming physician would thus be assured of an income of $615 apart from his practice fees. On behalf of the community Warden Brown moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Fraser for their generous offer, which was seconded by Mrs. W. Lean and carried with acclamation.

Hon. president, Mrs. G. K. Fraser; Hon. vice president, Warden Brown and the Reeve of Chandos; president, Norman Lean; vice president, Max Hastings; treasurer, Mrs. J. Downing; secretary, Rev. R. M. McMullin; auditor, Rev. C. A. G. Spence; executive committee, Rev. F. C. McMulkin, G. K. Fraser, Fred Hampton, Norman James, Frank Tanner, Mrs. McMullin, Mrs. W. Lean, Mrs. T. H. Lean, Mrs. C. Smith; delegates to Divisional council meeting, Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Fraser.

The sincere thanks of the Board are extended to the following for their donations to the Outpost Hospital during the year: The County Council of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Fraser, Clementi Lodge A.F.M., Lakefield, Rotary Club Peterborough, T. P. Lancaster, Scott Coal and Lumber Co., Peterborough, Stock's Bread Ltd., Peterborough, N. A. Moore, S. J. Charlton, Lakefield, G. A. Cunningham, Peterborough Lumber Co., Peterborough Canoe Co., Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, Lakefield, Messrs. R. S. Ferguson, M. P., J. J. Duffus, M.P., James Dutton, Mrs. C. Macfadden, Mrs. Porter.

Dogs Invade Pen Kill 7 Sheep

The Mount Pleasant district has suffered heavily in the past from sheep-killing dogs.

During the summer a pack of dogs got into the fold of a Langford farmer and killed 55 of his sheep. The dogs have also been invading chicken pens.

420 CANVASSERS ARE REGISTERED

The officers and members of the General Campaign Committee for the Y.W.C.A. Extension Fund for $50,000 to be launched next week are extremely encouraged to see the splendid way in which the women of Peterborough have so readily responded to the appeal for workers to canvass in aid of the "Y" throughout the residential district.

Headquarters reported that there were 420 women definitely registered as workers, with a total of 40 in the men's division, together with others working in the various special names and subsidiary committees. The total registration of workers at campaign headquarters had reached the estimate originally set as 500 workers. This fact augurs well toward the success of the campaign.

At a meeting of the Special Names committee, under the chairmanship of Thos. A. Mackay, several substantial special contributions were reported and it was hoped that returns from those of the city classified as special names would be most generous, because in an appeal of this character there were many public spirited citizens in sympathy with the effort, but through circumstances beyond their control, were not in a position to make liberal contributions. Therefore, under these circumstances, the "Y" are depending upon the citizens of more substantial means to make up for these deficiencies when making their contributions.

On the completion of the women's division organization, Mrs. R. E. Cutting, commander of the East Ward and assisted by her five captains has a very efficient and expert group of workers as follows:

East Ward—Commander Mrs. R. E. Cutting.

Sub-Division 34—Captain, Mrs. D. T. Diplock. Team—Miss Nina Davidson, Miss Mina Edwards, Mrs. Ed. Purvis, Mrs. G. C. Solmes, Mrs. James Esson, Miss Gertrude Creda.

SHED IS BURNED AT CAMPBELLFORD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, October 19. — Flames had already gained a strong hold on a frame shed belonging to Mr. John Wallace, Grand Road, when Miss Pat Poulton, a neighbor, happened to see them from across the road and notified the Wallaces, who had retired for the night. A call was sent in to the fire department at 10.45, and after attempts to extinguish the blaze with chemicals proved fruitless, water was turned on the flaming mass, which was located only thirty-five feet from the house. The cause of the blaze was unknown, and the loss was confined to a quantity of grain and feed which were stored in the building.

Congregations Of Ballyduff, Nestleton And Janetville Pay Their Tribute

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Oct. 19.—On Friday evening the combined congregations of the Presbyterian churches of Ballyduff, Nestleton and Janetville held a banquet in honour of the 20th anniversary of the Rev. W. H. V. Walker's ministry on this pastoral charge.

Tables were attractively arranged in the Sunday school rooms and over two hundred partook of the delicious dinner.

Later all assembled in the auditorium of the church, where the remainder of the evenings activities were enjoyed. Ten ministers representing all denominations of the Peterborough Presbytery were present to do honour to this unique occasion.

Mr. Charles McNeil of Janetville made an able chairman and after appropriate words of welcome called on Wilbert Gaynor of Ballyduff, William Hooey of Nestleton and Hildon Johnston of Janetville to speak on behalf of their respective congregations. Rev. and Mrs. Walker were requested to come forward and Mr. J. J. Clarke of Bethany read an address of praise, friendship, goodwill and encouragement enlarging on Rev. Walker's faithfulness to his congregations in his twenty years of service during which time the charge had grown from one requiring assistance to being now self-supporting.

Mr. John Dickey on behalf of the three churches presented Rev. Walker with a substantial purse and Miss Norma Hooey presented Mrs. Walker with a basket of flowers as a token of the love and esteem in which both are held.

Rev. Mr. Walker made a very fitting reply thanking his people for the spirit of appreciation and loyal co-operation that prompted the gathering. Mrs. Walker spoke of the relationships as the evening revealed and read appropriate lines. "May the thread of friendship roll on to the end of time." All joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and Rev. and Mrs. Walker resumed their places in the assembly.

Messrs. Leonard McNeil, Herman Wilson and Wilmer Fitze favoured with a musical selection after which the Rev. Mr. Bury, newly inducted pastor of Janetville United church, a stranger as he termed himself, told of the rumours he had heard of Rev. Mr. Walker's Christian qualities, which since his arrival had proved real truths.

All Denominations There

A reading was given by Miss Irene Porter of Janetville and Rev. Mr. Holden, the, Anglican clergyman from Bethany, termed a man a hero to stay in a county charge twenty years and added that it was a revelation to him to see all denominations represented. Miss Evelyn Sanderson favoured with an organ solo after which Rev. Mr. Riding of Pontypool brought greetings from the United church there and Mr. Harry Preston of Bethany rendered a pleasing solo.

Mr. J. J. Clarke, Bethany, read a splendid message from Rev. H. C. Wolfraim of Queen Street United church, Lindsay, and formerly a neighbour of Rev. Mr. Walker while pastor of Janetville United church. Rev. Mr. Wolfraim stated that owing to a previous engagement he was unable to attend, but sent greetings of a congratulatory and complimentary nature.

Mr. Heber Preston of Bethany, one of Manvers' oldest citizens, spoke a few words after which Rev. Mr. Bell of Blackstock United church brought greetings. Mr. Arthur Stapleton sang "Without a Song" and Rev. Clarence Ferguson brought greetings from Bethany United church.

Chancellor Bowles

Chancellor Bowles, formerly of Toronto, spoke of the evening as "the most impressive service he had attended since coming to live in Cartwright." "A minister works with an atmosphere of love, sympathy, trustfulness and kindness and no one's feelings are so often and badly hurt by harsh sayings. It is a delicate and sensitive task and no one appreciates more than a minister an occasion such as this when the people rally to given support and appreciation of the labor among them," Rev. Harcourt of St. John's Anglican church, Blackstock, expressed a few timely remarks after which the orchestra favoured with a selection.

Dr. Clarke of Peterborough, a former teacher of this vicinity, spoke of the Walker family life and urged the people not to disappoint their minister.

Dr. Barr of St. Paul's church, Peterborough, representing the Presbytery, paid high tribute to the work of Mr. Walker in his first and only pastorate during his twenty years' ministry, adding that he merits the esteem and congratulations of the Presbytery in Canada and mention will be made of the event.

Mr. J. J. Clarke read a letter from the Rev. J. C. Grier of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Lindsay, and Mr. George Walwin of Richmond Hill and formerly of Janetville told of his pleasure in being present. Mr. Herb Hooey of Nestleton spoke briefly and votes of thanks were tendered the chairman, the ladies, and those who assisted in any way toward the success of the evening, also to Jemison's Bakery of Port Perry, who made a timely donation to the banquet.

The assembly arose to join in singing God Save the King, and a most impressive, joyful and memorable occasion was brought to a close.

Mr. Walker is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Walker of Port Hope and Mrs. Walker is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Rowan of Bethany and the entire district extends happiest congratulations and best wishes for continued success in service.

Groom To Pay Shot For Confetti Tossers

Bocking, Essex, Oct. 19 (CP)

"In future it's going to cost money to throw confetti at weddings in the Parish of Bocking. Writing in his parish magazine, the dean and rector, Very Rev. Edgar Rogers, declared.

"A senseless and untidy custom has sprung up of throwing confetti at weddings. It hasn't any meaning or artistic merit. It is simply silly horseplay and the mess it makes of a churchyard is a standing evidence of want of thought and selfishness.

"In future, before a wedding, a deposit of five shillings must be paid. If no confetti is thrown in the churchyard the deposit will be returned. If confetti is thrown, then so much of the deposit will be used as will pay for the tidying of the churchyard."

400,000 FIGHTING ON GIJON FRONT

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 19—(AP). — Insurgents, shifting their attack on the Biscayan front of North-west Spain from mountainous territory to the coastal plain, drove to-day past Colunga, an Asturian fishing port about 11 miles west of Villa Viciosa.

(Villa Viciosa is about 25 miles east of Gijon, last important government port in the Spanish Northwest, and the final large settlement in the path of the insurgents' westward drive toward Gijon.)

An attack by government troops, tanks and air bombers in the Zaragoza sector yesterday launched one of the most determined battles of the Spanish War, involving about 400,000 men on both sides.

The government offensive was headed toward the insurgent stronghold of Zaragoza, about 175 miles north-east of Madrid, and apparently was designed also to relieve the pressure on government forces opposing the insurgent drive in the north-west.

Government tanks ployed into the insurgent positions and government planes swooped over insurgent lines, strafing troops and munitions depots.

One squadron bombed the military post at El Burgo de Ebro, 10 miles south-east of Zaragoza, and another attacked anti-aircraft batteries six miles from the insurgent stronghold.

MILLAR WILL GOES TO HIGH TRIBUNAL

OTTAWA, Oct. 19—(CP).—Interpretation of the will of the late Charles Millar, who bequeathed the bulk of his estate to the Toronto mother giving birth to the largest number of children in the ten years following his death, will be sought from the Supreme Court of Canada at its present sitting.

Seeking to upset the will Arabella West and Alexander Butcher, next of kin of the deceased Millar, are appealing from a judgment of the Ontario Court of Appeal which went against them. They contended the clause in the will bequeathing money to the prolific mother was void because it was against public policy.

The Ontario Court of Appeal confirmed a judgment of Mr. Justice Middleton who held the cause valid and also held the word "children" in the will did not include illegitimate children.

Want Judgment Upheld.

Executors of the will and counsel for the mothers of legitimate children who may be entitled to claim under the will, will be in the position of respondents when the appeal is heard. They will seek to have the Middleton judgment upheld.

Opposition to the judgment will come from two groups, the next-of-kin and the mothers of children who may or may not be legitimate. Indications are the courtroom will be well filled with lawyers when the appeal is heard.

Samuel Factor, M.P., has entered the appeal for the next-of-kin. A. W. Hunter is solicitor for the executors. George T. Walsh and T. R. Wray have been appointed by the court to represent mothers of legitimate children and C. R. McKeown to represent mothers of children who may or may not be legitimate.

SKULL IN HOTEL

HULL, England—(CP).—A human skull was found on an oak beam when repairs were being made to the White Hart Hotel. The hotel was once the home of Sir John Hotham, who refused to allow Charles I to enter Hull.

Record Vote Was Polled In Ontario Elections

Ontario polled a record vote in the general election October 6.

With about 100 polls unreported—mostly in Northern ridings— of the total of 10,500, The Canadian Press compilation of the vote by parties, 1,562,736, shows an increase of 910 over the total vote of 1934 election.

The vote in the last three Ontario elections, as compiled by The Canadian Press:

The Crying Need of Essex Centre

"It's high time this town had a modern dance orchestra," declared Miss Betty Smith, 19-year old daughter of Herb Smith, editor of the Essex Centre Gazette and County Advertiser, as she passed Mr. Picobac a heaping saucer of ice cream at the gala night of the Essex Centre Boosters' Club. "The time has come—and overcome."

"What's the matter with this orchestra?" laughed her Dad, winking at Mr. Picobac.

"Fiddle fiddle . . . jiggety diggety," scoffed Betty in disgust.

"Old time fiddling is all right for old timers like you and me, Herb," said Mr. Picobac. "But flaming youth is on the march today. I'll vote for your side, Betty. Nothing is too good for Essex Centre."

"Attaboy," said Betty. "And I'll tell all the young men I know what I think about Picobac."

"What DO you think about it?"

"It's a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke," quoted Betty, laughing.

"So it is," agreed Mr. Picobac, chuckling. "All they have to do is try it."

Can Blame Themselves

Rev. Louis F. Barber, librarian of Victoria College, Toronto, is home after spending two months in South America. He reports that the rich people there are so afraid of communism that they will not even talk about it. Mr. Barber says one can find most violent extremes of wealth and poverty in that land where wealthy land-owners live like feudal lords with no concern for the poverty of the masses.

And a condition of that kind is a fairly good place for communism or some other force to work. The people who have been maintaining the conditions complained of have been themselves creating the atmosphere for agitation or for reform or for revolution.

Refusing to talk of communism will not help matters at all. The one effective way to combat such a force is to show the people something better.

We Don't Like Titles

In this country we are not in favor of titles. At least our Parliament went on record to that effect and nothing has been done to change it.

We noticed a few days ago on the stationery of one religious denomination a list of officers, and it was impressive. There were titles in front and many letters at the end.

More recently we read of two men who are facing charges of libel in Edmonton. Both are members of the Social Credit Legislature. There it was we learned "Informations in each charge were laid and sworn to by Major-General Honorable W. A. Greisbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D, K.C."

But officially our Parliament has recorded the feeling of democracy that we do not like titles, and at times it is well to remember that.

He Wants An Overcoat

Yamar Manville is described in a story from Sudbury as a transient. Weather had turned cold and he had no overcoat. So he walked into a Sudbury store where such things are sold, and when he went to leave he was possessed of a coat. But he had apparently made his selection hastily and the garment did not fit. This attracted attention and he was arrested. For two months he will stay in jail.

When he comes out of jail we take it that Yamar Manville will be in exactly the same position as when he went in. In fact things may be a little worse for him for it will probably be colder. And he will once more be in need of an overcoat.

Of course we do not approve of men going into stores and helping themselves to clothing and such things, but apart from that there is a general and widespread desire to see a man's problem settled.

Yamar Manville wants an overcoat because weather is cold and there is nothing at all wrong with that feeling. He has not the money to pay for it, and according to our way of doing things he will have to remain cold until he gets the money. Which of course is not so good.

Why Should He Wait?

If people are fond of reading such poor rubbish, it might be of interest to record that Tommy Manville is going to be married for the fifth time just as soon as his fourth wife, now in Reno, gets divorce papers.

The woman he is to marry has also been married and divorced before.

The wonder is that it is considered at all necessary to have divorce papers completed before going ahead with another marriage. If a man is going to start on the business of collecting and discarding wives, what difference can a bit of paper make to him, and of what actual importance is it that the paper be signed this week or next week. His intention is plain as a pikestaff—he is through and done with one woman and has turned to another, and we find it hard to see where he is adhering closely to a law of God or paying a compliment to a law of man by haggling over such a thing as the date line on a divorce paper. He has placed himself in a class where human beings are passed about and traded like livestock.

Mr. Manville can know for certain United States was not built on such a basis in the first place. The sacredness of marriage was just as highly exalted in that land as elsewhere. It is not exaggeration to say he is engaged in chiselling away at the keystone which has held the national structure intact.

Could Have Saved Him

There was a squabble in a Yonge street, Toronto, beverage room on Saturday night, and the result was a dead man and a charge of murder. A jagged glass had severed the carotid artery in a man's neck and he bled to death.

When the Chief Coroner was called to examine the body he remarked the man's life could have been saved by a little cool thinking. And that is so. We can think easily of a dozen or twenty men who would have known just what to do in such a case in order to stop the bleeding. They are for the most part in industries where first aid is taught thoroughly.

The wonder is that more men are not possessed of such knowledge. Instruction is available and it is more needed today than at any previous time. There are many car accidents when a doctor is not available and where much could be done for a person with a broken limb or a bad cut which was bleeding. We manage to learn a number of things which are not as useful and at times as vitally important as what to do in case of an accident.

He Wanted To Say Something

Major-General Gamelin, French chief-of-staff, has been in Rumania within recent days, and while there witnessed military manoeuvres. At the conclusion of the parade the visiting Frenchman was informed by King Carol of Rumania that the army was one on which France could count, in time of need.

We have no land division in Canada which is comparable to Rumania with its 122,000 square miles. It is about one-quarter the accredited size of Ontario, but it has in it 17,000,000 population. The problem of existence is always a pressing one for many of the people; they do not work the land on the basis of our people although their cultivation is of necessity more intensive.

It seems strange for a king in such a land to be able to tell a visitor that the army is at his disposal, especially when the visitor happens to be from a land which is some distance removed. If one looks at the location of Rumania it is easy to see how much frontier a little land like Rumania might have to protect. Nations immediately adjoining are Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria and there is also a Black Sea frontage. King Carol may have wanted to say something impressive, but we can think of no good reason at the moment why an army in Rumania should be placed at the disposal of France.

Most People Are Curious

We heard one man say "Disgusting!" We placed that exclamation mark after the word for he said it that way. He had been reading in the paper that more than 1,000 people visited a grave at Streetsville where a young man's body had been buried and afterward removed, and finally reinterred. There was a steady stream of automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles, and for the most part the folk just came and looked around and went away again.

The man who said "disgusting" and said it with emphasis was expressing the feelings of a certain element in any community, but he was not speaking for the majority. If something similar were to take place in Peterborough or any other centre there would be a stream of people going to and fro and there wouldn't be anything wrong with them either. They would be merely responding to that element of curiosity which wants to see the unusual.

We recall having driven seven miles one night to a lonely house where murder had been done, being fortunate enough to get a ride in a buggy along with the coroner. It was late fall and the road was about as bad as could be. The remains of the victim were taken away that night to an undertaker's shop in a nearby town and the man charged with the crime was removed to the nearest jail. And yet when making the trip back at 5 in the morning there were a number of people walking to the scene and many more driving. There was not a thing which could possibly be seen and no one would be admitted to the house. And yet from town out to that dreary spot was seven miles over bad road—14 miles for the return trip. And scores of people went.

We recall a little frame house in a Western Ontario city where there had been a shooting—one of those jilted over affairs. It happened in the morning and the guilty man went straight to police headquarters and surrendered. It was all cleared up in short order, but for two or three days after there were always people—many of them—standing on the sidewalk looking at the house with some of the more daring trying to look in through the windows. And people will stand outside a building where an execution is going to take place about daybreak. They will stand there for hours even if it is cold or raining. They can see nothing of what is taking place and they can hear nothing, but there they will remain. Call them foolish if you will, but we do not believe they are. Most people are curious and the person who follows that bent often sees and hears more than the one who walks straight ahead and is not easily turned aside.

Who Is In Charge?

In this country we have spent a good deal of money and made considerable progress in making our schools fit the needs of those who will have occasion to use them, and yet we read often enough of students who go on strike because it has been decided to transfer a class to some other school. That took place in York township the other day and the school to which a class was to be moved was several blocks distant. It was desired to provide a manual training room and that was why the class was to be moved.

Thirteen of the pupils did not move; they merely stayed at home. The parents appeared before the trustees and explained that the children liked the old school and they feared some of them would be nervous in a new place and unable to get along. So the trustees called the proposed change off for the present. One mother said she was "worried to death over three children in her home who refused to go to school."

All of which may be very interesting, but it does not answer the question of who is managing the schools, the trustees or the children.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mr. Bennett and Mr. Rowe have been in a huddle. They both know how it feels to be on the wrong end of a landslide.

Eight cases of diphtheria are reported in Windsor. When immunization is so simple and effective somebody should be called upon to explain why one city should produce so many cases.

A. J. Allnutt has been appointed director of public relations for the Alberta government. If his job is to make some of the Aberhart actions appear reasonable the position is no sinecure.

Only 404 votes were polled for Communist candidates in the recent Ontario election, as against 9,775, three years ago. That does not seem to indicate much chance of Tim Buck becoming Prime Minister.

At the New York Business Show a typewriter designed to write in reverse is on display. That does not appear to be anything new; we have a suspicion we have been using that kind of machine for years.

Pheasant shooting is to be allowed in a number of sections in Ontario for two days during the last week in October. That will allow the farmers time to get their livestock into the root cellar and secure bullet-proof vests for themselves.

Some one has said a dictator would be laughed out of office in Great Britain in six months. We would say the time limit could be reduced materially if he happened to look and act like some of the present crop of dictators.

Quebec motorists are appealing to the Duplessis government to reduce automobile license fees. Mr. Hepburn caused trouble in more quarters than one when he sliced the price of markers in Ontario.

Canadians have taken advantage of that $100 exemption clause to bring home over $4,000,000 worth of goods from the United States in the last six months. That, however, is only a fraction of what American tourists have taken away with them from Canada.

An American whaler reports she was charged and rammed by a wounded whale which dented the steel plate on the ship's side. That suggests the possibility of training a school of whales to act as an anti-submarine auxiliary force.

Somebody writes a letter to a Toronto paper to say people should accept the new license markers without a protest and thus avoid "harassing" the government. The safety of the public is a more important matter than saving the administration from criticism.

St. Thomas Times-Journal—Kitchener Record says: "There's an 'itch' in Mitch." We might also point out that there's a terrific punch in the last four letters of Mitchell.

Well why not? Isn't there a Mit at the front of it?

At London, Ont., a drunken driver was given six months in jail on a second conviction and his permit will be cancelled indefinitely. We would say that London has a magistrate who has the right conception of the menace represented by men who try to drink and drive.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A. R. K.)

¶ It takes about a week or two, when we get our election through, before we settle down; my Cousin Ezra takes a week, before he ever starts to speak, to lots of folk in town.

¶ For Ezra's powerful sore this year, and then it struck him rather queer, he wasn't on the list; he says that he was mortified, and stripped all naked of his pride, because his name was missed.

¶ And Ezra worked four weeks or more, neglected home and every chore, ate meals at just two licks; he didn't relish beef or stew, snubbed everything his wife might do, just fed on politics.

¶ It takes just five days as a rule, before my cousin starts to cool, when voting day is done; when he has lost he walks the street, and seems just looking at his feet, nor speaks to any one.

¶ And Ezra made a speech or two, advising voters what to do, 'twas like a touch of frost; and it cut Ezra deep I know, for voting figures went to show, that's where his party lost.

¶ But Ezra come around last night, and he seemed feeling more all right, for Ezra is a Grit; he's even lent some Tory skate, his hoe, his shovel and his rake—so he's thawed quite a bit.

IF THE PRESENT plans for developing the Crystal Palace site develop London may soon have a sports and physical culture centre second to none in the world. The scheme has been prepared by Horace Parnacott, F. R. I. B. A. and will be considered by the trustees shortly.

The central feature as planned by Mr. Parnacott would be a covered stadium seating 25,000 people and running half way round a sports arena in which football, baseball and athletics could take place. Round the arena there would be a running and cycling track. Accommodation would also be provided for a very large crowd in addition to those occupying the covered seats.

Underneath the stadium there would be ample room for various indoor sports,—squash rackets, bowls, badminton and tennis—and underneath the sports arena there would be a swimming pool, ice rink and exhibition halls. Under this again would be a large covered car park with a ramp for the Crystal Palace Parade.

The plans call for a large hall for circuses and boxing, a theatre seating 3,000, an exhibition hall, and a restaurant and cafes on the south side of the stadium while on the north side there would be a concert hall seating from 6,000 to 10,000 persons.

The arrival of a Japanese pearling fleet at Darwin, Northern Australia, has brought to light a terrible tragedy which saw three Japanes divers abandoned at the bottom of the sea. It seems that soon after the three men had gone down one of the luggers caught fire and the flames spread so rapidly that the crew left the boat, deserted the life line and left the unfortunate trio beneath the surface of the water.

World's Queerest Club.

ONE OF THE world's queerest clubs is at present being formed in Glasgow, Scotland. To become a member you must have been in prison once only for a period of from two months to two years. A return visit to jail bars you from entry to the club. Except that the members must be determined upon going straight there are no other limitations. Cook's son, duke's son, laborer and tramps are all equally welcome.

The club is the idea of a young Glasgow man who served a term of imprisonment in Barlinnie prison five years ago. Since then he has been trying continually to make good but always the stigma of his prison record reveals itself and he finds himself out of work again. Determined to keep out of future trouble he has got into touch with nine other men who all served stretches of imprisonment at the same time as himself and each of whom has failed to hold a job since, though they have recognized trades.

In the ranks of the ten founders of the club are printers, joiner engineers, post office workers and laborers and all these men who have made a slip once have banded themselves together in an effort to keep from leaving the straight and narrow path again.

Although he was a rich man T. S. Rowley, 67-year-old Leicester, Eng. hosiery manufacturer shot himself because he was lonely. It has been discovered that he left an estate of £885,148. At the inquest into his death the coroner remarked that he looked upon Mr. Rowley as a man who had every conceivable comfort except a wife.

While walking in Bushey Park at Teddington, Eng. Miss Agnes Hunt was attacked by a stag and badly injured by the animal's antlers before a truck-driver came to her rescue and was able to drive off the infuriated beast. Officials at the London Zoo explain that this is the dueiling season among deer and that in some cases it is necessary to saw off their antlers to prevent them from doing damage.

Military Secretary is V.C.

THE APPOINTMENT of Viscount Gort, V.C. as military secretary to War Minister Hore—Belisha calls attention to the fact that only two of Britain's war-time V.C's have attained high military rank. In contrast to the condition a generation ago when three field marshals, Lord Roberts, Sir Evelyn Wood and Sir George White—as well as other high officers all held the coveted distinction.

Viscount Gort is known as a man of conspicuous personal courage. He was wounded three times during the war and besides winning the Victoria Cross, he was awarded the D.S.O. with two bars and was eight times mentioned in despatches.

In 1927 while he was serving in Shanghai he helped to rescue a party of nuns from a gang of bandits, although he was unarmed and accompanied only by a priest and a consul. The priest was wounded but the others escaped unhurt. Six years ago the widow of an army officer left Viscount Gort almost £10,000 in recognition of his unselfish services to his country.

More than 50 tombstones were recently overturned and many of them damaged or broken in the burial ground of St. Cuthbert's Church Edinburgh. It is thought the vandals must have used ropes and picks to complete their destructive work. St. Cuthbert's which stands near Edinburgh Castle is one of the city's oldest churches and many famous people are buried there including Thomas de Quincy. The majority of the tombstones overturned were early 19th century.

QUESTION

"Is there no hope, doctor?"

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics.

BELIEVES IT IS WRONG

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Many young boys gather baskets from the houses of friends and then take them over to the market and sell them. I am told the market clerk asks these little fellows for market toll although they have no stand, and they are from 6 to 12 years of age. I know several of these boys and some of them come from families which are on relief or from homes where the wages are so small that they cannot afford to give them spending money. They make anything from 10 cents to 40 cents by selling baskets. One lad I know last fall made enough to buy himself a pair of scout boots and another more ambitious chap earned enough to get a suit of clothes.

I do not believe such boys should be asked to pay any fees when they go on or near the market and try to sell baskets. It will soon be that a boy will be able to earn nothing at all unless he is taxed for the privilege of doing it.

LIKED THE STYLE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I was much taken with the story in your paper written by a boy from Western Canada who is between 14 and 15 years of age. It seemed to me that facts and details had been impressed on that young mind in such a way that he could forget nothing. At times I have read what newspaper correspondents have written when making tours through that dried-out land, but your boy correspondent gave me a better idea of it than any other professional writer has yet done.

There was a seriousness in his outlook which is missing in many of our young people today, and I may be wrong, but I believe the experience through which he and other members of the family have passed in recent months has put something into the life of that youth which is going to be of value.

What I liked about the writing was that the western lad was not looking for sympathy and at no time did he try to over-state the case. I admit I read the story through twice because it interested me so much. Like your western correspondent I have never before written a letter to a newspaper, and would not have done so now were it not for the fact that I want to tell the Examiner it printed a great story.

THEN WHAT?

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The Examiner either through lack of forethought or might I say "don't know any better" writes in their comments "The electors have solved the question of just where the C. C. F. members should be seated in the Legislature." One does not need to stretch their memory a whale of a lot to remember the Examiner in an editorial crediting the C. C. F. as good advertisers seemingly if they are failing in this respect now the Examiner is going to attend to it and free of charge.

The C. C. F. are aware of the fact that Rome wasn't built in a day but believe in the old proverb "where there is a will there is a way." It is rather a difficult task to have one examine himself and latterly admit he is a darn fool. I believe it will eventually come to this.

ALEX MURRAY.

THE MEANINGLESS 1.1 PER CENT.

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The report of the Highways Department as to motor accidents which appeared recently states that only 1.1 per cent. of the drivers involved were intoxicated. This figure is based on the charges laid and convictions had. If taken as a measure of the effect of liquor in highway accidents it is very misleading and even ridiculous.

Prosecutions following accidents may be brought either under the Ontario Highways Act for reckless driving, or under the Criminal Code of Canada for being intoxicated while in charge of a car. Unless a man is obviously drunk he is not charged under the Criminal Code.

The real killer on the highway so far as liquor is concerned is not the drunken driver but the drinking driver, the man who has had a glass or two and feels exhilarated, competent, superior. He is charged with reckless driving and the vast majority of accident prosecutions are for reckless driving. Neither the charges nor the verdict make any mention of liquor, though the evidence often does. In 54 cases of fatal accidents recently examined the evidence showed the presence of liquor in 7 per cent. more cases than the official record would indicate. Dr. Miles of Yale states that 25 to 40 per cent. of the licenses suspended or revoked are for intoxication, and 7 to 10 per cent. of fatal accidents are attributable to drink.

The value of the department's figures as an index to the real facts in the case may be judged from the statement of Magistrate MacKay of Hamilton: "Eighty per cent. of the reckless driving cases that come before me show evidence of drinking." Not one of these would be included in the 1.1 per cent.

The 1.1 per cent., of course, takes no cognizance of the drunken pedestrian and unfortunately he is not a negligible number.

The clerks who compile the all but meaningless item are in no sense to blame for its inanity, but the Department and the Government are. Modern science has provided a method that reveals very exactly the effect of liquor in highway accidents. It is the blood test, a simple, harmless and accurate method already in use in some countries. This matter has been called to the attention of the Government but so far it has received very slight consideration. Without inconvenience or harm to anyone this method if applied would reveal within very narrow limits the actual results of liquor in highway accidents, and to reveal the facts would be one of the strongest deterrents to indulgence when driving. Will the Government have the courage to take a scientific and up-to-date method of abating the slaughter and destruction on our highways?

SECURING JOBS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: There are a number of people living 'outside' the city who are able to secure employment here and that does not seem to be fair. They come from the country and other places. Is labor so scarce in Peterborough that a lot of outsiders have to be brought in here. I know people have to live no matter where they come from, but I think the city people should get the first chance as they are the ones who support the city. Prosperity is supposed to be here, but if you go around the factories you will generally see a large number of young people looking for work. I was in the employment office of a south-end factory and counted 25 to 30 young men and women looking for work. There is always a certain amount of unemployment, but the large number of unemployed will never be cut down until the present system is changed to meet modern conditions.

THE DROUGHT LAND

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The article written by Beverly Sutton, of Sceptre, Sask. in your Saturday's paper certainly gives us all food for thought.

I for one, knowing that western country, and having witnessed the struggles of Saskatchewan's dry-land farmers, year after year, am full of sympathy for these warriors of the soil, who apparently do not know when they are beaten.

Sending them food and clothing, even if by carload lots, however, is not new, nor ever going to correct the situation. The dry lands of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and part of Alberta were never meant for anything but grazing land. Every time a plow and harrow is run through this soil, it is immediately made prey to the first wind that blows. This land will not retain sufficient natural moisture to grow wheat, or any other grain, and can be made into grain land only by extensive, and very expensive irrigation projects.

In view of the large yearly carry-overs of wheat and other grains, the fact that since these western lands of ours were first settled Russia, the Argentine, and many other countries, have gone into wheat farming in a big way, my thoughts for some years have been why not use this dry land of ours for the purpose that it was primarily intended, viz., cattle land. It will, without attention, and in a comparatively few years, again become grazing land. A decade would be necessary to put it back into the good condition it once was in, it is true, but constant grazing and fertilization by cattle would bring this all about in due course. If these farmers must grow grain, move them north to the Peace River or elsewhere, where they will have a fighting chance. It will be cheaper to move them, than to build hundreds of miles of irrigation ditches, which are not to my way of thinking, a necessary requirement of the present times.

I suggest therefore, along with relief program now on the books, agitation for the movement of these dry land wheat farmers to land more adaptable to their calling, and the putting back to grazing land, of all these so-called drought areas. This land is really not a drought area, in the true sense of the word, but land ideally adapted for the purpose for which it was intended.

A movement such as herein suggested, will correct the basic condition permanently.

OUTREADING THE BOSS.

(Kitchener Record)

THE CLERK and the stenographer usually do a good deal more reading than the boss does, if a survey conducted in the United States is correct.

Dr. Ralph Tyler of Ohio State University, head of the survey committee, reported that clerk and typist outread their bosses, but that they go in for a different type of literature. The young man clerk is apt to revel in mystery and adventure stories, the feminine stenog goes for romances and "confession" stories. The boss, who gets his nose in a book far less frequently than they do, is more likely to pick up books on social or economic problems.

All of which would seem to prove that the young employee has more spare time on his or her hands than the boss has. Maybe it proves that the boss has a greater intellectual curiosity than his underlings. Or—just possibly—maybe it proves nothing at all.

WORK IN A HOME.

(Daily Express)

THE AVERAGE woman washes an acre of dirty dishes and a mile of glass, scrubs five miles of floor and washes three miles of clothes every year. She needs hot water sixty times a day. The information comes from Mrs. Eileen Murphy, home service director of the British Commercial Gas Association. Mrs. Murphy also tells that three million British homes have no hot water. Good Christians, reading their Bibles, reckon it pretty hard for the Israelites that they had to make bricks without straw. The Israelites were slaves.

BAD GUESSES.

(The Commentator)

EVEN THE greatest money makers have been known to pass up good bets. Charles M. Schawb refused to back the Wright brothers because he thought aviation was a crazy idea. Western Union, when offered Bell's telephone patents for $100,000, turned them down because its directors felt that the corporation's province lay in long distance communication. And Cornelius Vanderbilt rejected Westinghouse's airbrake on the ground that he had no time to waste on such fool ideas as stopping trains with wind.

DOGS DEFEND EACH OTHER

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

A story from Shallow Lake bears out what all dog breeders know from experience, namely, that dogs will fight for one another even against humans. In this latest instance a neighbor's dog attacked a woman who was punishing her own dog for following her. It is never safe to strike one dog in the presence of another.

NEWSPAPER STILL BEST

(Brantford Expositor)

It is stated that sky writing and plane advertising are falling into disuse in the Old Land because the people no longer pay any attention to them. The newspaper still remains the one great medium and this will always be the case.

No Babies Until Slums Cleared

A most impressive picket line was formed around New York city hall when women of the east side wheeled empty baby carriages around offices of New York city's government. They carried signs, insisting they would bear no more good citizens for this city, until a federal project on housing similar to the Williamsburg (Brooklyn) and Harlem (upper Manhattan) projects, is settled upon the eastside slum district.

MOTHER HELPED BY KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

"I have suffered from terrible constipation since the birth of my first child. I tried everything. Very reluctantly, I tried your ALL-BRAN with no faith in it at all.

"Much to my surprise, I have not had to take any medicine since starting to use ALL-BRAN."—Mrs. Doris Eyre King (address on request).

Common constipation is usually due to meals low in "bulk." Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies this needed "bulk."

Within the body, this cereal absorbs twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, gently sponges out the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood.

Enjoy this food instead of taking weakening pills and drugs. Serve as a cereal, with milk or fruits, or cook into recipes.

ALL-BRAN is sold by your grocer. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

Twilight Of The Year In Fall Most Enjoyable Time For Tea

Hostess Then Can Really Show A Most Happy Gesture Of Hospitality

By MARY MOORE

To me five o'clock in the afternoon is not so much tea time as the Fall of the year. To invite your familiar friends to tea then seems to be such an instinctive gesture of hospitality that I dearly love to do it. (Besides that I have a new recipe for biscuits I wanted to show off.)

I will have to take out my cooking urges on guests for a while because the H.R.H. (head of "r" house) has decided he will eat nothing but fruit since his recent severe attack of "flu." I am doing it too and imagine I can see a slight reduction in the midriff.

If you don't like the following Fruity Tea Biscuits return them to me and money will be cheerfully refunded (if you paid any!).

Fruity Tea Biscuits

Cream together very well ¼ cup each butter and sugar, then add 1 well beaten egg and beat the three of them well. Sift together 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and ½ teaspoon salt. To the creamed mixture add the grated rind of 1 orange and ⅛ cup cleaned, dried seedless raisins. Now add the sifted dry ingredients alternately with ½ cup plus one tablespoon of milk. Stir barley enough to mix—do not beat. Spoon out in tablespoons onto buttered baking sheet, piling them high in the centre. Bake at 475 deg. Fahr. for about 18 minutes. You may add ¾ cup milk and bake these in tiny muffin tins for a more delicate appearing little muffin. Split and butter.

If you can manage to serve the above little sweetbits oven hot they need no other accompaniment but the tea of course.

Barley Sticks, Orange and Lemon, Instead of Sugar

When you are in a good candy shop next time look over their assortment of plain sugar candies—you will find lemon drops, rock candy, even horehound twists—but best of all barley sticks—any of these broken up into appropriate lengths make delightful changes in place of lemon and sugar in your tea. They give you a reputation for being an interesting hostess too.

If you are a Time (the news-magazine) addict like I am all the comments under the Letters section will have you chuckling too, and wishing for some of the apple butter they think so highly of. If you can find any apple butter, or are smart enough to make it you also can have these scones:

Apple Butter Scones

Sift and measure 2 cups flour then sift again with 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1 tablespoon sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. With the finger tips mix in 4 tablespoons butter, then add 1-3 cup cream or rich top milk mixed with 2 well beaten eggs (reserve a small amount of the unbeaten white to brush the tops with). Mix barely enough to mix the ingredients, then knead for ½-minute on floured board, then lightly roll out to one-fourth inch thickness on floured board. Cut into diamonds (by cutting through diagonally in both directions having cuts about 1½ inches apart). Spread half of the scones with thick apple butter, and cover with the remaining halves. Brush tops with unbeaten egg white, sprinkle carefully with a little sugar and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until golden.

You know as well as I that there are plenty of the farmers wives on Saturday's market that would be glad to sell you apple butter if you asked for it—so the scones are actually a matter of choice—not limited to the privileged few.

Now both of those things have to be made almost seconds before serving when most of us need every moment of time to talk to our guests and keep them happy.

I know intimately a lady who has no maid, very little time, very little money, very much ingeniousness, and very many friends. She makes the following nut loaf sometimes, then slices it thinly and piles it tightly together on a pretty plate on the tea tray (which is large). She then puts the sugar bowl filled with its lump sugar, empty cream pitcher, cups and saucers, sliced lemon, stood on end, slice on slice, to keep them from drying, and her sandwich toaster. This she covers with a large tea towel and leaves in the kitchen.

When ready to serve her guests she sets them to reading something of mutual interest to all or a lively discussion, and excuses herself—immediately turns on the heat under the kettle, puts hot water (from the tap) in the tea pot, fills the cream pitcher, puts a plate of butter and jam, prepared beforehand and stood in the ice box, on the tray, plugs in the sandwich toaster to preheat it some before carrying it to the living room, by this time the kettle is boiling so she makes the tea (using a tea ball for it means she can save time away from her guests if the tea can be brewing in the living room while she is connecting the toaster and putting three slices to toast).

Light Brown Nut and Raisin Bread

(One large loaf or three baking powder cans).

Make two separate mixtures: the first: 1 cup Graham or whole wheat flour, 2 cups white flour, ½ cup walnut or pecan meats (or almonds if you prefer them), ½ cup washed and dried raisins, ¾ teaspoon salt.

Then mix together: 1 beaten egg, ¼ cup sugar, 1 1-3 cup choice molasses, 1 cup rich sour milk containing 1 teaspoon soda. Mix together first and second mixture, then let stand 20 minutes, then pour into greased loaf pan, or three greased baking powder tins, and bake at 325 degrees Fahr. for 1 hour (slow oven).

If this is kept three days it will slice nicely and as thin as you want it.

When toasted as suggested above, it is delicious served with orange marmalade.

The reason we stress hot breads is because we think afternoon tea should be notable for its quality—not quantity of food. One well served hot bread is worth any two plates of fancy sandwiches, 3 plates of fancy cookies, 4 plates of assorted candies, you could hope to choose—and besides makes entertaining your intimates such a simple matter—rather than such an apparent effort—to say nothing of expense for once.

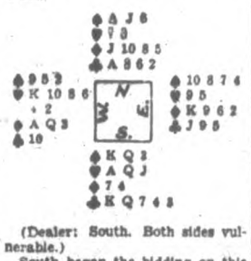
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

SHOW ANOTHER SUIT

IT IS NEARLY always a mistake to raise or show a fit for your partner's minor suit if you can bid any other four-card or longer suit. This is because there are so few deals on which 5-odd can be made, whereas there are many on which 4-odd can be made in a suit contract or 3-odd at no trump. Even if the suit you bid in response contains the weakest kind of no trump stoppers, it may be the key to reach a safe no trump game contract.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South began the bidding on this deal with 1-Club, which West overcalled with 1-Heart. North thereupon bid 2-Clubs and South 3-Clubs, which West passed. North still had a chance to correct his early error by bidding 3-Diamonds at this stage, but he raised the 3-Clubs to 4-Clubs instead and South could do nothing but take the contract to 5-Clubs. It is easy to see that this was defeated with the loss of two tricks in diamonds and one in hearts.

North's right bid after the 1-Club by his partner and 1-Heart by West was not 2-Clubs but 2-Diamonds, as that suit contained satisfactory no trump stoppers. If South happened to have the hostile hearts stopped, he then could go into no trumps, which he obviously wouldn't have done here. If West made the natural lead of a heart against this, South could have scored 4-No Trumps with ease.

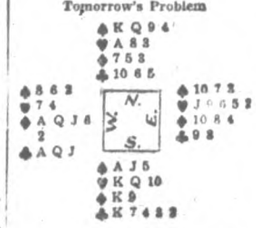
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If West leads the diamond queen to the king against 3-No Trumps, South then running four spades and three hearts, what discards should West make in order to defeat a lead-throwing end-play by South?

WOMEN STAY FIRM

LONDON—(CP). — Women civil servants are maintaining their right to equality with men in the higher positions despite the protest of the Civil Service Clerical Association against their members working for women superiors.

To Sue Comedian

Carlotta Monti, beautiful motion picture actress, who purportedly will sue W. C. Fields for $200,000 for assertedly beating her with a walking stick and a rubber hammer during a row in the comedian's Bel-Air home last September. The episode allegedly occurred when Fields, resenting the disturbance of his slumber due to an argument between Miss Monti and his butler, grasped a cane and rubber hammer and struck Miss Monti.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

(Conducted by Mrs. Mary Moore)

QUESTION: May I trouble you again for your invaluable help? Last Spring I asked for the almost impossible and hope that my following requests will be more simple, though the last one may have you stumped due to my poor description of the delicacy.

First,—a recipe for Lady Fingers; second: a recipe for those little German Christmas cookies which are very hard and contain anise seed; and last, for a type of coffee cake or perhaps it more resembles a strudel. It is either a German or Hungarian type of pastry that is rolled like a jelly roll and contains poppy seeds, raisins and what not. However the mixture is very black and moist.

I wrote my grandmother for this last recipe but the dear old soul sent her copy written in Bohemian so I am none the wiser.

Wishing you the best of everything and many thanks for the wonderful preserve recipes throughout the summer.—A. L.

ANSWER: And many thanks from me for such a charming letter.

Lady Fingers

White 3 eggs, 1-3 cup powdered sugar, yolks 2 eggs, 1-3 cup bread flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry, add sugar gradually, and continue beating. Then add yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored and the flavoring. Cut and fold in flour mixed and sifted with the salt. Shape 4½ inches long by 1 inch wide on a tin sheet covered with unbuttered paper, using pastry bag and tube to shape them. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and bake for 8 minutes in an oven of 350 deg. Fahr. (a little longer if they are not dry). Remove from paper with a broad knife. If you wish to pair them do so while they are hot and they need no other agent to keep them together.

The text of the recipe for Anise Seed Cookies describes them as crisp and tender, while what you are asking for are "very hard." The recipe for Anise Cakes describes the texture of them as different. I hope by giving you both of these recipes you will have what you want. Maybe you could use Anise Seeds instead of Anise oil in the Anise Cakes and would have exactly what you want.

Anise Seed Cookies

One-half cup good shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons milk, 4 tablespoons anise seed, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 3½ cups flour. Cream the shortening and sugar, then add the beaten eggs and milk by teaspoonfuls, beating constantly; add the cleaned and sifted anise seed, then add the flour which has been sifted with the baking powder. Roll out and cut into fancy shapes. Bake in oven of 450 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes. These are fine, crisp and tender and easy to cut and handle. To make Cardamon Cakes use Cardamon seeds instead of Anise.

Anise Cakes

One pound powdered sugar, 5 large or 6 small eggs, 3½ cups bread flour, 2 drops anise oil. Beat the sugar and eggs together for 1 hour if possible (the longer you beat the finer the texture of the finished cookie). Then sift in the flour, and add the anise oil. These should be stiff enough to drop from teaspoon in size of half dollar and spread about 1-3 more when baking. When stiff enough drop on greased tins, allowing room to spread. Let stand in cold place overnight. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. (very slow), then keep one month before using. The texture of these cakes is different, but good and if the eggs are well beaten first it is not necessary to beat quite so long if the sugar is then added to them gradually—this saves time for housewives that are too busy to go through with the long beating process.

Poppy Seed Cake

One pound ground poppy seeds, 1 cup fresh cream, 6 tablespoons sugar, 1 strip grated orange or lemon peel (I think about 1 tablespoon—Ed. note) 3 cups flour, yolks 2 eggs, ½ cup butter, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups milk. Make a dough of the flour, baking powder, yolks of eggs, milk and a little of the sugar. Beat well and let stand ½ hour. Roll out to ½-inch thickness, cover with the poppy seeds, which have been thoroughly mixed with the cream, sugar and grated peel, roll up and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. Raisins may be added to dough or spread mixture if desired.

Are poppy seeds what make your bread dark—or is it a "black bread"—made by fermenting the bread sponge? If the above recipe is not what you want write again describing it in more detail. We hope you like these and that you will ask us for help often.

QUESTION: I would be very grateful to you if you could send me a recipe for sweet peppers or pimentoes put up in oil same as the ones we buy canned and imported from Italy. Your page has been of great help to me in the past. Thanking you.—N. G.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

Sweet red peppers or pimentoes are not canned in oil—the liquid which looks like oil around them in the can oozes from them during the canning process.

Sweet Peppers Canned (Without Water or Oil)

Remove seeds and stems from sweet red peppers or pimentoes by cutting them in halves lengthwise. Pack dry and tightly in the smallest sized possible sterilized jars. Put on top without completely sealing jars. Sterilize in hot water bath for 2 hours—the process bringing out a thick liquor which surrounds the peppers. Tighten seal immediately and cool as quickly as possible. When only part of a jar of peppers is used cover remainder with cooking oil and keep cold until needed. Store peppers in dark place.

If you want to peel the peppers before canning place in very hot oven (450 deg. Fahr.) for about 10 minutes—this makes the skin puff and it is easily removed.

We had an 11-quart basket of pears that was not being eaten fast enough out of hand to keep up with its ripening. So I decided to use them for dessert one evening when we were to have guests and here is how:

PEAR SUPREME

(a dessert salad)

My inventiveness is nil to-day—if you can think of a better name than that send it to me will you?

You will need a can or jar of pears and a can or jar of cherries. Drain the pears from their syrup—you will need two halves for each serving. To one ¼-quarter lb. package of white cream cheese, add ½ cup well drained canned cherries and mix them together well, using a creaming motion. Make this into balls and fill the depression in half the halves of pears with it, then cover it up with another half to make a whole pear.

On tea plates place a well cupped dried leaf of lettuce, on this a slice of choice pineapple, on this the prepared pear; over this pour one large tablespoon of L. J. Pettit Addresses University Women's Club.

The University Women's Club held the regular October meeting in the Gold Room of the Y.W.C.A. on Monday evening.

"Co-operative Movements," a subject in which there has been much interest for many years, was the basis of an interesting and instructive talk by L. J. Pettit, guest speaker of the evening. With a description of how the movement has developed and gained force in the Scandinavian countries, it was shown that the chief influence in this country is felt in Nova Scotia. "In Ontario we have too many individualists for it to become very widespread," said the speaker. Mr. Pettit consented to address the club on very short notice, the scheduled speaker having been Norman Moffatt of Toronto, whose severe illness only became known to the members on Friday.

Miss Isabel Weddell, accompanied at the piano by Miss Musa Cox, delighted her audience with two charming and much appreciated solos during the evening. Early in the meeting, the convenors of the various committees gave reports of their activities, and plans for future programs were approved.

Refreshments were served at the close, hostesses for the evening being Mrs. J. L. McKeever, Miss Irene Mark and Miss Josephine Lynch.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. J. Harwood of Toronto, brother-in-law of the bride, under an arch of evergreens in the living room.

To the strains of the wedding march, played by her sister, Mrs. J. W. Gould, the bride entered the room on the arm of her father. She wore a gown in redingote style of white net over satin, a band of orange blossoms on her hair, white kid gloves and shoes, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and maidenhair fern.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Wednesday, October 20.

A day of probable peculiar or bewildering experiences is read from the ruling lunar and mutual directions. The accent may be found on interests connected with the personal life. Letters, writings or documents seem involved, calling for due precaution and vigilance. Property or land values may be enhanced by these agencies or through the manipulation of some subtle or secret influence.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves immersed in a year in which secrecy, subtletiy or some form of peculiarity, intrigue or collusion may be nevessary to manage affairs adroitly. Old folks are likely to be involved, with letters, writings or documents important.

A child born on this day may be serious, clever, persistent and dependable, although it may have certain peculiar or subtle traits of character and mentality. It may gain its ends by intrigue or connivance.

1st Company had a full turnout in spite of the weather. We had a surprise visit from the Rev. Mr. Young of St. Andrew's. We appreciate his interest very much and look forward to further visits. JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"A great many people imagine that the pressure of burden and care is wholesome to take life hard is considered praiseworthy. It is looked upon as a kind of self-indulgence to take life easy. Now there is doubt that a spirit of intensity and care up to a certain point, is required for a wholesome condition of mind. But a care that brings burdens, that takes away light, that deprives us of any happiness, has passed beyond the wholesome line."

—O. S. Marden.

Dear Friends:

I say "Amen" to that quotation, and I think many of you will agree with me. There is a limit to everything. We do our best against adversity, against sickness, we bear things with patience, we struggle along day after day with nothing to enjoy in the present and little hope for the future.

But when things have gone past the limit, it does nothing but harden us. One woman said to me, very piously, "Oh Roberta, all the dross will be burnt away in your life, and only the fine gold will be left. (And I hadn't been telling her my troubles either.)

Maybe some of the dross burnt away from her would make her feel differently. O. S. Marden goes on to say: "Now if this spirit of care did any good, or led to any desirable result, there would be some justifying reason for it. But instead of that it does harm; it is not only useless, it is mischievous."

And I fully agree. What good does it do me or anyone else to be sick every few days? To struggle along feeling like nobody's business, tired to death will ill-health? The same work has to be done, and you seem to be fighting a losing battle, and get depressed in spite of all you can do about it.

It doesn't make you a better Christian, for how can you have a thankful heart with so little to be thankful about? Wait until you are as some have been, down to the last cent, no job, or a job that pays very little, doing without this, saving on that, some even on relief seeing their husbands and children get shabby and undernourished then you will see that too much of that sort of thing does harm.

My biggest cross is ill-health and oh how I resent it. How can you face the day with a smile when your head aches so that you can hardly see, when your spine feels as if it were in a knot?

This article is written to one who calls herself "Bewildered" She has lost the home she struggled so hard for, her husband is out of work they have been on relief, now one in the family is worfking and they are trying to live on that. Their clothes and linen need replenishing and they are in not very good condition as to health.

So she feels blue and discouraged and why shouldn't she? As she says, what good has all this done them, only make them feel bitter? She has struggled and pinched and tried to be brave, but now she is tired, SO tired.

Why should it be assumed that she had so much dross to be burned away, while others seem to have none? It is ridiculous. Shoving texts at a person in such sore straits is only adding insult to injury. All I can say is that I am as bewildered as she, and that I sympathise with all my heart.

But one thing I CAN assure her, and that is.—God will send compensations. They may not seem as good as the thing you have lost, but they will help. All anyone of us can do is go on. We cannot stand still. Remember "Bewildered" "The test of heroism is not the winning of a victory, but the braving of a defeat." You will win yet. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

HELP URGED FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 19.—An appeal from the Ontario Society for Crippled Children asking Rotarians for assistance was read at the noon day luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel today.

Four hundred and forty-two persons have been left paralysed by the recent epidemic which has swept the country and funds are far from adequate to take care of the many afflicted. Drawing attention to the remarkable work done by the Department of Health the appeal went on to state that it was actually a case where dollars would save lives.

On motion the club decided to donate the sum of ten dollars from the general fund while contributions of the members made the total nearly twenty-five dollars.

In the absence of a speaker, Steve Maguire filled the gap in his usual entertaining manner with a few rambling remarks on government and the common philosophy.

FISH ARE SEIZED BY GAME WARDEN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 19. — Three Campbellford men discovered on Sunday night that the pickerel are biting good, but it did not do them any good. The story goes like this:

About 8.30 Sunday evening, the gentlemen cast their lines in the water from the breakwater on the east side of the locks. A. Minaker, game warden for this district, happened along in time to see four beautiful specimens just freshly caught. He issued a warning to the men that the season closed October 15, and that they must not fish. One member of the fishing party passed a remark which the warden resented and so they had their fish confiscated.

Warning was given prospective anglers on the bridge on Sunday afternoon, but no charges were laid.

lation as to how deadly poisons, such as cyanide, must be kept, although there were regulations as to the dispensing of them, according to W. G. Smith, Inspector of the Ontario College of Pharmacy.

Consumed Fourteen Grains.

The evidence of more than a dozen witnesses brought out the entire story of how the two women drank a portion of the medicine and almost immediately went into convulsions.

Mrs. Heron drank approximately fourteen grains of the cyanide. Only three grains are necessary to cause death.

The two bottles, one containing the poison, the other the harmless citrate, were a short distance apart on the third shelf in the Armstrong dispensary. The cyanide bottle was at the extreme end of the third row and partially obscured, according to the evidence given. It was explained by the drug store clerk that the bottle of poison was placed at the extreme end because it was rarely used.

The jury retired at 10.10 p.m.

Impartiality Urged.

Crown Attorney Rush asked the jurors to disabuse their minds of any impression they might have gained since the tragedies occurred.

"This is a small community and many rumors are no doubt heard," said Mr. Rush. "The whole set of facts will no doubt be brought out in due course and I ask you to keep an open, impartial mind."

The inquest was on Mrs. Harris, but the same evidence will apply to the other victim.

Alfred Cook, an architect, was the first witness. He testified that he made a detailed plan of the interior of Armstrong's drug store, showing the location of various shelves used to hold drug supplies in the dispensary at the rear of the store.

If the third shelf contained its maximum of ten bottles, the end bottle would be partially hidden behind a wing, the witness said. In reply to a question from the jury, the witness said the lighting in the dispensary was reasonably good.

James J. Paynter, a photographer, produced several pictures of the drug store's interior, particularly of the dispensary.

Chief Constable Hedley Padgett told of visiting the drug store the day following the deaths and seizing two bottles on the third shelf from the top. One of the bottles was labelled "Potassium," and beneath it a word "Pois." The second bottle labelled "Potassium Citrate" was two or three bottles away from the first bottle, it was stated.

The president's budget statement was primarily a factual comparison of the revised budget with the figures he submitted to Congress in April and with last year's budget.

He explained that the prospective deficit had jumped from $418,000,000 in April to a net of $666,000,000 because of increased expenditures voted by Congress since that time and because of a drop in the estimated revenue since then of $256,000,000.

He noted increased expenditures of $344,000,000, but balanced against them "savings under other items," of $323,000,000.

He listed specifically these unpredictable expenditures as having arisen since the April estimate: Increases under the new Road Retirement Act continuation of reduced interest rates on federal land bank loans, unemployment tax refunds under the Social Security Act, extension of the public works administration for two years, and cotton loans.

Despite the lower estimate of revenues, he said these receipts would amount to $1,357,000,000 more than last year's. He estimated expenditures at $656,000,000 less than 1937, with the biggest cut in recovery and relief spending.

"The estimated expenditures under the recovery and relief program will be $1,139,000,000 less than in 1937," the President said.

TELEPHONE TALKS IN THE WATSON FAMILY

"They're right here, Muriel. I'll send them home now!"

Don and Patsy Watson love to call on their Dad's Aunt Mary. Scarcely a week goes by when they don't drop in at least twice, for stories and cookies. So, on any afternoon, when they are later than usual in getting home, their mother doesn't worry. She simply waits till the deadline and then calls up Aunt Mary. This is just one of the things that makes the telephone indispensable to the Watson household. It saves so much anxiety and such a lot of work that Mrs. Watson wouldn't be without it.

The rates for residence telephone service are surprisingly low—only a few cents a day. You really cannot afford to be without a telephone.

WHAT LIFE INSURANCE MEANS TO OLD AGE

TO men and women in their later years, Life Insurance means freedom from money worries.

It means that, when the protection for the family is no longer needed, the cash proceeds of their Life Insurance policies will provide a guaranteed income for their own old age.

It means that they can retire from active business at 55, 60 or 65 — and take a well-earned rest.

It means that they can continue to enjoy the comforts of a home — and the little luxuries that make life so pleasant.

It means that they can be financially independent and face the future unafraid — with the peace of mind and security that lengthens the span of life.

Today, Life Insurance protects and supports thousands upon thousands of Canadians in their old age — and thus renders a great service to the nation.

Ronald MacPherson Is Named Sanitary Inspector By Council

Two Late Applications Are Also Considered By Committee Of Whole Council

Ronald W. MacPherson, B.A., was appointed sanitary inspector by the council Monday night at a salary of $1,200 a year beginning Monday, October 25, with an allowance of $300 a year for the maintenance of an automobile to be provided by himself.

At a preceding meeting of the committee of the whole council Mr. MacPherson was proposed for the position by Alderman Glover, seconded by Alderman McIntyre; Relief Officer A. G. Metheral was nominated by Aldermen Wilson and Juby; and Rodney R. Ecobichon, a last minute applicant, was proposed by Aldermen Cotton and Stocker.

Mayor Macdonald as chairman of the committee announced that the vote by show of hands was in favor of Mr. MacPherson, and his appointment on probation for a year was made unanimous.

"I think he should have a year to prove his ability,' Alderman Glover suggested. "His appointment tonight is not permanent." And prior to that Alderman Dutton had advised that the council should be unanimously in favor of the applicant who would be chosen. All the members agreed to that suggestion.

Mr. MacPherson's appointment was later confirmed in council by a bylaw, and it was decided that he might as well begin his duties next Monday. He is a son of F. R. J. MacPherson and was born in Peterborough twenty-five years ago.

Two late applications were received by the committee Monday night, and were considered "in order that everyone should have a chance to be heard." One was from R. H. Young of Renfrew, formerly of Peterborough, and the other was Rodney R. Ecobichon, 25, also of this city.

In his letter Mr. Ecobichon wrote that he was an honor graduate of the dairy school of the Ontario Agricultural College, and in 1933 passed the first-year examinations leading to the degree of Bachelor, Science and Agriculture.

Qualifications for the position were discussed by the committee prior to their division. Alderman Glover said that Mr. Metheral had organised the relief department so well it would be a mistake to transfer him. Alderman Wilson commented that Mr. Metheral had the advantage of years of experience in meeting people, and would exercise the effect of authority which might be lacking in a younger man. Alderman Cotton said he "would be reluctant to take Mr. Metheral off the job he has done so well," and Alderman McIntyre expressed the opinion Mr. Metheral could perform the duties of relief officer and plumbing inspector, but if he were appointed sanitary inspector he might be visiting dairies in the country when his service would be required by plumbers.

With The Boy Scouts

It was with regret the Sacred Heart troop accepted the resignation of their worthy and willing Scoutmaster, Mike Crough.

It was also a moment of jollification as they welcomed their new Scouter in the person of "Bill" Flint.

The troop committee and mothers' auxiliary held a meeting and accepted the resignation of the old Scouter and the appointment of the new.

Scouter Mike Crough announced that Tom Ritchie was the winner of the report on the week-end camp. He will be presented with a Scout hunting knife at the next meeting. New Scouts are welcome to join the troop.

To Mike Crough, we extend our best wishes and good luck.

The Scouters' Club met at Sacred Heart headquarters and the election of officers was carried out with the following results: President, Stan. Leggitt, Scouter, St. James' Troop; Vice-President, H. Sturrock, Scouter, St. Paul's South End; Secretary, Miss G. Lemmings, Akela, All Saints' Pack; Treasurer, Bob Baldwin, Akela, St. Peter's Pack.

It is urged that all Scout and Cub officers will do their utmost to attend the meetings and bring success to the club.

Scouters and Akelas, Attention

Wednesday, October 27, is the date of the annual meeting of the local association and the election of officers. At this meeting you are requested to bring in your report of activities for the year. Make them clear and concise; not lengthy details, but short and to the point. Financial standings are not necessary.

Also October 31 is the date of registration to Provincial headquarters. Please get your forms filled out at once and get them sent in.

At St. John's Cub Pack some forty boys were on hand for instructions on signalling, knots and first aid. Several good games were enjoyed.

Miss Gertie Lemmings of All Saints' Pack and Charles Jeffries, Rover Mate of St. John's Rover Crew, were guests of the evening.

The Mothers' Auxiliary of the Pack will meet Friday in St. John's Parish Hall, at 3 p.m. All mothers are requested to attend.

St. John's Cub Pack will hold their annual field day on Saturday next, October 23. Further details will be given at the next Cub meeting.

Scouters who feel unequal to training their patrol leaders can at least do this, and to their own profit: At each Court of Honor read aloud, one at a time Roland Phillips' "Letters to a Patrol Leader."

INVESTORS WATCH MARKET CRASH BROKERS' OFFICES

Peterborough stock market investors crowded the two local brokerage offices to watch with long faces one of the worst market breaks since the big crash of 1929 to-day. Many holders of both mine and industrial stock complained of heavy losses before the noon-time rally came to ease the strain.

The local stake in the market has not in recent weeks been as heavy as it has been at other periods during the past five years due to the inactivity of the mine market, yet thousands of dollars of local capital are still in there. Most Peterborough market habitueés are on the long side of the market, so a sudden break such as that of this morning aroused no cheers.

One investor was heard to boast that he had the courage to buy International Nickel when it hit its low of 39¾ about 10 o'clock and sold it at 42 at noon. A number of others with similar courage made timid investments on the mine board when new lows were chalked up early in the morning, but most complained they no longer had the money to take advantage of the bargains.

Among wise-cracks head: "This is what the market forecasters call a 'healthy technical reaction.' Healthy for everybody but the little fellow on the wrong side of the market."

FOUR ARRESTED CHARGE OF THEFT TAKEN TO COBOURG

Robert and Lucy Burt, Annie and Lizzie Evans of Toronto were taken to Cobourg Monday night after arrest here on a charge of stealing $36 from John Cairns of Manvers Township.

After the quartette had left he found a roll of money had gone from his pants pocket. He notified the police at Cobourg, who in turn notified Peterborough, wher they were picked up and taken to Cobourg.

City Council Sells Lots On Maria St.

Purchase from the city of four lots on Maria street near the intersection of Burnham street by Cecil Lapp for $300 was approved by a by-law passed by the council last night. The Canadian Pacific Railway cuts several of these lots on the bias, and according to Alderman McIntyre, chairman of the Property Committee, two of them are of use only to the owner of the other two. They are assessed at $475, and taxes become payable from October 16.

"It is a pleasure to see a house built or being built on practically every lot we have sold," Ald. McIntyre said, referring to the council's policy of disposing of lots acquired by arrears of taxes.

One Mile Of Pennies Required To Open Toy Repair Shop At The Fire Hall

MEMBERS of the Fire Department are making plans to provide toys for children who will want them at Christmas. In order to remake and repair toys which are donated it is necessary to have paint, glue, and a good deal of material with which to work. In order to secure the needed funds the firemen have secured the services of the Boy Scouts for Saturday and the mile-of-pennies idea will be used. The coins will be placed by contributors on George street starting at Charlotte and extending north. It is not necessary to place only a penny on the sidewalk, as larger coins will be just as welcome and will make the chain grow more rapidly in value if not in length. Last season the same plan was tried and about $134 was received. That was spent with the exception of about $10 which is available to start the toy repair fund this year. The firemen are asking the co-operation of citizens in their plans for the Christmas toy arrangements.

Captain of Big Pacific Liner Native of Peterboro' County

T. F. Matthews In Addressing Rotary Tells of Meeting Master Of Empress of Japan

That the captain of the biggest vessel on the Pacific, the C.P.R. Empress of Japan, is a native of Peterborough county was one of the many interesting highlights in an address given before the Peterborough Rotary Club on Monday by T. F. Matthews, of Toronto, formerly a well-known Peterborough resident, who told the Rotarians something of the round-the-world trip enjoyed by Mrs. Matthews and himself.

Mr. Matthews, referring to Captain Douglas of the Empress of Britain said that when he remarked that the captain did not talk like an Englishman or Scotsman, the commander of the big vessel replied that he was a Canadian, a native of Ontario.

"When I asked him where he was born," said Mr. Matthews, "he replied 'Oh near a little village you probably never heard of, Young's Point' and I used to paddle down the river to another village you never heard of either, Lakefield, to attend Shieldrake's School."

Mr. Matthew's was introduced by Rotarian H. R. H. Kenner, who remarked that presenting the speaker of the day to a Peterborough audience was a mere formality.

The speaker's address dealt with a trip to the 14th Congress of the Federation of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire, held at Wellington, New Zealand, at which gathering Mrs. Matthews was the Canadian representative, and with the tour that followed that meeting.

Tells His Experiences

Mr. Matthews dealt in most interesting fashion with his experiences in New Zealand and Australia and his impressions of those two important portions of the Empire and then passed on to describe the trip up through the Dutch East Indies, a visit to Singapore, an unusual journey through Indo-China and then the story of his sojourn in China and Japan. This latter portion of the address was of particular interest in view of the present developments in the Orient.

The speaker told many striking things about the two countries, one of the most engrossing being his statement that in Tokio there were 27,000 suicides last year and the greater percentage of these were young people, some thirty per cent in fact being children between 13 and 15 years of age.

Mr. Matthews said that his trip lasted six and a half months without a single unpleasant incident and that he and Mrs. Matthews travelled 25,000 miles by sea and encountered only two really stormy days.

The thanks of the club were extended to Mr. Matthews on motion of Rotarian R. M. Glover.

Rotarian James Dutton was chairman of the luncheon in the absence from the city of Rotarian Art Runions and there was an unusually large number of visitors including Dr. W. D. Scott who was congratulated upon his recovery from a long and serious illness.

The Rambling REPORTERS

MEANEST MAN

Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, president of the Children's Aid Society and minister of St. Paul's Church, declares the meanest man in the city was discovered during the Children's Aid tag day effort Saturday. The discovery was made by his daughter, Barbara, one of the volunteer taggers.

Miss Barr was soliciting contributions on one of the busy corners of the downtown section when a well-dressed, properous appearing gentleman stepped up and ostentiously folded a dollar bill small enough to go through the slot in her collection box. She saw him make a gesture of sliding the dollar into the box and, although she recalled later she did not actually see the dollar go into the box, suspected nothing at the time.

When she took the box back to headquarters at the end of the day, she announced proudly, "There is at least one dollar bill in there." But when the box was unlocked, not a single bill was in sight.—K.C.

CITY IS IN NEED HEATED GARAGES

When the city's garbage truck is not working it will be stored during the coming winter in the spacious garage of Beatty Brothers on Reid street. Alderman McIntyre was authorized by the council last night to arrange for the accommodation at $8 a month. That engaging of space in a heated building reminded City Engineer to inform the council that the big new power grader, bought this year, has no adequate shelter in sight against the cold blasts that will soon be on the wing, according to Dan Whetung's gloomy forecast.

Hence, if the council ever gets enough money ahead, it might be invested in a brick garage probably in the Townsend street yard, with a heating system that might be connected with the fires in the incinerator. For a few moments the council was envisaging the kind of garage the corporation should have for its various trucks, but the realization that nearly every dollar was designated last March for certain approved expenditure the fanciful window-shopping for garages was quickly checked and hauled out of the clouds.

TERMS IN JAIL ARE GIVEN TWO MEN

Appearing on remand with pleas of guilty to charges of stealing old iron the property of Peterborough Lumber Company, Joseph Delore was sentenced to one months imprisonment and Harold Goodell, 25, was sentenced to twenty-days to date from October 12. A seventeen-year-old youth who was implicated with the other two and who also pleaded guilty was placed on suspended sentence for two years.

Handing down a reserved judgment, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., recorded a conviction against Michael Gorman, waiter at South Beach Hotel who was charged with selling or supplying liquor to a minor. Declaring he was satisfied on the evidence that the defendant supplied liquor to a minor on a Saturday during August, the magistrate imposed a penalty of $20 and $17.55 costs or 15 days in default.

George Leclair, Montreal, who was arrested over the week-end at Trenton and was brought back to this city in custody of Constables William R. Piercy and Motorcycle Officer Lloyd A. McClure, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of stealing a bicycle the property of Allan Lester. He was remanded for sentence to Tuesday next.

A charge of reckless driving against Donald O'Connor, 696 Water street which was laid some weeks ago, following an automobile accident at Water and London streets on the evening of July 19 last, was withdrawn by the Crown.

PLACE WIG-WAGS ON GEORGE STREET

Assent to the placing of four warning wig-wags at the corner of George and Romaine streets, crossed by the Canadian National Railway, was given by the city council last night in a motion by Aldermen Cotton and Juby.

Cost of installation is estimated at $4,600 of which the city will have to pay $600, with an annual expense of $125 for maintenance of the protective signalling system.

An accident at the crossing on August 22 prompted the Dominion Railway Board to advise that wig-wags be erected, especially because of the number of accidents that had occurred there.

The Railway Board pays 70 per cent of the estimated $4,000 cost of setting up the signals, leaving $1200 to be paid in equal parts by the railway and the city. Cost of maintaining the wig-wags in efficient service is about $250 a year of which half is paid by the C.N.R. and the other half by the city.

Talks to the People—J. H. Burnham

As the Peterborough press does not appear to welcome letters in defence of the old religious beliefs it is necessary to pay for them in this wise and thus secure a voice in defence against the attack being made in high quarters against supernaturalism and the inspiration of the Bible.

The aggressive world is turning against inspired religion and the promise of a future life. It is ignoring the personal relationship of God and what I refer to will be seen at a glance when I quote from the "religious" page of The Examiner where the writer, the Rev. E. R. James of Toronto, says in his weekly contributions to that journal:

"Modern scholarship applies the principle of 'internal evidence.' For instance if you produced a letter from your grandmother, written about seventy years ago containing the everyday expression, 'I will phone you,' it would be proved that your grandmother did not write the letter, for the word was not known at that time. This principle of internal evidence is applied to the examination of the Gospels."

That such a method should be substituted for our instinctive belief called "faith", a divine fatherhood, is to attempt to substitute man for God. What do you think of it? "Thou canst not by searching find out God." The finite cannot reveal the Infinite. The Catholic church claims divine guidance in proclaiming what is true. Protestant ministers do not as yet claim any guidance but themselves. When they do "death will have been swallowed up in victory."

And thus Protestantism will pass out, some to return whence they came and others to join that other world whose motto has always been contraceptive or any other "birth control."

Prosperous Season In Canada Indicated In Hockey Report

Drought Conditions Hurt In Saskatchewan—Quebec, Maritimes Improve

OTTAWA, Oct. 19 (CP).—Amateur hockey throughout Canada should enjoy one of its best seasons during 1937-38, it was indicated by reports to the office of Cecil Duncan, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Most promising reports come from the Maritimes. Bill Gill and Dud James of the Moncton Hawks have applied for reinstatement and if their requests are granted will play with one of the strong teams the East expects to send out on the Allan Cup trail again.

A new playoff arrangement will affect the Maritimes. In future, the Quebec Province or the Ottawa and district champions will travel East to meet the winners of the Maritimes title, instead of the latter visiting them for the playoff.

More than a dozen professionals have applied for amateur cards in Quebec, and the Province will have two senior loops this season, instead of one. The Provincial League, an intermediate circuit last season, has been given senior rating. The Quebec Senior League, formerly the Montreal senior group, is the other.

For a time, withdrawal of mercantile clubs in the Ontario Hockey Association left the outlook gloomy around Toronto and district, but it seems certain now that Oshawa, Port Colborne, Toronto and Hamilton will be banded into a senior group that will produce better hockey and will send out stronger teams for the playdown.

As usual, Northern Ontario is expected to ice some of Canada's strongest squads to defend the Allan Cup won last year by Sudbury. They have been sending out worthy champions for many seasons, and indications seem to substantiate belief the 1937-38 winners of the Northern Loop will again be formidable opponents for other teams entering the playdowns.

DON WILSON MOVING.

ORILLIA, Oct. 19.—(CP).—Arriving home yesterday with Orillia Terriers from Vancouver, where they lost the Canadian senior lacrosse championship to New Westminster Salmonbellies, Don Wilson, defenseman, announced he was leaving for Kirkland Lake, where he intends to play hockey for Lake Shore Mines. Last winter Wilson played hockey in England.

MURRAY "MUZ" PATRICK

After trying his hand at both hockey and boxing, Murray Patrick, young son of Lester Patrick, coach of New York Rangers, has turned his attentions to six-day bike racing. In his first start in a six-day race he received a deep cut over his eye, but returned to the race, being held in Montreal, after 30 minutes.

BILL WILSON

After a three-year hold on the Man cup, emblematic of lacrosse supremacy in Canada, the Orillia Terriers were finally dethroned by the New Westminster Salmonbellies of British Columbia. They captured the title in three straight games and the odd angle to their win was the prominent part played by former Terriers now with the Salmonbellies. The leading scorer for the new champions was Bill Wilson, former Orillia star, now playing with the western team.

SID LUCKMAN HAS NO LUCK

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—Until the day when a better man shows up, Sid Luckman, the black-haired thunderbolt out at Columbia University, will do the All-America halfbacking for this corner.

The talk is that the Brooklyn bullet, who still has another season to go, is as great an all-around backfielder as you will find in any football yard.

Unfortunately, perhaps, Luckman is playing on a club woefully short of manpower. The Lions actually have only 14 "first string" players by Coach Lou Little's count. The forward wall is light and can't withstand a sustained battering by a "power" team. Little fears it will be crumbled a time or so before the season ends.

"When it does I guess you'll discover Luckman's weakness," said the Columbia mentor. "No player, no matter how great, can go places nowadays unless his line is holding its own. But until that happens, you make no mistake about him being a great one."

Popular Passer

Luckman sprang into the spotlight by completing an almost unbelievable percentage of passes in Columbia's opening games against Williams and Army. There's no tosser in the United States to touch him now, apparently, unless it's Sammy Baugh, and he's quit playing for fun.

The only misguiding thing about Sid, up through those two games, was that he did very little except fire the pigskin downfield, though he did run 80-yards for a touchdown against Army. It wasn't until last Saturday's tussle with Pennsylvania that he showed the boys how many different things he could do with a football.

Those who saw that game didn't leave the grounds bemoaning the fact that the Quakers had taken a 26-6 shellacking, and regretting it hadn't been closer. They came out raving about Luckman.

Luckman's exhibition of running against the Quakers, rather than his superb passing, to which they had become accustomed, was what excited even the experts. Usually it took the third or fourth Penn tackler to bring him down.

Outside of his passing and running, Luckman is a punter who averages around 50 yards and as airtight a safety man as any team needs.

British Speedster After New Records Will Attempt To Beat Campbell's Mark

CAPTAIN GEORGE EYSTON ALSO OUT TO BREAK RECORDS SET BY AB JENKINS

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Oct. 19.—Automobile endurance records recently established here by Ab Jenkins, and the world's speed record set up by Sir Malcolm Campbell may fall by the wayside when Captain George Eyston of England begins to race over the salt flats here.

Held up by bad weather conditions during the last few days, the British racing driver is waiting his hour when he will be able to start in his two-ton juggernaut, "Speed of the Wind," to better the 24-hour endurance record.

Ab Jenkins, the American racing driver, covered 3,774 miles in his 24-hour run, setting up an average of 155.7 miles per hour. Eyston feels confident that he will exceed that mark by many miles.

To Aim at Other Records

The 40-year-old British speedster will also shoot after the 2,000 mile, the 3,000 kilometre, the 12-hour record and many other major marks established by the American.

Captain Eyston has tentatively set Oct. 16 or 17 as the time when he will roll his big seven-ton racing car, "Thunderbolt," on the rock-hard straightaway here in his assault on Sir Malcolm Campbell's speed record of 301.1292 miles per hour.

England's ace speedster's new creation is a giant in every detail. It has the appearance of a transcontinental 'plane, less the wings and landing gear, rather than an automobile. It is 35 feet five inches in length and is powered by two super-charged Rolls-Royce engines developing 3,250 horsepower. Fourteen thousand poungs in weight, it is approximately 2,000 pounds heavier than Sir Malcolm Campbell's Bluebird in which he established the record several years ago.

Safety Devices Installed

As a measure of safety Captain Eyston has installed two sets of front wheels, each set suspended on a separate axle. The British racing demon will be able to steer both sets. The rear wheels take care of transmitting all the horsepower from the enormous engines, located on either side behind the driving cockpit.

Resembling the gills of a fish, the juggernaut has two air flaps located behind the rear wheels. These flaps thrust out by hydraulic pressure will be a great help in the braking power of the car.

Equipped with three speeds, the car must reach well over 60 miles per hour before second gear is engaged. Around 200 miles per hour the car is thrown into gear. Running at full throttle "Thunderbolt" will consume close to eight gallons of gasoline per minute.

Heavy Tire Usage

Captain Eyston expects to use 80 spare tires during his test runs. Tires on all the wheels are changed following each dash over the 12-mile course of rockhard salt.

The straightaway over which the record dash will be made will be at least 12 miles in length, with a margin over that for braking at either end. The course will be scraped several times to a width of about 200 feet and then a black line will be painted in the centre of the entire length of the straightaway. This black line forms a guide for the driver to keep absolutely true on the course.

Capt. George Eyston, British racing driver, sitting in the cockpit of his powerful racing car "Thunderbolt" in which he hopes to travel faster than any man has ever travelled on land before.

The machine only rides six or seven inches from the roadbed. Captain Eyston feels that since he developed such a low centre of gravity it would take a tremendous force to upset "Thunderbolt" or roll it over.

Glenna Collett won her fifth United States national golf championship—three in a row—at Los Angeles seven years ago to-day. She defeated Virginia Van Wie of Chicago 6-5 in the 36-hole final. Miss Van Wie won the title the next three years and Miss Collett took the trophy again in 1935.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

LONG, LEAN Walter Gerow already is making plans for his 1938 Napanee entry in the C.O.B.L. He was telling us over the week-end that the Gibbards would be back again and they'd be considerably stronger than in the past. It took Walter the best part of the summer to discover why his team could lick Oshawa regularly but couldn't beat the Petes. "I finally found out," he said; "we were getting as good pitching as Peterborough for the most part and our boys were hitting the ball. But we lost games. The reason was that the righthand hitters for Peterborough were getting on often on scratchy singles or errors on the left side of the diamond. We were weak defensively at short and third. The lefthand hitters of Oshawa were generally knocking the ball toward first or second, and we were, okay there."

* * * * * * *

WALTER IS a first-rate ball skipper. He piloted Belleville to seven C.O.B.L. championships—a loop record—and a couple of Ontario titles. And coached two Napanee teams to intermediate Provincial pennants. A year ago he put a poor Napanee senior team into the loop playoffs, ousting the Petes, and he was knocking at the door again this year but couldn't quite make it. Ernie Gibbard made no mistake in enticing Gerow away from Belleville—and the Naps shouldn't be under-rated next campaign.

* * * * * * *

BY THE way, Walter has the oldest active C.O.B.L.-er on his roster, none other than Alex Weir. He was with Belleville, as bat boy, when the circuit was organized in 1919, and he broke in with this team in '22. Alex is still a pretty fair outfielder and hitter. Manager Gerow also has about the youngest player in the loop in his son Walter, Jr. His dad was on the spot last spring when the O.B.A.A. turned down Wilson's application for a berth there. So he put in young Walter—knowing he'd be panned to the high heavens for installing his son at first if the kid flopped. But young Walter played a bangup game and will be holding down the initial sack for years to come. Can't be over 17, we figure.

LINDSAY WARDER scribe compares Meikle and Crowe as flickers, and gives the Cobourg hoofer a slight nod over the Peterborough punter. He may have changed his mind since hearing how Don more than held his own in booting exchanges with Meikle here on Saturday. The writer states: "We admit that both of the kickers are par-excellent; both good running halves who could be used to advantage on any squad in the group. We've played against them both and, while we admit they are both good, Meikle has a slight preference." Don can also play lacrosse, hockey, baseball and basketball—dunno how he is on housework, girls!

* * * * * * *

"PETERBOROUGH ORFUNS," says the scribe of the Lindsay Post, "are safely perched on the top rung of the lakeshore group ladder. They spoiled our perfectly good prediction by taking a very, very close win from the Galloping Ghosts of Cobourg, Ontario . . . . Orfuns seem to be definitely sure of first place in the group and thus will be the representative of this district in the O.R.F.U. playdowns. We think they'll go places because they have a better team now than Lindsay had last year, even though they weren't as good in 1936." He is right as far as all of the '36 season goes, but Orfuns finished last season a stronger squad than the Scugog lads—as the last clash between these teams showed, and some depleted Lindsay wallets right afterward.

* * * * * * *

EFFORTS ARE being made to have Toronto Eastsides and Orfuns play a two-in-one tilt here this Saturday, the two scheduled Toronto-Peterborough games to be run concurrently, with the outfit winning to be given credit for two victories. On account of the former Eastsides-Orfuns squabble here had also to be postponed. But we understand the local gridiron will be taken by the P.C.I. teams that day. Lindsay Juniors and P.C.I. have a C.O.S.S.A. fixture, while the P.C.I. Seniors are billed for an exhibition tussle here that day with Malvern Collegians of Toronto, probably following the junior joust. More on the subject tomorrow.

* * * * * * *

WE FIGURE it a bit too early to make any predictions of a grid title coming this way in '37, but the Oshawa scrivener states: "Keep your eyes on Peterborough's senior collegiate rugby team. They have brought to school, for studies of course, a couple of players who last season performed on Peterborough's O.R.F.U. team. Coach Bamforth has lined up a strong team and it looks this year as if the Liftlock City scholars will get a grid title and maybe revenge on Toronto St. Mike's, also." Don't look now, but that is exactly what the local lads have in mind—and who knows?

* * * * * * *

A BUNCH of husky midgets—the midgets are almost mammoth down that way, it seems—from St. Catharines copped the O.A.L.A. midget title over a smaller and less experienced Cornwall crew in Norwood last Saturday. That's all right but what gets us—and Alex Kempt won't like it, either—is this item Friday by Clayton Brown in the St. Kitts' paper: "Down in the forlorn little hamlet of Norwood, which is 30 miles north of Cobourg and 20 east of Peterborough—and escapes public notice until once a year when finals of the minor Ontario lacrosse series are played there—Saturday St. Catharines Athletics will find their fate at the hands of Cornwall, or vice versa." It is so nice of a famous metropolitan writer to notice the "forlorn little hamlet of Norwood", now, isn't it?

* * * * * * *

DESE, DEM and Dose: Time the local Hockey Club was getting reorganized for the winter . . . Lou Gehrig, the Yanks' slugging first baseman, is doing some fishing now in the district around Kingston . . . . We don't expect Joe Daly to have him signed with the Ponies in '38 . . . . Lindsay Collegiate juniors must have a neat rugby team to knock off Oshawa by a 27-0 score on Saturday . . . . Blue Bombers play in Cobourg next weekend . . . . Dope on a local Ski Club meeting last even is published in tonight's paper . . . . 'Tis said some of the local loop puck teams are being lined up on the q.t. already . . . . Newt Thompson of Belleville starts his 13th year as secretary-treasurer of the C.O.B.L. . . . . Three weeks from tomorrow sees theopening of the N.H.L. schedule . . . . What? You haven't your Christmas shopping done yet? Well, well, well!

AMATEUR UNION MAKES EFFORT REGAIN GROUPS

AMHERST, N.S., Oct. 19—(CP).—Organization of Canadian amateur hockey and basketball so that all amateur report in Canada will be under one union, is advised in the report of the affiliations and alliance committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada released by Comittee Chairman C. D. Shipley of Amherst.

"I think every effort should be made at the annual meeting of the A.A.U. of C. to be held in Montreal, November 18, 19 and 20, to bring these bodies back into the union," Mr. Shipley said. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Canadian Amateur Basketball have cancelled their articles of alliance with the union.

FACE ULTIMATUM

HALIFAX, Oct. 19—(CP).—An ultimatum to affiliate with no organization but the Maritime Province branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada faced hockey clubs in the three provinces to-day as a result of a split between the union and the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association.

Should clubs refuse to affailiate with the A.A.U. "We will have no alternative but to bar them from further participation in amateur sports," President T. L. MacDonald of the Maritime Athletic Union said in an open letter published to-day.

Following decision of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association to liberalize the A.A.U. amateur code for hockey players, the Maritime Provinces branch of the union decided at a recent meeting to appoint special committees to govern various sports such as hockey, baseball, and basketball, in place of separate affiliate organizations.

CLUB ORGANIZING DRY SKI SCHOOL

A dry ski school will be started in Peterborough early in November this year it was announced last night at an executive meeting of the Peterborough Ski Club in Duffus', with President Art Rhodes in the chair. The general club program for the 1937-38 season was outlined at this session.

It was stated that the Ontario zone ski championships will be held here on Feb. 5th, 1938. Work on the jump at Nassau, preparing it for the approaching season, is being done by club members each week-end. A new smaller jump for beginners is planned and work will commence next week-end. It will be used for training purposes. A technical committee planning trails for members' use is functioning, and trails will be marked on maps for each member.

The dry ski school will be under direction of Jack Holland, and will consist of a series of demonstrations as to proper methods of controlling the body and the skis. Also exercises aimed at preparation for actual skiing. Dry ski schools have proven popular elsewhere and in larger centres, and local enthusiasts will be offered the same opportunities of learning the technique of this sport. Location of the school will be given out later.

Lawn Bowling Company Elects New Directorate For Year

B. Chesler And E. Wall Are Returned To Board After Year's Absence

(By Herb Martin)

With only a few over the required number to make a quorum, the directors for the season of 1938 of the Peterborough Lawn bowling club company were elected at Monday night's annual meeting of the stockholders. In the absence of the president, W. J. Oke, the vice, Ken Sloane occupied the chair and gave a lengthy report of the year's activities and thanked all who had helped in any way to further the interests of the club. The secretary's report as given by F. Brown and the financial statement submitted by J. T. Braund were favorably received.

The motion to adopt a new system of electing directors was defeated, the shareholders being satisfied to carry on as provided in the present constitution. The personnel of the new elected board is B. Chesler, H. Clegg, J. Fitzpatrick, K. Sloane, Judge E. L. Smoke, E. Wall and H. G. Walker. Of the old board, H. Clegg, J. Fitzpatrick and K. Sloane were re-elected. B. Chesler and E. Wall were returned after a year's absence. Judge Smoke and H. G. Walker are the two newcomers.

While there is much work for the board to do in the coming year, we believe the most important things that they will have to contend with will be the tennis club and the ladies' section . . . In retiring from the board after many years of faithful service, J. T. Braund was given a tribute that was both becoming and timely . . . The new auditors will be G. Soulby and F. Dearborn and the nominating committee will be the same as last year, E. Sackville, H. Walker, R. Dowdley, G. Gimblett and G. Cairns . . . After a hearty vote of thanks tendered to the retiring board, auditors, nominating committee and the press, the meeting was adjourned.

It is likely that the new board will meet in a day or two to elect the president and vice and also name the chairmen of the different committees.

Preston Misses Leaf Veterans In Persons Of Clancy And Day

Toronto And Syracuse Hockey Teams Go Into Annual Fall Training

PRESTON, Ont., Oct. 19 (C.P.)—A million dollars worth of hockey talent wedded down here to-day as Toronto Maple Leafs and Syracuse Stars started their annual winter-training session there—but to the citizens who have watched this yearly business things were quite the same.

There were new faces—there always is at a hockey training camp—but the greatest change of all was the absence of two Leaf veterans who had become almost part and parcel of the town at this time of the year. Frank (King) Clancy and Clarence (Happy) Day were in foreign fields.

That means quite a bit around here. Yearly Clancy and Day were two of the most-sought after-dinner speakers, doing their bit for district charities along with other Leafs and stars. The two veteran defencemen, one now Montreal Maroons coach, the other a New York American always were among the leaders.

However, most of the cast who have rehearsed here for several years for the National and International League circuits were back again. Big Chuck Conacher, Harvey (The Busher) Jackson, Red Horner, Reg. Hamilton, and Nick Metz, to mention a few, were looking up their old haunts.

Six amateur stars were among the group that includes several N.H.L. greats. Pete Langelle and Jack Fox, from Winnipeg Monarchs, the Dominions junior champions, and Bobby Laurent, Bill Jennings, Chuck Corrigan, and Norm Cassidy from Toronto senior leagues, will make a try at winning a place from established pros.

Murphy Chamberlain and Bill Thomson were other newcomers. Recognized as two of Canada's leading amateurs, Chamberlain played with Sudbury's Allan Cup Tigers last season, while Thomson starred with Perth Arthur Bearcats.

Jamaica expects to export 25,000,000 bunches of bananas this year, an all-time record.

LOCKE WINS TITLE

BETHLEHEM, South Africa—(CP)—A. D. Locke won the Orange Free State amateur golf championship with rounds of 68, 70, 67 and 69. His aggregate of 274 strokes is a record for a South African championship.

OTTAWA TO STAY IN QUEBEC LEAGUE

MONTREAL, Oct. 19 (CP).—The financially-pressed Ottawa Senators will remain in the Quebec Senior Hockey League this winter under an arrangement that will give the club more revenue through more home games. It was agreed last night at a league meeting.

The Senators were kept from dropping out of the league through an agreement whereby each of the five Montreal teams will play an extra game at Ottawa. Thus the capital city club will have five more home games than the other six teams in the loop.

Until this plan was put through there had been doubt as to whether the Ottawans would be an entrant this year. Their status had been in doubt for months as league and club officers sought means of bolstering their financial position. The league accepted "unofficially" a membership application from Concordia, a team backed by the city of Montreal. No official resignation was in, but it was understood Concordia was to take the place of Montreal Canadiens, who are expected to drop out for one year.

Other teams in the schedule this winter will be Royals, McGill and Victorias of Montreal proper, Maple Leafs of suburban Verdun and Quebec City's Aces, last year's champions.

Apply For Re-instatement

Nearly a score of hockey players, who have played in professional ranks, have applied for reinstatement as amateurs. Most of those wishing reinstatement are veterans, but some are youngsters who have either retired for personal reasons or could not make the grade. The most outstanding of those wanting their amateur cards back are the Boureeir brothers, Jean-Louis, LEFT, and Conrad, RIGHT, his younger brother who both played for Montreal Canadiens. Two other well-known players who want to return to simon pure ranks are Harold Star, LEFT, circle of Ottawa, and Bill Gill, RIGHT circle, of Moncton.

Orillia Townspeople Forget Terriers No One At Station To Greet Warriors

ORILLIA, Oct. 19.—(CP)—Orillia Terriers, former Dominion lacrosse champions, returned home in the rain yesterday with words of praise for New Westminster Salmonbellies, the team to which they lost the Canadian title and the Mann Cup they had held for three consecutive years.

No one was at the station to welcome the returning Terriers. In other years, when Orillia had swept through opposing teams with little opposition to the lacrosse heights, the town band and half the population turned out to greet the victorious warriors.

Only a team right on edge could beat the Salmonbellies, said Herb Caswell, Orillia manager. Of New Westminster's players he said: "There are no better lacrosse players in all Canada than Hank monroe. I refer especially to him and Bill Wilkes, Bill Wilson, Ed Downey and Goalie Pete Anthony. The Terriers played well, but had they clicked as well as they did in the Ontario finals I think they might have won at least one game, if not the series."

QUINTE GRIDDERS DEFEAT TWEED

(Examiner Correspondence)

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 19. — St. Michael's Academy of Belleville proved too strong for the Tweed High School team in an exhibition rugby match at the Fair Grounds over the week-end, blanking the locals out by a score of 16 to 0, made up of three touchdowns and a rouge. Cowan, Hasip and G. Whalen for St. Mike's gathered the major points. The visitors tried a forward pass seven times, completing it but once. The locals were unable to complete any of three passes attempted.

St. Michael's were directed by John Doran, formerly of Tweed, now physical director at the Belleville institution of learning.

St. Michael's — G. Whalen, captain, inside; B. McQuade, centre half; B. Noakes, right half; B. Boyle, left half; E. Cowan, quarter back; J. Sheridan, snap; B. Whalen, inside wing; P. Long, middle; J. Hart, flying wing; F. Robertson, full back; J. Hunter and J. Howe, subs.

Tweed High School — B. Arber, captain, quarter back; G. Luckman, snap; B. Price, centre half; G. Wagar, right half; A. Courneyea, left half; G. Austin, right inside; W. Scott, left inside; D. Pursit, end; B. Elliott, left centre; M. Vasine, full back; J. Burroughs, right end; D. Pribe, middle; B. McCaw, sub.

Referee—Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne
Umpire—John Doran.
Linesmen—T. Moffat, H. Long.

Adams Well Pleased Hockey Prospects

DETROIT, Oct. 19.— (CP) — Manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings, Stanley Cup champions for the last two years, surveyed his amateur hockey prospects at a practice and said: "I never saw such a group of talented kids in all my life."

Adams and his farm foreman, Donnie Hughes, coach of the Pittsburgh Hornets of the International-American Hockey League, thought the amateurs were good enough to replace the whole Hornet team.

"We could put an entire team of 1936 amateurs in Pittsburgh and finish in the money," Adams said.

Wholesale replacement will not take place, but six amateurs will join the Hornets this season. Half a dozen others will be sent back to amateur ranks for another year because of their youth.

Cook Takes Up Reins Of Cleveland Barons

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19.—(CP). — Bill Cook of New York Ranger hockey fame, has begun his first year as a manager seeking to carve an International-American League squad, Cleveland Barons, from 23 players assembled at Winnipeg training quarters.

Last year the outfit, known as Cleveland Falcons, was the doormat of the Canadian division of the league and finished in the cellar.

Bill has five amateurs working with the 18 professional players. He particularly likes the play of Walter Holditch and Bev. North, forward and defenceman from Calgary, and Stuart Smith, centreman from Kenora, Ont.

"I expect to have at least two of these players with my team this winter," he said after a practice session yesterday. Cook said Peggy O'Neil, Saskatoon, Lorne Duguid, Bill Cunningham, Winnipeg, Les Cunningham, Calgary, Bud Cook, Kingston, Ont., Earl Roche, Montreal, Moe Roberts, Cambridge, Mass., Arthur Berlett, Buffalo, Walter Hergesheimer, Winnipeg, are almost certain for a spot with Barons.

Maroons' First Line Wants More Money Gracie, Marker, Cain On Union Scale

TORONTO, Oct. 19 (CP).—Montreal Maroons' famed National Hockey League line of Gracie, Cain and Marker are holdouts, Tommy Munns says in his sports column in the Globe and Mail today. He gives Bob Gracie as authority for the statement.

Known as the Green Line, Gracie, Gus Marker and Herbie Cain were among the high scorers in the circuit last season. The columnist says:

"You can take Gracie's word for it that all three want more money before signing new contracts.... Asked (why he wasn't with the Maroons at their Lake Placid training camp) he didn't hesitate to come across with the information that not only he but Marker and Cain also were absentees. The holdouts are organizing on union scale, and holding out a whole line at a time this year.

"Gracie, formerly a star with the (Toronto) Maple Leafs when his exploits caused such a furore in his home town of North Bay, led the Maroons in scoring last year, so his demand, which seems quite justified, will cause considerable worry in the Montreal camp.

"Gracie wanted an increase of $1,000, then offered to take half that figure, only so have the Maroons refuse to boost his salary above that of last season in the slightest."

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP).—Flash—Pittsburgh Pirates will be broken up, if they can get what they want.... Except for Pitchers Bauers, Tobin and Bowman, Catcher Todd and Infielders Brubaker and Handley, they're ready to shoot the works—Waners and all.... Arky Vaughn is definitely on the block.

Not since this corner can remember have so many top flight football teams been on the outside looking in this early in the season.... Solly Krieger, the middleweight, is running for council in one of the Brooklyn districts and may make it.

Mike Jacobs and Joe Gould spotted walking up Sixth Avenue in their new camel's hair topcoats.... Oh, Oh.... Somebody had better look out.... Ancil Hoffman is due tomorrow from California to line up some winter biz for the Messrs. Baer.... One of the strongest all-star teams in any league (collitch or pro) could be assembled from the Smiths, Johnsons and Millers in the National Pro League.... Five Smiths, as many Johnsons and four Millers do their stuff regularly in that loop.

Attention, Mr. Alan Gould: Western scouts say you should not overlook a guy named Popovich, now running wild for University of Montana, when making your all-America selections.... Seems this gent is very regular at railbacking—new files the white flag and when he gets off to a fast lope can click those furlongs off like War Admiral.

ANOTHER CAR LOAD FROM MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, Oct. 19. — Announcement was made in all the churches of the village and district on Sunday that one car of fruit and vegetables had been loaded for the West, and enough remained over to half fill a second car. Further contributions were urgently asked to be brought in this week so the second car may be loaded and sent on its way to Springwater. The first car was consigned to Vernon. Both places are in Saskatchewan.

Robber Baptized

Granted an hour's freedom from jail, Reuel Ledoux, 18-year-old confessed mail robber, was baptized by his father in Green Lake, near Seattle, Wash., thus being granted one of the strangest requests ever received by federal officers in the city. The parents of the boy, reunited by his plight, wanted him to accept the Lord's salvation before he went to Elreno, Oklahoma, reformatory to serve a two-and-one-half-year sentence. Here Reuel bows his head in prayer after the baptism, as his father, LEFT, also prays.

9 AIR DISASTERS COST 101 LIVES

TORONTO, Oct. 19. (AP).—Nine major air disasters have claimed 101 lives in the United States in the last year.

Most tragic and costly was the May explosion of the airship Hindenburg, with the loss of 35 lives as the huge German aircraft settled over Lakehurst, N.J., to complete its first 1937 transatlantic voyage.

On December 18, 1936, a transport ship with four passengers and three crew members crashed in a snow-filled gorge between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City.

Deep drifts defied searchers all winter and it was not until July of this year that the shattered plane was found with bodies strewn over the frozen ground.

Gladys Witt, stewardess, friends said, paid with her life for saying "No" to James A. Roe, a transport pilot, a sort time before. If she had married him company rules would have required her to leave the service.

Changed Her Mind

A week after the Utah crash six airline employees were killed when a plane tumbled to earth during a test flight at Dallas, Tex.

Then, on Dec. 27, a San Francisco-Los Angeles transport plied into a mountainside in a fog near Saugus, Calif. Crew and passengers, 12 in all, were killed.

Only two weeks later—Jan. 12—another transport crashed within a few miles of the site of the Dec. 27 disaster. Five persons, including Martin Johnson, explorer, were killed.

Thirteen persons were killed on March 26, when an airliner, its wings coated with ice, tried to land near Pittsburg, Pa.

A collision of two naval scout bombing planes claimed four more lives off San Diego, Calif., April 6.

MISS D. SCOTT CHOSEN DELEGATE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 19.—The Women's Institute meeting was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Carnsite with an attendance of about 30. The members received an invitation to attend the speaker's service at Belmont, Monday and also an invitation to attend the speakers' service Tuesday, October 19th at the home of Mrs. Rork Ferguson, Norwood. The secretary, Miss Doris Scott, read a letter from the Department regarding the Fall convention to be held at Toronto. Miss Doris Scott was elected to attend this year.

In keeping with the season as requested, a number came in Hallowe'en costume, the following winning prizes: Mrs. Melville Wight as best dressed lady, Mrs. Thomas Wight, as gentleman, Mrs. James Longmuir as a negro gentleman and Mrs. Joseph McNeely as comic. The judges were Mrs. R. S. Hoffman (of Cleveland, Ohio, guest at Maple Inn, and Mrs. Jas. Cook. The secretary made reference to the recent death of Mrs. Colloton, Lorne Park, Provincial President of No. 1.

Lunch in keeping with the season, was served by the hostesses.

C.C.F. IN MANITOBA URGES BOYCOTT

BRANDON, Man., Oct. 19—(CP).—Manitoba section of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation was on record to-day with resolutions calling on world democracies to aid the Spanish Government, institute an economic boycott against Japanese products, and embargo exports of military value to that country.

One resolution, however, was turned down as the group's convention ended on Saturday. They defeated a resolution urging closer co-operation between the C.C.F. and other left wing groups.

S. J. Farmer, Winnipeg, Leader of the C.C.F. in the Manitoba Legislature, opposed the resolution on the ground it would mean co-operation with the Communist Party.

G. R. Davidson of Winnipeg was re-elected chairman of the Provincial Council by acclamation.

A resolution referred to the Council for study would provide for establishment of a training school to teach labor ideals and to train young people for leadership in the labor movement.

DEAD RECKONING

BY

BRUCE HAMILTON

READ THIS FIRST:

Tim Kennedy graduated into would be homicide from the school of armchair murderers. With a lucrative dental practice and an enviable social position in a small town near London, Tim, at middle age, feels happy and secure. Then Esther is run down by a truck, returning home weeks later a physical wreck, with all her former beauty shattered. Tim loses all interest in his wife and is greatly attracted by Alma Shepherd, a widow and a new client. He manoeuvers to invite her to their annual tennis party. Tim assures Esther that he still loves her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 14.

Nevertheless within a month Esther had her way about getting rid of the nurse.

It came about like this. One night Tim and Dr. Harold Arkwright who had dined at The Wilderness, stayed up late playing chess. Esther had gone to bed early, and the two played on, in almost complete silence, until Tim found his queen hopelessly compromised, and resigned. It was their second game, and he had lost both. He had played badly, without his usual cautious concentration, and Arkwright was unable to take much pleasure in his success.

"What's on your mind tonight?" he grunted.

"Just off color, I suppose."

"Care to play another?"

"Good lord, no, it's nearly one."

"Well, have a spot before you go."

He always offered a last drink, which Arkwright habitually refused. But for once the usual refusal was not forthcoming.

"All right, I don't mind if I do."

He fingered his glass thoughtfully. The two men had always been friendly but never intimate, and after a few minutes the silence became uncomfortable.

"There seems to be something on your mind for that matter," said Tim at last.

The doctor answered abruptly.

"I had a talk with Esther yesterday."

"Oh, yes?" Tim looked up at him quickly.

"It's pretty difficult . . . I've always been rather keen on minding my own business, especially with married people, but it looks as if I've got to put my oar in here. You see, I'm not only Esther's doctor, I'm her uncle, so I suppose I have a bit of responsibility. . . . Do you mind if I ask you a very personl question?"

Tim met his eyes candidly.

"Of course not, Harold. Go ahead."

"Do you regard you normal married life as at an end?"

"Not for a moment."

"Good!" Arkwright grunted in relief. "I didn't want to put the idea into Esther's head, but, of course, it was possible, and nobody would blame you."

He looked at Tim thoughtfully.

"Of course, quite a lot can be done to her," he added. "But she'll never be quite the same, you know."

"Do you think I don't know that?" Tim leaned forward. "Look here, Harold, we've never opened up to each other much. We're neither exactly demonstrative men. But since this has come up, I'd like to say this. Nothing that's happened to Esther makes any difference to me at all in any way. She's the only possible woman for me. So long as it's better for her I'm prepared to stick it out. I'm only living half a life at present. But I want to get back to normal as soon as it can be done."

"You mean that?"

"Absolutely."

"Well, get back right away. . . . Esther told me you had scruples, but that's all nonsense. I'm worried about these nightmares she's getting again. We may have to go farther afield about them. But in the meantime I've no doubt that the best possible thing is for her to have you with her instead of the nurse."

Tim got up, and put his arm on the older man's shoulder.

"You've made me enormously happy, Harold," he said.

. . . So the nurse departed, and Tim returned to the big double bedroom on the first floor. In a gradual, allusive way the thing got about, the reasons for the prolonged separation and its happy termination. Tim gained a good deal of credit from it.

Tim's change of front was by no means a matter if impulse. He was glad enough to have it registered in this fashion, and given the construction he desired. But he had actually made up his mind, after prolonged heart searchings two days earlier. He had done so quite suddenly, since it had followed as a natural corollary of his decision to kill his wife.

The question as to how long he would have been able to sustain the negative burden of a wife who had become physically repulsive to him must remain speculative. It is arguable that the mental processes leading up to his ruthless conclusion were merely accelerated by his swift and devastating passion for Alma Shepherd.

He had called with Esther at Maybank within a week of the tennis party. Others had been present and the occasion had lacked complete informality; superficially it might have seemed that the friendship so promisingly begun had lost ground. Alma had paid him no special attention; it was indeed to Esther that she seemed more eager to make herself agreeable. The latter, attracted while still a little mistrustful, had finally surrendered to the other woman's warmth and charm, and had said as much after they had left.

Tim's response had been perfunctory. He had felt himself pushed a little into the background, and was out of humor. For the next two days he thought very little of Alma—and then an unexpected encounter in the High street had sent the blood rushing to his head. He knew that he was lost.

But, as always, his outer manner showed nothing of this. His rather stately handshake and deprecating smile had indicated only artless pleasure at a casual meeting. But the time was propitious for improving the occasion without unduly forcing the pace. he had just finished his work, she had been doing a little shopping. His suggestion of an adjournment to the lounge of the William and Mary, the smart new hotel, had come naturally enough, and over dock glasses of an excellent Amontillado they warmed to each other.

The encounter was followed by others, due sometimes to chance, sometimes to Tim's skillful planning, and their friendship ripened and was ratified. Tim's behavior was a model of propriety. He was

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TREAT

"I'm going to have most of Uncle Wiggily's gold," said the Fox.

"Why so?" asked the Wolf.

"Because I was first to think of going to help the animal children carry it in."

"Well, all right, I suppose so," agreed the Woozie Wolf.

"And I'm going to have most of the nibbles off Uncle Wiggily's ears," snarled the Fox who was a greedy creature.

"Why so?" asked the Wolf.

"Because I thought of it first. Most nibbles for me!"

"No!" snapped the Wolf.

"Yes!" snarled the Fox.

The Two Bad Chaps were ready to quarrel but the Fox whispered.

"Quiet, please! We are almost at the bungalow. I can hear the laughter of the animal children who went by the front road while we took the back. Come on, now, we'll sneak up and get the gold first. I can see it gleaming at the end of the garden."

"Sure enough!" agreed the Wolf.

Welcome!

While the Bad Chaps were sneaking their way in, the animal children, who had been let out of school early by the Lady Mouse Teacher, had reached Uncle Wiggily's bungalow.

"Welcome, my deara! Welcome!" greeted the jolly old rabbit gentleman twinkling his pink nose upside down as he sometimes did when he was very happy. "Welcome! I'm glad you are here!"

"We have come to help you carry in your pile of gold," said Jackie Bow Wow.

"That's right!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "I have lots of yellow gold this season. More than I can carry in myself. That's why I had to ask your help."

"Something was said," remarked Neddie Stubtail a little boy bear, "about a party or—er—something."

"Oh, yes, of course, a party!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "I told Miss Mouse if you would help me I would give you a little treat."

"Is a treat the same as a party?" asked Baby Bunty.

"Almost," said Uncle Wiggily. "Now do you want the treat first or do you want to carry in the gold first?"

"The treat first!" cried all the animal children.

"I thought so!" laughed Mr. Longears. "What ho, Nurse Jane!" he called to the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Bring out the cake and ice cream treat!"

Fooled.

"Oh, goodie!" laughed the animal children. Soon they were eating the treat and the Fox and the Wolf went sneaking into the garden where they saw a large yellow pile, gleaming in the sun.

"There's the gold!" whispered the Fox.

"Yes," said the Wolf. "Let's grab all we can carry and hide it in the woods. Then we'll come back and nibble Uncle Wiggily."

The Bad Chaps made a rush for the yellow pile. But when they reached it they found it to be carrots! Just then Uncle Wiggily led the children from the bungalow.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit gentleman when he saw the surprised Bad Chaps. "I forgot to say that I call yellow carrots my pile of gold for they are worth more than gold to me. Ha! Ha! you two Bad Chaps!" laughed the rabbit. "How do you like my treat?"

"Bah! Bah!" sneered the fooled Fox and Wolf as they ran away."

"Bah!"

Then the animal children helped carry into the cellar the carrot gold.

And if the dill pickle will stop trying to play circus by jumping through the holes in the Swiss cheese I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's potatoes.

DEAD RECKONING

BY

BRUCE HAMILTON

READ THIS FIRST:

Tim Kennedy graduated into would be homicide from the school of armchair murderers. With a lucrative dental practice and an enviable social position in a small town near London, Tim at middle age, feels happy and secure. Then Esther is run down by a truck, returning home weeks later a physical wreck, with all her former beauty shattered. Tim loses all interest in his wife and is greatly attracted by Alma Shepherd, a widow and a new client. He manoeuvers to invite her to their annual tennis party. Tim assures Esther that he still loves her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 14.

Nevertheless, within a month Esther had her way about getting rid of the nurse.

It came about like this. One night Tim and Dr. Harold Arkwright, who had dined at The Wilderness, stayed up late playing chess. Esther had gone to bed early, and the two played on, in almost complete silence, until Tim found his queen hopelessly compromised, and resigned. It was their second game, and he had lost both. He had played badly, without his usual cautious concentration, and Arkwright was unable to take much pleasure in his success.

"What's on your mind tonight?" he grunted.

"Just off color, I suppose."

"Care to play another?"

"Good lord, no, it's nearly one."

"Well, have a spot before you go."

He always offered a last drink, which Arkwright habitually refused. But for once the usual refusal was not forthcoming.

"All right, I don't mind if I do."

He fingered his glass thoughtfully. The two men had always been friendly but never intimate, and after a few minutes the silence became uncomfortable.

"There seems to be something on your mind for that matter," said Tim at last.

The doctor answered abruptly.

"I had a talk with Esther yesterday."

"Oh, yes?" Tim looked up at him quickly.

"It's pretty difficult. . . . I've always been rather keen on minding my own business, especially with married people, but it looks as if I've got to put my oar in here. You see, I'm not only Esther's doctor, I'm her uncle, so I suppose I have a bit of responsibility. . . . Do you mind if I ask you a very personl question?"

Tim met his eyes candidly.

"Of course not, Harold. Go ahead."

"Do you regard you normal married life as at an end?"

"Not for a moment.

"Good!" Arkwright grunted in relief. "I didn't want to put the idea into Esther's head, but, of course, it was possible, and nobody would blame you."

"Of course, quite a lot can be done to her," he added. "But she'll never be quite the same, you know."

"Do you think I don't know that?" Tim leaned forward. "Look here, Harold, we've never opened up to each other much. We're neither exactly demonstrative men. But since this has come up, I'd like to say this. Nothing that's happened to Esther makes any difference to me at all in any way. She's the only possible woman for me. So long as it's better for her I'm prepared to stick it out. I'm only living half a life at present. But I want to get back to normal as soon as it can be done."

"You mean that?"

"Absolutely."

"Well, get back right away. . . . Esther told me you had scruples, but that's all nonsense. I'm worried about these nightmares she's getting again. We may have to go farther afield about them. But in the meantime I've no doubt that the best possible thing is for her to have you with her instead of the nurse."

Tim got up, and put his arm on the older man's shoulder.

"You've made me enormously happy, Harold," he said.

. . . So the nurse departed, and Tim returned to the big double bedroom on the first floor. In a gradual, allusive way the thing got about, the reasons for the prolonged separation and its happy termination. Tim gained a good deal of credit from it.

Tim's change of front was by no means a matter if impulse. He was glad enough to have it registered in this fashion, and given the construction he desired. But he had actually made up his mind, after prolonged heart searchings two days earlier. He had done so quite suddenly, since it had followed as a natural corollary of his decision to kill his wife.

The question as to how long he would have been able to sustain the negative burden of a wife who had become physically repulsive to him must remain speculative. It is arguable that the mental processes leading up to his ruthless conclusion were merely accelerated by his swift and devastating passion for Alma Shepherd.

He had called with Esther at Maybank within a week of the tennis party. Others had been present and the occasion had lacked complete informality; superficially it might have seemed that the friendship so promisingly begun had lost ground. Alma had paid him no special attention; it was indeed to Esther that she seemed more eager to make herself agreeable. The latter, attracted while still a little mistrustful, had finally surrendered to the other woman's warmth and charm, and had said as much after they had left.

Tim's response had been perfunctory. He had felt himself pushed a little into the background, and was out of humor. For the next two days he thought very little of Alma—and then an unexpected encounter in the High street had sent the blood rushing to his head. He knew that he was lost.

DROUGHT VICTIMS NEED HELP BADLY STUDENT DECLARES

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, October 19. — Speaking of conditions in the drought stricken area in the southern part of Saskatchewan where he spent several weeks during the past summer, Grant Meiklejohn, second year student at Queen's, who is studying for the ministry, addressed the congregation of St. John's United Church on Sunday evening. The service was conducted by Rev. Harold E. Neale, and Robert Cutt of Goderich was organist and guest soloist.

One of the most remarkable things concerning the people of this area who have suffered—some of them have not had a paying crop in the past eight years—is that they do not grumble, the speaker said. "They appreciate the embarrassment of their own dire needs and realize the further embarrassment of being on the receiving end." Why the people stay in this area is because they are too poor to move and too poor to resettle if they could move.

"The situation in Big Deer, Saskatchewan, which is seven miles north of the Montana border, needs no exaggeration." The story of the drought and its resultant horrors was no less terrible than the tragedy of the rains which followed, devastating roads and bridges to cause what havoc the drought had not already committed.

Quoting the story of the Good Samaritan, the speaker admonished his listeners not to be like the Levite who felt the need for certain changes but "did nothing about it." "The purpose of my address is to arouse sympathy, not for sympathy's sake, but for the result of it.

"We are all victims of circumstance, and over 200,000 of these people in the West are but instruments in God's plan which shows that no settlement can get rich quickly without bringing on some inevitable consequence. This is God's way of disciplining people."

"In the homes sit able-bodied men idle under conditions over which they have no control," all of which teaches our helplessness against the powers of nature. "We are subject to God's will, and we cannot help ourselves." The drought has served a useful purpose in bringing the part of the West which was rampant with talk of cessation from Canada, into closer unity with the rest of the provinces. It has strengthened the relations between the Prairies and Ontario.

"The West needs willing hands and generous neighbors," claimed the young speaker, who concluded by telling the congregation to "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the thought of Christ."

STOLEN TRUCK IS BADLY SMASHED UP

Prevented from plunging into the Otonabee river when it became wedged between two trees after swerving off the River road at a bad turn a mile or more below Lakefield, a motor truck stolen late Saturday night was found badly wrecked on Sunday at noon. Owned by W. J. Robson, 415 Dublin street, the truck was wrecked beyond repair.

Marvelling that the person who stole the truck, while it was parked at Brock and Bethune streets at 10.30 p.m. Saturday, could have escaped serious injury when the truck crashed into the trees on the river bank, police are seeking information that will lead to arrest of the thief.

The front of the truck was completley stowed-in, the windshield and the glass in the left door were shattered, the cab was crumpled into a shapeless mass, and the spokes were ripped clean out of the front wheels as a result of the impact. Robson said he had been offered fifty dollars for the wreckage.

LARGE BUCK SEEN NEAR ENTERPRISE

(Examiner Correspondence)

TWEED, Oct. 19—For the first time in over fifty years, deer have appeared about two miles west of the village of Enterprise.

While digging potatoes on his farm, John L. Wilson, a well-known breeder of Holstein cattle, saw a large buck in the lower end of the field in which he was working. After consuming some of the upturned potatoes, the deer jumped a fence into a pasture where a number of young cattle were grazing, and after a while disappeared into an adjoining bush.

Following two days intensive searching, during which every available man in the county of Frontenac adjoining the village of Harrington joined to search for the 80-year-old John Johnson, believed lost in a vast swamp which extends for miles in this part of the County, the fate of the aged man is still unknown.

Little possible chance is seen that he is still alive, and doubts are expressed the body would ever be discovered, so thick is the vegetation. The searchers might pass within several feet of where a man was lying and not see him. The search is continuing.

The first murder case to be heard in the County of Lennox and Addington since 1931, will be conducted at the Assises which open at Napanee on November 1, before Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland. Robert Woodman, 23-year-old north country labourer, is charged with the murder of Aubrey Sedore, 29-year-old trapper of the district in the vicinity of Flinton. Woodman has been in the County jail since his arrest last May.

Elmer Holmes, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes, township of Hungerford, and a pupil of Tweed Consolidated School, is the 1937 winner of the Warden's Medal, given to the pupil of Centre Hastings Inspectorate who passed with the highest marks in the June entrance examinations.

Pupils of Tweed Consolidated School who have won this medal in the past twelve years are: 1926, Mable Gunning; 1927, Thos. Keilty; 1930, Clara Moffat; 1931, Herbert Leal; 1932, Enid Conor; 1936, Margaret Elliott; 1937, Elmer Holmes.

SPECULATION RIFE IRISH PRESIDENT

DUBLIN, Oct. 19—(CP Cable). — Speculation is plentiful throughout the Irish Free State in regard to President Eamon de Valera's possible choice for the presidency of the nation under the new constitution that will go into effect at the year end.

The speculation was spurred by Mr. de Valera's indication to a convention of his Fianna Fail party that he had a man in mind.

His own lips are still sealed but it is accepted as definite that Mr. de Valera will not be a candidate himself. He is president of the executive council, a position corresponding to prime minister, and is expected to continue in that office.

The search for clues to Mr. de Valera's possible selection has been made more difficult because he specified the first president of "Eire" as the Free State will be known in Gaelic when the constitution goes into effect, must be as far as possible above party politics and should "personify the age old aspirations of the Irish people."

Further, it is know, Mr. de Valera, who now is launching a campaign to end the partition of Ireland, would like to find some one who would symbolize his ideas in that connection.

The four men most frequently mentioned as government candidates for the high office are Sean T. O'Kelly, minister for local government, who led the Irish Free State Delegation to the Ottawa conference of 1932, Patrick J. Ruttledge, justice minister; Dr. Douglas Hyde, veteran Gaelic scholar and Dr. Robert Farnam, leading Irish gynaecologist.

Reports published in some English newspapers that William T. Cosgrave, former president, and Mr. de Valera are coming together in order to select an agreed candidate are not taken seriously here.

FOG BLANKETS LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 19—(AP).—Thousands of laborers in riverside factories walked to work behind torchbearers when the first heavy fog since last winter stopped traffic on the Thames, buses in two districts and delayed all London transport.

Two persons were killed and dozens injured by mid-day in accidents attributed to the "white darkness" which turned yellowish and limited visibility in some places to a few yards. Firemen fought smoke and the thickening fog at a fire on a Limehouse wharf.

Loyalist Soldiers Evacuate Wounded From Madrid

Insurgent shelling of the Spanish city of Madrid has caused numerous deaths in recent weeks, according to reports from the Spanish (loyalist) Press Agency. The insurgent artillery has centred its attack on Marid's only skyscraper, which was hit fourteen times during one such attack. Fighting on the outskirts of Madrid, begun over a year ago, still continues with neither side gaining any great advantage. A glimpse into the seriousness of the fighting at University City, Madrid, may be gathered from the ABOVE photograph of loyalist soldiers evacuating wounded during one of the battles. Notice the buildings with pock-marked walls caused by shelling and rifle and machine-gun bullets.

free with little gifts of flowers, but he made her no other presents. He showed more than his usual skill in determining his attitude on every subject of common controversy, and by delicately feeling his way a step or two ahead, he created an air of active participation in her opinions rather than of flaccid indifferent assent to them.

He took for granted her own view of their relationship as a thing pleasantly unconventional but fundamentally harmless, yet divining that her unconventionality was only skin deep, he never tried to make love to her.

Very often they met at The Wilderness, to which she became a fairly frequent visitor, and he was at first afraid that her habitual candor would lead her to reveal to Esther more about their outside meetings than he thought desirable. But his fears were groundless. Alma was sufficiently of the world to know when candor should be tempered with discretion. By tacit understanding Esther was told just enough to inoculate her against the poison of gossip, a nd no more. Her nature was not naturally jealous and suspicious. She had always been too sure about Tim to worry seriously about other women, and the habit of 17 years was not easily broken. She liked Alma Shepherd, and after a time she could no more see her as a rival than Phyllis Grantley or any other woman as friend of longstanding.

Newsprint Prices Boosted Again

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP). — The Newsprint committee of the Amereican Newspaper Publishers' Association to-day issued the following statement:

"The Great Northern Paper Company, 342 Madison avenue, New York City, to-day announced an increase of $5.50 a ton over their increase of $7.50 a ton over 1937 prices, for the last six months of 1938. Thus, their New York delivered price during the first six months will be $48, and during the last six months of 1938, $50 a ton.

POPULAR FRONTIST PARTY TAKES VAN

PARIS, Oct. 19—(CP-Havas)—The Popular Front to-day emerged in a strengthened position from the final balloting in the elections for 1,525 seats on the Departmental (County) General Councils.

The continued popularity of the Popular Front, indicated in the first balloting Oct. 10 was confirmed as final figures in the run-off vote yesterday were issued by the Ministry of the Interior.

"The country has expressed its confidence in the policies followed by a Popular Front government under Radical-Socialist guidance,' Premier Camille Chautempe said.

The Popular Front is made up of three major parties of the political Left—the Radical Socialists, the Socialists, and the Communists. Premier Chautempes belongs to the Radical-Socialists, the most moderate of the three groups. Vice- Premier Leon Blum is leader of the Socialists, while the Communists support, but do not participate in the Government.

In the first ballot only candidates having a majority over all other nominees are elected. In the second, or run-off, vote the candidate heading the ballot is elected whether or not he has a majority over all his opponents. The idea of the Popular Front is that in the run-off the cooperating parties withdraw all their candidates but the one who heads the poll the previous Sunday. Thus the Popular Front united against the unorganized candidate of the political Right.

TROOPS TO KEEP RACE TRACK SHUT

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Oct. 19. — (AP). —Steel-helmeted National Guardsmen, equipped with tear gas and riot sticks, patrolled Narragansett race track to-day to prevent opening of the rich plant.

The troops had hardly taken their positions when Henry F. Curvin, Director of Public Safety in Pawtucket and Democratic majority leader in the Rhode Island House, announced he had sent a letter to the Governor threatening to bring impeachment proceedings against him for ordering out the militia.

The Governor's proclamation, issued Saturday night, said the "danger" of attendance of "gangsters, criminals and persons of ill repute" at the Fall meeting, scheduled to open this afternoon, would cause "injury to our citizens" which civil authorities would be "unable to compete with."

The proclamation followed a State Supreme Court decision setting aside an order of the State racing division suspending the track license and ordering removal of Walter E. OHara as managing director.

NEW FLYING RULES EFFECTIVE NOV. 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP). — New and stringent air traffic rules to make flying safer will go into effect in the United States November 1. The regulations, announced yesterday, are the result of nearly two years' study by the Bureau of Air Commerce in airway traffic control.

Two types of flight rules are established. The first are for contact flights (those made when weather conditions are sufficiently good to preclude collision hazards), the second for "instrument flights (made when weather conditions are such that planes might not avoid collision hazards unless definite restrictions are imposed).

Under the new air traffic rules, contact flights may be made under virtually no restrictions other than broad "rules of the road."

Instrument flights, however, must be made under rigid restrictions. For example:

Pilots must have an instrument rating and their planes must carry complete instrument equipment, including two-way radio.

A definite flight plan—including information on the point of first intended landing, proposed cruising altitudes and airspeeds, estimated elapsed time until arrival at destination, and an alternate airport—must be submitted and approved before departure.

LANDLORDS SEEK CIVIC AID

JAP WAR WRITERS LEAD LIVELY LIFE

TOKIO, Oct. 19 — (AP). — The Japanese newspaper reporter sometimes wears a kimono to work, drinks tea in the office and cools his brow with a hand-painted fan, but don't let it fool you; he works as hard and long as his counterpart in any Canadian newspaper office.

He lives as dangerously. During the current war in China he goes right along with the troops, sometimes only a step or two behind a charging soldier.

There were two reporters riding with the Japanese suicide squad, the "white death band," when it made a bloody landing at Shanghai. Two others were headed for the firing squad at Tungchow when, the Japanese claim, Chinese students and police massacred nearly 300 civilians. Both reporters escaped in their underwear.

Nearly a dozen newsmen and photographers have been killed at the front while "covering" the war, and almost as many more are in hospitals with wounds.

His fan and cup of tea are as much a part of his equipment as the slouch hat and police press card are of a Canadian reporter. In writing a story, he pencils out vertical columns. The characters resemble hen-tracks on the paper. Since he cannot use a typewriter the Japanese character-writing machine is impractical for general reportorial work, his "copy" necessarily must be clearly indited.

When he has a story ready for his city desk, he calls the copy boy. He does not bawl, "Boy!" He calls "Boy-san," the litreal meaning of which is "Mr. Boy."

And when "Mr. Boy" arrives, he bows—both before and after taking the copy from the reporter.

To this unconscious etiquette the reported adds an amazing tenacity when he goes out on a story. It is the usual thing during the formation of a new Cabinet, to camp—literally—around the official residence of the Premier. Newsmen set up pup tents within observation range of the house and sit there day and night, watching who comes and goes.

These, of course, are the political reporters. They occupy the highest heaven in the Japanese newspaper hierarchy. The general newsmen are next, then the sports writers. All are well educated. They have to be to qualify for a job on a newspaper. All are ceremoniously polite.

Otherwise, theyre just like their Canadian brethren.

FISHERMAN SINKS AS LAUNCH BURNS

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Oct. 19 (AP). —Two fishermen, using empty boxes for buoys after leaping from a burning launch, escaped death in Lake Erie yesterday, but a third, whose box failed to float drowned in a rough sea.

While James Goodhue, 38, and Orval McCormick, 35, both of Kingsville, clung safely to their improvised rafts, Henry Kissner, 30, also of Kingsville, drowned when his box, filled with fish nets, sank in 40 feet of water.

A can of gasoline on the pitching boat had upset. A spark from the engine ignited the fluid, and the launch, a 35-footer, was shortly in flames. All three men, throwing the boxes ahead of them, leaped overboard.

A passing fishermen's boat, the Silver Swan captained by Arthur Brown, rescued Goodhue and McCormick after they had clung to the floating boxes 15 minutes. Goodhue suffered severe burns on face and hands.

Arctic Bishop Says Romance Of North Is Fiction Rather Than Fact

Windsor, Oct. 19 (CP)

ROMANCE of the far north belongs to fiction rather than fact, Right Rev. A. L. Fleming, D.D., Bishop of the Arctic, said here Sunday.

In a description of the Anglican missionary efforts within the Arctic circle, Bishop Fleming said romance was to be found not in the snow and ice but in the carrying of Christianity to the settlements of white Eskimos and Indians.

He described for the large audience the life in the diocese of the Arctic, which comprises about one third of the area of Canada.

"The people are scattered far and wide, with little centres here and there. Some of them are 1,000 miles apart," he said.

"The first church work in the area was started by the Church of England and the work in the north is largely supported from England today."

DOUBT SELASSIE'S RIGHT TO TITLE

LONDON, Oct. 19—(AP). — The right of Haile Selassie to call himself Emperor of Ethiopia was brought up in Chancery Court today when the Negus sued Cable and Wireless for $49,587.

Counsel for the exiled ruler explained that sum was owed him under an agreement for public Ethiopia-British wireless service the day he fled Addis Ababa.

The company, however, contended King Vittorio Emanuel of Italy is the Ethiopian sovereign, thus Selassie's cause for action is vested in the Italian Government.

Selassie's counsel made a point that the British Government still recognizes Selassie as Emperor.

Counsel read a statement he had solicited and received from Foreign Secretary Eden that Great Britain recognized Italy as "de facto" government for Ethiopia except for "certain areas in the south and southwest."

The Foreign Secretary's statement, explained counsel, backed up his contention Selassie is still de jure Emperor since Britain "had not recognized Italian annexation of Ethiopia as de jure."

GUERILLA UNITS PUSH JAPS BACK IN NORTH CHINA

Raids Force Invaders Move Yangtze 'Drome

SHANGHAI, Oct. 20 — (AP) — Shanghai received today the first independent reports that Japanese not only are slowed down but are being pushed back on one section of the North China front.

Foreign reports from Tsinan, Shantung capital province, were that provincial troops under General Han Fu-Chu are making steady advances northward toward Tehchow, near the northern provincial border.

The Japanese about-face was ascribed jointly to intense activity of Chinese guerilla units and assertions that overtures are in progress for a compromise between Japanese and General Han.

United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson made written representations to the Chinese government asking that Chinese warplanes qu. flying over the Shanghai International Settlement and dropping bombs in foreign areas.

The embassy representations, presented at Nanking, were based on a report by Consul General Clarence E. Gauss, showing 1,999 Chinese and 16 foreigners have been killed in the foreign areas.

Pledges Broken.

The Ambassador said previous Chinese assurances planes would not fly over foreign areas had not been fulfilled. He said foreigners have been endangered because Chinese planes attract anti-aircraft fire and increase the probability of a

MARKET SHAKES FEARS, RECOVERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (A.P.). — Wall Street cast out fear to-day and whirled the stock market up 1 to 4 or more points. A shadow across its better sentiment, none the less, was the action of U.S. Steel which was late in joining the rally and then wavered.

Confusing to traders, financial men said, were reports on the character of buying. Some said it came from strong Wall Street interests, others disagreed.

Canadian issues surged upward for gains of fractions to nearly three points. Lake Shore, Dome and Hiram Walker led the upturn, followed closely by Distillers and McIntyre Porcupine. Fractionally higher were International Nickel and Canadian Pacific. Against the trend fer a minor loss was Dominion Stores. Canadian 4's was up slightly, while Dominion funds dropped 1-32 of a cent to 100.01 9-16.

Shoots Sweetheart Youth Suicides In Girl's Bedroom

Pretty Sundridge Teacher Expected to Live After Tragic Early Morning Shotgun Episode

SUNDRIDGE, Ont., Oct. 20.—(CP)—Two blasts from a shotgun early today brought parents and a neighbor of 19-year-old Patricia Lang, pretty school teacher in this village 35 miles south of North Bay, into her bedroom to find the girl, with her face disfigured and bleeding and the body of Andrew Reid, 21, University of Toronto student, on the floor.

Near the front door of the Lang home Reid's shoes were found. Authorities said Reid, carrying the shotgun, loaded with birdshot, had slipped up to the room of the girl he courted for three years and attempted to kill his sweetheart.

Suicide Says Coroner

"It was a clear case of suicide," said Coroner Dr. M. A. Wittick, Burk's Falls, who said there would be no inquest in Reid's death. "Both shots were fired from close range. There were powder marks on the girl's jaw."

"The young man blew a hole half way through his head," said Dr. Wittick. "The girl has a hole in her jaw. She was conscious after the shooting. Miss Lang is a very pretty girl. I think that with an operation and careful skin-grafting she will not be badly disfigured."

(Attendants at Toronto General Hospital, where Miss Lang was brought by early morning train, described her condition as "critical.")

Scream, Then a Shot.

Mr. and Mrs. Lang heard their daughter scream, then a shot shortly after midnight.

There was a pause—then a shot; another pause—and another shot. Mrs. Lang ran to the window, screaming for help. Mr. Lang ran to a neighbor's home. He returned with a friend and the three went to the bedroom.

The parents saw their daughter, still conscious, lying on the bed, her face and jaw shattered by the shot. Reid's body was slumped on the floor, a hole in his right temple. A few fet away was the gun.

Dr. Leonard Gallagher, Sudbury, was called and he notified Dr. Wittick who hurried to the Lang home. He said the facts of the tragedy were clear and an inquest would not be necessary.

"It was a very small shotgun, about 18 inches long," said Dr. Wittick. "It was the kind usually used

PLAN 3 INQUIRIES IN PLANE CRASH ON MOUNTAIN TOP

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 20. — (AP).—Federal and airlines officials prepared to open three separate investigations into the most disastrous crash in United States aviation history as identification of the 19 victims began at Evanston, Wyo., to-day.

The bodies were taken in wagons over crude mountain roads to Evanston yesterday. They had been strewn over a wide area when a United Airlines luxury transport rammed into a mountain peak 80 miles east of here in a terrific storm Sunday night.

Bob Johnson, United Airlines' press representative, said the bodies were "tentatively identified" early to-day.

One of the victims was Dr. Louis Gross, formerly of Montreal and a graduate of McGill University, en route to California, where he intended to reside. He was one of the most prominent heart specialists on the continent.

A Federal Board appointed by Commerce Secretary Roper is scheduled to meet here Saturday to investigate the disaster. The U. S. Postal Department and United Airlines also will conduct their own inquiries.

FINE ARAB VILLAGE $9,910 FOR ATTACK

JERUSALEM, Oct. 20.—(AP). — Snipers' bullets spattered about a police station almost in the shadow of the Church of the Nativity at Bethlehem to-day.

Police returned the fire. The exchange was the latest incident in persistent terrorism that has ringed the birthplace of the Prince of Peace in recent weeks.

A group of Jewish policemen escaped injury when a bomb was thrown at them as they were entering the police station at Safed, a small town north of the Biblical city of Capernum. The bomb exploded harmlessly nearby.

The Iraq oil pipeline was reported to have been punctured by shots fired last night near Nazareth.

Authorities announced imposition of a collective fine of £2,000 ($9,910) on the village of Daharia for an Arab attack on a police station in which arms were stolen. The fine will be collectable in sheep.

Britain Wearying Of Duce's Pushing

LONDON, Oct. 20.—(CP Cable.) —Viscount Samuel, former Liberal Party leader, to-day said the Spanish civil war was no concern of Great Britain's, but the British government must be prepared to co-operate with France as closely as possible.

"Premier Mussolini may be the dictator of Italy, but he is not the dictator of the Mediterranean and it is not in the interest of the world in general, nor of Britain in particular, that he should become so," Lord Samuel said in an address to the National Liberal Club.

"I believe Britain is growing tired of being pushed about from pillar to post by Mussolini."

Italy Asks All Volunteers Withdrawn At Once

Surprises Conference By Asking Commission Go To Spain Without Delay

LONDON, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Italy unexpectedly recommended to the Non-intervention Committee to-day that an independent commission be sent to Spain to effect withdrawal of foreign troops from both sides of the Spanish War "as soon as possible."

Count Dino Grandi's statement that "Italy is ready to collaborate" on this point indicated the more controversial question of belligerent rights to the Spanish combatants might be put into the background temporarily.

The Italian spokesman suggested a commission be empowered to "arrange for withdrawal of all foreign volunteers" from both sides in Spain.

Italy Shakes Responsibility.

Italian Ambassador Dino Grandi at yesterday's sub-committee session rejected for Italy all responsibility for further delays, and denied the French assertion there had been "difficulties of procedure in connection with the British plan."

"There have instead been difficulties of substance disguised as difficulties of procedure," Count Grandi declared.

"I think therefore that in order to avoid possible misunderstandings it would be well for us to examine the fundamental points of the British plan mentioned last Saturday in the French declaration, keeping our discussions strictly to the British plan itself.

"In fact, either the French Government, as they say and believe, mean to refer to the fundamental points of the British plan, and in that case there is no necessity to follow a different course; or they intend to withdraw the adherence already given to the British plan, in which case we should be faced by an entirely new situation."

The Italian Ambassador termed the British plan a "delicately balanced compromise" which he said "has the great advantage of having been accepted by almost all states participating in the agreement of non-intervention, and which therefore represents a considerable measure of agreement already reached."

REVOLVER TAKEN FROM GRAY'S BODY SAID DEATH GUN

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)— A revolver removed from the body of Victor Gray, slain in a gun battle with police, was declared in court today to have contained the bullet which was taken from Sergeant Fred Davidson's body.

Testimony regarding the revolver came during the murder trial of Tom Pornomarenko, accused in the fatal shooting of Davidson in Sudbury July 11. The Crown charges he was the companion of Gray, shot and killed by police when the pair was cornered in the Spanish River rock cut about 25 miles west of Sudbury, July 22.

"I have no hesitation in saying to you that the bullet which was taken from Sergeant Davidson's body was fired from this German automatic," Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert, testified.

The doctor produced photographs of two bullets and described them to the jury. He said the gun was a powerful one.

Dr. Frankish when questioned disagreed with the contention of defence counsel witnesses might be adversely affected by the excitement of the shooting. He declared witnesses would be more apt to give accurate testimony as a result of stimulation by the excitement.

CRASH VICTIMS ROBBED

The handbag belonged to one of three New Hamburg girls, also in the car, and knocked unconscious when Wolf's car hit a truck.

15-HOUR BOMBING FAILS TO SHATTER CHAPEI DEFENCES

By James A. Mills
(By Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

SHANGHAI, Oct. 20.— (AP).— Chapei was bombed for 15 hours today while I made a survey of this historic Chinese residence section on the northern hedge of the International Settlement.

This fas the 69th successive bombing Chapei has endured without yielding. I found Chinese forces strongly entrenched and in high spirits.

Square miles of wrecked homes, looted shops and shattered factories, interspersed with debris-strewn alleyways, told a grim story of the ordeal Chapei's 1,000,000 inhabitants have endured.

Aside from the hosts of soldiers living below earth like ground moles, the only signs of life were starving cats and dogs, roaming through streets and alleyways, whining for food and water.

I saw many animals wounded by shrapnel. Dead canary birds, parrots and other feathered pets lay in their cages. Here and there were mangled forms of dead soldiers and civilians.

Bombers Break Silence.

As I dashed from house to house, the silence was broken by the drone of squadrons of Japanese planes overhead. They dropped a number of bombs but most of them fell wide of their marks.

Two exploding bombs jarred the earth violently and covered my steel helmet with mortar and dust. Through clouds of debris and dust, I saw wounded civilians and soldiers nearby.

Boy Scouts were acting as stretcher bearers. They carried away the seriously wounded.

I made my way through the ruin-

Charged With Death Of Florence Watt At Campbellford

Defence Offers No Evidence In Case Woman Was Business Associate

(By Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Oct. 20—Acquitted of manslaughter in connection with the death of Florence Watt, drowned in his car in the Trent Canal near Campbellford on May 1, Russel Abernethy of that town was found guilty of the reduced and alternative charge of criminal negligence by the trial jury whose verdict was reported to Mr. Justice Jeffrey at 3 o'clock this afternoon. They had retired at 11.30 this morning.

His Lordship announced that he would defer sentence until the last of the criminal cases of the assizes had been heard.

Miss Watt, 28, formerly of Orangeville, had been a business associate of Abernethy in a knitting factory he operated in Campbellford. Reference to affection beyond the scope of business transpired in evidence which was heard in the jury's absence Tuesday afternoon, and was withheld from them as inadmissible by Mr. Justice Jeffrey.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., was counsel for the accused and Hugh H. Donald, K.C., Toronto, is special Crown prosecutor for the assizes which began Monday afternoon and is continuing today.

At theopening of court this morning Mr. Gordon's motion for dismissal on the ground there was no evidence Abernethy was actually driving the car was disallowed by His Lordship, and Mr. Gordon announced that he would not present any evidence for the defense.

Car in Fair Condition

Addressing the jury, Mr. Gordon said there was no question about the car being in a fair condition of efficiency; but at a rather low speed it rolled across the level green sward, which would not indicate a motive by Abernethy.

"There was no apprehension by Miss Watt until the car was at the edge of the canal or in the water. That was when her screaming was heard. Suspicion and mystery are not evidence. The Crown must satisfy you individually beyond any reasonable doubt. There has been no evidence of a crime presented to you.

Summation By Judge

"The charge against accused is that he did kill and slay Florence Watt and thereby committed the crime of manslaughter," Mr. Justice Jeffrey said in surveying to the jury the evidence and reviewing the law applying to the case. "You have been properly told you must try this man on the evidence, and only on the evidence. He is presumed to be innocent until the Crown satisfies your mind beyond any reasonable doubt of his guilt. The Crown does not allege that Abernethy did actually kill Miss Watt, but that by his actions he brought about her death. It should be shown that there was gross negligence by the accused amounting practically to a crime against the state. The evidence showed that he was driving at a slow speed, so that fact negatives any suggestion of gross and culpable negligence. If there had been such negligence you would have to find Abernethy guilty of manslaughter. Miss Fraser, who saw the car, says it was going at about 12 to 15 miles an hour. She said Miss Watt screamed for help just as the car was approaching the water. Evidently there was no appreciation of peril as the car turned off the highway. Counsel for the defence said there was no evidence Abernethy was the driver. Hamilton Fraser swore that Abernethy told him, as the accused came out of the water, that the car got out of his control; it did it once before.

The Crown says there was nothing in the mechanism of the car to cause it to leave the road.

Was the damage to the tie rod and brake tube done while the car was being taken out of the water? Or had it existed before that day, and had that condition anything to do with the accident? It is for you to say. I don't think I can help you in this mysterious case."

Although death did ensue, that in itself was not a matter of guilt in manslaughter, His Lordship said. It had to be shown there was gross

ASKS OPEN SEASON TO ALLOW JUDGES "BLOW OFF STEAM"

KINGSTON, Ont. Oct. 20 (CP)— County Judge M. B. Tudhope of Leeds today suggested there should be an open season for judges, two or three weeks a year, during which the judges might express themselves. He spoke on freedom of the press and freedom of speech at a luncheon of the Eastern Ontario Municipal Electrical Association.

"Freedom of speech is a delicate thing for a judge to discuss," he said. "My friend the judge of Middlesex spoke out in meeting and there was a great roar from the papers who, like most exponents of freedom, believe in it more enthusiastically for themselves than for others.

"I suggest there should be an open season for judges—say two or three weeks in the year conveniently spaced—so they may express themselves ad lib, thus greatly reducing the danger of apoplexy and ingrowing temper."

Half a century ago readers had faith in the accuracy of published news, said the judge, "but with few exceptions papers today inspire no such faith."

Advertisements, he said, had gone far beyond the limits of decency. People were frightened into buying things to cure diseases they never suspected they had.

Judge Tudhope's reference to the judge of Middlesex, Joseph Wearing, concerned a speech Judge Wearing made in Toronto several months ago in which he criticized legislation passed by provincial legislatures in Quebec, Ontario and Alberta.

$40,000 Explosion Hits C.I.L. Plant

MONTREAL, Oct. 20 (CP).—An explosion of undetermined origin today destroyed one of the "nitrator houses" at the isolated plant of Canadian Industries, Limited, near Beloeil, about 25 miles southeast of Montreal. The loss was estimated at $40,000.

Officials at head office in Montreal said they had not been fully advised of details of the explosion which occurred in one of the frame buildings used to convert glycerine into nitroglycerine. There was no fire, officials said, and other buildings of the plant, situated five miles outside the village of Beloeil, were saved from damage by heavy barricades surrounding houses where explosives are handled.

Blind Girl Credits Her Success To Perfect Ear For Music

Explains Braille Would Take Too Long In Preparing Her Recitals

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (CP)—Miss Mary Munn, blind Montreal girl whose skill as a pianist has won her wide acclaim in Europe, said today she owes her success to an almost perfect ear for music.

Completing preparations for her first New York recital tonight, Miss Munn explained she does not use Braille in preparing for her recitals.

"Braille would take much too long," she said. "Besides only the absolute classics and the more popular moderns are published in Braille. I could not do half tonight's program if I were dependent on it."

The program will include Beethoven's sonata in "A" flat major, Op. 110; Brahms' intermezzo in "E" flat minor and Capriccio in "B" minor, and selections from Bach and Handel. The more modern composers will be represented by Vaughan Williams, Matthay and Bela Bartok, a Hungarian composer.

Explaining her methods of study, Miss Munn said that when she was a student of music in London her instructor frequently would call for a sonata to be prepared in a single week. Even if the piece were published in Braille, practicing it would mean feeling the score with one hand while playing with the other. Miss Munn took the short cut open to genius.

"Someone plays the piece through to me twice, slowly," she said. "If it is long I study one part at a time. Usually after hearing it twice I have memorized it and I then play it through myself, working out a scheme of fingering."

Miss Munn said it took her 11 hours to memorize the Beethoven Sonata she will play tonight. Simpler pieces can be mastered in two or three hours.

Don't Drink To Kill Pneumonia Signs Is Latest Warning Of License

Rochester, N.Y., Oct. 20 (AP)

IF you drink to kill symptoms of pneumonia, don't. Drinking, says science, may even bring on the disease.

Addressing physicians of nine western New York counties at the opening of a pneumonia institute, Dr. J. G. M. Bullowa of the New York University College of Medicine said whisky "neither aborts or cures the disease."

"The time-honored tradition of aborting pneumonia by becoming drunk has in our experience only the support of wishful thinking," he said. "We frequently encounter patients who attempt this treatment without benefit and often with distinct harm."

Armonk, N.Y., Oct. 20 (AP)

BECAUSE Queena Mario, Metropolitan opera soprano, was in a hurry to get home Saturday night, the North Castle Town Police presented an extra added attraction—Mme. Mario in selected songs—at the annual entertainment and dance of the Police Benevolent Association last night.

Patrolman William Ormond hobbed up beside Mme. Mario's car while, he said, she was doing 45 and passing another car on a curve.

Mme. Mario explained her haste and mentioned that she sang at the Metropolitan.

"Say the Police Association is giving a dance Tuesday night," he said. "How about coming up and singing for us?"

"I don't think you'll have to worry about the judge," he said, then added, "you really don't have to sing. If you just show up it'll be perfectly swell."

"If I show up, I'm going to sing," she said.

She kept her promise.

LORD RUTHERFORD GREAT SCIENTIST DIES IN ENGLAND

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 20.—(CP).—The scientific world to-day mourned Lord Rutherford, one of its great figures, who died last night after a severe abdominal operation. He was 66.

Director of the famous Cavendish laboratory for the past 16 years, Lord Rutherford was a pioneer in study of radio-activity, transmutation of elements and the splitting of the atom.

His genuis as a teacher attracted a brilliant group of men to Cambridge which became the centre for the world in attacks on the structure of the atom. Finally in 1932 he was able to announce "a discovery of great scientific importance": That Dr. J. D. Cockroft and Dr. E. T. S. Walton, both of whom worked under his supervision, had split the atom, achieving a goal sought by physicists for many years.

Death of Lord Rutherford brought sorrow to his colleagues and friends in Canada, where he was widely known. He was Macdonald Professor of Physics at McGill University from 1898 to 1907.

McGill's regret was expressed by Sir Edward Beatty, Chancellor, who said: "The world has lost one of its greatest physicists and scientists."

Born Ernest Rutherford in Nelson, New Zealand, the future scientist was a brilliant student in universities in his native dominion and at Cambridge. He went to McGill soon after graduating from Cambridge.

While at McGill he, with other scientists, carried out the research that established the nature of radio-active transformations. In 1903 he was elected a fellow of the Royal Society.

In 1908 Dr. Rutherford, as he was then, was awarded the Nobel Prize for chemistry for his work in the field of atomic chemistry, then practically unexplored.

After leaving McGill Dr. Rutherford went to Manchester University as Professor of Physics. There his reputation attracted brilliant students, including Charles Darwin, Hang Geiger, and Neils Bohr among others.

With their aid, his experiments progressed rapidly. One of his most important achievements was the experimental demonstration of the nuclear nature of the atom and the electrical structure of matter. This was the key to atomic physics.

In 1914 he was knighted and five years later he succeeded his former teacher, Sir J. J. Thomoson, as Cavendish Professor of Experimental Physics at Cambridge and Professor of Natural Philosophy at the Royal Institution.

DOMINION CABINET TACKLES ALBERTA, SINO-JAP WORRIES

OTTAWA, October 20—(CP)—The Dominion cabinet, faced with problems arising from recent Alberta legislation and the Sino-Japanese war, meets today for the first time this week.

The government disclosed yesterday it had received from the Alberta Social Credit government the text of a submission in support of three acts passed at the last special legislative session there to which Lieutenant Governor J. C. Bowen reserved assent. It made no comment on the submission released in Edmonton for publication.

One of the acts provides for provincial government control of credit, the second provides an increase in the provincial tax on banks, while the third relates to publication of news. Briefs opposing the legislation also are believed in the hands of the administration.

The Alberta brief suggested reference to the courts for a validity test of the press legislation, a reference to determine the Dominion government's right to disallow provincial legislation and test cases be instituted under the banking and credit acts.

Observers inclined to believe the government might consent to a court reference on the press bill but doubted if it would consent to the other proposals. The power of disallowance was vested in the Dominion government by the British North America Act and has been used on numerous occasions.

ROOSEVELT DENIES ANY 9-POWER TIES

Aboard Roosevelt Train Enroute to Washington, Oct. 20.—(AP). — President Roosevelt headed toward Washington for conferences on farm, budget and housing problems to-day after asserting the United States would enter the nine-power treaty conference at Brussels, Oct. 30, unhindered by any advance commitments to "other governments."

A formal statement on the Belgian parley to consider peace in the Orient was issued after a conference at Hyde Park, N.Y., with Norman H. Davis, American delegate to the conference, who sails to-day for Europe.

It was generally regarded as a reply to the statement of Senator Hiram Johnson (R.-Calif.), demanding the President state his foreign policy intentions in "plain language," and asserting United States was entering the conference undoubtedly with a prior understanding with Great Britain.

Three Pilots Killed

PREDICT ABERHART AS READY TO DITCH HIS 'CREDIT' PLANS

EDMONTON, Oct. 20 (CP)—Senator W. A. Griesbach told the West Edmonton Conservative Association last night Premier Aberhart's address here Sunday indicated he is getting ready to "ditch" Social Credit and base his appeal to the electorate solely on the statement "You haven't had to pay your debts while I was in power."

Senator Griesbach said he did not know whether the premier might abandon Social Credit altogether or merely cease talking about it in his appeals to Alberta voters.

"But I do believe," he added, "that from now on the debt-cutting side of his administration will be stressed more and more strongly, and that Social Credit will pass slowly out of the picture."

At the Edmonton Prophetic Bible Conference last Sunday, Premier Aberhart referred to debt-cutting legislation which was ruled unconstitutional and the moratorium on private debts now in effect, and added:

"Your present government is about ready with another attempt at settlement of these burdensome debts."

NO LEAGUE PACT CALIFORNIAN CRIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20—(AP)—Senator Hiram Johnson (R., Calif.) warned the United States today against League of Nations entanglements in the Sino-Japanese conflict and called upon President Roosevelt to explain "just what he will do and not do" for the promotion of world peace.

In a statement released here, Johnson, a member of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee, asked why the administration did not invoke its Neutrality Act, which he opposed in the committee and on the Senate floor. The statement was entitled "The road to war."

"Americans with almost absolute unanimity cry keep us out of this, mind our own business, we want no combination with the League of Nations or its members, we want no war," declared Senator Johnson.

Senator Johnson described as "irresistible" the "detestation and indignation" against Japanese actions.

"They arouse the deepest sympathy for the Chinese and abhorance of the Japanese; but this is a far cry from embarking in the conflict. We want no union with welching nations who will receive us with open arms and tell us we must lead mankind to save the world."

Senator Johnson, who opposed the terms of the Neutrality Act but not its purpose, said the people should know when their ruler approaches war.

Welland, Oct. 20. (CP)

WELLAND city council declared war on noise last night with passage of a bylaw prohibiting all unnecessary noise within the city limits. Coming under the bylaw will be motorists tooting horns, persons advertising sale of merchandise by use of bells, horns, or other noises, and the blowing of locomotive whistles and the ringing of bells on locomotives except when the locomotives are within 75 feet of a crossing.

Persons attending weddings or other celebrations or parades will be forbidden to sound their horns unless permission in writing is obtained from the chief of police. The bylaw provides for a fine of not more than $50 for each offence.

littered streets, hugging walls for scant protection. I found the city criss-crossed with miles of zig-zag trenches.

Great barriers, fronted by barbed wire entanglements, stone pill-boxes and sandbags blocked streets, most of which were littered with glass from smashed windows and with steel shell fragments. These made walking difficult on the cobbled streets.

SEEK 2 MISSING SHERBROOKE FIRE

SHERBROOKE, Que., Oct. 20. — Searchers waited to-day for the ruins of Sherbrooke's Grand Central Hotel to settle sufficiently to let them comb for the bodies of three young men who died when flames swept through the rambling old building. Loss was estimated at $100,000.

A fourth victim died last night in hospital of injuries received when he leaped with 12 others from upper windows of that four-storey hotel. Two others are reported missing, but they are known to have been awakened as flames roared through the structure yesterday morning and are believed safe.

Stewart Grose, 26; Oswald Charlewood, 31, and Lancelot Stewart, 32, were caught in the inferno and it was their bodies which were sought. Robert Cooper, 26, who had climbed to the edge of the roof in an attempt to get free, suffered fatal injuries when the licking flames forced him to release his hold on a ledge.

One of the two on whom investigators sought a check-up, although believed to have left the hotel before the fire started, was a man named Hasker or Aikins of Toronto. The other was believed registered under the name of LeBlanc.

A VALUABLE LAND

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP).—Canada is not far behind Russia in the development of its Arctic regions, Right Rev. A. L. Fleming, Bishop of the Arctic, said here last night. The day that will show the Canadian Arctic to be worth consideration is not far away, he thought. Although the far north of Canada is not a land of perpetual darkness and snow, there is a superabundance of darkness and ice and there is nothing that can be done about it, Bishop Fleming said.

Joseph Francis Ryan, D.D., J. C. D., was consecrated today sixth bishop of the diocese of Hamilton in the Basilica of Christ the King.

Officiating as consecrator was Most Rev. John T. McNally, D.D., Archbishop of Halifax, who was Bishop Ryan's immediate predecessor as the ecclesiastical head of the Hamilton diocese. He was assisted by Most Rev. John T. Kidd, D.D., Bishop of London, and Most Rev. Joseph A. O'Sullivan, D.D., Bishop of Charlottetown.

for shooting partridges, and had been loaded with fine birdshot. Constable Simpson of Sundridge has the gun and shells."

Reid's parents in Toronto were notified 15 minutes after the tragedy, and the body was taken to that city.

Miss Lang was rushed to operating room at hospital when she arrived at Toronto.

Fast Shooting.

Chief Constable S. R. McCreary, Sundridge, said the gun allegedly used was a single barrel 4.10. Miss Lang's face from the right cheek back to the ear was badly marked with buckshot. Her teeth received part of the charge. The Chief said it was a mystery to him how two shots could have been fired so quickly.

Besides being teacher in the village's only school, Miss Lang teaches a junior class in the Sundridge United Church Sunday School. Her sister married Bucko MacDonald, Detroit Red Wings hockey star. Her father is a butcher.

Reid spent his summers at Sundridge, where his parents have a cottage, since boyhood. He had known Miss Lang many years.

$1,000 TREE LOSS

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 20.—(CP). —Cows and goats have cost Windsor more than $1,000 recently, Alderman Arthur Mason charged in a city council meeting last night. The animals are chained to trees, he said, pulling up the small ones and girdling the large ones.

The city council took no definite action over the question of allowing cows, goats and other domestic animals the freedom of the city. A zoning system, restraining the animals to certain areas, was suggested.

U.S. PUBLISHERS FIGHT CANADIAN NEWSPRINT RISE

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (CP)—The American Newspaper Publishers Association issued a statement last night denouncing the announced intention of major Canadian newsprint manufacturers to demand a price for their product $2 above the $40 per ton six months' price of the Great Northern Paper Company.

The association urged the purchase of newsprint in the United States and elsewhere and added:

"If the statements of the officials of the International Paper Company, Price Brothers and Abitibi are to be believed, their customers will be penalized $2 a ton for the first six months of 1938 and an indefinite further amount for the second six months."

The statement also said that no reason or justification was given for this "amazing program" except by C. H. L. Jones, president of Price Brothers, who was quoted as having said "We do not look upon Great Northern as a price criterion because its entrenched financial position apparently affords it sources of income not available to the normal newsprint producer to whom a price of $50 a ton is now a barely livable level.

"The statement possible interpretation of the announced program by Canadian manufacturer members of the newsprint export association of Canada is to collect many millions of dollars from United States publishers in order to put substance back of phantom securities."

Unfavorable Weather Mars Success Of Marmora Fair The Last Of The Fall Season

Attendance Last Year of 7,000 People Drops To 1,200 On Rainy Day

(By a Staff Reporter)

MARMORA, Oct. 19 — Unfavorable weather conditions marred the success of Marmora Agricultural Society's annual fair, providing President W. A. Sanderson and his fellow workers with scant consideration.

Compared to last year when 7,000 people clicked through the turnstile under cloudless skies, only 1,200 persons paid admission to the rain-sodden grounds yesterday.

Secretary-treasurer H. W. Sabine believed that had the weather been favorable Marmora Fair—last on the district Fall circuit—would have established new records for entries and attendance.

Advance entries, he said, were generally speaking larger than usual but many exhibitors apparently discouraged by the heavy downpour of rain which fell on preparation day, failed to show up. Notwithstanding entries in the livestock, fruit and vegetable sections were in advance of previous recent years, and many new exhibitors figured in the prize awards. The children's work section was also heavily filled and the general excellence of the work here gave the judge a real task.

Encouraged by the success of last year's fair, officers and directors this year distributed three hundred dollars in cash as grain prizes to holders of lucky admission tickets.

The prize drawing was made by County Clerk Eric Denyes, the major award of $100 being won by Pat Bertram, youthful employee of the Deloro Mining and Smelter Company. Second prize of $50 went to Miss Mabel McCarthy of Millbrook, who is engaged as Separate School teacher at Marmora. Other winners of cash awards included: Samuel Rollins, Madoc, $25; Miss Mildred Finnegan, $10; and her brother, Bernard Finnegan, $5.

On the race track a free-for-all and a 2.25 class was run off. Horses plunged through a quagmire and riders were generously spattered with mud. Results of the races were as follows:

Tighter Check-Up For Beer Rooms

TORONTO, October 20 — (C.P.) — Partly as a result of Saturday night's tragedy in a Toronto beer parlor, Liquor Commissioner E. G. Odette has ordered even more rigid supervision and inspection of beverage rooms throughout the province.

Referring directly to the case in which one man lost his life and another is charged with murder, Mr. Odette commented:

"That might have happened anywhere and the most rigid inspection could not prevent it. I have detailed reports both from our own inspectors and from the police and so far as I can learn neither of the men was intoxicated."

TRAILER FIGURES IN LINDSAY CASE DRIVER CHARGED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 20.—Lorne Tolman, of Victoria Road, appeared before Magistrate Gee in the local court yesterday, charged with criminal negligence. The case goes on to the General Sessions in December. Tolman faces the charge as a result of an accident near Victoria Road last August. It is alleged that a trailer on the back of a truck driven by the accused struck a little girl name Leona Bell as she was walking on the highway. It is charged by the Crown that there was no light on the trailer. The accident was investigated at the time by Provincial Constable Taylor, of Minden, who gave evidence this morning.

An important meeting of the Liberals of Lindsay is scheduled for Friday. Leaders in the party when interviewed on the matter today said that no steps had been taken regarding a protest.

DUKE'S U.S. WISH PURELY PRIVATE

LONDON, Oct. 20—(AP). — The Duke of Windsor, in a formal statement distributed in the United Kingdom yesterday by Reuters News Agency, said his forthcoming visit to the United States is of "purely a private, unofficial nature."

The statement which Reuters said was obtained from the Duke's London solicitor, A. G. Allen, said the itinerary was arranged by Charles E. Bedaux, the Duke's friend and wedding host at Monts. Mr. and Mrs. Bedaux will accompany the Duke and Duchess to the United States "as friends," the statement added.

It said:

"His Royal Highness' visit is of purely a private and unofficial character, and an itinerary in industrial areas has been arranged through the instrumentality of Mr. Charles Bedaux.

"The Duke and Duchess are taking a very small staff with them, but they will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bedaux as friends. Mr. Bedaux has been placed in charge of arrangements, and because the treatment of all press matters demands specialized knowledge he has made a non-commercial arrangement with Arthur Kudner, Inc., who are professional press representatives, whereby all press releases will be issued through them. The Duke wished to emphasize that the Duchess and his visit to the United States is of a private character, and that they do not, therefore, wish it to be subject to publicity."

The Duke emphasized he had not engaged any American organization "to organize" his tour.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Hard To Eliminate

There were 19 persons in "Mainliner," the name given to one of the best planes of United Airlines. The plane crashed on a mountain peak, and hours afterward mountaineers managed to reach the wreck. Nineteen people were dead.

Fortunately there are not many wrecks of that proportion, but even with the advances which have been made in size and strength of these great machines and the system of signals by which they know of weather conditions ahead of them, there is an element of danger which has not yet been removed. Nor can it be taken away.

There is not only the danger of crashing on a mountain in the dark but there is also the added danger of people dying without any attention. It takes so long to reach them in order that they may be taken away to hospitals. In this latest case it is recorded that men had to make their way in out-of-the-way places, over dangerous gorges, up to a 10,000-foot level in the mountains, and even when they got there they could do nothing. They could but return over the same dangerous route and give the word which would start another better-equipped expedition to remove the dead people.

The strange and hidden places in which planes may crash provides one hazard which is going to be difficult to eliminate.

Not Likely To Be Left Alone

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are going to visit United States, and in advance it has been made abundantly certain there is no desire for publicity. It has been explained the visit is merely that of two people coming to visit with some friends and take a look at certain places in United States. The tour has not been "organized," and as far as we can gather the Windsors, Duke and Duchess, desire to be allowed to go their way.

But we doubt whether the thing will work. It is very likely wherever they go people will want to see them. We suspect when they drive along a street people will stand there and cheer for them and press photographers will be on hand a good many places to try their hand at getting pictures.

We believe it will be that way because it would be like that if the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were to come to Peterborough. The fact that he stepped down from the throne has never been held against him; he did it as a gentleman might do, and he has never since done anything which might in any way embarrass his brother in succession. If the Duke and Duchess were in this city, people would be busy finding out where to stand to get a good look at them. And that is probably what will take place in United States.

Too Much Money

After three months of negotiating and squabbling it has been decided that Freddie Bartholomew, England's gift to Hollywood, will receive a $50,000-a-year pay increase.

The boy actor is to receive $2,000 a week for 40 weeks of film work and $3,000 a week for six weeks of personal appearances, making a total of $98,000 a year.

We can think of several good enough reasons why no such salary should be paid:

The boy does not need that amount of money.

There are a good many other places where it could be spent to better advantage.

It will not make him any more efficient, nor will it make him happier.

He will not spend that much, and we take it that large amounts will be piled up to his credit, making him a very rich man in future.

Getting $96,000 a year may be about the worst thing which could happen to a clever and apparently quite natural sort of a lad.

It's A Lot Of Cash

Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the British Fascist party, publishes a paper which he calls "Action," regarded as an official organ of the party. Early in April of 1936 he caused to be inserted in his paper a story that Lord Camrose, publisher of the Daily Telegraph, was a Jew, also an unpatriotic and disloyal person who conducted the Telegraph by subordinating public duty to his own financial interests.

Suit was brought against Mosley and the judgment handed down a day or so since awarded $62,500 to Lord Camrose and $37,500 to his newspaper, an even $100,000, and Mosley was told to pay the costs, which are said to be considerable. The amount was large and Sir Oswald Mosley applied for a stay of execution, but the trial judge refused.

We have not even a remote idea of how much cash Sir Oswald Mosley has, where he gets it or how. But it is not difficult to have a rather fixed idea that $100,000 and costs is a lot of money to have to hand out for printing something silly in a newspaper. He will have nothing to show for it after he has made payment in full. If he were to go out and spend that amount of money buying himself a press or some linotype machines he could at least use them or come in and look at them. But paying $100,000 libel damages is different; it is much like an official spanking for which Oswald had to pay.

His Chances Are Poor

Charles S. Ross was kidnapped from his car near Chicago and nothing has been heard of him since. That was almost four weeks ago. Mr. Ross is 72 years of age and reputed to be wealthy. Plain enough those who took him intended to secure money. They have not done so yet and Mrs. Ross has made public a last appeal to the abductors to bring her husband home and collect what they want. She has placed a time limit on her offer at the expiration of which the matter will be turned over entirely to the police.

It may seem like a cold-blooded view to take of such a case, but the chances are that Mrs. Ross will not again hear of her husband. There have been a large number of similar cases in United States, so many that it is now possible to work on the law of averages as affecting the chances of a kidnapped person being released. Mr. Ross's chances of being returned were greater at the start than those of a child, but they are so slim today that they can hardly be counted on as being worth while.

Those whose business it is to trace and record the history of kidnapping cases say that after a kidnapped person's return has not been successfully negotiated within five days he passes into the highly dangerous risk class, and the reason for that is not difficult to understand. The kidnappers become fearful that the police are working on the case and are narrowing down the distance between themselves and the kidnappers. The kidnappers in turn are afraid to appear openly and demand the ransom money and return their victim. It is then they arrive at the point where they want to get out of the district and for that purpose desire to destroy the evidence, and that means destroying the victim of the kidnapping.

It would be surprising and against the records if nearly all such cases if Charles Ross were found alive. Judged by other cases of similar nature the chances are all against such a thing ever coming to pass.

St. Catharines Partridge

The St. Catharines Standard does not believe the Examiner is correct in saying that pheasants have lost some of their wild nature by the way in which they are bred in this province. The Standard man is certain the pheasant is as hard to hit as a partridge, and he believes the partridge is rather stupid and "will permit itself to be shot off a roadside stump from a motor car as long as the engine is kept running, but if the engine stops it wakes up to danger."

It may be we are a little backward in this district, but we never heard of partridge being so plentiful that people could take a car and a gun and go driving along a road shooting the birds. Those who go out gunning for them when there is an open season have to wander far afield. When the partridge senses danger it has the habit of rising and whacking its wings together so that it will produce enough noise to give the average man with a gun quite a start. And then the bird is quick on the wing when it takes for cover. The only time a partridge is unwise is when it is started up by a dog and then it is likely to fly in a tree providing a good mark for the hunter.

The pheasant cannot move as rapidly as the partridge and its gay plumage makes it a much plainer mark than the partridge. Apart from all that it has been found in many districts that farmers have no desire to have gunners wandering over their property banging away at anything they may happen to see. Of course it may be different in the St. Catharines district where the partridge come and sit on stumps along the roadside while hunters drive up and down and shoot them off. That would indicate a degree of foolishness on the part of the birds which is not encountered elsewhere and may be in part accounted for by the district in which they live.

Greasing The Wagon Wheels

There was something in a farm magazine the other day telling about the advances and improvements which had been made in farm machinery and equipment in recent years. Mention was made of the corn binder, the sheaf carrier, the silo and the blower for filling it, the potato digger, cream separator and so on. The article in question grew rather enthusiastic and declared:

"The farmer of other days would find his work made much easier if he were to return today. Nearly every operation around the premises has been either entirely revolutionized or greatly changed and improved."

And that is fine. But we were just wondering if it was all true. We happened to be on a farm the other day and it was a little too wet to do much outdoors. The farmer had a box wagon in a shed and he was fixing it up a little, and when that was done he said it was about time to put some grease on the axles.

We were a little bit curious about the manner in which he would do it because we know how it used to be done on the Tenth Concession. What used to be called greasing the wagon wheels was one job which grandfather always insisted should be done regularly, but one job which he never cared to do himself. Any person who happened to be running loose at the time could do that job. There used to be a wooden jack that stood on a little platform and with that the wheel was raised high enough to take it off. Then there was generally some mud and stuff to dig out first before getting the nut off and sliding the wheel out. Directions on the grease pail used to say something about wiping the old grease off before applying the new, but that was not the chief concern, because the jack was fairly old and now and then it used to slip out. Grandfather was always going to get a new one, but he never did.

Greasing the wagon wheels is something which we thought would have changed with all the flood of inventions running over the country, but apparently it hasn't. The farmer we saw doing it the other day was following exactly the same plan that was used on Lot Four, Concession Ten, a good many years ago. Just to make sure we asked a dealer in implements not half an hour ago if there was anything new in the manner of greasing a wagon wheel, and he said the way was to put a jack under the wagon and take the wheel off. It is probably true if grandfather were to return for a spell and see all the machinery and equipment on a farm today he would be surprised, but he wouldn't find any difference in the method of greasing the wagon wheels.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Professional hockey teams have begun training and that is a surer sign of the approach of winter than the movement south of the wild ducks.

A woman driver caused an accident in which five motor vehicles were piled up. That seems to be a new record—even for a woman driver.

If what is happening in the stock market is not a crash it is about the smallest boom that has ever been noticed in that quarter.

Betting on the British Columbia race tracks is steadily increasing, which is a sign either of better conditions or bad judgment.

An addition to the Entomological Laboratory at Belleville is to be erected at a cost of $34,000. Nobody can accuse the Ottawa government of neglecting the bugs.

Reports say that Hon. Earl Rowe will remain in the provincial field and not re-enter the Federal arena. Possibly he thinks he can do better on a half-mile track.

George H. Drew is to get his K.C. back, a Toronto report says. He would probably have preferred, however, to have received the degree of M.L.A. from the electors of South Wellington.

According to an automobile executive conditions in Canada are improving but there will be difficulty in making a fellow who likes to take a flyer in the stock market believe that statement.

The Globe and Mail and the Star have been arguing about the total figures in the provincial general election. After all why worry about the popular vote; it is seats they pay off in.

Defeated in the final series for the Mann Cup the members of the Orillia Terriers lacrosse team arrived home and found no one to welcome them at the station. Life is like that.

Hon. Norman Armour, United States Minister to Canada has been invited to open the Royal Winter Fair, a gesture in the direction of international good will that will be appreciated on both sides of the line.

CHANGED

(By A. B. K.)

¶ I have a niece I seldom see, for she lives far away from me, I knew her as a child; I mind her hair was very straight, and she seemed bound to put on weight, she was demure and mild.

¶ That must have been eight years ago, I guessed perhaps she'd grow and grow, as fat as anything; and she'd be meek like what she was, and find it easy like to pause, with hair straight as a string.

¶ My niece sent word that she would come, and get a little calling done, and she would stay with me; I was to meet her at the train, I reckoned she'd be much the same; and easy like to see.

¶ I looked around and up and down, the day the train rolled into town, I sauntered forth in peace; her hair was straight and she was fat, I'd look for some one just like that, and she would be my niece.

¶ I stood right out where she could see, if she was looking out for me, I feared she'd missed the train; I had a picture in my mind, and I could easy spot her kind, but not one looked the same.

¶ And then there came a dainty maid, her hair not dark but lemon shade, she was not fat but slight; nor was her hair straight like a string, but bunched in curls like everything—she was my niece all right.

IF YOU DON'T mind a diet of berries, fish and game there is no need to starve in British Columbia.

In one minute officials of the provincial museum at Victoria can produce samples of nine kinds of common edible berries. Most parts of the province are stocked with grouse, pheasants, squirrels and deer, and if you haven't regulation fishing tackle a diverted stream will yield a hundred or more trout fingerlings. Some of the edible berries are salal, salmon, thimble, saskatoon, cranberry, blackberry, huckleberry, barberry, wild cherry and wild rose.

A hungry coyote missed his supper and an angry gander had an exciting wild west ride at the farm of Mrs. John Macdonald, near Red Deer. The coyote made the mistake of tackling a goose, the inseparable companion of the gander. The infuriated bird charged the marauder, landing on his back and then flapping its wings and holding on to the coyote's backbone with its beak, rode the racing animal for half a mile before alighting and returning home.

Crab apples were responsible for an infantile paralysis scare at Milk River, Alta. Eventually it was discovered that the original illness was merely a case of eating too many crab apples.

Cater to Middle Brows.

THE AUSTRALIAN Broadcasting commission has decided that radio listeners—or at least most of them — are not interested in programs predominantly highbrow or "low brow". Accordingly the Commission has announced that it is completely declassify the 2,500 radio artists on its books and make a search for new talent. An increasing proportion of commission programs will be planned for the "middle brow" audience.

The club members used to swim daily in the crocodile-infested gulf and before Ahern's close call always claimed that crocodiles would not attack human beings in the water.

The Duchess of Northumberland recently played the part of fairy godmother when she entertained 320 Tyneside working girls at her historic home, Alnwick Castle. The girls who had been chosen by ballot from 20 works, factories and offices and included stenographers, machinists, shop assistants and telephone operators travelled to Alnwick by bus and were free to roam at will round the castle and its grounds. Afterward there was tea in the huge guesthall, and community singing and games. Their visit was the sequel to a tour of industrial Tyneside made by the Duchess some time previously.

A new process invented by an Austrian chemist will give cotton cloth an additional wearing power of 250 to 600 per cent. according to a claim made in Manchester. At the same time the wearability of the cloth will be greatly increased.

Veterans at the Throttle.

BORN ON THE same day of the same year, August 20, 1872, Charles F. Watson and G. H. Tindall, Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive engineers finished their last trip before retiring at Winnipeg recently within 20 minutes of each other.

While crowds of friends and contemporaries—many of them engineers who had gone on the retirement list earlier in the summer—gathered at the head end of the track to watch the two huge trans-Continental trains finish their run, Tindall and Watson nursed the giant engines to a halt in the yards after a trip from Vancouver.

Coming from a family of five generations of railwaymen Watson ran his first engine in 1898, was transferred to Souris in 1903 and ran out of there for 18 years, moving to Brandon in 1922 and returning to Winnipeg in 1932. Only one collision marred his record.

Tindall is proud of his record but sees "nothing unusual about it." In 1890 he began as a wiper in the machine shops. Seven years later he was an engineer out of Minnedosa Man. Transfers to Reston, Man., Brandon and Winnipeg followed with the years. He drove the engine on the Prince of Wales' train from Winnipeg to Brandon and also the one carrying the King of Siam and his entourage.

G. J. Powell.

Roosevelt Toning Down His Speech

Chicago Address Was Apparently Too Stiff; Has Been Much Modified at Each Chance

(By F. D. B.) in Brantford Expositor

THE STORY of the circumstances surrounding the speech made by President Roosevelt at Chicago is told by a Washington correspondent.

In this deliverance Roosevelt thundered against international anarchy and intimated that positive steps should be taken to curb violations with Uncle Sam as an active participant in such a course.

We are now told that his utterances reflected the developing policy of the State Department in consultation with the President in consequence of Japan's firm stand against the intervention of third powers and for continuing her aerial bombing operations.

A draft of the Chicago speech, in fact, was prepared in the State Department but with the knowledge only of Secretary Hull and a few of his closest advisers so that it came as a surprise to the majority of officials.

However the President in redrafting the Chicago speech in his own language, went farther than he usually does in the preparation of important pronouncements of foreign policy, where the practice is to have a draft prepared for him.

He used not only his own language in colorful degree but went beyond that and employed the word "quarantine" and other phrases that surprised even those in Washington who knew in advance that he intended to take a stand.

It is now denied in official quarters that definite restrictive steps against Japan are in view. On the contrary it is frankly stated that only a co-operative effort is to be made for peace by agreement.

The favorable reaction to the address was very marked in Great Britain, France and other centres, which are viewing the activities of the dictators and Japan with alarm but the response was not nearly so congratulatory in the United States.

The papers there warmly approved of the arraignment of those lands seeking to attack others without the slightest justification, but the warning was also issued by many of them that active intervention would not meet with the approval of the great mass of the people.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg declared that any American movement in the direction of sanctions or naming aggressors, would wholly nullify the Congressional mandate on neutrality and other U. S. public men have been equally emphatic in the same regard.

As the outcome President Roosevelt has since adopted a more moderate tone and in a recent fireside talk affirmed that what he wanted to see was an adjustment of the trouble in the Far East by arrangement.

It is pointed out that his discussion was softer than in the Chicago speech, when he spoke of quarantining aggressors and of concerted action for peace. Both phrases surprised official Washington.

Later in an interview with reporters, he gave guarded replies and in response to direct questions regarding the nine power conference, made answer that the United States had not yet received any invitation to attend and that it was not going to be put in the position of a girl who accepted before she was asked.

Then speaking with some emphasis, he told the reporters that he hoped they would make it clear that any prediction of United States foreign policy must be pure guesswork, emphasizing that he did not know what it would be himself.

As far as the Nippons are concerned the proposed confab is likely to be completely ignored.

They know what they want in connection with the further invasion of China and any participation in a peace conference, unless upon the basis of obtaining all objectives, is apparently a far-fetched notion.

The English in a New Country

Hard to Place Them in Positions Here; Cook Did Not Know How to Make Porridge

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR—I firmly believe that Canada should not admit English immigrants at present.

From 1906 to 1915 I conducted an employment bureau in Winnipeg and placed thousands of men and women. There was plenty of work to be had in those days. All the same the placing of Englishmen was quite a problem, for many of the leading business firms and contractors displayed signs "No Englishmen Need Apply."

Now, one of my closest Winnipeg friends was a man from Liverpool, we later campaigned together, till April 1918 when he passed out. Further, two of my grandparents hailed from England. And my wife was born there. So I have never had any prejudice whatsoever against English people. However, all that didn't induce me to push English immigrants into jobs that they couldn't handle satisfactorily.

The English immigrant does not seem to know how to adapt himself to the ways of a new country. Or perhaps he does not care to. He frequently tries adopting superior airs, as if he imagines he is conferring a favor upon Canada by emigrating from his homeland. One does not find this attitude among Scotch and Irish and certainly not among Finns and Norwegians.

It was up to me to find the right men for the right jobs. My success depended upon just that. I confess that English immigrants often squeezed past me into jobs for which they had no fitness whatsoever. From scores of instances I select two at random. A wire came from Dauphin, 200 miles north, for six carpenters at 60 cents per hour, transportation paid. To make up the six, included one Englishman who boasted of wide experience in building. It turned out that the fellow had never driven a nail in his life. Yet he posed as competent. One fall an order came for a female cook for a Government boarding school for Indian children away up on the Nelson River, 400 miles north. It was urgent, for soon the freezeup would cut the place off from civilization for seven months. An English widow came along; she had cooked for her own family for twenty years, she said. So we hustled her off up Lake Winnipeg on the last freight boat before freezeup. That English woman didn't even know how to make porridge, as I learned months later. The fifteen-cent cook book she took along proved a poor guide. When the matron of the school saw her stuffing raw dried apples into a pie-to-be, and remonstrated with her, the Englishwoman retorted hotly, "That's how we do it back home! It is unfortunate that the English immigrant thinks it much more blessed to give than to receive, where orders are concerned. Consequently, he finds it hard to hold even a job for which he is qualified.

If the day comes when there is employment for all of our own Canadian people, it will then be time to consider admitting English immigrants.

WAR ON AN ANTHEM

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

IT'S A DULL summer when some hot-blooded Southern patriot does not rise to object eloquently to a well-known piece of literature or art as "an insult to the South." This time the item that has roused a furore below Mason and Dixon's line, or at least among five state presidents of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, is Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Because its "whole tenor is untrue to the South," they demand it be expunged from all church and public school song books. Maybe it is "a product of an inflamed mind, written during the excitement of war," as the U. D. C. charges. But so is all war poetry, and Miss Howe was pretty mild as compared with Francis Scott Key in the way he cracked down on the British in "The Star Spangled Banner."

MISSING BOTTLES.

London Times

FURTHER information is given about the 13,000,000 milk bottles annually lost to their rightful owners in this country. It is estimated that 250,000,000 milk bottles are in circulation, and since 1919 milk distributors and dairy farmers have been responsible for financing an organization to recover the strayed or stolen.

This concern, which goes by the name of Milk Vessels Recovery, Limited, has its headquarters at Tottenham, where as many as 50,000 bottles are received every day for sorting. It appears that bottles from many lands find their way to this country. Some clearly marked in an undistinguishable foreign language and of quaint shape, form a private museum at Tottenham; but when there is an accumulation, as in the sorting section for South Africa, the bottles are eventually returned to the country of their origin.

Dairy farmers are also protected against the loss of their churns, and last year nearly 17,000 were recovered.

To the Editor

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I have just seen your paper of last Thursday containing an account of the 'dead' fish trying to escape, and note your suggestion I may be guilty of 'stretching the truth' or even something worse.

I consider it a compliment that I have hunted and fished in these parts for ten years before having my name associated with anything that you find hard to believe, but I liked your humorous article none the less.

Unfortunately your report was not quite accurate and as my good friends Wally Harvey and Alec Weddell are concerned I would like to give a true report of the incident you mention, and an explanation of the cause.

Mr. Weddell went out first with the two guides and came to shore with several nice speckled trout weighing about 1½ lbs. each. Then Mr. Harvey, myself, and one guide went out and got several more, and as we were landing one of us noticed the other guide was cleaning the fish Mr. Weddell had caught. The guide did not cut off the heads, tails or fins, but simply slit the stomachs and took out all the intestines, and then laid the dressed trout on a long plank two feet back from the lake. One of us remarked he thought he saw a dressed trout move on the plank and we all watched intently from then on. First one dressed fish and then another gave a convulsive jerk, and three got off the plank, but only one kicked hard enough to reach the lake and was easily retrieved.

I admit the whole thing sounds fishy (why shouldn't it?) but there is a logical explanation.

It is more or less common knowledge that some fish can be frozen solid in a cake of ice, and come back to life when the ice is thawed. I have heard of fish being taken from one lake to another by this method. This particular day was exceedingly cold, with plenty of snow (May 18th) and my contention is that the caught fish were stupefied with cold as they lay in the canoe, or on the shore, and apparently were not 100% dead when the guide started to clean them. The act of cleaning caused certain nerves to function, hence the reason they flipped themselves from the plank. Is this incident any more strange than a turkey or chicken running round after losing its head from the axe?

If any person feels inclined to still doubt us, would they care to put up any real money that I cannot duplicate it next year, and if so what odds are offered? A witness could come to the same lake with us next May at a daily cost of about $7.

I have done all I can to keep my reputation clear, but if there are still any who doubt, I throw the torch to Mr. Weddell or it was his fish that misbehaved, and he might be willing to explain what bait he used.

My powers of imagination are on a par with the average sportsman but unfortunately it generally turns out that when I fish or hunt I am sufficiently lucky to not find it necessary to strain my imagination. If you, or your readers, still hold this incident against me, then I accept your verdict, but even a dog is allowed just one little bite.

This is my story and I shall stick to it.

Sincerely yours,
J. W. GRAVESTOCK.

FINDS PEACE IN ENGLAND

(St. Catharines Standard)

GRANTS ARE MADE FOR GAMES, BOOKS AT LAKEFIELD HIGH

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 20.—Grants of $25 for athletic purposes and $50 for new books for the library at the High school were made by the Board when the Lakefield High School Board members held their regular meeting in the council chamber of the Memorial Hall on Thursday, October 15, at 8.00 p.m.

Chairman J. W. Ridpath and Trustees E. W. Bailey, B. Q. Dench, F. L. Erskine, E. J. Millage and E. H. Northey were present.

The minutes of the past meeting were read and adopted. On motion of Trustees Northey and Erskine the principal's report was received.

The report of the finance committee recommended payment of the following accounts: J. F. Harvey, postage, express, $1.63; Spence & Sons, salt, 20c; Mollie Thomson, ribbon, $6.30; De Laval Co., supplies, $24.75; J. W. Ridpath, printing, $3.80; Trebilcock Bros., supplies, $5.20; W. W. Leonard, rugby ball, $6.50. Total, $48.38.

That the report of the finance committee be received and adopted was moved by Trustees Erskine and Bailey.

Principal J. F. Harvey then addressed the Board regarding current school matters, after which E. H. Brohman spoke regarding the new agriculture and shop work classes being started in the school.

It was moved by Trustees Northey and Bailey, that Mr. Brohman be furnished with the necessary equipment for the agriculture and drafting classes. Carried.

Trustee Dench moved a resolution which was seconded by Trustee Erskine, that the High School Board inform the Public School Board that complaints have come to their attention with regard to the duties performed by the janitor: That the High School rooms are not kept clean and satisfactory to the staff. We wish to recommend that these conditions be rectified as soon as possible. We would suggest that if the janitor cannot perform his duties properly that he be given an assistant."

It was moved by Trustees Erskine and Dench "that the Charlton lot be rented for the sum of ten dollars (more or less) per year for agricultural purposes, the purchase to be subject to Mr. Brohman's approval."

It was moved by Trustees Erskine and Millage that the Board grant Mr. Harvey $25 for athletic purposes and $50 for new books for the library. Carried.

Wooden Decoys Fool Sharp-Eyed Eagle

Gananoque, Oct. 20 (CP)

MIKE Brennan today told the story of a 20-pound eagle with an eight-foot wing spread that attacked Brennan's decoy ducks at Big Bay. He has a dead eagle to prove his story.

The eagle, says Brennan, swooped down on his wooden decoys and grabbed one. Brennan fired at it and the eagle dropped in the water. But for an hour and a half it fought Brennan and William Dorey who was in the boat with him. The bird bit a piece six inches long out of one oar.

Eventually Brennan got the eagle by the neck, dragged it into the boat and brought it to Gananoque where it died Monday night.

Another story concerns a large partridge that Monday flew against a window at the home of Hubert Bishop. The bird was killed and the glass broken.

DEFENCE FOR LEE CALLS FOR REPORTS BY PSYCHIATRISTS

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP)—Interim reports by Crown psychiatrists who examined 58-year-old Joseph C. Lee, charged with murder, were sought to-day by defence counsel at Lee's trial. The Hamilton business man is charged with murdering George H. Jackson of Guelph, Ont., here June 4.

As the second day of the trial started Orville Walsh, K.C., defence counsel told Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone that the Crown had in its possession certain reports from psychiatrists who examined Lee. The defence had been refused access to the reports.

C. L. Snyder, special Crown prosecutor, argued that the reports were purely interim reports and might be changed after the psychiatrists had heard full evidence in the case and studied the prisoner's behaviour in court.

Mr. Justice Kingstone said he would rule later on the defence's request that the reports be made available.

Lee is charged with having shot down George H. Jackson, John Anderson and Anthony Anderson, who is in a critical condition at hospital. John Anderson also died.

A special commission will visit Hamilton General Hospital this afternoon to take evidence from Anderson. Neither the Judge nor the jury will be present, though Crown and defence counsel will be allowed to examine and cross-examine. Justice Kingstone this morning appointed H. O. Taylor, official court reporter, to act as commissioner.

"A Long Story"

Conversation alleged to have taken place between Lee and Anthony Anderson at the General Hospital the morning of the shooting, in the presence of Detective Albert Speakman, was a feature of this morning's session.

Detective Speakman quoted Anthony Anderson as saying: "Why did you do it Joe?"

Lee, according to Detective Speakman, replied to Anderson lying in his hospital bed: "You ought to know why I did it. It's a long story. A month ago my wife was lying suffering just as you are."

'I asked him where the revolver was," Detective Speakman testified. He said: 'The revolver's all right. Never mind about that.'

"On the way to the police station in the car," witness continued, "Lee told me: 'I would not have shot you. I would have taken a bullet from you first.' That was practically all he said.

Frank Lalonde, governor of the jail, said Lee came into his office on the morning of June 4. According to the governor, the accused man said: 'Here I am. I've shot three men at the horseshoe factory on Biggar avenue.'

"I asked Lee if he hit these men," witness said.

'If I didn't they were good actors for they all fell down,'" the governor quoted Lee as replying.

Before testimony of Detective Speakman and Governor Lalonde, the jury was ordered to retire.

IL DUCE INVITES FOREIGN CAPITAL INVEST IN ITALY

ROME, Oct. 20—(AP)—The government Tuesday invited foreign capital to invest in Italy by offering exemption form inheritance taxes and freedom from expropriation in the event of war.

To receive suc hexeptions, capital must be invested before Dec. 31, 1939. The freedom from inheritance taxes lasts 20 years and the non-expropriation arrangement provides that, in case real estate should be taken by the government in the event of war, full recompensation would be made.

Complete freedom of transfer of such investments would be accorded.

The Government also clamped an extraordinary tax of 10 per cent on capital stock corporations.

A communique reviewed taxes levied for armament since the campaign in Ethiopa and pointed out that holders of government bonds and landlords already have paid large sums.

To-day's levy applies equivalent taxation to holders of stock, who had profited by devaluation of the lira.

A decree for organizing an East African Fascist militia was issued. It provided for an ordinary infiltia legion and an anti-aircraft battery for each gubernatorial district, and anti-aircraft corps for coastal defence of Eritrea and Somaliland, and placed a militia lieutenant-general in command at Addis Abebe.

SUPPER, BAZAAR ENJOYABLE EVENT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Oct. 20.—On Friday evening the Women's Guild of St. Mary's Church, Lifford, sponsored a successful goose supper, bazaar and entertainment in the covered shed at the church with an attendance somewhat smaller compared with similar occasions. A sumptuous dinner was provided by the ladies and expertly served by a corps of energetic workers. Simultaneously a sale of hand-made articles was carried on and the disposal of useful and beautiful articles made by experienced hands was ready.

A fine entertainment was provided by the A.Y.P.A., who sponsored a delightful three-act drama entitled "Lighthouse Nan." The cast of characters was as follows:

Hon. John Enlow, president of the Seacoast Banking Company, Robert Sisson; Ned Blake, his private secretary, George Tims; Isabod Buzzer, the old keeper of the lighthouse, Lawrence Staples; Sir Arthur Choke, a British aristocrat, Kenth Henderson; Injun Jim, a bad man, Harold Page; Nan, a little roustabout, Isobel Sisson; Moll Buzzer, the gentle antelope, Muriel Hannah; Hon. Sarah Chumley Choke, Arthur's sister, Marjorie Page; Hortense Enlon, a city belle, Vera Strachan.

The characters were well chosen, the presentation cleverly put on and each act received the hearty applause of the audience. Between acts the young people contributed bright musical numbers.

At the close of the evening a number of geese, chickens, pies and cakes in variety were readily auctioned off to be enjoyed by their purchasers during the week-end.

The entire proceeds of the evening were very gratifying to those in charge of proceedings, and deep appreciation was extended to those who loyally supported the church in this capacity.

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Remedy at Home

Quick Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This well known recipe is used by many thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them a much more dependable remedy for distressing winter coughs. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its effect on throat membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough remedy, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

W.M.S. of United Church Holds Sectional Rally at Bensfort

New inspiration and a wealth of informative material were gained at the splendid sectional rally of the Central district of Peterborough Presbyterial held yesterday at Bensfort United Church, where the many organizations were well represented by delegates and visitors.

The call to worship was given by the chairman, Mrs. Howard Clegg, 1st vice-president of the Presbyterial.

Following the opening hymn, the Scripture lesson was read by Miss Helen Bannister, and prayer offered by Mrs. A. J. Brown.

Mrs. Harold Rehill was appointed recording secretary, and Mrs. Clegg acted as treasurer for the day.

A resume of the work accomplished through the Women's Missionary Society in the rally district, including the six United Churches of Peterborough, Benifort, Stewart Hall and Keene, was given in detail in the reports. Reports in general are considered "dry," but in those of this rally they bristled with clever ideas for work and the results, particularly in a financial sense, were most encouraging.

Mission Band Reports.

Of especial interest were the reports of the Mission Bands and Baby Bands by their respective Presbyterial secretaries, Miss Helen Bannister and Mrs. H. Alton, the latter giving the credit for much of the inspiration and success of her department to the guest speaker of the day, who had addressed them at a former visit.

Miss Evelyn Mitchell, travelling secretary of the W.M.S. Dominion Board, who is no stranger to ePierborough Presbyterial, was introduced in endearing terms by Mrs. A. Portecus, as guest of honor and speaker.

An interesting annual feature of these rallies is the report of the Summer Training School for Missionary Leaders, held at Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby. This year Mrs. Charles Renaud, of Norwood was Presbyterial delegate. In clear, concise and beautiful diction, Mrs Renaud covered the week's intensive study at the college in the most comprehensive manner.

Mrs. Renaud also acted as pianist during the meeting.

Mrs. William Stevens, the enthusiastic literature secretary, in her report, which she made quite practical and concrete with an array of missionary books, maps and leaflets, explained their great value in the work and urged their use by all leaders.

The visiting delegates were guests of Bensfort Auxiliary at the noon hour, when a bounteous chicken dinner was served. In gracious words, Mrs. W. C. Dawson, president, extended words of welcome, to which Mrs. H. Alton, of Mark Street Auxiliary, responded. Mrs. Alton also introduced the two speakers from Norwood, Mesdames Tucker and Renaud.

The afternoon session was opened with a question box, led by Miss Mitchell, who brought light upon many puzzling problems for individual members.

The devotional period was conducted by Mesdames Knox and Renwick of the Keene Auxiliary.

Bay of Quinte Report.

Bringing the work and activities of the higher divisions of the W.M.S. organizations to local societies, a report of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch meeting held in Arnprior in April was given by Mrs. Basil Tucker. This vivid word picture gave the lay members a real sense of having been present at the many sessions which Mrs. Tucker so graphically described.

The offering was received by members of the local auxiliary and the offertory prayer made by Miss F. Dixon, after which a solo, "Jesus Can Remember," was sweetly sung by Mrs. Ernest Johnston.

Very sincere greetings from the Presbyterial were tendered the ladies by Mrs. A. I. Brown, the past president, in the absence of Mrs. C. M. Scott, president.

Miss Evelyn Mitchell gave a bird's-eye view of the W.M.S. at work, from sea to sea, throughout all Canada. In Africa and Korea, and in all our mission fields. She led her audience through each, with intimate stories of the need of Christianity in foreign countries, and the need for Christian help and understanding in our hospitals and schools in Canada. Since Miss Mitchell is speaking at three other rallies in the Presbyterial this week, it would not be fair to repeat her address in advance, but she reached the heart of every woman in the audience, and instilled a deeper desire to serve on in this beloved work.

Words of appreciation to Miss Mitchell for her wonderful address, to Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Renaud, to Mrs. Johnston for her message in song, to the entertaining auxiliary and to all who in any way assisted in the day's success, were voiced by Mrs. Ernest Mosley, and seconded by Miss Esme Thomlinson, and were heartily endorsed by all.

The hymn, "In Christ there is no East nor West," and prayer and the benediction by Rev. E. M. Cooke, pastor of the church, closed this first W.M.S. Fall rally of the year.

Society Is Jumpy Over The Windsors

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (CP). — Plenty of worrying is going on in the drawing-rooms of this social and political capital—because 15 years ago the anxious ones ignored two women they now wish they hadn't.

One is the Duchess of Windsor and the other is her aunt, Mrs. Buchanan (Aunt Bessie) Merryman.

Fifteen years ago, the Duchess was just part of Washington's social fringe; a pretty, brown-haired, young woman whose husband, a naval officer, had left her. She was invited around but mostly because her second-cousin was the wealthy Mrs. George Barnett.

The Duchess' aunt, Mrs. Merryman, has always lived very quietly. She still keeps a small, five-room apartment on a side street.

Now the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are coming to America—to Baltimore, Washington and Virginia, where once the Duchess had some hard social sledding.

Much depends of course on whether the British Embassy entertains the Windsors. If they are invited there—it is understood that depends on London—the social drive will be on in earnest. Other embassies will follow suit, and here and there a hostess with a large enough house and gilt-edged social standing will send out engraved invitations to meet "Their Royal Highnesses, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor." And of course, there will be the official entertaining by government heads, and parties by members of the Duchess' family.

Her family is led off socially by Mrs. Barnett, who gave the young Wallis Warfield of Baltimore her coming-out party. And it is at her Virginia estate, Wakefield Manor, 40 miles south of Washington, that the Windsors are expected to visit.

The White House is expected to lead off the official entertaining. Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, is expected to follow. Next in line would be Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the assistant Secretary of State.

And perhaps the modest, one-time school teacher who is now wife of John L. Lewis, the Labor leader, may play hostess to the pair. Her white Colonial home filled with fine antiques should certainly be an adequate setting. The Duke has announced he wants to meet Lewis.

One other question that is keeping Washington hostesses chilly is: Will the Duke, who is coming here to study housing and labor conditions, turn "thumbs down" on all parties?

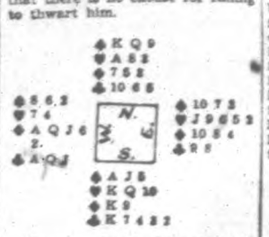
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

OBVIOUS INTENTIONS

MANY LEAD-THROWING end-plays are of such a nature that the defender cannot guard himself against them. Some, however, can be prevented by a bit of foresight through the discarding of honors with which a particular defender is likely to be put in the lead. There are times when the declarer makes his intentions so obvious that there is no excuse for failing to thwart him.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

On this deal West overcalled South's original club with 1-Diamond and North bid 1-Spade, South then called 1-No Trump, North two and South three.

Against this West led the diamond queen to the king. South, noting that there were only eight sure tricks in sight, ran them, so that he could then attempt to put West in on the ninth trick by using a diamond. He took four spades and three hearts, then led the diamond nine. If West had done the perfunctory thing of discarding his spot cards, he would have retained the ace and jack of diamonds and the ace, queen and jack of clubs. In that event, he could have taken two diamond tricks and the club ace, but then would have had to pitch into South's club king.

The West player in this case was Edwin H. Coleman of the Union League club, an astute defender, who on the eighth trick did not discard the diamond six, but instead the club jack. When South then led the diamond nine, he was able to play the six on it, East winning with the diamond ten. This enabled East then to lead a club through the declarer's king, allowing Mr. Coleman to take all the rest of the tricks.

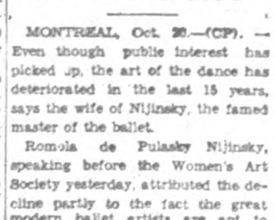
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

After taking the third diamond trick, how should South play for 3-No Trumps?

Believes Ballet Has Deteriorated

MONTREAL, Oct. 20.—(CP). — Even though public interest has picked up, the art of the dance has deteriorated in the last 15 years, says the wife of Nijinsky, the famed master of the ballet.

Romola de Pulasky Nijinsky, speaking before the Women's Art Society yesterday, attributed the decline partly to the fact the great modern ballet artists are apt to "stagnate" because of the need of commercializing their talent, and partly because they now live away from the source of their inspiration.

It was anomalous, she said, that Russians should be called on to create the American ballet, for a ballet could not be established because of a desire to create it. It must be a spontaneous growth.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

THE foolish think that they can escape punishment; but every wrongdoing carries its own punishment. Punishment it not always something that happens to us, but rather something that happens IN us. The greatest of all punishments is the loss of our humanity. What is more terrible than to lose the open countenance—to be forced to wear the fox's eye and the wolf's mouth? —Markham.

Dear Friends:

Yes, what COULD be worse than having to go around hiding our secret sins from those around us? Not the little ones, but those that would make us blush for shame in anyone knowing them.

And they carry their own punishment with them, they make us unsure of ourselves, and until we say "here, you are too much of a burden to carry around, you cost me too much in the loss of my self-respect, it is too much bother to keep you hidden with the fear you will pop your head up and give me away," then and then only will we stop punishing ourselves.

Supposing you say to yourself, well, this doesn't hit me. I never do anything I would not like the whole world to see. (What, never?) It must be great to feel so upright as all that. No petty mean-nesses, no lowering of your morale, no feeling unsure of whether you did right or wrong. But be sure you are not fooling yourself.

So many think they are fooling everyone else, when all they are blinding is themselves. They have the foxes eyes, and the wolf's mouth for all the world to see that they are hiding something.

Everyone has a skeleton in the closet, and always they are afraid someone will open the closet door, and the thing seen in all it's horridness. Some pretend they are so generous, when stinginess is sticking out all over them.

Others pretend to godliness, when avarice and greed walk with them all their days. Some put on the mask of sweetness, but when it slips for an instant, the sourness would curl your eyebrows.

Others preach, but never practise, just take it all out in words. And each and everyone carrying their own punishment with them to their own hurt. Sometimes we get hurt from outside and are bewildered and confused, yet it usually came from within due to trusting someone too much, or idealizing, or shutting our eyes to facts.

One woman complained bitterly to me, because of the selfishness of her children, she could not see her punishment followed her spoiling of them. And what are we going to do about it? Think if the thing you are so careful in hiding is worth the effort, worth the price. If it isn't then cast it away from you. Clean and air the corridors of your mind, have some purpose in life, something to aim at, something to strive for.

Sometimes in the hugging of these evil things to ourselves, we more injoyable from us, because our minds are taken up so much with the hiding of them.

Theodore Parker sums part of it up like this: "It is thy duty oftentimes to do what thou wouldst not do; thy duty, too, to leave undone what thou wouldst do. Let men laugh when you sacrifice desire to duty, if they will. You have time and eternity to rejoice in."

Don't forget either, that each and everyone of us have to fight more from within than without, so that gives us all something in common with each other, something we are all fighting against.

And it is a grand and glorious victory when we manage to boss ourselves. No longer the fox's eye or the wolf's mouth for us, but we go stepping along serene and unafraid, for we are clean inside.

Your Friend, ROBERTA.

The EXAMINER'S HOME SERVICE

"Is this radiant girl," people say, "the fretful, nervous Alice we used to know?"

Friends admire Alice now because she's more imaginative, keener than most people, but these same traits used to run her ragged.

She used to magnify tiny defects in herself and her home to monstrous size. At night she'd lie awake over little criticisms. Her brooding kept up at meals, caused indigestion. Always tired, jittery, she'd weep if you said "boo!"

When Alice realized she must control her nerves or break down, she began a program of rest, diversion. Soon she was brimful of energy, her lively mind saw a hundred ways to solve little problems that had worried her.

You can overcome your "nerves" once you understand them. Our 32-page booklet explains nervous troubles, tells how to conquer them, win radiant health.

Popular Hamilton Bride has Many Peterborough Friends.

Mrs. Robinson Marston of Hamilton, who was Miss Muriel Gould before her marriage in St. Stephen's Church, Mount Hamilton, has many friends in Peterborough. Not only were her childhood days spent here, but every summer she has returned at vacation time. She is a niece of Mrs. W. Gatfield of King Street.

A most popular recent bride, Mrs. Marston received many gifts previous to her wedding. She was presented with copper and chrome candlesticks by the Sunday School of St. Stephen's Church, Mount Hamilton; dresser lamps by the A. Y.P.A.; a silver flower basket by the Chancel Guild; and a silver entree dish by her Sunday School scholars. The Service Department staff of the Canadian Westinghouse made the presentation of a silver tea service, her bridge club gave her a silver bread tray, and a number of other affairs, including miscellaneous and kitchen showers were given in her honor by her friends. On the Wednesday before her marriage, the bride entertained her friends at a charmingly arranged trousseau tea, when she was assisted in receiving by her mother and Mrs. H. Marston, mother of the groom.

"Miss Cherry Blossom" To Be Presented by Choir.

The picturesque and colorful scenes set in a Japanese tea garden, the musical comedy, "Miss Cherry Blossom," will be presented by the entire choir of Murray Street Baptist Church on Thursday and Friday evenings this week. Under the able direction of Arthur Collison, A.D. C.M., the choir has expended much time and exertion to perfect the production of two and a half hours' musical entertainment and witty dialogue, to be accentuated by most attractive native costumes. No depiction of Cherry Blossom land would be complete without a Geisha chorus, which is part of this fascinating production. A good deal of the stage scenery has been painted by Sven Valentine, a talented local artist.

Mother and Daughter Banquet, Enjoyable Event.

A vivid abcount of her recent trip to the Orient, when she attended the World Educational Conference in Japan, was given by the speaker of the evening, Miss M. Lees, at the 4th annual Mother and Daughter banquet of the Teen-age W. A. branch of St. John's church on Tuesday night.

During her enjoyable trip on the Empress of Japan, Miss Lees was particularly impressed at Nagisaka, where four hundred people, men, women and children, spent eight hours refueling the boat with twenty-four hundred tons of coal. A wonderful reception was everywhere accorded the delegates. Miss Lees had as her host the Minister of Education of Japan, and an amusing example of Oriental politeness was shown in the description of a fifteen course banquet, when the guests, fearing that their time was up, hesitated to tell their hosts, and the Japanese were too polite to tell them so, with the result the boat had to be held over for them. Street scenes and native dress were entertainingly described by the speaker, who mentioned a roof garden where ten shows were going on at the same time.

Forbidden to land at Peiking, some Americans disobeyed, and were delayed for several days, being asked to drive ambulances and care for the wounded. A civil service man in the party finally left by army plane. On her return trip, Miss Lees visited Honolulu where she saw and photographed Shirley Temple.

For the banquet the tables were charmingly decorated, the head table with glowing yellow 'mums and matching tapers, and the six other tables with bouquets of bittersweet, pumpkins filled with fruit, and strips of yellow and brown crepe paper.

Grace was said by the Rev. Canon Robertson. The toast to His Majesty was proposed by the Rev. Mr. Brain, and responded to with the National Anthem. Miss Jean McElwain, president of the branch, proposed the toast to the Mothers, the response being given by Mrs. C. H. Stanton. The toast to the Daughters was proposed by Mrs. McWilliams, and responded to by Miss Eileen Gynane, the treasurer. The speaker was introduced by the Rev. Mr. Brain, with a vote of thanks for her splendid address being voiced by Miss Edith Laws, the vice-president. Mrs. E. M. Foster presided at the piano for an enjoyable sing-song.

The general convenors for the affair were Mrs. F. D. Craig and Mrs. George Groombridge. Assistants were Mrs. H. Lemmings, Mrs. D. J. Eldred, Mrs. N. Stanger, Mrs. R. Ford, Miss S. Ecobichon.

At the conclusion the flowers from the head table were prettily presented to Miss Lees by little Francis Wardle.

Miss May Welsh Hostess to Mission Circle.

Miss May Welch, Princess street, was hostess Tuesday night for the autumn thankoffering meeting of the X.L. Mission Circle, when twenty-seven girls responded to the roll call.

Introducing the new study book "A new church faces a new world," Mrs. Ernest Mesley, the Circle secretary for the Bay of Quinte conference branch brought an interesting glimpse into the study for 1937-38 with many practical suggestions for carrying out the program.

With the president, Jessie Martin presiding the prayers were taken by Connie Wagar and Marjorie Kitchen, while Dorothy Frost gave a thanksgiving legend. Following in the same thought was the reading "Thanksgiving Ann" by Doreen Elliott and the beautiful solo, "I Thank Thee Lord" by Marion Wood with Olive Searles at the piano.

Temperance, which is taken up at all meetings was presented by the secretary of the department, Jean Rose, in a very appropriate story.

The business session included a splendid and encouraging report by the treasurer, Jean Hammond. The membership contest was reported, with seven new members enrolled. Much enthusiasm is evidenced in this contest, which it is trusted will greatly increase missionary interest.

Zetta Wood voiced the sincere thanks of the X.L. Circle to Mrs. Welch, who lent her home for the meeting, to the guest speaker, Mrs. E. Mesley and to the committee which provided the delicious refreshments, May Welch, Jennie Cuff and Olive Searles. The November meeting will be held at the new home of Mrs. Gerald Cuff, Prince street.

Miss F. Foster Lectures On India.

The Evening branch of St. John's Women's Auxiliary deviated from the monthly business meeting to listen to a lecture on India by Miss Flora Foster, secretary-treasurer of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, an interdenominational society formed solely to minister to the bodily needs and spiritual welfare of the heathen in India.

Introduced by the Rev. Canon Robertson, the speaker gave a most enlightening talk vividly illustrated with many slides. The miserable lives of the untouchables, the unwanted women and babies who are cared for in Canada Hospital and the joy evidenced when the Christmas toys arrive in the W.A. bales, were graphically described by Miss Foster. The mammoth task undertaken by the missionaries in India was brought home to the audience, when it was shown that in a population of 349,000,000, only 7,000,000 are followers of Christ. India is made up of little villages and in such numbers that if one had been visited a day since the year that Christ was born, there would still be eighty villages to see. Because of his Indian Empire King George is ruler over more heathens than Christians, the speaker said. Prayers as well as material aid were earnestly asked for those who have given up home and friends to take the gospel to the far corners of the earth. The speaker was warmly thanked by Miss Agnes Stout for her kindness in coming to lecture to the W.A.

Invitations to attend the lecture had been extended to the sister W.A. branches of other Anglican churches in the city. Worthy of mention was the representative body from St. George's Church who attended despite the inclement weather.

Refreshments were served by Miss E. Clementi and her committee.

George St. Y.P.U. Successful Meeting.

Sixty young people listened to Cameron Gorry, boys' secretary at the Y.M.C.A. when he delivered a splendid address on the subject of "Friendship" at the regular weekly meeting of George Street Y.P.U. on Tuesday evening. Mr. Gorry dealt especially with boy and girl friendships.

Opening with a sing-song, led by Ken Brenton, the meeting was in charge of the Christian Fellowship group, the chair being occupied by Miss Norma Rennie, assistent convenor. Lloyd Parnell and Bill Griffith assisted in the worship service.

A number of Normal students were present, and were welcomed by the president, Jake Burnham. The recreation period, under the leadership of Jack Skitch, was enjoyed at the close.

Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary Meets.

A very enjoyable meeting of the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity United Church was held on Monday evening in the ladies' parlor. Taking as their theme, "The Church Universal," Miss Mina Edwards and Miss Ola Gow read appropriate scripture passages and Miss Gow gave a brief paper on "The Glory of the Heavens."

Mrs. H. V. Dobson sang very beautifully, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," with accompaniment by Mrs. G. N. Monerief.

Miss Irene Madill gave a most interesting summary of the first chapter of the study book dealing with the beginning of the church in the western part of Canada.

Miss W. Skuce, the treasurer, reported that well over half of the Auxiliarys financial objective for the year has been raised to date, almost forty dollars being realized by the copper contest just completed. Mrs. Upper reported that the dates for the Cooking School have been changed to the first week in November, and that Mrs. McLean would be willing to have one evening school. It was decided to have this on the Wednesday. Committees were appointed to be responsible for serving tea, and taking tickets.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed when several new members were welcomed.

Marston-Gould.

St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Mount Hamilton, was the scene of an interesting wedding recently, when Muriel Ada, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Gould, was married to Robinson Marston, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Marston. The Rev. Canon John Samuel officiated. The ceremony was fully choral, the music being played by Harold Payne. During the signing of the register, George Gatfield, cousin of the bride, played as a violin solo, "Adoration." The church was beautifully decorated with mauve and yellow gladioli and ferns, and the altar with white asters and gypsophila.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white Chantilly lace over satin, made on princess lines. Her finger-tip veil of tulle was arranged in cap effect with a wreath of orange blossoms. She wore white kid accessories and carried a shower bouquet of Killarney roses and gypsophila.

Mrs. F. Hyder, matron of honor, wore a gown of maize chiffon over taffeta, with matching halo hat and accessories. She carried a sheaf of mauve gladioli and yellow statice, tied with yellow ribbon. Miss Mary Hart, cousin of the groom, as bridesmaid, wore mauve chiffon, yellow chiffon halo, and yellow accessories. She carried yellow gladioli and mauve asters tied with mauve ribbon. The best man was Alfred Marston, cousin of the groom, and the ushers were Ernest Gould, brother of the bride, and Ford Hyder.

The bride's mother was gowned in Lido blue triple sheer and lace, with matching hat and shoulder bouquet of Butterfly roses. Mrs. Marston, mother of the groom, wore Glory blue crepe with lace trimming, matching hat and corsage of Talisman roses.

One hundred guests attended the reception in the Parish Hall, when the parents of the bride and groom received with the bridal party. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Marston left later for Ottawa, the latter wearing a navy frock with finger-tip cape, navy hat and accessories, and a grey cloth coat. They will reside in Hamilton.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr and Mrs. F. Turner, Boston, Mass.; Miss Hilda Smith, Mrs. J. E. Gilbert, Ernest Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. H. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wells, W. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Benton, all of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. Gatfield, Mrs. G. Gatfield, Mrs. J. Gatfield, Miss Carm Crowe, Mrs. C. Gilders, and Miss Doreen Gilders, all of Peterborough; Miss Eileen Stones of Brantford.

Pretty Autumn Wedding

One of the prettiest of the fall weddings was solemnized in St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday morning, when Helen Brady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Brady, was married to Ferdinand Wolff, son of Mrs. Wolff and the late Alfred Wolff. The groom's brother, the Rev. Father Wolff of Cobourg performed the ceremony, Miss Betty Brady attended her sister as bridesmaid, and Ernest Wolff, also brother of the groom, was best man. The bride is holding a Mother o'pearl prayer book, that was given here by a very dear friend, with the request that she carry it at her wedding. (Cripps Studio Photo.)

ARE YOU ONLY A THREE-QUARTER WIFE?

THERE are certain things a woman has to put up with and be a good sport.

Men, because they are men, can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is all love and kindness three weeks in a month and a hell cat the rest of the time.

No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Crown Concludes Its Evidence Abernethy Manslaughter Case

The jury might find criminal negligence if a lesser degree of negligence were found by the jury in Abernethy's conduct.

"If, on the other hand, you think it was a mere accident, that kind of negligence would render a man liable for damages in a civil suit."

Advice to Police.

Evidence of Sergeant Harry Thompson, Belleville, and Constable D. G. Campbell, Campbellford, of the provincial police, respecting statements to them by the accused was withheld from the jury and was disallowed by Mr. Justice Jeffrey.

When interviewed at Cobourg by the two officers, Mr. Abernethy refused to sign a statement regarding the drowning of Miss Watt. Their evidence of verbal conversation with the accused was mildly censured by His Lordship.

"I should guard against the accused being taken advantage of in any statements he made. Police officers should not make evidence against an accused, and that is exactly what you have done in this case. In my discretion I rule that this evidence is not admissable. I am not saying you acted dishonestly, but to a certain extent there is some reflection on you. It is your duty to make it absolutely clear to an accused person you are there to extract or exact any evidence you can, but in doing so just be an officer who wants to be fair to the accused person."

The jurors were: Robert Lee, of Seymour; Walter Dodd, Hastings; Douglas Ferguson, Hope township; Russel Osborne, of Clarke; Percy Vancamp, Cartwright; Samuel Covell, Brighton; Fred Armstrong, Colborne; Blake Short, Darlington; Lloyd Ames, Brighton township; Harvey Carr, Brighton village; F. G. Smith, Darlington; Geo. Ferguson, Cobourg; Frank Usher, Haldimand.

Mr. Donald in his explanatory summary to the jury said Mr. Abernethy and Miss Watt were driving in a coach, an automobile with two doors, on the road east of the canal and parallel with the Campbellford-Brighton highway which is to the west of the canal. As they were going toward Campbellford "something happened, and the car turned across the road and also across a strip of grass, and ran down a slight slope into the water. The accused was able to extricate himself, came to the surface and swam to shore."

Some of the evidence dwelt upon a bent tie rod and broken brake tube on the car, several witnesses suggesting that condition might have been caused by a chain used in dragging the car out of the canal; or it might have been the result of some collision, or rolling over a big stone. The broken tube would immediately put the foot brakes out of commission, and the bent tie rod would be felt in steering the car.

Dr. H. B. Longmore of Campbellford, who performed an autopsy on the body of Miss Watt, said her death was by drowning, and there was no evidence of violence.

Identified Photographs

Frank C. Bonnycastle, Campbellford photographer, was the first witness. He identified a number of photographs of the road along the east side of the canal which he took on May 2, the day following the drowning of Miss Watt.

To Mr. Gordon witness said the water in the canal was about the normal level that day.

John C. Birmingham, Campbellford, engineer on the Trent Canal, submitted to the court a draft plan of the canal at the place of the drowning.

"The roadway is 28 feet wide," he testified. "The grass bank to the edge of the canal is also 28 feet. It is a flat level road and the slope of the bank is 1½ feet to 1 feet. The depth of water in the canal is 9 feet. I would say the road is a very fair macadam road. From the place where I made the survey there is clear vision 960 feet to the north and 720 feet to the south."

Girl An Eye Witness

Jean Fraser, 20, lives on the west side of the canal and also on the west side of the main highway, south from Campbellford. Her father's house stands about 100 feet from the highway.

"I was upstairs on the evening of May 1. I saw a car going slowly up the road on the east side of the canal. Its speed was about 10 or 15 miles an hour. There was a man and woman in it. The man was driving. The car turned suddenly to the left and ran into the canal.

"When the car went in the water I heard the woman scream. She called 'help' half a dozen times. The woman's head and shoulders were out of the window when she was screaming. I ran down stairs and told my father and brother. I then went back upstairs but didn't look out the window. About 7.30 I went across to the canal and saw the men trying to get the car out. Before that I saw Mr. Abernethy coming out of the water. It was only a few minutes after I saw the car go in."

Mr. Donald—Could you estimate how long the car was out of the water before sinking?

Miss Fraser—It was only a short time. The last I saw of the car the rear end was going under the water."

To Mr. Gordon witness said Miss Watt was screaming as the car was going into the water.

"Would it be difficult for a woman to get out of the window of the car?"

"I suppose not."

"How long did you see the car floating?"

"I don't know."

His Lordship—Was it floating? That is the first mention you have made of it floating.

Miss Fraser—I saw it floating for a ways.

Witness verified her statement in a deposition that when she saw the woman's head out of the window the car was descending into the canal and the water.

"The car went straight down the bank and in the water it turned down stream," Miss Fraser said.

Saw Car Floating

William Fraser said he ran out of the house when his daughter, Jean, told him there was a car in the canal.

"The car was still floating when I went out of the house," Mr. Fraser said.

"I heard screaming. It sounded like a woman's voice. I ran next door and telephoned an alarm. When I got back, probably two minutes afterward, the car was still floating down stream."

Mr. Donald—How far was it from shore?

Mr. Fraser—About ten feet.

"How long did it float before it sank as you watched it?"

"Probably two minutes."

"Did you see it sink?"

"No. I have a boat and I went for the paddle. When I got back the car had disappeared under the water. I went around to the other bank of the canal. I saw a man getting out on the shore."

Mr. Fraser said he saw the car dragged out of the water. Miss Watt's body was behind the front seat.

Paddled Out to Bubbles

Hamilton Fraser, son of the previous witness, said part of the top of the car was still above the water when he first saw it. "I paddled out to the car. A man had just come to the surface. Bubbles were still coming from the car. I dove down but with no result. The man started to swim to shore. I followed him. He was standing in water slightly above his knees and near the east side of the canal. The man was the accused.

"I helped him up the bank. I asked him how many were in the car. He said "just one." I asked him what happened. He said he couldn't account for what happened; he lost control of the car, and it had been giving him trouble previously."

Mr. Donald—Did you hear any screams?

Mr. Fraser—Yes, before I left the house.

Mr. Gordon, in cross-examination—"Did you observe he was nervous?"

"Yes, he was quite nervous when I reached him."

Constable Campbell

Provincial Constable D. G. Campbell, Campbellford, related how Abernethy's automobile was hauled out of the canal. The front was raised with a pole and a chain was looped around the axle between the right wheel and the body of the car. The car was then hauled out on the bank by a crane on a truck. The right front window of the coach was down five or six inches and the left front window was all the way down. The left door was on the first catch and the right door was closed firmly.

"While the car was still in the water I found it was in second gear. I put it in neutral so it could be moved more easily."

Officer Campbell produced a tie rod which he said he had removed from Mr. Abernethy's car. The tie rod connected the right front wheel with the left for joint steering purposes.

"I found the tie rod was bent," Officer Campbell said. "Later I found the tube to the right front brake had been severed. It conducts the fluid to the hydraulic brakes. The chain by which the car was hauled out of the canal was tightened against the tie rod and the brake tube.

Mr. Donald—What would be the effect of the broken brake tube on the operation of the car?

"The foot brake wouldn't work."

"What about the bent tie rod, would it make any difference in steering?"

"It would cause the wheels to toe out, but there was no change in the steering. I tested the car afterwards."

Mr. Gordon—Would the bent tie rod affect steering at all?

"The driver would feel that the steering gear was not in order."

Mr. Gordon—You knew Mr. Abernethy had an accident a month or more before May 1?

"Yes, it was near Norham. He told me his daughter Shirley was with him and in playing with the heater in the car she turned it on. He leaned over to turn it off and as he did that the car ran into a culvert."

"You did not observe that the brake tube was broken until you examined the car in a garage?"

"No."

Re-examined by Mr. Donald, witness said he drove in the car on May 18.

"Was there any change in the condition of the car?"

"The parts were on the car just as when it was taken from the water."

"What did you do on May 18?"

"I drove the car from Tom Hill's garage to Fred Rowe's to have him examine it. I found it handled very well considering in had a bent tie rod. You could tell in driving something was not right. I was able to drive up the front street of Campbellford. The foot brake wasn't working. I had to use the mergency brake to stop it. Mr. Rowe and I drove it along the canal road at speeds from 10 to 40 miles an hour, on both sides of the road and in the centre. We wanted to ascertain whether anything in the condition of the road might have caused the car to turn to the left. The car acted normally. It showed no tendency to go to the left. Then we turned the car to the left at 10 or 12 miles an hour and brought it to a stop quite readily on the grass between the road and the canal by using the emergency brake only.

Repaired Car in April

Fred Rowe, garage proprietor in Campbellford, said he had repaired Mr. Abernethy's car after the Norham accident about the end of March.

"I put it in first class condition and Mr. Abernethy took it away on April 14. I asked him how it ran and he said 'fine.' That was three days later. From then until May 1 I saw him driving around Campbellford. When I repaired the car the tie rod and brake tube were in good order."

Mr. Rowe stated that when he saw the car after May 1, "scrape marks on the tie rod looked as if it might have been bent by the chain when the car was pulled out of the water."

Mr. Donald—Could it have been bent by hitting a stone?

"Probably if it hit a big stone the wheel wouldn't go over. If it was bent the driver would know immediately something was wrong."

Mr. Donald—Can you offer any explanation about the broken brake tube?

"If the chain was pulling against the tube it would break it.

"How much pressure would it take to break it?"

"One or two men pulling it. It is only of rubber and fabric."

Mr. Rowe said the tube could be broken if the car ran into something and tube caught on it. "But the foot brake would be of no use then."

"Did you find any more damage except the tie rod and tube?"

"Nothing more than a few dinges on the body."

"Was there any evidence of a collision?"

"No."

Mr. Rowe said he drove the car about the middle of May just as it was when it came out of the water.

"I drove it over 40 miles an hour and had no trouble keeping it on the road even with the bent tie rod."

Percy Seymour, garage mechanic, Campbellford, described how the chain was hooked around the right end of the front axle and also around the tie rod. The car was hauled out of the water by pulling on both the axle and tie rod.

"When I examined the car in Hall's garage the chain was still around the tie rod, and the brake tube was broken."

Mr. Donald—Was there any other damage to the moving parts?

"No. I found the steering gear okay. I inserted a new tube and tested the foot brake. I found it 100 per cent. I drove the car up to 50 miles an hour."

His Lordship—This is the only time in a trial I ever heard a witness admit he drove 50 miles an hour.

H. M. Fowlds, Campbellford youth, said he saw Mr. Abernethy coming out of the water of the canal.

"I just drove along there about 7 in the evening. I took him to Dr. Longmore's. On the way I asked him what happened. He said: 'The dam steering gear must have broken again'."

ROBERT B. STEWART.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Oct. 20. — The funeral of the late Robert B. Stewart, whose death took place at the home of his son Fred, in Stewart Valley, Saskatchewan, on October 12, was held on the arrival of the noon train on Sunday, October 17. A large gathering of friends and former acquaintances were in attendance.

The deceased was born at Keene in 1844, the son of one of the earliest pioneers of the Township of Otonabee. During his younger years he was associated with the Buck Lumber Company, later taking up farming in Asphodel Township.

In the year 1890 he and the family moved to North Dakota, where he farmed until 1905, then moving to Saskatchewan, being the first settler in a district twenty miles north of Swift Current, now known as Stewart Valley. Here until recently he played an important part in the development of that area, being instrumental in bringing many settlers from his former home in North Dakota and also many from this community.

With the rapid development of this district, the Canadian Pacific Railway completed a track line from Swift Current in 1928, where a monster crowd gathered to witness Mr. Stewart, the first pioneer, drive the golden spike at the terminus of the steel. As a recognition of the prominent part he played in this community the C.P.R. some years ago presented him with a life time pass over the entire system.

The funeral service was held in Knox Church, Swift Current, on Thursday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. E. Jones and the Rev. H. D. Ranns. The large number present from the town and outlying districts bore mute testimony to the part he had played among them.

Surviving are three sons, John, Walter and Fred of Stewart Valley, and a daughter Annie, Mrs. John Scott of Norwood. His wife predeceased him in 1904 in North Dakota, a son Robert died at Stewart Valley in 1911, and another son William died in Oregon in 1926.

The burial service was conducted by Rev. A. S. Cleland of the Norwood United Church, and the pallbearers were two grandsons, Max and Ray Scott, and four nephews, John Stewart of Hastings, Thomas Thompson, Russel Thompson, and Wellington Burgess of Norwood.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Sylvanus Mitts, Fuller; two sons, Everett of Foxboro, and Isaac of Bancroft.

The funeral was held on Wednesday, October 20, in St. Andrew's Church. Her husband, the late James McCann, and two daughters predeceased her some years ago.

GUERILLA UNITS PUSH JAPS BACK IN NORTH CHINA

repetition of previous incidents in which Chinese bombs fell in crowded sections.

Both Chinese and Japanese planes were active in the Shanghai-Nanking area today. Japanese dropped heavy explosives on the Chinese airdrome at Nanking and Chinese raided Japanese lines about Shanghai.

Chinese air and artillery attacks on the Japanese landing field in the Yangtzepoo area of the international settlement were believed responsible for transfer of a number of Japanese planes to a more remote landing field near Woosung, 12 miles down the Whangpoo River from Shanghai.

Authoritative foreign military observers told of one instance in which a clever Chinese flier destroyed seven Japanese bombers at the Yangtzepoo airdrome.

They said four Japanese bombers returning from a raid inland were joined by a fifth plane just as night fell. The fifth plane swung into formation with the others and switched on navigation lights when they did.

The four planes landed, but the fifth turned out to be a Chinese raider. The Chinese pilot soared overhead at less than 500 feet elevation and dropped two heavy bombs which destroyed the four planes and three others.

Admitted and authenticated Japanese losses in the Shanghai area total 50 planes. Chinese asserted they have shot down more than 100 Japanese aircraft.

FREE FROM SCIATICA FOR 35 YEARS

In Perfect Health at 73—Thanks to Kruschen

Thirty-five years ago this septuagenarian was helpless with sciatica. Then he heard of Kruschen. Since that day, he has enjoyed perfect health. Here is his remarkable story:—

"Thirty-five years ago, I had a severe attack of sciatica, and could scarcely move for about six weeks. Then I started taking Kruschen—about half - a - teaspoonful every morning in hot water. In a few weeks, I got rid of the awful pain in my hips. I have never had to consult a doctor, since, and am still in perfect health at 73 years of age, which I can only attribute to taking Kruschen Salts every morning."—T.A.

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need of internal cleanliness. Eventually, they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then, probably for the first time in their lives, they start getting rid, every day, of all waste matter from the system. The result is renewed health and vigour. Ailments due to clogged systems vanish, youth returns, and life becomes really worth living. advt.

Dinner And Concert Concludes St. James' Church Anniversary

Miscellaneous Programs Delight Large Audience At South-End Church

The members and friends of St. James' United Church on Tuesday evening concluded their anniversary celebrations with an unusually fine fowl dinner, followed by a miscellaneous concert.

At the prettily-decorated tables, the guests were efficiently and bountifully served by the members of the Women's Association, after which they gathered in the church auditorium for the evening's program.

Preceding the program proper, the Sunday School orchestra, with Mrs. C. Searles at the piano, gave a splendid group of selections. The varied items which followed were announced by the genial chairman, Mr. E. R. Frost, representing the Board of Stewards.

"At Eventide" was the opening vocal duet, sung in fine harmony by Mrs. E. Kitney, A.T.C.M., and Ernest Davis, and was followed by an innovation in a much appreciated group of accordian solos by Mr. Danario.

Equally pleasing were the selections on the Hawaiian guitar by Mr. Partridge, who also delighted the audience when he played in duet with Mr. Danario.

Interspersing the musical numbers were the reading by Eva Blanche Parr, whose well-chosen groups received much applause and included (1) "Back at Squashville," (2) "Market Place Conversation," and (1) "At the Movies," (2) "Johnny and the Ministry."

Instrumental music was also contributed by Frances Wells, A.T.C.M., whose piano solos showed fine technique, and Cecil Lapp, organist of the church, who gave a brilliant piano interpretation.

Mrs. H. Doig, in her beautiful soprano voice, sang "Keep On" and "Sweet Afton," completing a musical program of rare excellence.

In humorous vein, Rev. F. Craik, pastor of the church, briefly addressed the congregation, as speaker of the evening. He suggested that they seek to find the good in all, for "there is more good in common people than is shown on the surface," he said. "In order to find pearls, some one must go to the depths; men must sacrifice to find coal for our furnaces, and to obtain fish for our food, dangers must be braved. So, if we are to get anything out of life, we must forget self and try to find the good in others."

The chairman expressed appreciation to all those who had contributed to the success of the evening's entertainment, which was concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

WOUNDED OFFICER RETAINED HUMOR UNTIL HIS DEATH

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 20.—(CP).—Sergeant Fred Davidson of the Sudbury police force, wounded fatally last July 11 when one of two men he was questioning emptied the contents of a revolver into his body, retained his sense of humor until he died, according to the nurse who attended him.

Testifying at the trial of Tom Pornomarenko which opened at the fall assizes of the Ontario Supreme Court yesterday, Nurse K. Lauzon said the wounded officer knew he was going to die. She said that on the night before his death, Sergt. Davidson told her she wouldn't need to change her uniform on his case any more after that night.

Davidson was shot down on a Sudbury street as he was questioning two men he had stopped. In his death-bed declaration read into the court records yesterday, Davidson said Pornomarenko was one of his two assailants. The Crown charges Victor Gray, allegedly a companion of Pornomarenko, was the one who did the shooting.

Gray was killed by police bullets when he and Pornomarenko were trapped in a Spanish River rock cut 25 miles west of Sudbury. Pornomarenko was seriously wounded in the fusillade of bullets that ended Northern Ontario's greatest manhunt 11 days after Davidson was shot down. Held under arrest in an Espanola hospital, Pornomarenko was brought to trial for the alleged murder when he recovered.

TAME WILD DUCKS SHOT AT HASTINGS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 20.—Considerable feeling has been aroused by Hastings citizens as a result of the shooting of seven ducks, which "Dit" Clapper and Henry Scriver had originally introduced to this village in their wild state, but which had since become domesticated. It is alleged that someone shot the ducks near the railroad bridge a few days ago.

There were originally, it was said, between thirty and forty ducks, comprising several flocks but since the opening of the duck hunting season the total has been cut down to a small flock. They had become a familiar figure on the water this past couple of years and were tame enough to permit any one to approach and feed them.

HUMANE SOCIETY DECIDES TO HOLD CLOSED MEETINGS

"There are some things go on here that we do not want printed," President Thomas Sargent declared as he announced meetings of the Peterborough Humane Society will henceforth be closed to the public and the press, and asked the press to leave Tuesday night's regular meeting of the society. "Our meetings are closed," he told a reporter present. "The public is not allowed."

Believed to be a move to curb publicity of the split in the local Society ranks over the matter of possible cruelties to donkeys in donkey baseball, the expulsion was executed with the apparent approval of other members at the meeting. The president admitted that the Society is dependent on funds contributed by the general public, but stated supporters will in the future be informed of doings of the Society by press release from the secretary.

Following last month's meeting of the Society, the press carried the story of the resignation of President Sargent and Secretary Mrs. A. Young from the Society executive. The resignations were the result of a sharp division over the matter of cruelties to donkeys in donkey baseball. Mr. Sargent had witnessed a game of donkey baseball played here under Kiwanis Club auspices and gave the opinion no cruelty existed. Mrs. Young admitted she had never witnessed a game but concurred with the Provincial headquarter's view that cruelties were involved.

Mr. Sargent was subsequently induced to reconsider his resignation and was again acting as president Tuesday night. Mrs. Young was not present at the meeting, being out of the city. The Society's press secretary, Miss E. V. Wood, declined to reveal whether Mrs. Young has consented to continue as secretary.

FOREMEN GIVEN ADDRESS ON HEAT

The importance of heat, "Nature's most powerful force," in the maintaining of today's highly complex industrial civilization was demonstrated to more than 200 members and guests of the C.G.E. Foremen's Association at the main office of the Canadian General Electric Co., Limited, Tuesday evening through the medium of the talking motion picture, "Heat and Its Control."

The picture, produced by Johns-Manville, and the first sound movie ever to be made on this subject, depicted the story of heat from the time man worshipped the sun to present-day methods of development and manufacture of heat conservation materials.

Special sets, accurate in detail, were used to show James Watt's invention of the steam engine, and other historical milestones in the story of man's attainment of mastery over heat.

Actual laboratory demonstrations, animated drawings and shadow graphs were used to visualize the nature of heat and other technical phases of the story.

The picture likewise showed man's first efforts toward the scientific conservation of heat, the activity in a modern heat research laboratory, and how modern materials for conserving heat are developed, manufactured and utilized.

A special showing of the picture was also made Tuesday afternoon at the Vocational School.

Fred Cripps Has 3 Prints Accepted

Fred Cripps, well-known Peterborough photographer, has been honored by the acceptance of three prints for hanging in the second annual Western Ontario Salon of Photography at London, Ontario. All three are character studies.

The three were included in a group of 132 selected from hundreds of prints submitted from this continent, Europe and Australia. Sponsored by the London Camera Club, the salon was on view at the recent Western Ontario Fair. The Prints have been returned to this city and are on view at Mr. Cripps' studio.

1937 Model!

This buckboard made in the local carriage building shops of Harry B. McGinness (in driver's seat) was shipped from here Tuesday to the order of the Fraser Lumber company, Edmundston, New Brunswick. It is probably the first buckboard manufactured in this section of Canada in over thirty-five years. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up By Examiner Reporters.

DUCKS PLENTIFUL.

Ducks are unusually plentiful in the Chemong district, according to Chief Dan Whetung, who told The Examiner Tuesday that the birds seemed more numerous than usual. A number of American sportsmen are having good luck.

JUDGING JUNIOR PLOWING.

Mac Morrison, of Woodville, accompanied by Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions began the round of visits for judging in the annual boys' home-plowing competition this morning. A total of 12 entries were registered in the four classes. The judges expected to complete their work before evening.

OLD INVOICES.

Members of the staff of E. L. Payne, druggist, have uncovered in the basement of the establishment some interesting old documents that show that the building has housed a drug store for at least seventy years. The find comprised a bundle of invoices for goods bought from Toronto and Montreal firms in 1867 by C. Ormond. The business was afterward carried on under the name of Ormond and Walsh.

PICKEREL FISHING.

There seems to be some confusion as to whether or not pickerel fishing is legal at the present time. A local man who has been accustomed to trying his luck in the fall months told The Examiner today that fishermen at the Peterborough lock had been told by Fish and Game Inspector Lyons that the practice must be stopped. The inspector was out of town today and no statement from him was available.

TOURING MANY LANDS.

Rev. A. W. Young is to give a lantern slide lecture on "Touring Many Lands" by Mrs. G. Ernest Forbes at St. Andrew's Sunday school auditorium at 8 o'clock this evening (Wednesday). The slides were prepared from pictures obtained by Mrs. Forbes on an extensive tour, which took her to the beauty spots of Japan, China, Korea, India, Africa and Trinidad. Mrs. Forbes is president of the Dominion Board of the W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada.

COSTLY DRIVE HOME

For operating a motor car while his driving permit was suspended by the Ontario Department of Highways (Motor Vehicles Branch) a George street business man was this morning ordered by Magistrate A. E. Gee to pay a fine of $25 and 75 cents costs. He was allowed a week's grace in which to pay the penalty, with two weeks' imprisonment in default. The defendant urged that all he did was drive his wife home, when he failed to get a taxi-cab on a recent rainy night. The total of his fine and costs would have paid for 103 taxi rides about the city.

NINE CASES OF DISEASE.

The Board of Health was informed Tuesday night that nine cases of communicable disease existed in the city during September. Two deaths followed from two pneumonia cases. Other cases were poliomyelitis, 1; tuberculosis, 1; whooping cough, 1; venereal disease, 3; encephalitis, 1.

Officers of the local elected for this year are: Mike English, president; Norman Haigh, vice-president; Alex. Townsley, recording secretary; Art Snowden, secretary-treasurer; William McBride, Harry Shaer, and Gordon Ellis, trustees. The local now claims 400 paid-up members.

25 DEATHS PAST MONTH.

Causes of the 25 deaths which occurred in this city during September were listed as follows in the M.O.H.'s report to the Board of Health Tuesday night: Infections and parasitic diseases, 1; cancer and other malignant tumors, 4; non-malignant tumors, 1; cerebral hemorrhage, embolism and thrombosis, 4; diseases of the heart, 4; other diseases of the circulatory system, 1; pneumonia, 2; appendicitis, 2; nephritis, 1; other diseases of the genito-urinary system, 1; congenital debility, premature birth, etc., 1; senility, 1; violent or accidental deaths, suicide excepted, 2.

NURSE MADE 249 VISITS.

A total of 113 tuberculosis cases and contacts were visited. She indicates there were five attendances at the Mental Health Clinic during the month. Reporting on the Convalescent Serum Clinic, she states 36 donors were present this month, eight of these donating blood for the first time. The total remuneration paid for the blood by the Government was $692.50.

Salvation Army Temple Is Depot To Receive Relief Donations

Donations are continuing to pour in to the Western Relief Fund from all parts of the city and district.

The Salvation Army Temple here is being utilized as the central receiving depot, but while contributions of produce are beginning to mount up, there is still a long way to go before the amount required for the 3-car quota is reached.

A week today it is hoped there will be enough produce on hand to proceed with the loading and despatch of the three freight cars which will be placed on the C.P.R. sidings here. When loaded the cars will be routed over Canadian Pacific lines freight free for the relief of needy people in drought-stricken areas of the West.

Alderman James Dutton, chairman and treasurer, acknowledges the promise of 50 bags of produce which is coming from Warsaw; and also a donation of 8 bags of produce that was brought to the receiving depot yesterday by a local man.

Along with church organizations and service clubs, the secondary, separate and public schools of the city are all doing their part. Inspector Wightman is organizing the public schools, while the priests of the various Catholic parishes are organizing the children in the separate schools. Alderman Dutton appeared before the student body at the Collegiate and stressed the need of the people of the West.

The Jewish community of the city are doing their full share also in answer to the city and district-wide appeal and have already donated the sum of $28.75 to the Fund.

Among other cash donations was a further contribution of $13 from All Saints' Anglican Church.

POSTER CONTEST WINNERS NAMED

One of the activities developed by the members of the Special Features committee in the Y.W.C.A. campaign, of which F. E. Johnston is chairman, was the inauguration of a poster contest by the Art classes of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, and that of the St. ePters High School.

Over fifty of these posters were submitted in the competition, to be used as an advertising medium pertaining to the activities of the "Y" relative to the Extension Fund Campaign being launched next week for $50,000.

These posters were on display in the Richard Hall, Ltd., store on George street, distributed in the windows by Chas. Saunders, member of the committee, in order that they might be impartially judged by the following committee of judges: Miss C. McCarthy, Miss M. Montgomery, C. S. Browne and Chas. Saunders.

So that all would have an equal chance, no identification marks were allowed and to permit of each poster being judged on its merits, a number was inserted on each. The first prize of $4.00 was awarded to Marilyn Munro; the second prize of $2.50 was awarded to Lorne Casey; the third prize of $1.50 was awarded to Lenore Tinker. The following posters submitted were given honorable mention: Jean McColl and Eunice Armstrong.

In commenting upon the contest, the campaign director, S. Stalford, stated that all the posters submitted were effectively designed, and considering that these posters were primarily to interest the public in behalf of the campaign, he was submitting a special prize for the poster which, in his opinion, was of the best commercial value to the campaign, selecting that of Vivian Sullivan for this special prize of $3.00 and in doing so he would like to award special mention to the poster submitted by Jean McColl.

Together with the regular campaign display cards, these posters submitted in the contest are now on display in the various stores and offices throughout the city.

Ukrainian Music Is Most Complex

In view of the visit here on Friday night of the Ukrainian Home Choir who are to appear in the Collegiate auditorium under auspices of St. Paul's Men's Association, a word about Ukrainian music might not be out of place.

Mikola Gogol wrote, "The character of the Ukrainian song cannot be expressed in one word. It is exceedingly complex. In many cases it is light and graceful and hardly touches the ground. In others it assumes manly power, its tones grow strong and forceful. As for the music of sorrow, it is heard nowhere so vividly as in them, the tones of it live, scorn, tear the soul."

The renaissance of Ukrainian music began with M. Lysenko (1842-1912), at first with researches in the nation's folk music, and later in the conventional branches of music, such as opera, symphony, and chamber music.

EVIDENCE IS TAKEN LEE MURDER CASE AT HOSPITAL BED

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—The murder trial of Joseph C. Lee, 56, Hamilton businessman, will continue today after rulings by Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone that two statements, part of the Crown case, were not admissable as evidence. Further bedside evidence also will be taken.

A statement made by George H. Jackson before he died of bullet wounds allegedly inflicted by Lee last June 4 and a statement which Detective Albert Speakman said he obtained from Lee soon after the shooting were ruled inadmissable by His Lordship. He also refused an application by defence counsel for copies of interim reports from Crown psychiatrists who examined Lee.

Lee is charged with the murder of Jackson and John Anderson and the attempted murder of Anthony Anderson, brother of John. The shootings occurred in front of the Atlas Rubber Horseshoe plant here June 4. Lee was formerly associated with the three men in operating the plant.

Anthony Anderson gave evidence yesterday to H. O. Taylor, court stenographer, appointed commissioner to take the evidence from Anderson's hospital bed. A bullet wound in his spine, Anderson's condition would not permit further questioning after a session at which Crown and defence counsel were present. It will be continued today.

Sobs During Questioning

Anderson replied to questions in a faint voice or by nodding his head. Three times during the short interview he sobbed but grasped the head of the bed then answered the questions. When completed his testimony will be read to Mr. Justice Kingstone and the jury.

In ruling out evidence of Jackson's statement, Mr. Justice Kingstone said witnesses present when the ante-mortem statement was made did not satisfy the court Jackson really knew he had only a short time to live. As Lee's statement to police was in narrative form and contained only the substance of a long conversation it was inadmissable, he ruled.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

Withdrawing a complaint against a local youth charged with riding a bicycle on the sidewalks, Magistrate A. E. Gee commented, "There is altogether too much of this riding of bicycles on sidewalks." Charles White was remanded until Friday on a plea of not guilty to a charge of creating a public disturbance on Brown Street. A charge against Oswald Brooks, South Beach Hotel, of stealing a motor car, was withdrawn on payment of costs, on application of Chief Wallace Hendren, Lakefield. A drunk-driving charge against Arthur O'Reilly, this city, was also withdrawn, the Crown stating there was no evidence the defendant had been driving the car at the time it recently crashed a fence at the end of Wolfe Street.

LAST OF VICTIMS OF POLIO IS ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Medical officer of Health, Dr. G. Murray Fraser reported the last of the infantile paralysis epidemic as it touched this city, at a meeting of the Board of Health, last night. The fifth of the summer's local victims, a girl of 19, has been released from the Isolation Hospital, completely cured.

Hopeful that the arrival of cool Fall weather has minimized the chance of further cases, health officials are looking back to find the infantile paralysis record in this city relatively fortunate this season. The total of five cases was a low seasonal figure, reference to past records reveal.

Chest Clinic

Dr. Fraser reported progress has been made in arrangements for a visit here of the travelling chest clinic. It is expected the clinic will come here in November and will be accommodated in the Queen Mary Hospital, he said. Efforts to have all contacts and suspected cases examined will be made.

He explained no person will be allowed to attend the clinic unless referred by his or her physician, these precautions being taken to avoid possibility of persons not actually in need of examination attending the clinic, he said.

Septic Tank

Discussing a letter from Alderman G. N. Gordon complaining that a septic tank at the Auburn Mills is allowed to empty into the Otonabee, the Board received a report from Plumbing Inspector Arthur Metheral that the septic tank in question has no outlet to river waters. Plans of the septic tank layout demonstrating this fact, drawn up by the Sanitary Engineering Division of the Ontario Department of Health are available for examination at Mr. Metheral's office, the inspector's report said.

Complaint

The Board "received" a letter from Alderman Gordon complaining that no flushing is carried out on Peterborough streets and that they are swept dry contrary to by-law.

MAJOR FRED LORD TO GIVE ADDRESS

Major Frederick Lord, world famous American soldier of fortune who has taken part in six wars as a combat flyer, will be principal speaker at a meeting to be held at the Collegiate auditorium on Thursday, Oct. 21, at 8 p.m. under the auspices of The Canadian Committee To Aid Spanish Democracy. Major Lord is making a coast to coast speaking tour under the sponsorship of the Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy to tell of his experiences while flying a fighting plane on the Bilbao front for the Spanish Loyalist Government.

During the early days of the Spanish Civil War when the Loyalist Government was recruiting aircraft pilots for combat service, Major Lord engaged to fly on the Basque front. Reaching Spain early in November 1936, he was provided with an outdated Government plane and went into action against the modern aircraft flown by Fascists. Despite this handicap, Major Lord was credited with shooting down one Franco plane and destroying twelve others while bombing a Fascist airdrome. After two months of action, illness necessitated a trip to Paris for medical attention from where he returned to America.

Major Lord's life reads like a story from a Henty novel. Born in the U.S., he enlisted in the Canadian Royal Flying Corps during the World War and flew with the famous 79th Squadron, Sopwith Dolphins. He was credited with shooting down 22 German airplanes and one kite balloon, and was promoted to the rank of Flight Commander. He was shot down and severely wounded on November 9th, 1918, two days before the signing of the Armistice which ended hostilities.

Since then, Major Lord has served in two revolutions in Mexico; and in the air force of the Republic of Honduras. His campaigns were interspersed with periods of commercial aircraft flying and with prospecting for oil both here and abroad.

Major Lord is accompanied on tour by his wife, Mildred Lord, who was with him in Spain. She will speak during the meeting on the situation of Spanish women and children caught in the turmoil of civil war.

$50,000 Futurity Called Off Guardsmen Block Narragansett Gates Under Governor's Order

O'Hara Confers With Attorneys While Accepting Regular Entries

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Oct. 20—(AP)—The second running of the $50,000 New England Futurity scheduled for Saturday at Narragansett race track, was cancelled last night as a reduced force of National Guardsmen, acting under orders of Governor Robert E. Quinn, continued to block the track's opening.

Racing Secretary Pat Horgan earlier had announced entries would be received for today's regular racing card.

Meanwhile, Managing Director Walter E. O'Hara who, backed by a Supreme Court decision defied Governor Quinn's demand that he resign, conferred with his attorneys but gave no clue as to his next course of action.

A reduction in the corps of Guardsmen on duty was announced shortly after cancellation of the big race.

In curtailing the riot squads from 300 officers and men to four officers and 65 men, Adjutant-General Herbert R. Dean said he felt a provisional battery would be sufficient to enforce martial law in the area.

As the Guardsmen, with fixed bayonets, paced in front of the spacious race plant in a drizzling rain, a denunciation of their presence came from Attorney Raymond J. McMahon, track counsel. Lieutenant-Governor Raymond E. Jordan defended Quinn's proclamation that a "state of insurrection existed."

LONDON—(CP)—When he rode Begum to victory at Thirsk, William Nevett, noted jockey, brought his total winners for the season to 100. Last year he won 108 races and in 1934 he had 109 winners.

SPORTS PRESIDENT BLASTS BIG CITIES

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 20.—J. M. Barclay of Thorold did not mince words in defying the commercialization of sport by the moguls of the larger metropolitan areas. He condemned their tactics roundly; to the extent that severance of branch ties with the parent union was likely to sound the death-knell of what constituted amateur sport in the smaller centres.

As president of the Southwestern A.A.U. of C. with the annual caucus slated for Saturday next at the Hotel London in London, Ont., Mr. Barclay predicted a riotous session and did not try to shield the amateur union for what had transpired recently in three branches of sport. He dwelt upon the triple severance of affiliation with the parent body, adding that one of the pastimes had the grace to delete the word "amateur" in their resignation.

The occasion for the remarks was at the annual general meeting of Zone 4 of the Southwestern A.A.U. held at the St. Catharines Y.M.C.A. and attended by delegates from the various affiliated pastimes throughout the Niagara Peninsula.

JACK CORCORAN ONCE ENTHUSIAST IN RACING GAME

MONTREAL, Oct. 20—When three wrestling promoters get together you think they would talk about grunts and grips, but such is far from the case. Paul Bowser, Boston mahout, Jack Corcoran, pachyderm and ouch leader from Toronto, and Jack Ganson, who holds forth here as the local impressario, swung the conversation to other channels when they met informally the other night.

Jack kept talking about how he made a par on the 9th at Iberville Golf Club. Under close questioning this turned out to be Islesmere.

It is the consensus of opinion that when Jack goes golfing the clubs replace the old signs "Replace The Turf" to "Return The Place."

Paul Bowser, is a harness horse enthusiast. Drives his own. Owned De Sota, which was favorite for the Hambletonian, and has sold it. His stable is down to five, but he is going to the old Glory Sales to replenish his stock.

"Great relaxation, and I look after and train my own horses. Quite a game," he enthused. Bowser is a mild looking man, who wears classes, has a ruddy complexion, and would pass muster as a farmer if he wished to assume that role.

Jack Corcoran used to be a great hand around the running horses. Raced them from Cube to Dufferin and back. Bet them higher than a cat's back too at times.

Eight years ago he sold Plain Dealer, a horse that had a fondness for winning at box car figures, retired from racing and betting and hasn't done either ever since.

"I put $125,000 into that pasttime. I had my big days, and some not so good. At the finish I decided I could do better in promotional work."

He turned down $50,000 for Bud Dainty, a star jockey who was killed later. If he had sold the contract on Dainty he would have made exactly $1,200 for himself. He had a contract that brought in agents, relatives, a previous contract owner and others.

He was a heavy bettor when he thought he was right. "I found out I was wrong pretty often too, and I got tired of hearing from bookmakers how much I won, but I knew how much I lost, and they never said anything about that," said Corcoran.

Nobody mentioned wrestling in an hour's conversation which ended abruptly when Ganson tried to show how he had mastered putting by using an apple and a cane to demonstrate a stance that outdiegels Diegel.

Corcoran enthused over Tommy Farr. "They say he is tight, but I was round with him for a week and he certainly held his own when it came to the carrying charges" he explained.

It seems Farr had a chance to make $750 by appearing at one of the Toronto burlesque houses. Yes, they have burlesque houses in Toronto the Good, and they are all to the Minsky, too.

He had a contract to appear at the Corcoran show. He could have picked up $750 easily for a 15-minutes appearance at the burlesque.

There was nothing to prevent him. He discussed the matter with Corcoran, found out that it would hurt the latter's show, and without hesitation turned down the offer. No wonder Corcoran thinks a lot of the walloping Welshman.

DEADLINE SET FOR BRADDOCK

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(AP)—The heavyweights moved back into the legal picture Tuesday when former champion, James J. Braddock and Joe Gould, his manager, appeared before the New York State Athletic Commission and were given until December 1 to pay penalties of $1,000 each.

The fines were levied on them for failing to appear at the Commission offices five days before Braddock's scheduled defence of his championship against Max Schmeling, June 3, last. At the time Braddock was in the west training for a title bout with Joe Louis, to whom he lost his crown in Chicago, June 22.

Gould entered a claim for the $5,000 forfeit which Braddock put up as a guarantee of good faith of meeting Schmeling. Gould contended the contracts had been voided in the courts, but General John J. Phelan, Boxing Commission Chairman, rejected his claim and insisted that, if the $2,000 in fines was not paid by December 1, he would turn the matter over to the Attorney-General's office. Gould replied he was willing to make a test case of it in the courts.

Soccer Notes

Saturday's soccer bill is the final of the White Trophy between the Canadian General and the Canada Packers on King Edward Park at three o'clock. Referee, Wilfred Jones. This will be the last game of the season, because the field is required for winter activities. Next week the schools will finish their schedule.

Arrangements have not been completed by the School Athletic Committee for the final series of the Public School championship between the King Edward and Central School teams. There is a postponed game to be played this afternoon before the final.

Don Crawford had two teams from the school out for a practice game yesterday afternoon in preparation for the school championship.

Yank Recovers From Operation

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

SEEMS TO be a boom in alley bowling here this autumn, and the Duffus', Y.M.C.A. and K. of C. runways are getting a big play these nights. A guy was telling us yesterday that every night—but Saturday which is open—sees the K. of C. alleys busy as a broker in a stock slump. Some of the leagues rolling there include: City 5-Pin League, Wednesday Night Loop, eight Quaker Oats teams, Tool Room and Meter Room of C.G.E. and a number of independents. The biggest year in a long time down this way. We understand the same is true of the big Duffus' Alleys and the "Y", with plenty of ladies as well as men rolling 'em down toward the pin boys.

* * * * * * *

BILL SMITH of the O.B.A.A. is getting some publicity now for advocating an Ontario Athletic Federation to control sport in this Province as a substitute for the branches of the practically defunct Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. Incidentally, we have heard Bill state: "Gentleman, I would rather be dead than see any easing up in the amateur code!" But time marches on, shamateurism still remains, and even the once-strict O.H.A. now reinstates pros, allows imports and joins with the C.A.H.A. in leaving the A.A.U. of C. Old Boys flat on their collective backs. Collective is a good word for the Badgers.

* * * * * * *

MOST OF the important "amateur" athletic organizations have pulled away from the Amateur Union, including the lacrosse, hockey, baseball and basketball bodies. The Old Boys should have seen the handwriting on the wall—if not the columnistic writing in the press—but they turned a deaf ear (ha, how we mix metaphors!) and missed out. Scribes predicted this for a long time, and we recently looked up one of our predictions on the subject. It was written in 1933 and was quoted by the late Lou Marsh in the Toronto Star, part of it running as follows:

* * * * * * *

"OUR HUNCH is a number of the Ontario bodies will decide to act independently of the A.A.U. of C. They may issue their own amateur cards to whom they think deserve them and keep the two bits a ticket themselves. And where the A.A.U. rules appear not feasible for individual Ontario sports—why to heck with the Dominion Association rules! If this comes to pass, and we believe it will soon, a board of governors for Ontario would be necessary. The various sports would have to co-operate with each other for their own protection, for improved athletics and better financial returns. It would be a mighty big task—too big for the A.A.U. of C.—but with athletes, fans and press behind it, it could be accomplished." Ha, a prophet in his own country, eh?

* * * * * * *

THERE WILL be three rugby games here this Saturday, one in the a.m. and two after lunch at Riverside Park. Lindsay and P.C.I. Juniors have a C.O.S.S.A. fixture at 10.30 in the morn, while a double-header will be played in the afternoon. Malvern Collegiate of Toronto tangles with P.C.I. Seniors at 2.00 in an exhibition tussle, and Toronto Eastsides play Orfuns an O.R.F.U. scheduled game at 3.30 o'clock. It'll keep Coach Jackson's local junior gridders hustling to hold that strong Scugog squad in the C.O.S.S.A. contest, while Coach Bamforth's smart senior P.C.I.-ers will require all their class to conquer the mighty Malverns, who won the Toronto and metropolitan title last year. Al Clark will not be used for another week, but otherwise the team should be at top strength. Both these P.C.I. games will be worth seeing, we imagine.

* * * * * * *

ORFUNS HAVE a heavy practise tomorrow night after five and the full gang is expected to workout. Earl Spencely, thought to have fractured his mitt last Saturday, finds his hand is only badly bruised and he won't be out more than a week, if that. Coach Turnbull will have his full team on deck and he expects a tough tussle Saturday as the Eastsides are not only improving right along — as witness their reversal in form 'gainst Lindsay last week—but they're picking up other good Toronto players now. This game may count as a double loss to the losing side, so it will be most important for ye Orfuns to pick up their kilts and travel from the opening whistle. It ought to draw another big crowd of cash customers to the park.

* * * * * * *

NOTHING NEW here on the hockey situation—outside of the fact that there are some pretty fair puckists now residing in these here parts. Just discovered on farms around (Belleville paper please copy) and they may help our O.H.A. gangs muchly. We still haven't heard when the Hockey Club holds its re-organization meeting. Annual session of the O.H.A. will be in Toronto on November 20th, a month away, and groupings will be announced after that. And not before time, either. Meantime, we dunno how the local Colts or the Petes will be grouped. It's a cinch that Oshawa aren't satisfied to be bracketed in senior O.H.A. with Toronto, Hamilton and Port Colborne. The scribe there says Hamilton and Oshawa will need half a dozen good imports to compete, as Port Colborne already has five and the Toronto team will have the pick of players in that town. He pans the O.H.A. plenty.

* * * * * * *

"WE SEE no reason," says he, "why Oshawa shouldn't go out and import six or eight of the best hockey players in the business, getting them from Western Canada, Maritimes or the strong Montreal league. This business about four imports per club will be just a joke before the senior season is four weeks old. If the O.H.A. insists on Oshawa playing senior, we recommend going out and getting a real senior club as we know it takes a super hockey team to win in Toronto, especially when they are wearing Oshawa sweaters! Maybe they can make us play but we needn't be soft enough to play their way. One thing about getting transfers for the senior imports, the O.H.A. couldn't refuse because that one lone group must carry on—at whatever cost." We feel Oshawa would sooner be grouped with us.

* * * * * * *

UP AND down Sports' Rialto: Looks like no intermediate O.H.A. team in Lindsay this winter, but they'll have a junior gang . . . . Motor City writer thinks Dit Clapper may play lacrosse with Norwood next summer, since the ban is lifted on pros . . . . Blue Bombers end their schedule here a week from Sat'day . . . . FIFTY MILLION BET IN YEARLY 'TAKE' GREYHOUND TRACK

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—"You think the people in this country gamble? Haw! Haw!

The man who laughed was General A. C. Critchley, the millionaire czar of England's greyhound racing industry.

"Why," said the Calgary-born promoter, controlling his mirth, "do you know how much will be bet on the totalizator (pari-mutuel) alone at my eight tracks this year? About £10,000,000." (That's about $50,000,000.)

"And what, General, do you get out of that?" he was asked.

"Oh, we take only six per cent," he said, "but of course we charge an admission price too, about 60 cents a head, and the average attendance for 104 nights at White City, my biggest track, this season was little over 30,000."

So you get an idea why the General, who came out of the army to introduce hound racing to England in 1926, feels like laughing most of the time.

A Gambling Nation

"It's a great thing for the people," he observed with a twinkle. "The English people are crazier about gambling than any in the world. Everybody's got to bet on something every day. The dogs give them a splendid outlet. Why, if it wasn't for the dogs they might be gambling on the stock market."

Critchley is proud of his White City track. It's the "hot spot" among greyhound places. One side of the big arena, high up, is enclosed, and there inside, safe from the weather and the rabble, several thousand white-tied "toffs" and their evening-gowned companions can wade leisurely through eight courses while the program is being run. Every table offers a perfect view of the track.

"You'd be surprised, though, that these society customers don't bet any bigger money than those in the open seats," Critchley commented. "Where the money comes from I don't know, but the average wager at all the tracks in England is approximately 55 shillings ($14.50), and at White City it has averaged 69 shillings for months.

The General — a big, powerful man and a crack golfer—has gone into fight promoting as a sort of sideline in London. He came over this time with some hazy notion of forming an alliance with Mike Jacobs, but nothing came of it.

Farr Talks Too Much

"Tommy Farr came back quite a hero," he said, "but promptly began talking too much and spoiled it all. He bragged too much about the amount of money he could make in America."

Critchley is hurrying back to London now to be on hand for a special six-dog race a week from Saturday for a prize of $17,500. It's a record purse, he says, and he expects 75,000 persons to see it.

"I put up $10,000 of the prize," he said, "but I won't lose any money."

English Hockey Moguls Plan Clean-up On Roughhousing

New Penalty Shot To Introduce Gentlemanly Manners Into The Game

LONDON, Oct. 20.—(CP).—Hockey in England is losing some of its Canadian flavor. The admonishings of English sports writers who never heard of bruising checkers like Eddie Shore or Babe Siebert, plus legislation and regulation by officials are altering the game.

The storm of protest raised after a couple of minor ice "riots" in London rinks last season had its sequel at the inauguration of this year's program in a "clean-up" campaign.

Aimed at stamping out roughhouse tactics in the net area, a new penalty shot was introduced. The man taking the shot is allowed to skate within a couple of feet of the net before firing the puck. Protests of Canadian goalies on the dangerous aspects of this rule were drowned by applause for "the speedy action of officialdom to introduce gentlemanly manners into the game."

Goal Change-Over.

Another departure is the goal change-over half way through the third period. A gong rings and the game stops while the teams change ends.

The presentation of the game, too, follows a different routine than the home of its birth. They don't start with "God Save the King" followed by a long-drawn cheer.

A couple of "ice turns"—fancy skating or barrel jumping—launch the evening's program. Men and women in evening dress sitting in plush-seated boxes heated by steam radiation, clap hands and supporter's clubs, bedecked with big colored rosettes, twirl "noise-makers" as the gladiators skate on to the ice.

Dessert Before Play.

The orchestra plays something light while the players take practice shots at the net and patrons of the rink-side restaurant finish their dessert. As the game progresses a public address system carries an explanation of the play.

The end of the period is a signal for typical English pageantry. A dozen or so uniformed ice-sweepers chosen for their height and display rink colors march on to the ice into the glare of colored spotlights. When the orchestra strikes up a martial tune they sweep in measured beat.

Knockouts Feature In Woodstock Show

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 20. —(CP).—Two knockouts by Galt boxers over local men featured the season's opening boxing show here last night. Glen Leach took the verdict over Bill Lewis when the referee stopped their bout in the second round and Jim O'Neil proved too good for Ted Agnews in the second round of their bout.

Another Galt boy, Ed Marshall took the main bout decision from Warren Kennedy of Norwich in a well-contested match. Kennedy started off on top, but Marshall proved the better ring general.

Sid Martin, Galt, was the aggressor throughout his bout with Gordon Leach, Kitchener, but the latter almost won a verdict with an endless series of straight lefts.

Maroons' Netminder Definitely Through

OTTAWA, Oct. 20 (CP). — Alex. Connell, netminder for Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey League, announced last night he was definitely retiring as a player.

Connell, who came out of retirement and helped Maroons win the Stanley Cup in the 1934-35 season, said he made the decision during the summer after playing only part of last winter with the Montreal club. Maroon officials have been in negotiation with him lately as to his future activities.

The Maroon goalie, who starred in the National Hockey League for 14 seasons, during which he was a member of two Stanley Cup-winning teams, said he had accepted an invitation to coach the local St. Patrick's College teams in the City and Interscholastic Leagues.

Connell is secretary of the local fire department.

Steele is recognized in the United States as middleweight champion of the world, although Apostoli succeeded in defeating the European titleholder. They will meet in an overweight match in New York on Nov. 12.

DEPEND ON RIDERS TO BREAK TORONTO RUGBY WIN STREAK

TORONTO, Oct. 20—(CP)—Montreal and Hamilton, a couple of mountain communities with pasts, will clash at Hamilton Saturday in the renewal of a football feud that outsparkles the famous foothill quarrel of the Martins and the Coys. At the same time, Montreal's Indians and Hamilton's Tigers will be counting on Ottawa Rough Riders to stop the season's sharpest shooters, Toronto Argonauts.

The Indians and the Tigers, who both have been forced to take to their hills by the Argonauts already, can do nothing about the Toronto team's undefeated record for two weeks. But the inter-provincial union champions, Ottawa's Rough and Ready Riders, can break off Argos' string of two victories this Saturday at Toronto and knock them down another notch next week at Ottawa.

The Montreal - Hamilton warfare is traditional. It will be soaked with a little more tradition this year, since Field Captain Johnny Ferraro of the Indians led the Tigers two years ago and brought them a big four championship. He was kept on the sidelines in 1936 by elibibility rules, but coached Montreal.

Just as the other Big Four units are looking to Ottawa to block the Argonauts, so McGill and Queen's are expecting University of Toronto to cut off the Intercollegiate title approach of University of Western Ontario's unbeaten Mustangs at London. Western has won its first two starts, Varsity and McGill have won and lost once, and Queen's has dropped both its games. McGill entertains the Tricolor at Montreal, Saturday.

LONDON PROTESTS NEUSEL'S VICTORY

LONDON, Oct. 20 (A.P.). — Although beaten by Walter Neusel, the German heavyweight who holds quite an important position in British boxing, Maurice Strickland, the New Zealander, was in position today to salt away a good many shillings before he goes back home.

Nearly everybody at Wembley Stadium, including a good many of the sports experts, thought Strickland had beaten Neusel in their 12-round bout last night, but the judges thought otherwise, and gave the German the decision.

The uproar that followed the announcement delayed the next bout for several minutes.

U.S. Hockey Player Six Feet, 7 Inches

DETROIT, Oct. 20.—(CP).—Roman Truetler, 22, may not be the best hockey player in the world, but he is probably the tallest. Six feet, seven inches in his skates, Truetler towered over the other 60-odd candidates for the Pontiac and Detroit teams of the Michigan-Ontario Amateur Hockey League at a joint practice last night. He weighs 265 pounds.

Truetler is trying for a forward position on the Pontiac club. He likes hockey, but he has another motive in turning out. "I thought if I make the team I could get a job," he said.

Born in Detroit, Truetler went to Poland, the home of his ancestors, when he was seven. He learned hockey in that country and unsuccessfully tried to get on the Polish Olympic team two years ago. He returned to the United States last year.

TANKARD PLAY IN HONOR SPOT WITH CURLERS

TORONTO, Oct. 20 (CP). — The right to represent Ontario in the Dominion curling championships was of secondary importance to Provincial curlers as they prepared for wintertime jousts wi' besom an' stane. Their sights were set for the Ontario Tankard.

The Ontario Curling Association at its 63rd annual meeting here yesterday decided the Tankard, years of tradition and prestige behind it would be maintained as the main prize and chief event in Provincial curling. Play for the trophy, the association decided, will revert to its original status.

No longer will the rink winning the Tankard represent Ontario in the competition for the Macdonald's Brier Trophy, emblematic of the Dominion championship. The association approved a new single-rink competition for entry to the Brier finals after the Tankard play has been completed.

Curlers Eligible.

The new competition will be open to any rink whose players are registered members of the same club in good standing with the association. A committee to be set up will formulate rules and regulations, subject to the approval of the association executive.

Double-rink competition will prevail in play for the Tankard, the O.C.A. decided, the practice in vogue when the trophy first was presented. It was found single-rink play was less satisfactory in this event. Single-rink competition will be played for the British Consols trophy.

J. F. Van Lane of Toronto Strathconas was elected president, succeeding Ross Harstone of Hamilton.

Junior Ball Tosser Sets Mound Record Signed In Pittsburg Pirates' System

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP). —What does a 17-year-old country boy look forward to when a big league baseball club reaches out and signs him into its farm system?

Raymond (Lefty) Armstrong, who will ury his pitching talents for one of Pittsburgh Pirates' minor league units next summer, answered the question laconically:

"Well, I'll probably stay with them for one, maybe two weeks, then they'll send me home."

But what Lefty wouldn't say for himself, his record would. Playing this season with the American Legion juniors at Titusville, one of the strongest nines in the Northwestern Pennsylvania district he—

MEDD. — To Mr. and Mrs. Allan Medd (nee Helen Murray), at St. Joseph's Hospital, on Wednesday, October 20, the gift of a daughter.

DIED

FENNELL, Mrs. Mary Jane. — In Norwood, Tuesday, October 19, Mary Jane Scott, widow of the late James Edward Fennell; age 76 years. Funeral service from the residence of her son, Robert S. Fennell, Norwood, on Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. Interment Thursday afternoon, Napanee, Ontario.

IN MEMORIAM

CLEMENTS.—In loving memory of my Mother, Mrs. John Clements, who passed away October 20, 1936.

Her weary hours and days of pain,
Her lonely nights are past;
But in my aching heart I know,
She has found sweet rest at last.
Her faint last wish I should liked to have heard,
And breathed in her ear one last parting word.
Only those who have lost are able to tell
The pain of the heart in not saying farewell.

—Ever remembered by her Daughter, Mrs. Brown.

DEAD RECKONING

BY

BRUCE HAMILTON

READ THIS FIRST:

Tim Kennedy graduated into would-be homicide from the school of armchair murderers. With a lucrative dental practice and an enviable social position in a small town near London, Tim at middle age, feels happy and secure. Then Esther is run down by a truck, returning home weeks later a physical wreck, with all her former beauty shattered. Tim loses all interest in his wife and is greatly attracted by Alma Shepherd, a widow and a new client. He maneuvers to invite her to their annual tennis party. Tim assures Esther that he still loves her. He begins to see more and more of Alma who Esther now considers a friend of the family.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 15.

But Tim's love for Alma waxed, growing to dimensions he would never have believed possible. Certainly his brief courtship of Esther, when success had perhaps come too easily, had brought him nothing like it. All his senses were quickened, he began to see and feel things with the eyes and nerves of a poet. The summer-clad trees and woods of West Shilston, which he had been wont to regard with a passively pleasurable contemplation, became suddenly vivid and moving to him, were invested with moods and an active life corresponding to his own newly enriched inner life, and forming a background for it. In this golden, glowing state of heightened perception he lived more fully than ever before; it was an Indian summer of romantic youth, more fragrant for its late coming.

Only once did he approach a revelation of his emotions to the object of them. Hearing from an independent source that she was going to Westbourne one Saturday afternoon, he drove to the town himself, and by loitering near the car park she was almost certain to use, he contrived an apparently accidental meeting.

It transpired that neither of them had anything particular to do, and his suggestion that they should walk out of town up the high cliff path to Shingle Head was accepted without demur. A great wind blew off the sea, it was too loud in their ears, the struggle up the cliff too exacting for them to speak; but both were aware of an identity of tingling, wind-buffeted sensation, an enveloping isolating communion of physical experience not to be rendered in speech. They flung themselves down on the short, wiry grass at the top with the laughing abandon of children.

"Oh, Alma!.. exclaimed Tim with half-smiling bravity, as they recovered their breath. "Why, why didn't I meet you 20 years ago?"

Her face, as she sat with knees drawn up, looking out to the distant sea horizon, was averted from him. She did not speak at once, and he thought for a moment she was not going to answer him. But presently she said:

"Twenty years ago. . . . I was a little girl of 12 then, at school. I was too good at tennis and hockey; it made me conceited and bossy. . . I don't think you'd have liked me much at 12, Tim."

"Fifteen years ago, then."

"I think I was beginning to be nicer then."

"And I was married." He shrugged his shoulders. Her frank eyes met his.

"Happily married, though."

"Yes. . . .

"I was married too. . . ."

"And not so happily."

She was silent for a moment.

"Did you ever read 'Antic Hay'?" she asked suddenly.

"Years ago."

"That youth in it, Gumbril. . . ." She plunged into an intimate account of her married life. She instanced the "mild and melancholy one" in Aldous Huxley's novel, learning the reality of love from a simple-hearted creature by whose side he slept for an entranced night without stirring. To Cecil Shepherd that sort of love had been the only reality.

"She's ripe for me," thought Tim exultantly. "I don't believe she's ever had an affair, for all her sophistication. But the chance won't last forever. It will soon be too late. . . ."

". . . It will soon be too late." He had awakened suddenly in the darkness the next morning, with the echo of his own voice ringing in his ears. It was 3 o'clock, the hour before dawn, and in the deathly, pushed stillness of that summer night, his irrevocable resolution was made. He was quite calm, a little sorry for Esther, but quite inflexible. His purpose seemed to him neither very dreadful nor very new; it was as if he had been waiting for a sign, and was now merely ratifying a decision reached months before.

Before the summer was out Esther must die.

So drastic and perilous a plan had indeed not come quite out of the blue to the devious mind of this intensely respectable professional man. He had toyed idly with the idea of murder for many years, though he had never before had the occasion to give his speculations a concrete relation to his own life. But as a solution of personal problems in the abstract it had always appealed strongly to him by reason of its directness and finality.

Life to him was a stream of sentience, flowing briefly in the sunlight, before returning to an everlasting tunnel of black nothingness. It followed that every mortal soul must be prepared when need arose to do battle to the death for its individual happiness; for the opportunity would not come again. . . . Tim Kennedy's life had hitherto been a happy one. He had not indeed been born to affluence and leisure. He had had his difficulties, but he had been aware of his power to combat them by patient industry and skill, without hazard.

The current of his existence had long flowed, with no violent effort, into a peaceful channel. And suddenly the stream had been roughly diverted; no amount of patient waiting would get it back into the channel again; either it must waste and spend itself in stony places, or he must drive it back by force, by sweeping away the obstacle. No other alternative presented itself to him.

His lack of scruple was not due to any positive cruelty, of which he was entirely free. Presumably it derived from a fundamental callousness, but of a kind that transcended the ordinary. He was an egoist in the most absolute sense; he had no real belief in the existence of any sensations, emotions, or thoughts, which he did not feel in his own organs, his own nerves,

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S POTATOES.

"Ouch!" Lulu Wibblewobble the girl duck quacked in the Hollow Tree School one day. "Quack! Ack! Ik!"

"What's the matter, Lulu?" asked the Lady Mouse Teacher.

"Buster Longears pulled my tail!" said Lulu.

"Did you, Buster?" asked Miss Mouse.

"Yes'm," answered Buster, laughing a little. Uncle Wiggily's little rabbit boy always told the truth no matter what else he did.

"You may stay in after school and write me 100 'quack' words on the blackboard as a punishment lesson," said Miss Mouse.

Buster wasn't laughing any more. Neither were his brothers Custer and Duster. For, though Custer and Duster had done nothing to keep them in after school they had to stay around outside waiting for Buster. The three had planned to do something.

"Just like him to be silly so he'd have to stay in!" complained Duster.

"Sure!" agreed Custer. "We'll make him do most of the digging to pay for keeping us waiting."

When Buster finally came out and his brothers told him this he said that was fair enough.

"But did you hear Lulu quack when I pulled her tail?" he asked. "Ha! Ha! Ha! Now we'll go dig Daddy's potatoes." The three rabbit boys hurried to Uncle Wiggily's garden.

"I hope he gives us a good treat," said Duster.

Having helped Uncle Wiggily carry in his pile of golden carrots the day before they had been given a treat of ice cream and cake. That gave Buster the idea if they could help gather another crop of garden vegetables they might get more ice cream and cake.

"We'll dig potatoes," said Buster to his brothers. "I know where they grow in the garden. They're easy to dig."

"And maybe we could build a fire and roast a few of the potatoes," said Duster.

"Sure!" said Custer.

In a little while, saying nothing to their father about it, the rabbit boys began digging in the garden. They saw some dried stalks and Buster said:

"The potatoes are under those dried stalks."

Slight Error.

"What a lot we have dug!" cried Duster a little later.

"Let's roast some now," proposed Custer.

The rabbit boys built a fire, being very, very careful about sparks and matches. In the embers of the fire they put some potatoes to roast. They were about to eat them when along hopped Uncle Wiggily.

"What are you boys doing?" he asked.

"We dug your potatoes for you Daddy," said Buster. "And after we eat some of the roasted ones you can treat us if you want to."

"Potatoes!" cried Uncle Wiggily twinkling his pink nose fast as he looked at what the bunny boys were about to eat. "Why, those are the roots or bulbs of your mother's dahlia, lily, gladiola and canna flowers. Those aren't potatoes though they look like them. It's a good thing you didn't eat them. But it did no harm to dig them up for they must be put down cellar for the winter."

"Oh!" said Buster, glumly. But he and his brother smiled when their father gave them money for ice cream cones.

And if the safety pin will put some French dressing on the lobster it picks off the crab apple tree I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's funny face.

Bethel United Folk Celebrate Church's 50th Anniversary

History Of Congregation Is Summarized By Mrs. E. Platt

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Oct. 20.—Bethel United church congregation held its fiftieth anniversary services on Sunday.

The church was prettily decorated with autumn branches and plants. The choir which consisted of the Bethel regular choir and others from other places, interested.

Rev. Mr. Kelly conducted the morning service at which the church was well filled, many old members attending. The service began by singing Holy, Holy, Holy, and prayer. The choir sang, "Rejoice, Rejoice."

Mrs. E. Platt, from Castleton, who as a young girl, Miss Clara Payne, had read the story of the building of the church at its dedication, read the following history of the church: October 17, 1937—History of Bethel church from 1887 to 1937. A golden jubilee, surely.

Shortly after the Methodist union in 1885, Warsaw circuit was changed somewhat. At that time there were four Wesleyan Methodist churches, Warsaw village, the Third Line, Fourth Line, and Stoney Lake appointments, two Bible Christian churches formerly supplied from Lakefield, were added, Douro and English Line.

Shortly after union Zion church was built and the three congregations, Third Line, English Line and Douro, were united. A site was purchased from the late Mr. John Jory, Sr., and under the direction of Mr. Jacob White Bethel church was built, my father (Mr. Lazarus Payne) suggested the name. Douro church was later sold to Stoney Lake people and rebuilt as Carmel church.

Enough funds were subscribed at the church opening to pay the entire cost of $1,800.

Dedication Sermon

The dedication sermons were preached by Rev. I. Tovell, chairman of the Peterborough District and Rev. R. G. Courtice, a former Bible Christian minister. While I cannot remember Mr. Tovell's text, Mr. Courtice's text is still in my mind, Ps. 126, verses 5 and 6. "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy." "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." Mr. Courtice was intensely interesting, and earnest tears came as he imitated the sower.

I remember the words of only one at the testimony meeting that afternoon, those of Rev. H. T. Lewis, a teacher at that time) he used to read the Bible because he thought it was his duty but now because he loved it. The trustees of Bethel church at the dedication were, Messrs. Jacob White, Joseph Grant, Lazarus Dunford, Richard Batten, Joseph Payne Isaac Garbutt, and (I think) George Singleton.

The choir leader was Mr. Jacob White; organist, Miss Lottie White, who played the first hymn in the church, and Miss Margaret Kidd. Others who helped in the choir were Misses Annie and Carrie Payne, Fred Payne, R. W. Payne and Bert Payne, Mrs. William Payne, Miss Martha Dunford, Mr. A. R. Kidd, Miss Pashley and S. R. Payne.

The Roll of Honor

The following ministers have labored on the circuit, Rev. John Toneland, who was in charge at the dedication, Rev's John Power, E. Dewart Lewis, John Robeson, Geo. Robinson, C. H. Fusee, George Nickle, H. McQuade, Dr. Marvin A. Hoffman, M. L. Hinton, D. R. Clare, G. Weir, J. D. Knox, H. B. Herrington, and the present pastor, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson.

There were four local preachers, Lazarus Payne, Paul Payne, S. R. Payne, W. H. Payne. One Missionary went to Japan, Miss Ada Payne.

Organists, Mrs. Geo. Grant, Mrs. Everett Garbutt, Mrs. James Greystock, Mrs. Robert Northey, Miss Clara Payne, Mrs. Ed. Hamblin, Mrs. Chester Hamilton, Mrs. Harold Wilson, Miss Marjorie Frankish and the present one, Mrs. Will Miller.

Choir leaders, Jacob White, Mrs. E. Hamblin, Mrs. W. Miller.

A large number have helped teach in the Sunday School. Mr. John Grant is the only living teacher from the first session. Mrs. Jacob White was a teacher in 1888. Mrs. Wall, Mrs. R. W. Payne, and Mrs. Reynolds were long-term teachers. Many have aided in the choir, Mrs. Fred Payne, Sr., being one of the most talented singers. Many others have aided in various ways.

Many have been saved in this church and may the God of Bethel by whose hand this people have been led, still lead, and may God bless you all and help us all to have the faith of our fathers, holy faith. Let us be true to Thee till death, and continue to work for God and reverence and honor His Name.

Names of heads of families, who attended Bethel church after the dedication; Joseph Grant, John Grant, Lazarus Payne, Fred Payne, Mrs. Elizabeth Payne, Franklin Jory, Jacob White, Frank Lonsberry, Mrs. Sarah Hamblin, James McCracken, Nathan Payne, Paul Payne, William Spence, Stewart Payne, Miss Pashley, George Lonsberry and father, Mark Payne, Robert Bullock, Thos. Doughty, William Crowe, Samuel Wall, John Jory, Sr., John McCracken, Mrs. Tighe, Solomon Cox, F. Lukey, Isaac Garbutt, Richard Dawkins, Mrs. Hamilton and George, George Singleton, William Dunford, Lazarus Dunford, George Whatley, William Reynolds, James Matthews, George Harding.

Value of Little Things

After Mrs. Platt had read the church history there was prayer. Mrs. Dora McMillan and Rev. Mr. Kelly sang a duet for which Mrs. Wilkinson played. Mr. Kelly read Matt. VI. from verse 28 on. "Consider the lillies of the field". In his sermon he stressed the value of heeding the little things, and of being happy in them. The little things in life and the things God sends us and where he places us, if we heed them, we go on.

Mr. Henry Batten sang "There Shall be no Night There."

The hymns sung were "For the Beauty of the Earth," "Unto the Hills", and "Land of our Birth."

When those present who were present at the dedication were asked to stand, seventeen stood up. Among them were four of Mr. Lazarus Payne's family, Mr. Wm. Payne, Miss Emma Payne, Mrs. Atkinson, and Mrs. Platt.

The Evening Service

Rev. Ver. Zufelt conducted the evening service in Bethel church. The attendance was a trifle larger than the morning.

Hymns sung were "O Lord of Bethel," "How firm a Foundation", and "The Day Thou gavest, Lord is ended." The choir sang "Bring Sunshine," "God of Love", and Mrs. Chester Hamilton, Mrs. Willie Miller, Mr. Alec. Darling and Mr. Walter Carveth sang a quartette "No one can help like Jesus."

Mr. Zufelt's text was from Matt. XVI., verses 16-18; the subject Peter the Rock.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson conducted anniversary services at Ebenezer, on Cavan Circuit and enjoyed the day very much. The congregations were large and appeared appreciative.

Flays Pacifism

RT. REV. BISHOP J. TAYLOR SMITH, of Middlesex, Eng., who, upon his arrival in Montreal, scored pacifism as "foolishness" and declared it was natural to fight in cases of self defence. Former chaplain to Her Late Majesty Queen Victoria, he claimed soldiers "are peace makers". The bishop is on a world tour which will take him through Canada, United States and Australia.

NIGHTLY FROSTS SPEEDING FARM WORK IN ONTARIO

TORONTO, Oct. 20—(CP).— Cool weather and nightly frosts in Northern and Central Ontario in the past week spurred farmers to complete harvesting and fall ploughing, the weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture showed today.

Department representatives in Western Ontario reported a good yield of mangels and prospects of a good turnip crop. In Eastern Ontario turnips were reported poor due to heavy rains during the growing season.

Farmers in the Sudbury district reported soft rot in stored potatoes with losses ranging from 10 to as high as 50 per cent. Ploughing was delayed in the Manitoulin Island district 'because of harvest difficulties in gathering the largest corn crop in years. More than 19,000 head of cattle were tested for tuberculosis in the restricted area of Temiskaming.

Labor is scarce in Eastern Ontario, farmers reported. Mangels, silage corn, potatoes and pastures are good in Leeds County, but apples were affected with scab in almost all the orchards. Recent rains made ploughing easier and preparations for fall sowing was under way throughout the district.

Ploughing Delayed.

Southern Ontario reported a good percentage of fall wheat sown, but harvesting of apples and potatoes delayed fall ploughing. Pastures in Middlesex County were in good condition and many of the feeder cattle purchased in the drought sections of Western Canada being conditioned for marketing.

Several carloads of turnips were shipped to Western Canada last week and a few apple shipments made. Wheat in Wentworth County is progressing slowly but crops sown earlier in the season made good growth.

Farmers in the northern section of Central Ontario were occupied getting out pulpwood, representatives reported. Fall wheat acreage in Victoria County was about 25 per cent. above average, with fall ploughing progressing rapidly.

BIG QUARRY BLAST

RATHPARNHAM, Irish Free State—(CP).—Eight thousand tons of rock were loosened in a Dublin mountain quarry near here, in the largest blasting operation ever carried out in Ireland.

American 'Tommyguns' Ready To Talk For Chinese

A remarkable picture, made by Harrison Forman, famous explorer and author of "Through Forbidden Tibet," showing a squad of Chinese Communists at drill with the latest thing in American-made Thompson sub-machine guns—replicas of the "Tommygun" made famous by American gangster. These men, once hunted by the central government of Nanking, may now prove saviors of China, indications being that they'll do their bit to stop Japan.

DEAD RECKONING

his own mind. He regarded the world as a medium for the exercise of his personality and the fulfillment of his desires. He would have hesitated to put it even to himself that he was the only entity with a positive conscious existence on the planet, but such was his private faith.

It followed that the only deterrent likely to affect him was fear of discovery and its consequences. And here his vanity came to reassure him. He had read many of the volumes giving verbatim reports of famous murder trials, and had reached some decided conclusions about these cases.

The chief thing to strike him was the enormous amount of bungling by these poor murderers; blunders committed either through stupid complacency, or lack of attention to detail, or insufficient planning, or the recklessness of passion. They would buy their poison at the chemists nearest to their place of residence. Or they would spoil by stupid reiteration an orginally bold and ingenious method, bound to incriminate them once the connecting link was discovered. Or they would stab or shoot recklessly, with no thought of a line of retreat.

Bolder, but ultimately as fatal, were the attempts made to conceal the existence of a crime by hiding or destroying the body. The mechanical difficulties were formidable, and even if they were overcome, others remained. Several had not escaped because of the failure of the police to identify the body of their victims; even the failure to produce a body at all had not in a recent case impeded a conviction.

Why had all these attempts been foredoomed to discovery? Tim Kennedy believed he knew the answer—lack of simplicity. There was some excuse for this when the intended victim was domiciled under a roof other than the destroyer's—natural opportunity was lacking; it had to be artificially created, and the attendant risks enormously increased.

But this plea could not be urged in the case of a wife, a husband, a parent, an employer, a servant, or anyone living in the same house. In such a case the actual contrivance of a death, granted the necessary resolution and inflexibility of purpose, was the easiest thing in the world. There was no artificial conjunction to be planned; you had your victim on the spot. The fear of spying eyes was reduced to a minimum; it could be care and opportunism be practically eliminated.

Only, of course, this enormously strong position carried its own disadvantage. Granted that the act itself presented the least possible difficulty, the very existence of the opportunity brought you at once in the range of suspicion. It therefore became necessary to provide a cause of death, and more important still, to suggest a means of implementing the cause which did not admit disproof.

Congregation Of Chandos Church Honor Former Rector Rev. Spence

OWENBROOK, Oct. 20—The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Mace was crowded on Friday evening for a social gathering under the auspices of St. Andrew's church. The Rev. F. C. McMulkin presided and an enjoyable time was spent in community singing, games, and a shadowgraph play staged by the school teacher, J. P. Creighton. At the close of the evening, the guest of honor, the former rector, Rev. C. A. G. Spence, was presented with a handsomely bound volume of "In His Steps,' from the community, autographed by most of those present, as a token of esteem and affection. Mrs. Ernest Walke, in a kind and feeling speech made the presentation. Mrs. John Mace, on behalf of the W.A. of St. Andrew's also presented Mr. Spence with the proceeds derived from the monthly tea of the W.A. up to June last, which is set apart to be applied to the minister's stipend. The gathering, numbering nearly a hundred adults and children, were served with refreshments supplied by the ladies, at the close of a very happy evening.

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR ANNIVERSARY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 19.—Rev. R. T. Richards, B.A., of Napanee, was the special preacher for the anniversary services of St. Andrew's United Church, observed on Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., with large congregations on both occasions, the usual evening worship service of Grace Presbyterian church being withdrawn because of the fifty-fifth anniversary in a sister church.

Rev. Mr. Richards' morning theme was based on the words, "These that have turned the world upside down have come hither also."

"The church cannot live upon the achievements of the past; it must have its fac eotward the sunrise, and make it its supreme business to show forth the love of God as exemplified in Christ Jesus, and to advance the interests of the Kingdom," said the speaker.

Special music was provided by the choir during the services, including a male quartette at night, and two anthems, the first one in the morning being an attractive setting of John Keble's hymn "New every morning is They Love."

The trustees had asked a thank-offering of $600 and when all contributions are in, its is expected that the objective will be approximately realized.

St. Thomas' Anglican Church

Rev. William C. Stubbs, rector of Elmvale parish, and during his student days, assistant in Millbrook, to the late Canon William Cartwright Allen, had charge of the services in Cavan parish on Sunday, preaching in St. Thomas' Church, at morning worship, from the text "Consider the Lillies." Among points developed were the beauty and fragrance of a gradually unfolding spiritual character and the need of being genuine in a world where there is much sham.

The Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson, B.A., was in Elmvale for Sunday, taking the work in that parish. Miss Margaret Simpson accompanied her father, and Miss Anna Kells was the Rev. Mr. Stubbs' hostess during his stay in the village. The Sunday School of St. Thomas' church is now meeting at 2.30 p.m. instead of in the morning, as it did for the summer months.

Grace Presbyterian Church

The congregation of Grace Presbyterian church met at 3 p.m. on Sunday, with the Sunday School, though the school had a previous half-hour session for the business of marking attendance, receiving the offering and reports, and attention to other details. Rev. Gordon Porter, M.A., of Canton, was the preacher for the service and brought an inspiring message.

NAB YOUNG THIEVES

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP).—Two London youths, caught trying to cross the International border at Niagara Falls, N.Y., were back here to-day, while police tried to locate the owners of jewels found in their possession.

David Grover, 16, is in jail, while his 14-year-old companion is in the custody of juvenile authorities. When taken into custody at the border the lads had 30 cents in their pockets. The jewelery consisted of a woman's amethyst and pearl pendant, a ring, an ear-ring, and a wrist watch, police said.

CENTURY-OLD MILL BURNS

PORT ROBINSON, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP).—Fire in this Welland district village yesterday destroyed the century-old J. R. Heslop grist mill, one of the oldest industries on the Niagara Peninsula. All telephone and Hydro communications with the village were severed by the outbreak.

Cause of the fire was unknown but damage was estimated at about $4,000. The mill was built when Port Robinson was the industrial centre of the peninsula.

STORMONT MILL STRIKE COLLAPSES

CORNWALL, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP).—wall Textile Workers' Union. Union—Stormont Mill of Canadian Cottons, Limited, here, shut last Thursday when 10 workers in the filling department walked out, was reopened yesterday. It was understood the 10 employees, who protested against pay on piece-work basis, returned to work under same conditions in force before the walkout.

No statement was made by plant management or officials of the Corn- officials last week disapproved of the action of the 10 workers, particularly in view of the existing agreement between workers and the company to leave wages, hours and working conditions to the Ontario Industry and Labor Board for adjustment.

Wool is said to be made non-shrinkable by a new chemical process in England.

LINDSAYAN FOOLED BY MEXICAN NOTE

LINDSAY, Oct. 20.—A tax official at the town hall is looking for the individual who handed him a Mexican peso note, which the official accepted as a $10 bill. The tax collector took the note for a bona fide ten spot, and on making inquiries at the bank he received a jolt when informed that the note was worth about fifteen cents.

John Bush, a native of Lindsay, and who for 31 years was employed by The Globe, passed away in that city on Saturday in his 62nd year. The deceased will be remembered by the old printers in Peterborough, as he was at one time connected with The Examiner job department. He has one brother residing in Guelph and another in Havelock.

Local business men, in discussing the proposed new highway from Peterborough to Port Perry, are wondering if this project will have any effect on proposed paving of Lindsay-Newcastle Highway. Prior to the last provincial election, Mr. William Newman, ex-M.L.A., made the announcement that he had the assurance from the Highways Department, that this highway would be paved. The result of the election in this riding, it is pointed out, showed that the people were very enthusiastic about the project. If the proposed highway from Port Perry to Peterborough is constructed by the government, it will, merchants claim, divert considerable traffic and also business from Lindsay. It is understood that influence will be brought to bear upon the Highways Department to consider seriously the paving of the highway south from Lindsay to Newcastle.

A resident of Rosedale named Jellett appeared before Magistrate Gee yesterday, charged with driving a car while intoxicated. The police were called out on the Fenelon Highway on Saturday morning, where they found that the accused had run his car in the ditch. Four bottles of wine were found in the car. He was sentenced to ten days in jail.

RADIO INSURED FOR $50,000

Made for an Indian prince, a gold-plated radio set was insured for $50,000 and guarded by a squad of ex-detectives during its stay in London.

MOUNT JULIAN

Mr. and Mrs. George Foster of Peterborough were Sunday callers at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Samuel Wilson, who is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McCauley and family of Douro spent Sunday visiting relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Barnes of Toronto spent the weekend at their cottage on Stoney Lake, their sons, Jack and David, returning home with them after spending the past three months at the cottage.

Mr. Jack McFadden spent Sunday visiting his brother, Percival, at Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crocker and sons, also Mr. Samuel Crocker and Mrs. E. Lebar, all of Peterborough, visited Mr. Alex. Reid and other relatives in this district on Sunday.

Miss Violet McCauley visited friends in Lakefield on Sunday.

What Is This D.A. Anyway?

The letters "D.A." are the abbreviation of the DEPOSIT ACCOUNT, and represent a modern method of shopping which speeds things up, because you simply show the clerk your D.A. shopping card and go on to make your next purchase.

When ordering by phone, the convenience is just as obvious, because there is no necessity of being at home when the driver calls. And even those items advertised as "No C.O.D. WILLIAM BROWN SERIOUSLY HURT IN LAKEFIELD

Struck By a Truck While Repairing Tire

William Brown, Young's Point, was seriously hurt early last night when he was struck by a motor truck while repairing a tire at the roadside in Lakefield.

Brock Wright, 50, Howden avenue, North Monaghan, alleged driver of the truck, was arrested by Chief Wallace Hendren and Motorcycle Constable Lloyd A. McClure. He received treatment for hand injuries.

On his appearance before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning, Wright elected summary trial on charges of drunk-driving and criminal negligence. He was remanded without plea on both counts until Thursday next, bail being set in the sum of $3,000.

Brown's car was parked on the shoulder of the road west of Lakefield bridge and the Wright truck was proceeding towards Peterborough loaded with vegetables when the accident occurred. Brown was pinned between his car and the truck by the fender of the moving vehicle. He sustained a farctured leg, internal injury and numerous cuts.

The injured man was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital, being removed there by Rev. Father Garvey who was passing the scene of the accident in his car.

The truck was reported to have continued on after striking Brown and to have turned upside down in the right hand ditch.

Mrs. Brown who was sitting in the car escaped injury. The truck had no passengers except the driver.

SUDBURY MURDER CASE GOES TO JURY

SUDBURY—(CP)—Tom Pornomarenko today was sentenced to hang January 2, 1938, for the murder of Sergeant Fred Davidson of the Sudbury city police.

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 21 (C.P.).—Fate of Tom Pornomarenko, charged with the murder of a Sudbury police sergeant, to-day was placed in the hands of a Supreme Court jury.

The Crown charged Pornomarenko was the companion of Victor Gray when Sergeant Fred Davidson was shot fatally early on July 11 when he attempted to question two men in a stolen car. Gray later died under a hail of police bullets when cornered in a Spanish River rock cut, 25 miles west of Sudbury; Pornomarenko was wounded in the chest.

The jury retired after having been called back when Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland amplified his quotation of the section of the Criminal Code under which the prisoner was charged.

When the court asked if there were any objections, A. Dediana, defence counsel, said he had two. He declared if E. D. Wilkins, K.C., Crown Attorney, suggested that he claimed any falsity in the dying declaration of Sergeant Davidson, he was incorrect.

Dediana said he had made no such inference, but the court did not admit the objection. The Justice said there had been no indication he contended the declaration was false.

In his second objection defence counsel contended the court omitted to read to the jury the full Sub-section 2 of Section 69 of the Criminal Code. Mr. Justice McFarland agreed he had not read the full sub-section.

The jury was then called back and Mr. Justice McFarland amplified his quotation.

Presence of Pornomarenko at the scene of the sergeant's fatal waunding was not a reason for his conviction for murder, Defence Counsel Dediana told the jury in his address.

Rebels Take Gijon Rule All North, Oviedo Siege Ends

Mass Surrender of Loyalist Army Expected; Capture of Large Rescue Trawler Fleet Looms

IRUN, Spain, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Hundreds of war-weary government troops, beaten back to the sea by General Franco's army, laid down their arms to surrender the port city of Gijon at noon today.

News this last important government-held city in all of northwest Spain had capitulated spread quickly through government forces in other sectors of Asturias province and squads of Asturian miners, besieging nearby Oviedo for more than a year marched north to throw themselves at the mercy of the insurgents.

(The miners' army for more than a year had laid siege to Oviedo, held grimly by an insurgent garrison).

Franco's officers here said they expected mass surrender of remaining government forces in the north within a few days.

Insurgent control of Gijon left the Valencia government troops holding only a tiny bit of Bay of Biscay coastline from Gijon west to a few miles the other side of Aviles.

(Border reports were confusing regarding the situation in Gijon itself. Officers of six government planes which landed at Biarritz yesterday said Basques and Asturians fought in the streets before the city's surrender. Belarmino Tomas, Anarchist governor of Gijon, was reported to have fled to France).

Rescuers May Find Trap

A score of Spanish government trawlers tied up at Saint Jean de Luz and Bayonne, French ports, put out to sea with intention of trying to rescue as many government supporters as possible from Gijon.

But as most of these vessels lacked wireless equipment, Spaniards here feared they would fall into the hands of the insurgents before they learned Gijon had surrendered.

Insurgent officers announced that liason had been established between General Franco's troops in Gijon and the beleaguered garrison at Oviedo. This announcement was interpreted as meaning government troops, besieging Oviedo since the start of the civil war 15 months ago had abandoned their efforts to capture it upon learning that Gijon had fallen.

PRESS IS DUBIOUS OF DUCE'S OFFER ON VOLUNTEERS

LONDON, Oct 21 (CP Cable)—The British press today divided its sentiments in reacting to Italy's 11th hour gesture to peace. Some are openly jubilant, others skeptical. Yet all agree it is better than nothing and there is manifest a desire to support Foreign Secretary Eden's implication to the non-intervention committee yesterday that the widest and most prompt publicity be given the Italian suggestion.

Seemingly, therefore, there is a most respectful note running through some of the editorials, almost glorifying Premier Mussolini's dictum.

The Times, always notably close to government wishes, terms it a long step towards a reasonable, final agreement "insulating the Spanish conflict and fully deserving of Italian Ambassador Grandi's own description: "A far-reaching and constructive offer, practically reducing the gap between the opposing views."

The Times concludes, hoping that when the commission's report has been received it will be "discussed in statesmanlike spirit and with a desire for an agreement which is shown in Count Grandi's declaration.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, in a somewhat similar vein, says: "Mussolini stays the rift. Whatever causes conspire to make the situation, the fact is that European tension is relieved. There will be no great war in Europe."

Gives Italy Credit

The Yorkshire Post (Conservative) says "It would certainly appear that Premier Mussolini has recognized that responsibility rested in him for inducing a movement in the London committee, whose resummoning he preferred to the tripower conference suggested by Great Britain and France; acknowledgment is due Italy for converting the almost hopeless position of Tuesday into the hopeful position of Wednesday."

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) and the Daily Telegraph (Conservative) are similarly pleased although slightly dubious. But the News-Chronicle (Liberal) leads questioners with:

"It is impossible to get enthusiastic about Italian support for a plan which Italy had a major part in shelving three months ago...The Italian suggestion might mean something or nothing, according to the spirit in which Italy will co-operate and the Italian attitude in the past prompts the belief the commission (to be sent to Spain) will be an instrument of further delay.

"The potentialities of delay in a

DRUNKEN DRIVER GETS SIX MONTHS

LINDSAY, Oct. 21. — Drunken drivers will not be tolerated in Victoria County. This was the blunt warning issued by Judge J. A. McGibbon in County Judges Criminal Court yestardey, when he sentended Henry Webster, 63-year-old Penelon Falls resident to six months in the Ontario Reformatory and suspended his driver's license indefinitely. Webster appeared on the second charge of the same nature within two years.

AGE NO HANDICAP

Caught In Folds Of Justice

This little girl and her mother seem somewhat bewildered by the preponderance of legal figures surrounding them outside Westminster Abbey. Indeed the picture is a rare one, presenting as it does, the bewigged, be-robed upholders of British justice in most informal pose. The judges had just attended a special abbey service upon the opening of the new legal year in London.

Separated For 31 Years Girl Finds Father

Family Had Vanished In 1906 When Parent Returns From Job In Mine

EDMONTON, Oct. 21 (C.P.). — Separated 31 years ago, a father and his daughter, now a nun, met again in Edmonton for a brief re-union that ended the daughter's long and persistent search for her parent.

In 1906, Peter Sauka left his home at Frank, Alta., to work in a mine at Michel, B.C., when he returned to Frank his wife and two children, Eva, aged two, and John, 14 months, were gone. Later Sauka married again and two other children were born.

The daughter now is Sister Eva Sauka, Sister of Charity of the Order of the Grey Nuns. John, now father of six children, lives at Pine Falls, Man.

Sister Eva, educated at a convent in St. Boniface, Man., where she and her brother had been left by her mother, has qualified as a teacher. After teaching in Winnipeg and Montreal, she arrived at Edmonton while en route to Fort Chipewyan, Alta., to take charge of a classroom.

Finds Half Sister

The Nun, born in Edmonton 33 years ago, made enquiries about her father when she visited the general hospital operated here by the Grey Nuns.

Learning a 17-year-old girl named Genevieve Sauka was employed at the hospital, Sister Eva hurried to see the girl. Genevieve had never heard of Eve but thought her sister Agnes, a nurse-in-training at nearby Misericordia Hospital, would know. Agnes telephoned her father.

"Daddy," said Agnes, "there's a sister here who thinks you're her father. Her name is Eva."

Peter Sauka waited to hear no more. He rushed to the hospital. Father and daughter were almost overcome with joy when they met.

Peter Sauka also has had a letter from his son John in Manitoba.

"Soon I hope to go to see John," he said.

Relatives in the east persuaded him to come to this section.

STRUCK BY TRUCK MEYERSBURG BOY FATALLY INJURED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 21—James Newton, aged 8, of Meyersburg, died of a fractured skull in the Campbellford Hospital on Wednesday.

In was six in the evening the night before, when his mother, Mrs. Lewis Newton, had sent him with his younger brother to Bill Ross' farm about a mile down the road on No. 30 highway, for some milk. The boys left their little cottage, which is situated about three hundred feet from the highway on the road leading to Percy Boom, and had gone about a quarter of a mile, walking on the right hand side when they saw a car coming. Jimmie, who was walking on the side nearest the centre of the road didn't think as he saw it coming toward him that there might be another vehicle, nor did Don Little, road foreman, see the two lads as they trudged along with their milk pail. He was blinded by the lights of the car he was meeting.

Pulling to an immediate stop when he heard the thud as he struck the little fellow, Mr. Little walked back to where he saw him lying at the side of the road. At a doctor's office in town a hurried examination was followed by his removal to the hospital, where the boy died without regaining consciousness at 11 a.m. Wednesday. He was the second oldest of six children and his father is employed by Mr. Wm. Ross.

A jury was empanelled and the date for the inquest was set for October 27.

EDEN CONFIDENT BRITISH STRENGTH CAN KEEP PEACE

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(CP Cable) — In the closing moments of a speech in which he reviewed the wars in the east and west, Foreign Secretary Eden today declared his faith in Great Britain's growing armaments as a guarantee of peace.

Members of the House of Commons returned to work tensely eger. The packed benches rippled alternately with applause and ironic cheers. Members leaned intently forward, anxious to hear the latest word.

"It is impossible for our foreign policy to be other than closely related to the condition of our armaments," Mr. Eden said. "The experience of these last few years should be a grim warning to us, a grim warning to every future government of this country. Now, at length, our growing strength in the field of armament is beginning to appear. Its significance can scarcely be exaggerated."

Welcomes Labor Verdict.

For that reason, Eden added, he cordially welcomed the recent verdict of the Labor Party conference at Bournemouth on the question of armaments.

Conservatives laughed.

"It is easy for the honorable gentlemen to laugh at the conversion," Mr. Eden continued. "I for one never could do so—I am only too glad at their conversion—because of the steadily increasing influence

New Arrests Climax City-Wide Probe In Teacher's Death

Charged With Illegal Operations in Six Cases; All Date Before Recent Wilkinson Murder

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP)—A city-wide probe, started after the body of Miss Mary Wilkinson, London school teacher was found in the Thames River a month ago, took a startling development today when two prominent doctors and two London women were arrested.

All four are charged with performing illegal operations. Bail for each was set at $10,000.

Although the charges arose from the investigations following the Wilkinson case, the four accused are not connected with the death of the school teacher. They are charged with offences alleged to have occurred long before the date.

The accused are:

Dr. J. E. McGillicuddy, 54. Dr. Charles A. Cline Jr., 37; Mrs. Rachel Stock, 66; Mrs. Iris Murray.

Dr. McGillicuddy was arrested on four charges. Dr. Cline was accused of two charges. Mrs. Stock and Mrs. Murray were each charged with one offence.

Although there are a total of eight charges against the four, the Crown is alleging that only six operations occurred. The two charges against Dr. Cline and two of the four against Dr. McGillicuddy involve the same persons. In those two cases the alleged offences are said to have occurred in the year 1934.

AIMED AT HEARTS OF THREE VICTIMS LEE TOLD OFFICER

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP).—Detective Howard Moreau, of Hamilton, to-day testified at the murder trial of Joseph C. Lee the prisoner told him after seeing two critically wounded men in hospital that "I wanted to blast their hearts to pieces."

Lee is charged with the murder of George Jackson, for which he is now on trial and with the slaying of John Anderson. They were shot last June when Anthony Anderson, John's brother, was also wounded. Anthony is paralyzed in hospital now.

The detective said that Lee told him in answer to a question that he aimed at the hearts of the men, former business partners.

"I said, you didn't intend them to get better?" continued the detective. Lee replied, according to witness that "there's no use crippling men like that, I wanted to blast their hearts to pieces."

After Lee saw Jackson and Anthony Anderson critically wounded in hospital, he told the officer that "those fellows lying there yelling didn't bother me a bit," said Moreau. The detective said Lee volunteered this remark in a room at the hospital.

Tells of His Wife.

Witness also said that Lee added his wife was lying in hospital a month ago suffering in the same manner.

Anderson's evidence concerned the affairs of the Atlas Horseshoe Company in which Lee had been partner with John and Anthony Anderson and of the George H. Jackson Company which succeeded the Atlas Company.

The cross-examination of Anthony Anderson, as it involved evidence before a civil court in litigation between the accused and George H. Jackson, is under objection by the Crown and the Judge has deemed it irrelevant. It is being admitted before the jury because of the contention of defence alienists that it was necessary to show the state of Lee's mind.

HEADS BAPTISTS

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Oct. 21. — (CP).—Rev. John Cristea, pastor of Aubin Road church, Windsor, was elected president of the Pastors' and Laymen's Conference of the Western Association of Baptist Churches, at its 101st annual meeting here.

WILKINS RESUMES HUNT FOR FLIERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP).—Two well-known explorers tuned up the motors of a trim, silver monoplane today to make a fresh search of the Arctic for trace of Sigismund Levaneffsky, Russian flier, and his five companions.

Lost early last August while en route from Moscow to California via the North Pole and Western Canada, the Russians are presumed to be on the pack ice 1,000 miles or more north of Alaska.

As Sir Hubert Wilkins of Australia and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon of Winnipeg, who made five trips in a flying boat over the Arctic wastes in attempts to spot the luckless Russians, prepared to leave Floyd Bennett field today, Eskimo clothing was made ready for them at Barrow, a few miles southwest of Point Barrow. Point Barrow is the northernmost point in Alaska.

A set of airplane skis will be turned over to the searching party at Winnipeg this weekend by Trans-Canada Airways, and once the wheels have been replaced with skis the fliers will proceed northwestward.

Wilkins and Hollick-Kenyon, accompanied by Al Chessman, Canadian co-pilot with Hollick-Kenyon, and A. Dyne, mechanic, will carry hunting equipment and snowshoes. They plan to camp in snow houses. Little food will be taken along on the theory that, if forced down on their flights from their bases, they can live by hunting.

COUNTY TEACHERS HOLD CONVENTION

An address by Thornton Mustard, M.A., B.Paed., of Toronto Normal School, featured the convention of rural school teachers which began this morning at the Normal School. About one hundred and forty teachers of the county schools, including High and Continuation Schools, attended the opening session with Thomas W. Chaplin, principal of Lakefield Public School, chairman.

Mr. Mustard discussed the importance of supplementary study, especially by pupils, according to the new course designed by the Department of Education, and returned to his subject at this afternoon's session.

The program for to-day included demonstrations of tap and folk dancing by children of Miss Trimble's school at Stewart Hall, and by John Londerville's pupils at May's School. An illustrated lecture by Harry Moore of the Ontario Department of Agriculture on the subject of "Trees" was given this afternoon.

Twenty Injured As London Fog 'Strangles' Great City

Visibility Less Than 15 Feet On Main Streets — Ships, Planes, Trains Halted

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(CP-Havas).—Twenty persons, including a number of children, suffered injuries in accidents resulting from a deep fog enshrouding London and nearby areas to-day.

The fog upset shipping, train and airplane schedules and reduced visibility to less than 15 feet in some of the main London streets.

Five children were injured when a bus transporting them to Cranford, Middlesex, collided with a truck. Fourteen persons were hurt in an autobus-truck collision at Nottingham. An automobile smashed into a lamp post at Pinner, Middlesex, and caught fire. The driver was taken to a hospital.

The patient is a 15 year old boy in First Form at the Niagara Falls Collegiate Institute. The Collegiate here is not closed, but the boy's desk has been disinfected. While the Chippawa school is closed it will be fumigated.

Finds Thumb Print Good On Cheques

Vancouver Oct. 21 (CP)

CITY Prosecutor Oscar Orr thinks the "thumbprint" method is the business man's best way to protect himself from "rubber cheques." Orr told a Vancouver credit association that "if you do not know your man, ask for a thumbprint on the cheque. If he's genuine he won't mind," Orr said.

Marmora Cheese Expert's Family Clicks Twice At Draw—From Cheese Box

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Marmora, Oct. 21.

THE old song "In again, out again, gone again, Finnegan" had a real local setting on Tuesday, Marmora's Fair Day. Jack Finnegan, cheese maker at the Marmora Cheese factory for several years and winner of many prizes at fall fairs somewhat rested on his oars in recent years to encourage the younger generation. This year, he seems to have considered that it was time, for him to stage a comeback and his record on Tuesday of three firsts and two seconds proves he has not lost his proficiency.

The story does not end here. Always obliging, Jack Finnegan once loaned a number of empty cheese boxes as seating accommodation at a church social held on neighboring grounds to his cheese factory. On Marmora Fair Day, door tickets had to be shuffled in a large receptacle in connection with the drawing for prizes amounting to three hundred dollars. "Better use a cheese box", said the smiling Jack. "OK" replied one in charge, and two prizes, one of ten dollars to his daughter Mildred, and another of five dollars to his son Bernard, travelled the Finnegan way.

Shakespearean 'Pitch and Woo' Gets New Run On Campuses

Band Leader Quizzes 250 Colleges On Real Origin With No Definite Result

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(CP). — You'd never know it from a lover's vocabularly but good old romance is still just that.

Grandgrandma knew it as "bundling."; Grandad as "sparking," and Ma and Dad had said "spooning." Since then young love has coined a variety of expressions from "petting," "necking" and "mugging" down to the phrase now ringing on college campuses from coast to coast—"pitch a little woo."

Origin of the new twist on billing and cooing seems lost in the mists. Everyone from Shakespeare down has been blamed for starting the popularity of "pitch a little woo," but out of 250 colleges just queried, nobody so far has quoted chapter and verse of an authority.

Sam Mineo and Sid Prussin, song writers, composed a ditty, "Let's Pitch a Little Woo," and took it to Richard Himber, noted New York band leader.

Himber, who has played for more college proms than you could shake a stick at, said the phrase was a new one on him. So to prove it widely popular, the writers sent letters to leading colleges throughout the United States, asking the rah-rah boys if they used the expression and where it originated.

Drives Car 17 Years Thinks He'll Trade

Gananoque, Oct. 21.

FRANK Wright, painter, Gananoque, has been driving automobiles for thirty-four years, and during that time he has only driven two.

Wednesday Mr. Wright said: "Do you see that old car standing out there?" Well, I have been driving it for seventeen years, and I think I will have to trade it soon. When I bought this car I traded another car in after I had it on the road for seventeen years."

The car which Mr. Wright is now driving is an open car, and it seems to purr along pretty well, but as its owner says, it is getting a little ancient, so a change is due shortly.

"Nonesuch" Freak Half-Cat Half-Dog Has Batch Of Normal Kittens

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)

"NONESUCH," the little animal which is half dog and half cat, attained the front page of a scientific publication today by having kittens.

The Journal of Heredity, which originally recorded the birth of Nonesuch as a freak of inheritance, said the animal, which belongs to Mrs. Annie May Gannon of Wilmington, N. C., is 1 year old. It has a long dog-like neck, has head ears and shoulders like those of a fox terrier, and walks a while like a cat, the journal declared.

Her four offsprings were described as normal kittens.

Volunteer Action Now Rests With Franco, Valencia

Italy's Dramatic Acceptance of Proposals Reported Withheld 3 Weeks; Playing for Time

LONDON, Oct. 21. — (CP-Havas) — Acceptance by the Spanish Valencia and Insurgent governments was regarded here today as the next step in execution of the plan for withdrawing foreign volunteers from Spain, approved at yesterday's session of the non-intervention subcommittee.

British public opinion admitted further difficulties must be overcome, but was mildly enthusiastic over the change in what had seemed a hopeless situation.

Supported by German Charge D'Affaires Ernst Woermann, Italian Ambassador Dino Grandi told the sub-committee his government was willing:

1. To participate in an immediate "symbolic" withdrawal of an equal number of foreign volunteers from both sides in Spain.

2. To endorse the organization and dispatch of an international commission to ascertain the number of foreigners fighting for both government and insurgents.

3. To agree that after this commission has reported the question of granting belligerency rights to both sides may be settled.

While experts began preparation of technical plans for withdrawal, the sub-committee was to meet again tomorrow to receive the formal answers of member governments to the Italian offer.

Churchill Chairman?

Name of Winston Churchill, M.P., was suggested for the chairmanship of the Commission to be sent to Spain.

One report said the Italian compromise was prepared three weeks ago and reserved for dramatic production at a time when collapse of non-intervention, with Great Britain and France resuming liberty of action in Spain, seemed increasingly possible.

A result of the near-collapse made apparent at Tuesday's subcommittee session, this report said, Count Grandi telephoned Rome, believing the critical moment at hand. After warning the Italian Government the deadlock seemed complete, he was told to go ahead with the offer, according to this version.

Earlier yesterday, but without Count Grandi's knowledge, it was said, Great Britain and France had agreed to accept the previous Italian proposal to drop the French plan of Saturday and return to the British compromise formula of last July.

ADAM HENRY FRICK

Succumbing to a very short illness, Adam Henry Frick, known to many in the community through his service as baggage master at the C.P.R. station, died at his home, 47 Jackson avenue, today. He was in his 67th year.

He was born in Barking, London, England, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Adam Frick, and came here 34 years ago. He retired from his post with the C.P.R. last June. A member of St. James' United Church, he was also active as a member of the Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Annie Brown, a son, Albert of St. Catharines, a step-son, Stanley Bucknell and a step-daughter, Mrs. Meehan. A brother, Jack Frick, and a sister, Mrs. Cootta, live in England.

The funeral will be held Saturday at 1.30 o'clock from the late residence to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. F. W. Craik officiating.

TUNA LEAPS INTO SHIP

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C.—(CP)—The halibut vessel Rainier returned from a fishing trip 200 miles off Hominey, Alaska, with a load of halibut—and a single tuna. Crew members said the tuna leaped from the water and fell neatly into the Rainier's hold.

New York Dooms All Loose Dogs

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(CP)—The woofers in these parts are certainly leading a dog's life.

Immediately after a series of barks from apartment house owners threatening to evict all tenants who kept dogs on the premises, comes the announcement of a six-month campaign in Brooklyn against pooches running loose.

The Brooklyn move was aroused by the increasing number of rabies among dogs and Health Commissioner Dr. J. L. Rice, announced an enlarged crew of dog catchers will pick up all dogs at large unleashed or unmuzzled, whether licensed or not.

Such dogs will be taken to the Society of Prevention for Cruelty to Animals shelter and if not claimed in 48 hours, even the dull lives they are leading will be enced.

EXPLOSIVE-LADEN BARGE CUT ADRIFT IN LAKE ERIE GALE

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP) —Turbulent Lake Erie — holder of many secrets within its shallow and treacherous waters—fought hard today to guard two of its latest mysteries. Heavy seas handicapped search for a lost barge laden with benzol and prevented grappling operations to recover the body of a Kingsville fisherman.

Search for the barge Argo centered at Pelee Island, 14 miles out on the lake, where it was cut adrift from a tug early yesterday. The Argo was abandoned by the tug Syosset, of Bayonne, N.J., after taking on several tons of water through a leak. Collision with the craft might result in an explosion, as its hold contains 100,000 gallons of benzol, shipping was warned.

Two occupants of the Argo were thrown into the lake by the sudden list to port as the water poured in. They were rescued after a two-hour search by the parent tug. The men, Charles Warwick, 24, and Peter Boszuk, 26, kept afloat with life preservers. They suffered no ill effects.

Feared Fouling Propellors

Captain R. E. Westfall, master of the tug, said the barge had been cast adrift when it was feared she would foul the tug's propellors. He said he was towing the Argo from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to New York, for its owner, W. J. Townsend. Many lake freighters, riding out the blow at Point Pelee, 40 miles southeast of Windsor, will continue their journey today.

Because of rough waters since Henry Kissner, 36, was drowned Sunday when a fishing tug burned to the water's edge, dragging operations have been postponed daily. Kissner lost his life after a gasoline explosion aboard the Kingsville craft forced its three occupants to take to the storm-ridden chilly waters.

The other two, James Goodhue, 37, and Orville McCormick, 35, were rescued by another fishing boat after clinging to fish boxes for half an hour.

pathetic commission of superannuated officials roaming around Spain is clearly infinite. If the British government embarks with its eyes open to another long period of delay it will be folly. They should never depart from the central point that foreigners must go and before they have time to secure a victory—this is the central issue. Whatever he (Mussolini) offers now he has publicly declared he intends to see General Franco win.

Need A Strong Man

"But the government must insist that at the head of the commission there be a man of standing and determination and the necessary military knowledge not to allow himself to be deflected from the job by soft soap—someone of the calibre of Winston Churchill."

The Western Mail of Cardiff (Independent) is thankful but pointedly asks, "why this unconscionable and perilous delay on the part of Italy in expressing desire for a friendly compromise." The Liverpool Post (Liberal), pondering the reasons, suggests maybe Italy realizes now that France and Great Britain are determined to put an end to the menace, maybe Italy is finding intervention too costly, or maybe Italy realizes she has been causing international unrest, from which she is suffering severely.

The Financial News says "once more it has been demonstrated that dictatorship countries must retreat if Britain and France make a firm stand."

Dancer Hitler – The Life of the Party

EDEN CONFIDENT BRITISH STRENGTH CAN KEEP PEACE

it will have on the present international situation."

Clement Attlee, Labor leader, immediately challenged the Foreign Secretary's view. The closing sentences of Mr. Eden's speech, the Labor leader declared, only widen the gulf between the Government and the Opposition.

Mr. Eden had traced the course of events since Parliament adjourned, both in Spain and the Far East. Despite disappointments the Government still stood by non-intervention in Spain. The fact that others might have intervened did not detract from the truth of the doctrine.

No Taking of Sides.

"I am convinced that the people of this country are united and emphatic in not wishing the government to take sides in what should be a matter for the Spanish people," the Foreign Secretary declared. "I am also convinced our people wish the government to do everything in their power by example and conference not to let the principle of non-intervention be finally and irrevocably thrown over."

But the Foreign Secretary added warning words that non-intervention must be sharply distinguished from indifference to the territorial integrity of Spain and Great Britain's Imperial connections through the Mediterranean.

"There will be no indifference on the part of the government," Mr. Eden exclaimed to loud Conservative cheers, "where it is clear that vital British interests are threatened."

An Open Road.

There was no idea of revenge, either overt or latent, but "our position in the Mediterranean is simply this: We mean to maintain the right-of-way on this main arterial road. We are justified in expecting such right to be unchallenged. We do not ask that that right should be exclusive."

Again a cheer ran round the House.

Foreign intervention in Spain was responsible for preventing progress towards international peace. It was futile to deny that unless the Spanish problem were solved real progress was not possible. The government sincerely appreciated Italy's two concessions to the non-intervention committee yesterday as a contribution to international settlement.

Mr. Eden said he would be the last to indulge in exaggerated optimism. There were problems enough and to spare still outstanding. But there was now a chance of real progress. The next few weeks would show, and the Foreign Secretary significantly added: "I say weeks deliberately."

The British Government, Mr. Eden proceeded, welcomed the Brussels nine-power conference on the Far East. In the British view the meeting of the powers concerned was the best method of finding means of ending the conflict. The Foreign Secretary said that today he had received a message that Yvon Delbos, French Foreign Minister, intended to attend the conference and that the Italian Government would send a delegation.

The paramount desire of everyone was to see an end to the slaughter and misery. "If the meeting of the nine powers can achieve this, it will render the greatest possible service," Mr. Eden declared. "If it fails, then we enter a new situation. His Majesty's Government will enter the conference with the determination to do everything in their power to ensure the success of its labors."

Italy is establishing a synthetic rubber research institute.

Roosevelt's Double Called To Movies

DETROIT, Oct. 21.—(CP).—Captain Jack Young of Miami, former Toronto fireman, has been a Canadian secret agent, a speed boat racer, an undertaker and a truck driver during his adventurous life. His newest role is impersonating President Roosevelt.

It began one fine day in 1934 when a gasoline station attendant in Florida lost a $5 bet that Young was the chief executive of the United States. With the aid of a prince-nez and a flip of his slouch hat brim, Young resembles the President so much that police reserves were called out when he attended a ball game in Washington.

Hollywood heard of the likeness and Young is now on his way there to do a series of character impersonations.

WEEPING STATUE DRAWS THOUSANDS TO INVALID'S ROOM

CORNWALL, Ont., Oct. 21 (C.P.). —Devout and curious to-day continued to file past the bed of paralyzed Leona Villeneuve, some claiming miraculous cures by her "weeping statue" of Christ despite expressions of scepticism from churchmen and the woman's physician.

The 30-year-old invalid and her family said the 27-inch statuette on her dresser began to "cry" last Friday after she ended a nine-day prayer for recovery, promising in the prayer to return to an Ottawa convent and complete her education for holy orders.

The family estimated 2,000 persons walked through their small home yesterday and last night, passing in single file up the stairs and through the sick woman's room. Many placed gifts of money at the foot of the statuette. The family said they would be used to buy candles to burn before it and in the woman's church.

The "weeping" appearance of moisture on the head and shoulders of the image was reportedly less profuse yesterday than at the weekend.

Leona said she recognized the phenomenon as recognition of her prayer, though "I'll have to wait until the nine days are up (next Sunday) before I know what the answer is."

Suspects Condensed Moisture

Dr. A. J. Aubin, her physician, expressed the opinion moisture had condensed on the cool statuette from the warm air of the woman's bedroom. Cornwall clergy declined officially to express an opinion, but Father Duncan Macdonald of nearby Alexandria, speaking from the bishop's palace in the absence of Bishop Felix Couturier, said Corn-

MENCKEN ON ATTACK

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (A.P.). — H. L. Mencken, Baltimore's unrepentant iconoclast, thinks President Roosevelt's reputation as a speaker is "hooey."

"I don't believe Roosevelt writes his fireside speeches," he told a Columbia University literature class.

"He is not a stylist. He just sits down and puts briefs together. And his voice doesn't seem very musical. It sounds too tenorish to me."

Mencken also had a harsh word for the ambulant prose of Gertrude Stein.

"Gertrude Stein is a quack," he said. "She has no ideas and she can't express 'em."

PROFIT CASHING NIPS STOCK RALLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The booming stock market rally today bogged down under selling of steels and cashing in of profits by traders who thought the recent comeback had been a bit too speedy.

The list resumed its forward swing at the start and the ticker tape at one time was six minutes behind as blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares swamped the recording facilities of the stock exchange.

Extreme advances of 1 to 3 points were soon reduced or converted into losses.

Transfer, about 3,500,000 shares.

BLAME DRINKING DRIVER

AMOS, Que., Oct. 21—(CP). — James Semeryn of Valdor, Que., was held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury for the death of John Basco of Oshawa, Ont., in a motor crash. Sent to jail after the inquest Tuesday he is awaiting preliminary hearing.

Basco, 42, was a passenger in a fruit truck driven by Semeryn when it crashed into one driven by Paul Emile-Moffet of Lasarre early Monday night.

Another passenger in Semeryn's truck told the jury the driver had been drinking and was driving on the wrong side of the highway.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Wheat futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange were firm to-day with buying credited to commission houses and purchase by overseas interests keeping prices above the previous close most of the session. At the final bell values were ⅝ to ¾ cent higher. October $1.26½, November $1.25⅝-½, December $1.20⅝-¾ and May $1.18-$1.18⅛.

Climbing stock markets and steady Liverpool prices were in the background of a strong undertone during the day's trading. Advances of more than a cent were made in the first hour. Some profit-taking pared gains but dips below the previous close were few.

Though new export business was believed not to exceed 200,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, exporters were reported buying in connection with the 1,000,000-bushel export trade yesterday.

A.Y.P.A. OFFICERS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 21—Dick Ramsden was elected president of the Anglican Young People's Association when they held their annual election of officers on Monday evening. In refusing to accept the nomination for the presidency for a third term, Miss Vera Wood, thanked the Young People for their cooperation during the past and expressed regret that circumstances would not permit her to carry on for another year in the president's chair. Miss Wood was then elected to the position of vice president. The secretary, Miss Elsie Southern, was returned to office by acclamation, while Aileen Linton was elected treasurer. Arrangements for the Hallowe'en dance which is to be held on October 29, in the Parish Hall, were discussed and the balance of the evening was spent in playing table tennis.

TALK ON MUSIC GIVEN MADOC W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Oct. 21—"Music Training in our Schools and Homes" was the subject of a very interesting talk given by Mrs. B. Alexander, music supervisor, at the October meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. George White on Friday, Mrs. T. L. Nickle presiding. At the close of the address the members enjoyed a practical demonstration of the teaching of a new song, and were taught the simple verses of "Some folks do."

An attendance of 25 members and some visitors were gathered to hear of the financial success of the Fair booth, reported by the secretary, Mrs. J. W. Hulin was appointed as delegate to the area convention. Arrangements were made for entertaining the Ivanhoe Institute at the speaker meeting on November 2 at the Guild Hall, and a social hour will be enjoyed at the close.

Armistice Day will be remembered as usual and a wreath will be placed at the Cenotaph during the veterans' service by Miss Margaret White, in the name of the Madoc Women's Institute.

Arrangements were also discussed for an afternoon cooking school to be held early in December and invitations are being extended to Ivanhoe, Eldorado and Bannockburn and Cooper Institutes to join in this school and share in the social activities to follow.

BLACK GUM WOOD MAKING NEWSPRINT

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Dr. Charles Herty announced yesterday the perfection of a process for manufacture of newsprint from black gum wood, a characteristic tree of Atlantic and Gulf Coast river swamps.

He described it as "the most important development from our laboratory since the day we made our commercial experimental run (with pine pulp) at Thorold, Ont., about four years ago."

To the south, he added, it means audition of "40 per cent. more to the already vast resources for the manufacture of paper, particularly newsprint."

The Savannah chemist, who perfected the process for making newsprint from southern pine pulp, said black gum paper is superior to the average of 17 commercial varieties in tensile strength, burst and tear.

Sample pages of the Savannah Evening Press printed on black gum paper were distributed to-day to delegates attending the convention of the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry. The newsprint is bright in color, and smooth surfaced. It prints well and shows good reproduction of engravings. The body is good and the paper opaque.

The gum newsprint was made by using 25 per cent. semi-bleached sulphate pulp and 75 per cent. gum groundwood pulp. Those were the same portions used in th first run of pint newsprint at Thorold.

"This single experiment with gum groundwood opens up a vast new field of research which we can hopefully undertake," Dr. Herty said.

OPPOSES APPEALS TO PRIVY COUNCIL

MONTREAL, Oct. 21—(CP).—Appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on matters of Canadian constitutional law should be abolished, Senator A. K. Hugessen said last night in an address before the Montreal Junior Board of Trade.

The Senator said cases of this nature now going to the Privy Council could, and should, be dealt with adequately by the Supreme Court of Canada. He expressed belief the Fathers of Confederation drafted the British North America Act to create a strong central government that should be charged with the administration of matters of general interest to the country at large.

As the result of 70 years of interpretation by the Privy Council, he declared, the position today was that "parliament now has no control over industry in general or other related subjects of great importance such as the marketing of natural products, the prevention of industrial disputes, unemployment insurance, wages and conditions of labor."

It had been left also with "very little control over the social services such as health insurance or old age pensions."

Senator Hugessen said this condition had been brought about by successive interpretations by the Privy Council's judicial committee.

MADOC TOWNSHIP FARMER IS HURT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 21.—Crashing heavily to a cement floor twenty feet below him, when a rung of the silo ladder he was descending suddenly gave way, Albert Caskey, 29, a farmer residing in the Township of Madoc, on Highway No. 7, was rushed to Belleville General Hospital shortly after five o'clock Tuesday morning, suffering from a fractured wrist, severe head lacerations and general shock.

Caskey fell some twenty feet, and only the fact that ensilage thrown out by him a few minutes previous partially broke the fall, prevented more serious injury. He had thrown down feed for the cattle and was descending when the accident occurred.

Dr. S. R. Beattie was immediately notified and ordered the injured man to the hospital after examination. Following treatment at the hospital, Caskey was removed to his home, where he is resting at present.

The injured man is a son of the late James Caskey, former prominent Holstein breeder of this district.

ROSENEATH W.I. SHOWS ANTIQUES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 21. — An interesting feature of the regular meeting of Roseneath Women's Institute was a display of antiques. There were cups made without handles, handed down through the generations; a clay teapot, a very short-stemmed pipe, nearly two hundred years old, and many other interesting articles, many of them brought into the country by the U.E. Loyalists.

Another pleasing feature was the presentation to Mrs. Edgar Carew (nee Rosella Taylor), a recent bride, of a silver pyrex pie-plate and silver pie-server. The presentation was made by the president, Mrs. B. Thackeray, on behalf of the society, and Mrs. C. Sandercock read an address conveying the good wishes of the members. Mrs. Carew replied graciously.

The program was presented by the grandmothers, and Mrs. J. W. Pacey, program convenor, presided. Mrs. Pacey gave a resume of current events, and read a story entitled, "For Grandma." Mrs. L. Turner read "Pioneers." Mrs. E. J. Milne gave a short talk on "Being a Grandmother." Mrs. E. Sandercock, reading, "Grandmother's Advice to Girls." Mrs. W. Smith read a story entitled "More or Less." Mrs. Robert Mouncey, who passed her 80th birthday on October 13, was the oldest grandmother present. She arranged a contest which was won by Mrs. B. Thackeray's and Miss Dorcas Atkinson's Groups.

During the business period it was decided on motion to appoint convenors for the following standing committee, Education, Health and Child Welfare, Historical Research, Peace Education and International Relations, and Canadianization.

Refreshments were served at the close. The meeting was held in the Town Hall, with the president, Mrs. B. Thackeray, presiding. There were twenty-eight present. Mrs. K. Harvie will be hostess for the November meeting, and Mrs. S. Thackeray and Mrs. M. Radley are a program committee.

Life At Its Best

To date 450 freight cars filled with fruit, vegetables and other supplies have been sent to Saskatchewan. That makes a train three miles long, and the railway companies have made no charge whatever for transporting these cars. The man in charge of their distribution in Saskatchewan says the railway people place any of these cars on any designated siding in the province and are glad to do it.

Ontario has sent 131 carloads, British Columbia 87, Manitoba 170, Quebec and Alberta 22 each. Last year there was drought in many sections of Manitoba, but this year things are better and what Manitoba has done is splendid. The total of cars from Ontario will greatly increase over 131 as many points have not yet made their shipments.

The beauty of the whole scheme is that it is a free-will offering; there is nothing commercial about it. The people are giving the produce or giving the money to pay for it and the railway companies are taking it on the long trip to the West and making no charge. And all this is being done because the people in Saskatchewan have had another hard year and are in want. There is plenty of trouble in the world today but this movement in Canada stands up in a perplexed atmosphere to demonstrate life at its best.

It Is The Time To Buy

Stock markets have been having a bad time. Those who have nothing at stake in the markets can sit back and read about it with indifference, but the individual who has stock sees it in a different way. He grows alarmed. There are a few things worth noting, and one is that the factories and mines and utilities and all else, the stock of which has been sacrificed in recent days, are working today just as they were before. They are producing and selling their output and getting paid for it. It is quite probable that what the stock markets have done to the prices of their securities has not even affected the employment of one man.

It is also well to notice that when there is excessive selling at reduced prices there is generally an equal amount of buying. One cannot sell even at a sacrifice unless some one is willing to buy. Those who are buying today are cool-headed people who have some confidence and common sense left. It is reported that some of the huge investment trusts in New York have been entering the market on the buying side. They have money for the purpose and plenty of it and it is their business to buy when the buying is good and to cease buying when prices go too high for profit. The fact that such buying is taking place should give the nervous ones something to think about.

Could It Be Done?

The City Council of Ottawa has passed on to the Board of Control a resolution sponsored by Ald. Dan McCann saying there should be a tax placed on labor saving machinery which causes people to lose employment. This tax shall be used to pay wages to employable persons or relief to those who cannot be employed.

The desire is that the resolution shall have the sanction of the Board of Control and then find its way to the Ontario Government. And what the Ontario Government will do with it we do not know. It is not likely it will make operative the idea centred in Ald. Dan McCann's motion. Not for a moment would this paper argue that machinery does not displace workers. We heard only a few days ago of one firm which introduced a system of highly mechanized bookkeeping. Formerly there were eight people working in the office, and today there are just half that number. In such a case the effect of the mechanical system is easily seen.

There are other machines which are different. It is not many steps from here to the room where linotype machines are in operation. One of those machines will do the work of five compositors setting type by hand, so if there were no linotype machines it is probable there would be five hand compositors in the place of each machine. That part of the argument seems simple enough. But the answer is there are more people working in newspaper offices today than there were in the days when type was set by hand. The machines made it possible to turn out papers at higher speed; made it possible to produce greater papers. That in turn made employment for more reporters to be engaged to provide the material for the larger paper and it became necessary to have more employees in other departments as well. And the making and repairing of linotype machines and the supplying of parts also gives employment to many people.

It is undoubtedly a fact that in a good many lines we have spent a great deal of time and energy praising those who have produced a new labor saving machine and marvelling at the genius which made such a thing possible, while at the same time we have devoted no time at all looking at the workers who have been released because of the coming of the new machine. The trouble with Ald Dan McCann's plan is going to be to find a way to make it work fairly and we entertain a good-sized doubt if such a system could be fashioned and made operative.

Using Her Talent

Miss Mary Munn, blind girl from Montreal, is receiving special notice for her work as a concert pianist. Europe paid attention when she played and New York is doing the same. She explains she depends very little on the Braille system for giving instruction to blind people, as it would be too slow to memorize the amount of work she wishes to perform. In her New York recital she played Beethoven's Sonata in A flat major, and that is a serious enough undertaking for any musician possessed of trained fingers and eyes and all else. But Miss Munn says she memorized it in 11 hours. Lesser numbers are played for her a couple of times slowly, and then she goes to work and reproduces them, working out a system of fingering of her own. This remarkable Canadian girl says she can do it because she "has an almost perfect ear for music." One should be willing enough to accept that explanation, but it is a known fact that there are others with splendid ears for music to whom the task of memorizing long and difficult scores does not come easy. It will take many of them weeks to memorize Beethoven's Sonata for instance.

We suspect that behind Miss Munn's perfect ear for music there must also be a determination amounting to almost a passion for perfect rendition which is necessary to carry her toward the top. She might have had that perfect ear for music and remained an unknown blind person in Montreal. That she has conquered Europe and is now extending her conquest in New York cannot be explained by merely saying she had "a good ear for music." Miss Munn had determination and vision. She measured the distance to the heights and then proceeded to climb them. And that means in brief—a talent is of little value unless it is used.

And This In Toronto!

When returns were being announced election night it was stated that Lionel Conacher, former hockey star, had been elected as Liberal member for Bracondale riding in Toronto, defeating Russell Nesbitt, Conservative member in the last legislature by 47 votes.

And right now it is not known who won that contest. They have been recounting and examining ballots and at the moment there are 137 Conacher ballots and 77 of the Nesbitt variety which must be passed upon by a judge or some other authority. It is stated Conacher has gained 12 votes, 10 of them from previously rejected ballots, and the Nesbitt count was increased by four, one of the votes coming from the rejected list.

One might expect a riding in Toronto to reveal a fair amount of intelligence on voting day. Taking Toronto at the estimate placed upon it by its own folk we would look for an almost perfect marking of ballots. There is actually nothing complicated about placing an X opposite a name on a ballot paper, but it is evident the folk in Toronto must be using their ballot papers for putting down their shopping lists, figuring out how much there will be left over to bet on the horses for the day or making a note of when they last let the landlord have a little payment on the July rent. Whatever the reason, voting took place in Bracondale riding in Toronto on October 6, and two weeks after they cannot tell who was elected.

What A Supper!

There are a good many fowl suppers being served in district churches at this season, and a good many folk from the city go to them. They have been doing so for years. Likewise a good many of our correspondents have been writing of these affairs and telling us what it is all about.

Our correspondent at Bethany describes one this way:

> At an early hour, visitors began to arrive and were served most efficiently by a bevy of willing waiters, to a sumptuous hot supper of choicest viands, the tables presenting a most appetizing picture, draped in white linen with floral decorations and gleaming silver.
> The menu of roast goose, chicken and duck, hot vegetables and delicious brown gravy, dressing and relishes of all descriptions, cakes and pies in unlimited quantities were set before the guests until all had been served to satisfaction.

We think that is fine. We could not have written that in a week of effort. It has everything necessary. It refers to visitors arriving early, and with commendable kindness makes no mention of the fact that they were crowding in then to get a place at the first table. It is sufficient to make those who were not present wish they had been there, and it is strong enough to convince those who attended that they were well treated. Fine say we.

After Four Years

Four years ago a family living in Kitchener desired to return to England. Apparently there was no work available; there were no funds and relief was the only way out. So the relief department in Kitchener advanced $179 for transportation, and it may have been looked upon as a good investment for when the family had departed it would not be necessary to pay any more relief.

A few days ago the relief officer in Kitchener received a cheque for $179 from the people in England, and there was also the added offer to pay interest on the amount for the four years.

It may be the relief officers in Kitchener were fully aware of the calibre and worth of the people with whom they were doing business, and to whom they extended $179 for transportation. Or the English folk may have been regarded as just another family on relief, and on that account not particularly welcome in the community.

That family has now demonstrated just what sort of people they are. There would have been no way of collecting this money had not the family wanted to pay it. They were probably hard up while in Canada, but it looks now as though Kitchener had actually lost a good family.

Sounds Silly

There have been a number of suggestions favoring a boycott of goods made in Japan, and many of these suggestions have come from labor unions in Canada and United States. The Japanese Social Mass Party has made reply and claims such unions "are protecting the interests of capitalists and abandoning the rights of the working classes." It is also added that people in Canada and United States are being deceived "by the Chinese government's maliciously distorted propaganda." That refers to reports of the number of civilians killed by Japanese bombing.

Probably that is as good as any answer which could have been made by the Japanese, but at best it is poor. The people in Canada and United States are not depending on the Chinese government to tell them what is going on in that country. There are a large number of good war correspondents there, and they have been trained in the school where it is known their work must stand up under examination. It has to be true to fact. When a bomb lands on a department store where people of all nationalities are nearby and where men, women and children are killed, it is not necessary to go and ask the government what has taken place. The foreign reporter or war correspondent knows exactly how to go about it to secure his facts and write his story because it is all there before him. So the Japanese argument on that point sounds a little silly.

A FEW DRINKS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ John Thomas is a goodly sport, and so he poured himself a snort, as he set out to drive; it warmed his innards as it sank, and settled easy in his tank, and he felt much alive.

¶ John Thomas called on Mr. A., for just a moment he would stay, as he was passing by; then Mr. A. spoke up to him, and mentioned too a shot of gin, and then a little rye.

¶ John Thomas felt like some trained seal, when he sat in behind the wheel, and he was gay indeed; but he was sober as could be, an easy thing for him to see, nor had he gone to seed.

¶ John Thomas drove his motor car, nor was he going so very far, and he was most discreet; he'd never seen so many trees, he dodged around sixteen of these, they grew right in the street.

¶ And every car that came his way, was circling like a bull at play, and trying to run him down; the pavement seemed to rise and fall, at times it wasn't there at all, 'twas such a crazy town.

¶ John Thomas woke at dawn next day, and tried to rub the mist away, no carpet on the floor; 'twas not exactly as he'd planned, nor could he plainly understand—the bars across the door.

New Talking Pictures.

A NEW effect in talking pictures described as "third-dimension sound" in which sound effects emanate directly from their point of origin on the screen was demonstrated recently at the annual meeting of the Society of Motion Pictures Engineers.

Pictures with the new feature are termed "stereophonic" talking pictures. The demonstration showed a ping-pong game with the sound of the racquets on the ball coming directly from each racquet and an orchestra with the location of the instruments discernible from their sound.

Also demonstrated were "stereoscopic" movies with a realistic third-dimensional sight effect obtained by photographing the subject, through polarized glass filters and viewing the film through spectacles of polarized glass.

Describing the stereophonic feature an official of one of the developing companies said that at present talking pictures give only an illusion of sound because the sound is picked up with only one microphone amplifier channel and recorded on only one sound track. "Stereophonic pictures he said "pick up sound by two channels and the output of each is recorded on a separate sound track on the film. The effect on the listener is that he is actually enjoying "two-ear" hearings instead of one."

The Princesses will plan and plant as they wish and they will also have to do their own weeding.

Checking Living Costs.

BRITISH LABOR Minister Ernest Brown has set himself a big task in his present effort to secure accurate information as to how much it costs a working man earning under £5 a week to live. Thirty thousand British working homes have been selected for the test and their answers for which they will be paid 2s 6d will decide the cost of living index which in future will govern the rise and fall of wages. When the official post-free evelopes are distributed there will be one for the husband and another for the wife and each will be able to fill in the amounts of the weekly budget and post their secrets back to the government.

"Doing Well and Will Recover"

IF ONE desires in the year 1937 a story of hardship and sickness then it is well to read the following which comes from Mayo in the Yukon Territory:

Mrs. Carl Burian, 19-year-old wife of a Steward River wood contractor, is "resting comfortably" in hospital here after a five-day 120-mile trip up river by motorboat and Royal Canadian Mounted Police canoe.

The girl, who came north last year from her home at Pioneer, Alta., to marry Burian, was taken ill at her husband's lonely cabin at Independence Creek.

On Monday she was bundled into a power boat skippered by her brother-in-law, Alf Burian, and the trip to Mayo and a doctor began. At Crooked Creek, 40 miles down-stream from here, the little boat broke down.

Burian carried his brother's wife ashore, built a tent of brush, and hiked overland to Mayo. Thursday morning, just at dawn, he and a police constable headed downstream to pick up the sick woman and complete the trip to hospital. Doctors said yesterday she was doing well and would recover.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics.

IN THE WEST

Editor Examiner:

Sir: After reading Beverley Sutton's letter in your paper I decided to tell you my experience. We farm 800 acres in the Fielding district 400 under cultivation.

This is rolling land with some poplar bluffs around. This year we sowed 160 acres wheat and 100 of oats. We got 8 loads of hay and 50 bushels of wheat. A lot of the people here think that is in the good crop area, being 300 miles north of the boundary and between Saskatoon and Battleford. Some people think it's going to dry up and be a desert but we had it almost as dry in '33 and in '34 and we threshed 50 bushel to the acre off one field of oats. So it may be like that next year.

I have been in Ontario 2 months and have found a lot of people who think it has been dry here the last 2 years, but if they got as little rain as we do out west even the grass and trees would die. Our crops never looked better till the last week in June. Two weeks of hot days, and dry winds burnt the crops back to the ground. Two inches of rain about the 23rd of June would have meant millions of bushels. The only crops that were cut at all were the real early ones and the late oats as one grew before the dry spell and the other after.

Some people think it is a terrible thing and it is, but it's a warning even to the east as a few years ago they told us to stop growing wheat. Now they wonder where they will get it.

I am glad to see the way the people are responding to the call for help in sending clothes. Remember that next year we may be sending vegetables back. I thank you one and all but hope neither of us need help next year.

If you would like the condition out there this winter I might write and tell you as I intend to go back soon.

GEORGE GARNETT.

R.R.2, Ida.

TOO MUCH TRAFFIC

Editor Examiner:

Sir: It is often said that this column of the newspaper merely serves as a democratic safety-valve whereby citizens with a grievance are provided with a means of venting their wrath upon the local administration. This letter is written, however in the hope that one of the city fathers will chance to come upon it and deign to reply through the same medium.

Taxpayers who own homes on Water Street north, particularly in the section between Park Hill Road and Hilliard Street are never without the exasperating roar of heavy highway traffic by day or night. Because the corresponding section of George Street is in a deplorable condition and unpaved, Water Street carries all the Hospital traffic along with a constant stream of north-bound trucks and automobiles.

Obviously, the most direct route to the Hospital for most citizens is north on George Street, yet ambulances, doctors, and visitors all find it necessary to detour via Water St. in order to avoid breaking springs or axles.

Now the residents of the area referred to feel confident that the paving of George Street North would be favored by home-owners on the street as an aid to cleanliness and smooth driving; hospital traffic would naturally appreciate it; and lastly, it would diminish the 24-hour racket that daily aggravates us on Water Street.

Citizens have long wondered at the city's hesitancy to pave this section of a most important street. Dare we hope that some member of the council will clarify the city's position in this matter without the necessity of our having to resort to petition.

Thank you Mr. Editor for your kind indulgence.

Respectfully yours,
A TAPAYER.

As It's Done "Out In the Country"

Farmer Had Misfortune and Work Was Behind; But Corn Is Now All Husked By Neighbors.

(Chatham News)

TWENTY-SEVEN farmers residing in the vicinity of Wabash, in Kent County found that they had many things to be grateful for on Thanksgiving Day. Their crops were bountiful; they had their health and strength; and their outlook for the future was bright and promising. They decided to give expression to their heart-felt thanks, and they did it in the only way which is worth while—by helping someone else not so fortunate.

Kenneth Hawkins, one of their neighbors, is a good farmer but he has been considerably handicapped this year. The unfortunate death of his wife and his own illness, held back the work on his farm, and at this late date in the fall season his corn was still unhusked.

The twenty-seven fortunate farmers, therefore "turned in" on Thanksgiving Day, and before the sun had set the corn was all husked, and stored in the barn, and the stalks were all neatly shocked in the field—just as Mr. Hawkins would have done it, had he been spared his health.

This is a striking example of neighborliness which deserves wide-spread publicity. These twenty-seven farmers, no doubt, would have liked to have been off in their cars on the annual holiday, like most other people were; but a helping hand was needed, and they gave it gladly.

It is interesting—and should be profitable—to think of what would have happened if Mr. Hawkins had been a city resident. His neighbors would have learned of his unfortunate luck, and probably some of them would have taken the time to telephone the Mayor and council, or the Relief Department, to report the case as one deserving of attention—and then would have dismissed the matter from their minds. But Mr. Hawkins' neighbors didn't think of telephoning their reeve or councillors with the idea of unloading the responsibilities upon their shoulders. They made it a personal matter and they undertook the job themselves.

People in the rural districts are leading the way in these days. In the exemplification of the real spirit of neighborliness. These twenty-seven farmers did not think they were doing anything spectacular. They just quietly went to work in their neighbor's field, and did for him just what they would like others to do for them under similar circumstances. Wen people who are prosperous display such a helping spirit towards others, it is the greatest proof to us, that they thoroughly deserve their prosperity.

TIP FOR RAILROADERS.

CHARLIE MARLATT, of Danville, Illinois, is a retired railroader of 75, and when a reporter asked him the other day to relate some of his experiences, Charlie did not have any big accidents to tell about. But he did tell of one thing which he apparently considers the highlight of his railroading career. Here it is.

He had just taken his big engine out of the roundhouse when a tooth started aching. Now, Charlie had been to dentists before. His teeth were very hard to extract. The dentists had all but yanked him out of the chair. No more dentists for him. He tied a stout piece of string around the aching tooth, attached the other end to the locomotive, lay down on an adjacent track and grasped a rail, the engineer clambered into the cabin, the engine gave a toot and started forward. When it caught up the slack, out came the tooth!

Perhaps dentists would not approve this method. It would be bad for business as well as being dangerous. Perhaps railroaders in general would not care to adopt it. But it seems to us to have great advantages over the old method of tying a string to the tooth and door handle.

WHERE ARE POETS?

(The Argonaut, San Francisco)

WHAT A CHANGE is manifest in England since the days when Lord Tennyson was the nation's poet-laureate. Tennyson wrote of all the great events in magnificent verse. And none of his successors has been able to emulate him.

When the Prince of Wales, who afterwards became King Edward the Seventh, married the Princess of Denmark, who afterwards became Queen Alexandra, Tennyson wrote a poem in celebration of the event that had the power to thrill us over here. Is poetry now dead in England, or have events there become less fascinating?

Has any poet, either British or American, written a poem to celebrate the marriage of the Duke of Windsor to Wally Simpson? We have not seen or heard of any.

EDUCATION ON AIR.

(New York Times)

THE RADIO public's taste has been shifting from serious to light stuff, or at least it did so change between 1927 and a couple of years ago. This is reported by Frank Ernest Hill in "Listen and Learn," a study of education over the air published by the American Association for Adult Education. In a survey in 1927, light entertainment accounted for 45 per cent. of all broadcasts; serious entertainment, including educational programs, 50 per cent., and special features, 5 per cent.

By 1931 light entertainment had gone up to 55 per cent. and serious entertainment had dropped to 35 per cent. By 1935 the light matter stood at 60 per cent., the serious 25 per cent., the special features 15 per cent. Since 1935 Mr. Hill thinks education may have won back some of the lost ground.

LAKEFIELD SEES CORONATION FILM

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 21.—Members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Lakefield, celebrated their anniversary here on Sunday when they held special services mornnig and evening in their church on Bridge street. Rev. Robert Boyle, pastor of the congregation, conducted both services. The choir rendered special music suitable to the occasion.

On Monday, Oct. 18th, the Presbyterian church presented "The Coronation Pageant of Empire," a series of motion pictures taken by Mr. Fred L. Roy, of Peterborough. The pictures were accompanied by sound equipment specially built in London, Eng., to bring back to Canadians an idea of the sound effects which accompanied the mighty pageant. During the Abbey ceremony a direct recording of the chimes of St. Margaret's was heard.

The pictures were in the nature of a travelogue which started with New York City and showed the Statue of Liberty silhouetted against the blue of the sky, and continued with exact reproductions in natural colours of the lights on Broadway, the sky-line of New York in stereoscopic relief a perfect ocean rainbow, an ocean sunset and views of the ocean itself, which were so real they made one feel that only the tang of the sea air was missing.

Exquisite reproductions of the flowers in the Kew Botanical Gardens and highly interesting views of London in preparation for the Coronation proceedings led up to the Abbey ceremony which was shown in detail.

In contrast to these views taken abroad, Mr. Roy showed a series of colour pictures taken in Haliburton in the late autumn and showing the gorgeous colours of our own Canadian landscape. One view of a maple in gorgeous shades of red, with leaves fluttering in the breeze and sunlight filtering through the branches; the whole outlined against a sky of heavenly blue, produced panorama of colour which even the Coronation procession views could not surpass.

Mr. J. M. Simpson acted as chairman and introduced Mr. Fred Roy, who accompanied the pictures with an entertaining explanation of the proceedings.

No Powdering Rooms, No Lipstick Offers Women Who Serve On Juries

New York, Oct. 21 (CP)

SOME weeks of mixed juries—recently introduced — found New York lawyers groping through a mazeof feminine foibles.

There was the woman who was excused from serving in a damage suit because she said she thought the plaintiff, who had slipped on a water bug in her bathroom and sued the landlord, must be "a terrible housekeeper"—

There was the woman who asked the judge whether she was to consider the veracity of the different witnesses "on a personality basis"—

There was the forewoman who reported the jury had reached a verdict and then stood up and firmly announced: "No verdict," meaning, as it turned out, that they had been unable to agree and had decided to call it quits—

There was the lone man who marched importantly into the jury room with 11 women and came out two hours later with a whipped expression, muttering that he hadn't been able to get a word in edgewise—

And then there were the 15 "ladies on the panel" who inquired of Central Sessions Judge John J. Freschi about the matter of "powdering rooms." The court said it was his earnest desire to make the women jurors "as comfortable as possible," but the aged Criminal Courts Building definitely offered "no powdering room, no powder and no lipsticks."

URGES BRITAIN, U.S. JOIN, KEEP PEACE

BOSTON, Oct. 21—(CP)—A call for a joint effort by Britain and America to ensure world peace was sounded last night by Rev. Dr. G. A. Clarke, native of Port Hope, Ont., in an address before the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Club of Boston.

"Present world conditions, with war in China and Fascist dictatorships in Europe in their attitude toward democracies of the world, have brought very vividly before us the increasing importance of British-American relations," he said.

Although not unmindful of the larger League of Nations with its far-reaching influence, he said, nevertheless the solid fact remained that what the British-American combination thought, said and did in this particular time would have a very definite influence on what happened in the near future. Dr. Clarke is pastor of Malden, Mass., Baptist church.

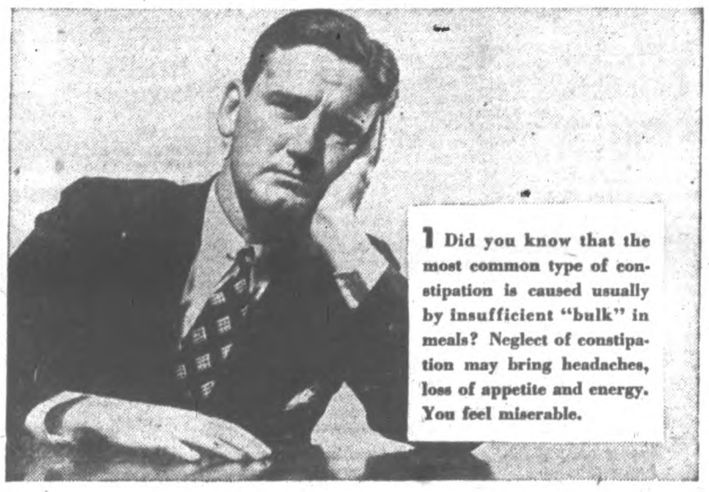
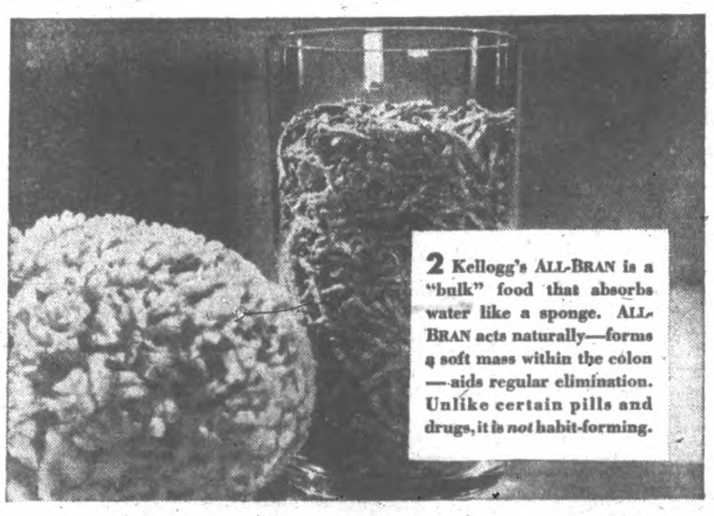
Chadwick said only the Heer maid was at home when Timothy Michael dropped from sight. He had been playing on the front lawn and failed to answer the lunch call, Chadwick said the maid told him.

THE FOOD WAY



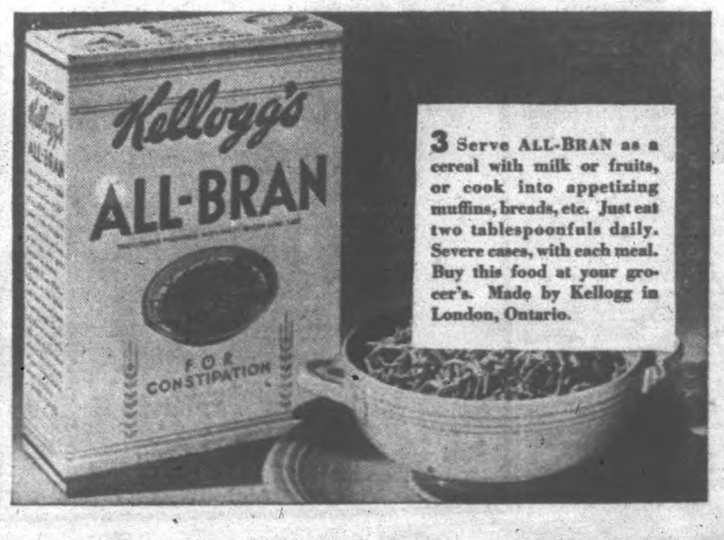
1 Did you know that the most common type of constipation is caused usually by insufficient "bulk" in meals? Neglect of constipation may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy. You feel miserable.

TO RELIEVE



2 Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a "bulk" food that absorbs water like a sponge. ALL-BRAN acts naturally—forms a soft mass within the colon—aids regular elimination. Unlike certain pills and drugs, it is not habit-forming.

CONSTIPATION



3 Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or fruits, or cook into appetizing muffins, breads, etc. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Severe cases, with each meal. Buy this food at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Friday, October 22.

According to the lunar transits, this may be a day in which social, domestic, artistic and sentimental matters may engage the attention, although certain minor business transactions may work out profitably. Old interests may prove lucrative, and elders may bring benefits. But the pursuit of pleasure and affectional associations are paramount, with probably heavy expenditures in this connection.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very happy year, with possibly pleasure and sentimental satisfactions in the limelight. However, some secondary business affairs may be profitable, and old matters should flourish. But expenditures may be rather expansive in the way of personal gratifications.

A child born on this day may have a bright, affable and extremely social disposition, achieving great popularity and much enduring happiness in life because of it.

Look at Betty! Tapping her way to popularity—turning a dull party into a gay one by her clever, impromptu entertaining.

Right now she's dancing the Slap Step to a favorite waltz tune. It looks awfully professional, but even the most complicated tap routines—such as you see in the movies—are combinations of simple fundamental steps.

Try the Slap Step diagramed. Make 2 clear tap sounds: 1, raise right foot; 2, strike floor sharply forward with ball of same foot; 3, raise right foot again; 4, stamp directly downward with ball of foot.

You have fun from the start in tap dancing. Practise a few evenings to a popular fox trot or waltz. Then invent fascinating, new rhythmic combinations of your own.

Our 32-page booklet diagrams and explains fundamental tap steps, gives short practise routines and complete full-length routines—waltz, buck and military.

Presbyterian Women Hold Sectional Rally at Warsaw

A sectional meeting of the Peterborough Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was held in the Presbyterian Church, Warsaw, October 19, with Mrs. A. T. Barr, vice-president, presiding. Mrs. James Dutton, Peterborough, led in the devotions, and the morning session was given over to discussion led by Mrs. D. Jordan, Peterborough, supply secretary; Mrs. J. M. Simpson, Lakefield, home helpers, and Miss Nina Davidson, Peterborough, life membership. Consecrated membership was stressed and a welcome and task given to new members advocated as a means of improving the Auxiliaries. Emphasis was placed on the responsibility of the individual member and the duty of the Senior Auxiliaries to train the younger groups in the work of our Women's Missionary Society. Mrs. Clark, Lakefield, offered prayer.

A resolution was adopted asking the Peterborough Presbyterial Executive at their next meeting to instruct the Presbyterial corresponding secretary to forward any change in the officers of the Auxiliaries to the several Presbyterial secretaries in order to facilitate their work early in the year.

The Centreville Auxiliary conducted the devotions of the afternoon session, Mrs. Harold Tate offering prayer, Mrs. J. E. Whittington reading the Scripture from Mark 14, 3-9, and Mrs. Rutherford reading a very helpful message, "A Beautiful Gift." Mrs. Crowe, Warsaw, conveyed a welcome and greeting from the Warsaw Auxiliary. It was decided that the sectional meeting be held the third Tuesday of October each year in order to avoid confusion. Mrs. H. W. Morgan reported the finances to September 30 of this year, and Mrs. Rowan, finance secretary, reviewed the work of that department.

Mrs. H. W. Morgan introduced Mrs. A. Glenn Thompson, Campbellford, the new Presbyterial president, who in turn presented the new secretaries in this district: Mrs. John Storrie, Campbellford, corresponding secretary; Mrs. D. Jordan, Peterborough, supply; Mrs. John Anderson, Peterborough, assistant supply; Miss N. Davidson, Peterborough, life membership; Mrs. A. W. Jamieson, Peterborough, girls' secretary, and members without portfolio: Miss Elizabeth Walker, Mrs. C. E. Blewett, Peterborough, and Mrs. Harold Tate, Centreville.

Mrs. Thompson, president, addressed the meeting on "Peace in the Church of Christ." "Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily in the Lord." "Love, influence and prayer rather than power, money and organization as we find them in the world today is the great need," said Mrs. Thompson.

The dedicatory prayer was offered by Miss Drummond, Keene Auxiliary.

Alderman James Dutton spoke with great encouragement and appreciation on the work of the Women's Missionary Society in the Presbyterian Church in Canada as viewed by a man.

A very splendid dinner was served by the Warsaw Auxiliary and was much appreciated.

Cheese For Party

Particularly appropriate on the anniversary of National Cheese Week and the beginning of the fall and winter party-giving season, the following recipes suggested by the Milk Utilization Service, Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, may be found useful in serving cheese in the attractive ways described.

Cheese Squares.

Cut fruit bread in squares (about 1½ inches). Blend together grated cheddar cheese with sufficient butter to make a soft mixture. Spread the four sides and top of the bread squares with the cheese mixture. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a hot oven or under broiler until cheese begins to melt. Serve hot.

Cheese Muffins.

2 Cups flour.
3 Teaspoons baking powder.
½ Teaspoon salt.
½ Cup grated cheese.
2 Tablespoons butter, melted.
1 Egg.
1 Cup milk.

Mix and sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add grated cheese. Mix in milk and beaten egg, then add butter. Fill tiny buttered muffin tins about one-third full of batter. On this drop a little marmalade or jelly. Cover with batter, filling tins about two-thirds full. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degress F.) about 15 minutes. Serve hot.

Cheese Sandwiches.

Cut bread three-quarters inch thick into small squares or rounds. Butter and pile with cream cheese mixed with salad dressing. Sprinkle with finely chopped nuts, olives, green pepper, pimento or watercress. Combine one 3-ounce package cream cheese with 2 cups minced ham and ½ cup chopped watercress. Add salad dressing to moisten. Spread generously on whole wheat bread. Cut in fingers.

Cheese Shortbread.

2½ Cups flour.
½ Teaspoon salt.
½ Cup butter.
1 Small bar cream cheese (yellow).

Sift together flour and salt. Cut in butter. Blend in soft cheese and work into a compact dough. Chill. Roll thin. Cut with cookie cutter. Bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees F., from 5 to 10 minutes. When serving put together with marmalade or red currant jelly.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

USING UP TWO FOR ONE

IT WOULD seem to be an axiom that using up two good cards to win one trick is poor economy if one card can do the job. That elementary proposition is overlooked flagrantly, however, by many otherwise good players. They have a habit of leading one honor to catch a higher one in a finesse, and thus give the opponents a chance to kill another high card by covering that lead. As a generality, if there is a sufficiency of re-entries, a small card should be led instead.

(Deal... South. Nor... South vulnerable.)

Here South bid 1-Club, West, 1-Diamond, North, 1-Spade, South, 1-No Trump, North 2 and South, 3-No Trump. West led the diamond 6 to the king, took the lead of the diamond 10 covered by the J and then knocked out the diamond Q. Up to that point the play was exactly the same at two tables of a duplicate game, but there the ways parted.

At one table South now led the spade Q, covered by the K and A, following with the spade J and 10. This disclosed that East now had the fourth spade beaten with his 8. Now South found that he could not score anything but his two high clubs and two high hearts, then lose the last three tricks, putting him down one.

At the other table the dealer, Miss Janet Hardy of Pittsburgh, after winning the third diamond trick, led the spade 3 and finessed the 10. Next she came to her own hand with the club K and led the spade 7, covered by the K and A. It will be noted that she had not wasted two honors on the trick which took out West's K. She next cashed the spade Q, then used the club A as an entry to score the spade J. The two high hearts completed her contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Deal... East. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the best defense by West against 5-Spades by South on this deal?

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"We rejoice in life because it seems to be carrying us somewhere; because its darkness seems to be rolling on towards light, and even its pain to be moving onward to a hidden joy. We bear with incompleteness, because of the completion which is prophesied and hoped for."

—Phillpis Brooks.

Dear Friends:

What would we do in this life if there were nothing to look forward to. We see many of our hopes dashed to the ground, we get disappointment after disappointment, so that our hearts turn to water in our breasts.

We see the years go marching by, with none of the success we looked for, our faces altering, and our bodies take on the loo kof middle age, and we wonder where all our high hopes were lost in the march.

And we lose some of the stamina, some of the courage we started out with. Where we expected full and plenty, now we are glad if we can only make ends meet. Where we expected to be brave, we find our experiences have made some of the courage ooze out of us.

We find life is a continual fight, so that, well or ill, weak or strong, with courage or without it, we must fight and keep on fighting. It is not as we expected by any means.

We thought in our ignorance that once we got a job, that was all there was to it. But we find hands reaching out for that same job, so that we must fight to retain it, or, if we are too proud to fight for it, it is lost, and the same thing has to be gone through with the next one we get.

We expect sincerity and kindness and consideration, and we get treachery and selfishness and forgetfulness. We think that friends will realize our true worth, then find they leave us for someone who has more money and can give them a better time.

We give, remembering how we were told to "give and it shall be given unto you," and find many times that the only result is the more we give the more we are expected to do.

We give truth and get lies, we remember and are forgotten. Oh no, life is not at all as we thought it would be. When we saw older people who had not been successful as the world sees it, we vowed that life would never do that to us because we wouldn't let it, then find we are many times a counterpart of those same others.

We see those whose lives have gone awry, and vow we shall keep ours straight, then find the wires got twisted somehow, so that we cannot un-twist them.

But, through it all, and behind it all is the thought of something good to come, and if it gives no appearance of coming in this life, surely it MUST come in the next.

We hate all this constant fighting and striving. Where is all the harmony and sweetness we looked for. Where has success hidden herself? Why is there so much of bleakness in the world?

Yet the world in itself is beautiful, and it is we who have maybe stressed the wrong things. Yet in the old Testament God prospered with material things like land and livestock, all those who tried to do His will, so it cannot be wrong to wish for a reward for our labors.

It must be that we are going after it in the wrong way. We forget that He said: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things will be added unto you." Time's up. Think it over. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

CHINESE BOMBERS AVOIDING FOREIGN SETTLEMENT AREA

SHANGHAI, Oct. 21—(AP)—Chinese bombers flew over a new route today to avoid the International Settlement in before-dawn raids on Japanese positions about Shanghai.

In previous raids the planes had crossed over the settlement and Japanese anti-aircraft shell fragments had sprayed foreign areas. Yesterday United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson made representations against this practice to the Chinese government.

Today the foreign population slept through the Japanese anti-aircraft fire, unaware that shells were bursting over Pootung, along the new Chinese bombing route across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai proper.

Chinese bombs damaged a Japanese mill on the river bank and set fire to six buildings. The Japanese anti-aircraft fire apparently was ineffective.

One foreign area, the Hungjao suburb where many wealthy foreigners have their homes, was declared by Chinese authorities to be out of bounds of the International Settlement. Chinese were building defences in the district.

The Japanese navy announced successful night bombardment of positions behind Chinese Shanghai lines. Planes raided 15 Chinese artillery positions, the announcement said. It added that at one point on the front Japanese picked up the bodies of 2,000 Chinese dead.

Semi-official Chinese reports said a Chinese dare-to-die battalion raided a Japanese airfield at Yangpingpao in Northern Shansi province and destroyed 24 planes. One hundred Chinese were reported killed.

Japanese at Peiping denied Chinese reports of victories in Shansi province but admitted the Chinese have established a 50-mile line of trenches in the mountainous district north of Taiyuan, the provincial capital. Japanese officers said their troops were meeting stubborn resistance.

Special police precautions amounting almost to martial law were put into effect at Peiping to protect General Count Juichi Terauchi, Japanese commander of an inspection tour.

Mothers! Treat Children's Colds This Proved Way

More mothers use VapoRub than any other medication of its kind—they have proved it by use in their own homes. It was further proved in the world's largest colds-clinic. No "dosing"—just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Almost at once, its poultice-and-vapor action starts to loosen phlegm, relieve irritation and coughing, help break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

KEEWATIN COUPLE DROWN FISHING

KENORA, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP).—Word reached here yesterday of a double drowning in a lake in the Black Sturgeon district and of the heroic efforts of a 15-year-old boy to rescue his mother and a friend.

David McIlwraith, his mother Mrs. Hastings McIlwraith, and Charles Duncan, all of Keewatin were on a fishing trip when their canoe upset in a squall Sunday.

Thrown into the water, Mrs. McIlwraith and Duncan drowned. David managed to reach shore and then realizing his mother and companion failed to do so, dashed into the water again in an attempt to save them.

Mrs. McIlwraith disappeared but he pulled Duncan ashore where he made vain efforts to revive him. Without food, David wandered through the rough country until he stumbled into a camp on Silver Lake yesterday with news of the drownings.

Scientist Bemoans Gullibility Of Women Over Beauty

Claims They Never Seem To Learn Secret Lies In Fruits Of Garden And Orchard

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP). — A distinguished scientist said last night that chemists were trying generations ago, even as now, to get women to look for their beauty aids in the fruits of orchard and garden rather than in the drug store.

And, he added, it appeared it was a job as thankless then as now.

Speaking in the centennial celebration of the birth of Charles Frederick Chandler, New York's first public health chemist, Dr. Haven Emerson, director of public health of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, wondered aloud whether it was all worth while so far as the women and their cosmetics were concerned.

It happened, said Dr. Emerson, that Dr. Chandler often in the course of his duties disclosed "fraud and damage to health in his analysis of cosmetics, especially poisonous hair tonics, washes and skin restoratives, lotions, enamels and skin powders."

"How modern!" he added. "How humiliating!"

"How revealing of the perpetual gullibility, the shallow emulation of those females of the species who continue to act as if beauty comes from the drug store instead of the garden or the orchard, or from without instead of within the human economy."

"As one looks about at the cadaveric finger tips, the enamelled toenails, the deformed eyebrows, the filled facial creases that try to reveal character but are cheated out of it, the hectic cheek reminiscent of the fever ward of a tuberculosis hospital, the ill-assorted daubs of anilline upon the lips, one wonders if it is worth the while of the Congress to try to enact protective legislation to save a beauty-mad generation from those qualities of cosmetics that threaten to replace the bloom of health with one more appropriate to a dish of wax fruit."

D.L.G. Offers Honey To Sweeten Duce

Birmingham, Oct. 21 (AP)

DAVID Lloyd George today offered a pot of honey to promote better relations with Italy.

Opening the Imperial Fruit show here, the former Prime Minister said:

"I have won a prize for honey and I thought I would send part of that honey to Il Duce so as to promote better relations."

(The semi-official Italian organ, diplomatic information, said last Monday that "it is serious and scandalous that a former British Premier, like Lloyd George who is old enough to be sober and prudent, should in a recent speech give his hearers fantastic figures on Italian volunteers in Spain.)

TWEEDSMUIR HOST SECRETARY HULL

OTTAWA, Oct. 21 (CP) — The Governor General and Lady Tweedsmuir tonight will give a state dinner at Government House in honor of Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, and Mrs. Hull, the last function being held in conection with their two-day visit to Canada's capital.

A luncheon at the United States legation was also on the program. After dinner at Government House, Mr. and Mrs. Hull, in company with Prime Minister Mackenzie King, will leave for Toronto where tomorrow the University of Toronto will confer an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on Mr. Hull.

Last night the Dominion Government tendered the distinguished United States visitors a dinner. The Prime Minister, the United States Minister to Canada and Mrs. Armour, other members of the United States legation and their wives, members of the diplomatic corps, the Dominion Government and Privy Council attended. There were no speeches.

The United States secretary received newspapermen at the United States legation yesterday but since his visit was purely social, returning visits to Washington made earlier this year by Lord Tweedsmuir and Mr. Mackenzie King, Mr. Hull said he would not discuss official matters.

MADAWASKA SITE PLANS OUTLINED BY STEWART LYON

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP).—Plans for development of power sites on the Madawaska River between High Falls and the Ottawa River were described today by T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, in an address before the Eastern Ontario Municipal Electrical Association annual meeting.

He said several power sites would be "developed step by step as the need arises in the Eastern Ontario system so that by the year 1950 there will be available for use in Eastern Ontario, power developed in the system's generating station totalling 200,000 horsepower."

"On the Madawaska River, between Palmer Rapids and Claybank, there is available for power development 615 feet of undeveloped head representing a potential capacity of 141,000 horsepower at Eastern Ontario system load factor," he continued. "To obtain this capacity, it will be necessary to install in the neighborhood of 400,000 acre feet of storage as the present low flow of the river would make available only about one-half of this amount of power."

Let Contracts This Winter

Mr. Lyon said the Commission hoped to let contracts or make arrangements for direct construction of the necessary works at High Falls, including generating machinery, during this winter. A transmission line already has ben built from Chats Falls to Trenton at a cost of more than $750,000.

The line will carry the High Falls load into Trent Valley "or should occasion a rise, to the general transmission system centering about Chats Falls."

"It is believed that these works can be completed and put into operation by the summer of 1939, by which time the necessary expansion in the storage capacity of the lakes in the upper Madawaska can be provided," he said.

By the year 1950 the maximum purchased power will not be more than 82,000 horsepower. He said it might perhaps be 20,000 horsepower less than that "if the very favorable contract for 20,000 horsepower at $11 per horsepower, enjoyed by Ottawa under arrangements made many years ago by the provincial commission with the Ottawa and Hull Company, is not renewed."

"The Gatineau Power Company which succeeded the Ottawa and Hull Company, may not be disposed to renew this contract, which expires in 1947, in view of the fact that the company obtains $12.50 for similar power supplied under identical conditions to the Niagara system," Mr. Lyon said. "In that event Ottawa's future needs will be taken care of from the Madawaska Power plant."

W. ROSS STRIKE IS RE-ELECTED

KINGSTON, Oct. 21.—W. Ross Strike, Mayor of Bowmanville, was unanimously re-elected President for his third term of the Eastern Ontario Municipal Electric Association, at the concluding session of its convention here Wednesday afternoon.

J. F. Mandrel of Lindsay was elected first vice-president, and G. C. Findley, of Carleton Place, second vice-president. G. E. Chase, of Bowmanville, was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the association.

G. H. Reid, of Belleville; Dr. T. F. Robertson of Brockville, and B. H. Soper of Smiths Falls were named to the board of directors. Frank Smith of Madoc and James Halliday of Kingston were named to represent the Eastern Association on the Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

SEES MOVE AFOOT IN GREAT BRITAIN TO BLACKEN WEST

REGINA, Oct. 21—(CP)—Some "sinister movement" is afoot in Great Britain to paint a dismal picture of Western Canada for the indirect purpose of gaining greater protection of bonusing for British farmers, Garnet C. Neff, M.P., Grenfell, Sask., charge last night in addressing the Primrose Club, Conservative organization.

He named as possible proponents of the alleged movement A. G. Street, Wiltshire, England, author-farmer; Sir Evelyn Wrench of that overseas club, and Lady Reading who, he said, had made statements in England damaging to Western Canada as a grain-producing country.

The Bishop of London, Rt. Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, was criticized also by Mr. Neff as having made statements damaging to Canada.

The Bishop of London was reported in a despatch from London Oct. 11 to have read to the Empire Migration conference a letter he had received from Mrs. G. M. Macklin of Saskatoon in which Mrs. Macklin protested on behalf of the Saskatoon British settlers 1928-29 against sending more immigrants to Canada.

"In a province such as Saskatchewan drought and bad crops are bad enough to bother the settlers here without having to bring out others to face the turmoil," the letter was quoted as stating.

Mr. Neff said he had been informed the organization Mrs. Macklin represented had only eight members. He said it unfair that because such a letter had been written by a "disgruntled settler" the bishop did not take the trouble to find out the status of the organization before making it public.

Remarks credited to the bishop that British people were made to feel in Canada that they were not appreciated were critized by Mr. Neff as untrue.

DROUGHT CATTLE SHIPPING HELD UP

REGINA, Oct. 21.—(CP)— Cattle shipments from country points in the Western drought area will be discontinued for a week, effective to-day, O. Freer, Director of the Federal Government Marketing Service, announced here. No explanation was given for the decision.

"We are putting on an embargo ourselves," Freer said. He was not sure the shipments would start again by Oct. 28, saying it would depend on whether the market situation cleared itself. Over the week-end market prices dropped 50 to 75 cents a hundredweight.

About 75,000 head of cattle have been shipped to date, he said. There are about 6,000 head in the Carberry, Man., pasture and sorting grounds. All stock now en route is being sent directly to Carberry instead of to stock yards at Winnipeg. Shipments will conclude Nov. 10, when, it is expected, about 85,000 to 90,000 cattle will have been shipped from Saskatchewan.

WOMEN BARRED MONTAGUE JURY

ELIZABETHTOWN, Oct. 21.—(AP) — Service of women definitely barred, prosecution and defence sought today a speedy completion of an all-male jury to try "Mysterious" John Montague, playmate of Hollywood stars, on a seven-year-old robbery charge.

Six men—one-half of the required number—were seated in the jury boxes as the trial moved into the second day and opposing counsel hoped for the beginning of testimony in the case by nightfall.

Montague, fraternizing last night with town folk for the first time since he took up his residence in a 16-room hotel annex opposite the court house, good-naturedly referred all questions to his chief counsel, James M. Noonan of Albany.

Noonan has said his principal defense will be in depositions from six Hollywood friends of Montague testifying as to the latter's high character. The defendant was arrested in the motion picture colony after New York state police read of his golfing exploits and identified his fingerprints as the same as Laverne Moore, a resident of Syracuse, N.Y., seven years ago.

Montague admits he is Moore, but denies participation in the robbery of which he is accused. An alleged accomplice, Roger Norton of Cleveland, Ohio, who has served a prison term for the crime, is here to testify against him.

HEARD MAINLINER CRASH ON RIDGE

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 21. — (AP) —A mountaineer— only eyewitness to America's worst airplane disaster—told a vivid story yesterday of a transport pilot flying blindly through a mountain blizzard, then a terrific crash which killed nineteen persons.

Height Profitt, youthful trapper from Northeastern Utah's trackless wilderness, said he saw the United Air Lines twenty-one passenger Mainliner barely miss towering pines in his backyard, Sunday night, watched the craft's lights vanish in the storm; then heard it plow into a granite ridge.

Even as Profitt related his story, bereaved relatives visited a small mortuary in Southwestern Wyoming's Evanston, identified and claimed the broken bodies. They started early in the evening, shortly after hardened mountaineers made the hazardous trek to the scene of the week to recover the bodies. They continued to arrive throughout the night.

COMPULSORY SERVICE

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 21 (C.P.-Reuters) — A demand for the introduction of compulsory military service in Australia has been made by New South Wales branches of the Returned Soldiers' League. A resolution to this effect was carried, almost without discussion, at the State Congress of the League here.

The resolution, moved by the Warren Branch, asked that the Government should be urged forthwith to reintroduce a compulsory system of military, naval, and air training for at least three years.

wall priests with whom he had talked agreed with the doctor.

In the absence of published explanation for the "weeping" many paused at Leona's bedside, sought and received her blessing. Absorbent cotton was draped about the image to collect the drops of water. Fragments of it were snatched by visitors who apparently believed the moisture possessed virtue.

Last night parked automobiles jammed five blocks of the street on which the woman's home stands. Many of them bore license plates issued in upstate New York, Montreal and Toronto. Among cure claimants was Harry Aubin, Leona's brother-in-law. He sat in the Villeneuve home, opposite a pair of crutches, and explained he broke his foot in three places and was told he would never walk unassisted.

"I had been going around with crutches for the last four months," he said. "On Sunday I had quite a talk with my sister-in-law. She blessed me and then offered a prayer for me and asked that I be able to walk again. When I had completed my conversation with her I stood up without my crutches and was able to take a few steps."

Believes He Is Cured

Aubin said he considered himself completely cured, declaring: "Since then I have been able to walk without my crutches at all.

The invalid said she bought the statuette 15 years ago when she was at school in the Ottawa convent of the Grey sisters of the Cross, obtaining money by selling religious photographs. It never "wept" before, she declared, adding she had never prayed so fervently as last Friday.

Miss Villeneuve has been periodically ill for almost 15 years following an appendectomy, suffering from an internal disorder, recurrent epilepsey and partial paralysis.

TWEED

THIEVES BREAK UP AND STEAL ENGINE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 21.—Completely dismantling a traction engine thieves stole the entire engine with the exception of the boiler, in the vicinity of the village of Stoco early on Monday morning. The engine, owned and operated by William Vance, of Thomasburg, was being used to operate a sawmill near Stoco and had been in use on Saturday last. Upon the arrival of the engineer to stoke his fire on Monday morning, all that remained where the engine had once been was the boiler.

Following complaints received from Mr. Vance, Provincial Police Constable Carruthers investigated the robbery. Prior to moving the engine to Stoco, Mr. Vance had used it all fall in connection with his threshing equipment.

All iron parts had been broken and removed, the large wheels having been apparently broken into small pieces with the use of a sledge hammer. Tire marks near the scene of the theft prompted the authorities to believe a large truck had been used to transport the scrap metal away. The boiler was apparently too large to be moved by the thieves.

With a precipitation of 1.27 inches during the past forty-eight hours, the farmers will now be able to carry on with their fall work which has been delayed on account of the dry fall. Water levels have been raised to about normal, and wells which have been dry for some time have been filled.

Information leading to the conviction of Trumble was laid by Inspector Herbert McCabe of the Game and Fisheries Department and Provincial Police Constable Palmateer.

SHAKESPEAREAN PITCH AND WOO

old and already Notre Dame men at South Bend are making cracks about the gents acquiring their knowledge at Tulane University in Louisiana.

Tulane lads were about the only ones who said they didn't "pitch a little woo," the editor of The Tulane Hullabaloo commenting: "The expression is practically unknown to this literate, almost Miltonian campus. But it is the sincere thought of this publication that more information might possibly be obtained from bakery shops as it seems to us that pitching woo is like making apple pie—all you need is a little crust and a lot of applesauce."

Then from Notre Dame, where the expression started last Spring and "has increased to a point where it has become a necessity in conversation," came a stinging reply. "If you don't 'pitch and woo' what do you Southern boys and gals do?" read the retort from a member of Notre Dame's Board of Publications.

B.C. Apples Sprouting Nuggets Of Gold

Calgary, Oct. 21 (CP)

SOMEWHERE in British Columbia there seems to be an orchard where apples bear gold nuggets, tiny in size but still pure gold. Housewives preparing apples for cooking have found golden nuggets beneath the skin of the fruit.

First, a housewife at Michel, B.C., reported finding a nugget the size of a pin head in an apple. Then, Mrs. Ben Danielson, reading of the Michel woman's find, disclosed she, too, had discovered a small nugget in an apple from British Columbia. Mrs. Danielson lives at Coutts, on the United States-Alberta boundary, several score miles from Michel, which is near the Alberta border.

It was believed the apples came from the Okanagan Valley.

Only One-Tenth of Returned Men Belong to the Legion

Col. H. R. Alley Appeals For More Legion Members

President Of Ontario Command Addresses Legion Rally In Peterborough

Appealing for an increased Canadian Legion membership in Peterborough, Col. H. R. Alley, O.B.E., president of the Ontario command of the Legion, addressed a zone rally of Legion members at the Legion Hall here last night. He declared the 12,000 paid up members now on the roll in Ontario represent not more than one-tenth the returned men in the Province.

Col. Alley claimed the Legion is serving in a particularly important capacity in Northern Ontario towns where only a small percentage of the popualtion are Anglo-Saxon. "In such communities, the Legion is the one important focus point for British loyalty. The Canadian Legion is a tremendous asset in Northern Ontario as well as Canada as a whole. That is why the Legion must continue and gain strength."

Other Responsibilities.

"We will only gain that increased strength and prestige if we look outside ourselves more than we have been doing in the past and realize we have responsibilities outside the circles of ex-service men. If we make important contributions to our communities, if we confine ourselves not quite so much to appeals for help and make more contributions on our own part then we will get the prestige and power."

The president asked that Peterborough do its share in a province-wide effort to sign up 2,000 new members this winter.

Representatives of the Lakefield, Cobourg, Colborne, Brighton and Campbellford branches were in attendance at the rally. Captain V. W. Fairweather of Toronto, honorary secretary of the Provincial poppy committee, pointed out that Peterborough is one of the low centres in supoprt of the committee. While the committee figures a community should buy 60 poppies and 1 wreath for every 100 inhabitants, Peterborough bought only 33 poppies last year and no wreaths, he said. At the same time, Lakefield sold its full quota. Campbellford sold 2,000 poppies and 50 wreaths.

Rev. Captain E. R. Adye, of Whitby, chairman of the Provincial poppy committee, gave the memorian inspirational address, concluding with a dramatic recitation of "In Flanders Fields."

N. A. McColl, of Campbellford, zone president, was in the chair.

Archbishop Mooney, however reported to the Vatican after Coughlin had "voluntarily" abandoned his scheduled radio talks of this winter and spring.

WARRANT ISSUED PHOTO SALESMEN ON FRAUD COUNT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 21.—A warrant was issued on Wednesday afternoon by H. G. Fairman, J.P. for the arrest of two men who are alleged to have defrauded Mrs. S. Scriver, Front street, of a week's board money. The pair are said to have been representing a Toronto photo studio and had made contracts and collected money from about 50 residents of the district to the amount of $65 according to an estimate made by W. Wellman, constable. They are said to have promised a camera would be shipped in and sittings would take place on Wednesday morning but they disappeared on Tuesday evening.

A contract held by one of the alleged victims did not state the day of the sittings and was not signed. He also stated that he did not see his contract until he had paid the sum of $1.25 for his sitting. The men did not have a car and were reported last seen in Norwood on Tuesday eve, the same night as they were missed from here. Mrs. Scriver also reported a man's raincoat was missing from her home and also some damage done to bed clothes from cigarettes.

Provincial Officer Campbell of Campbellford is also believed to have in his possession warrants for their arrest.

SPECIAL NAMES GIVEN $15,300

At the Weekly Luncheon of the General Campaign Committee held at the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday, it was reported by Miss E. Morrow, Chairman of the Special Names Committee, that they had obtained $15,300 towards the objective of $50,000 in the Extension Fund Campaign.

The luncheon was well attended by various committee officers, and their reports were most optimistic as regards the interest and enthusiasm of the workers, who will commence the general canvass of Peterborough citizens next Saturday morning.

One instance that bespeaks the public spirit of Peterborough's citizens was that of a woman who came into the headquarters with a donation saying that while her gift was materially small, it was given with a heart full of thanks for the kindly way in which the Y.W.C.A. had located a position for her.

Such an incident speaks greater than volumes as to the public services rendered by the Y.W.C.A. in behalf of Peterborough's citizens. It is hoped that the citizens will be as public-spirited in accordance with their ability when the Campaign is launched next Saturday.

It is to be officially opened at a dinner of some four hundred workers Friday evening, October 22nd at 6 p.m. in Trinity Church.

Three Grid Games Here On Saturday

Three rugby games are billed for Peterborough this Saturday, one in the morning and two in the afternoon, at Riverside Park. Lindsay and P.C.I. Juniors meet at 10.30 in the morning in a C.O.S.S.A. scheduled game. At 2.00 in the afternoon, Malvern Collegiate of Toronto tangles with P.C.I. Seniors, while Toronto Eastsides and Orfuns have an O.R.F.U. fixture at 3.30 o'clock. The Malvern-P.C.I. game is an exhibition tilt. The Eastsides-Orfuns' contest may be run as a double game, the winner to be credited with two victories to take care of the postponed tussle some two weeks ago between these teams.

The local Collegiate juniors will have a tough fight against a strong Scugog squad, one that beat Oshawa by a much bigger score than the Jackson lads did this season. Malverns will give the senior P.C.I. outfit a hard battle, too, the Toronto champs of 1936 being just as strong as last season. The local Orfuns need the win this Saturday over Eastsides to chince their group, and a loss might permit Cobourg to catch them. They look for a battle since Eastsides have improved a great deal lately and have added several good players to the squad. A big crowd of grid fans is expected to see the football activity here this weekend.

Exchange Bedlam

Stock brokers in most large cities worked hard and long when heavy selling on the New York and Toronto markets caused stock prices to drop to their lowest level since the crash of July 20, 1933. Bedlam reigned on the market floor and tickers were unable to keep up with the actions of the men on the floor. The New York Curb Exchange, at the height of the trading (ABOVE), shows a scene which was duplicated in practically every exchange in Canada and the United States.

Langley, K.C., to 2 months' imprisonment on the forgery count and one month on the conversion charge. The date of the sentences was made retroactive to October 14. Percy Little, who appeared on adjournment with a plea of not guilty to a charge of wife-beating, stated his readiness to proceed with hearing of the charge. On application of the Crown, however, the Bench gave a further adjournment of 3 weeks, when it was stated the complainant was in hospital. "This matter of adjournments is getting very serious," the Magistrate declared. He thought a doctor should be asked to certify as to the woman's condition and that the Crown should ascertain whether or not she wished to proceed with the charge against her husband.

HUNTING PROSPECTS GOOD.

Peterborough hunters who visit the Pakesley district each fall in search of the elusive deer will be glad to hear that the prospects in that section for good hunting this year are excellent. T. G. M. Jamieson, C.P.R., ticket agent, has had a wire from the C.P.R. agent at Pakesley as follows: "Prospects for the coming hunting season look very good. Deer signs are plentiful along the Key Valley, and in the immediate vicinity of the C.P.R. Station and right-of-way." Similar reports come from other northern centres.

LONE SURVIVOR, 95 PULLS UP STAKES IN OLD BOOM TOWN

BANFF, Oct. 21. — Bent with the passage of years and eyes blurred by near-blindness, Joseph Smith, 95-year-old prospector, last survivor of the one-time booming Silver City in the Rockies, has left his half-century-old log cabin for the comfort of an old folks' home.

For fifty years Joseph Smith has lived at the foot of Castle Mountain, his cabin and storehouse all that is left of the one-time boom mining town. He came there bright with the hope of fortune and adventure, saw Silver City, twenty miles west of Banff, grow into a thriving town, saw dreams of wealth fade, and all others leave, but still held on in the blind faith of "prospector's luck" in his mountain home.

He knew an era of wealth when he himself contributed handsomely to the Lacombe Home near Midnapore, founded by his one-time great friend, the revered pioneer priest, Father Lacombe, where he henceforth will live in comfort. But through recent years he has known hardship and loneliness, disappointments, and the increasing loss of his sight. Stubbornly, however, he held on, and only the insistent intercession of friends finally induced him to leave his cabin.

Operated General Store.

In addition to his mining activities and incidentally Joseph still claims there is silver in Castle Mountain, he erected and operated a general store, now a tottering storehouse, which in later years, during a tie-lumbering period, became a pool-room and boarding-house.

When all others left, Joseph, undaunted, continued prospecting. What little mineral he did get plus the results of trapping, kept him until a few years ago. An accident claimed one eye during his early years, and sight of the other started failing, and finally, unable to trap or prospect, he was forced to ask for an old-age pension.

But through it all he refused to leave his lonely cabin, refused assistance of any kind, even doing his own cooking and washing. Only this past summer when it became necessary for a park warden to visit him daily, to split and carry his wood and do other chores, would Joseph Smith listen to the pleas of Father Maginnis and the writer that he enter the Lacombe Home.

He saw the padlock put on the door of his cabin and storehouse, then turned down the trail with his friends, unaided as more than half a century ago he had arrived, to leave the home he had made in the wilderness.

Diplomat Slain

United States Consul-General to Syria, James Theidore Marriner (ABOVE) was shot and killed at Beirut, Syria, by an Armenian who had been refused a visa for travel to the United States. Though he had never met Marriner, the Armenian is said to have had a personal hatred for the 45-year-old bachelor diplomat. The murderer fired six shots at close range.

JUNIOR FARMERS LEAVE FOR GUELPH

Three teams representing Peterborough County boys livestock and grain clubs left for Guelph this afternoon to compete in the big annual inter-club judging competition there tomorrow. They will match their abilities with the finest junior talent of the province.

Clare Leahy of Douro and Jim Moore of Smith are representing the Foal Club. They will likely judge in a field of 35 to 40 teams. The Grain Club is represented by Gordon Stalker of Smith and Jim Hunter of North Monaghan. It is expected between 25 and 30 teams from other clubs will be entered.

Selected from results of the Calf Club season compiled yesterday, Irvine McIntosh of North Monaghan and Richard Coughlin of Asphodel are composing the team to represent that club. They will probably meet the largest field of competition, about 50 teams.

Fine championship trophies are at stake.

DRUNKEN WALKER GETS SOME RAPS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21—(CP)—The tipsy pedestrian was blamed for nearly one out of every 16 highway accidents in a talk by L. A. S. Wood, a Cleveland lighting engineer, before the Safety Council of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

"Nearly half the highway accidents in the United States now involve pedestrians," Wood said, "and one out of nine is drunk.

"In the other hand, only 7.3 per cent. o fthe drivers involved were found to be intoxicated after tests."

CANADA'S DEFICIT DROPS, SEE SIGNS BALANCED BUDGET

BADDECK, N.S., Oct. 21 (CP)—In "a quiet speech on political issues," Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue, painted a bright picture of Canada's future in his first public appearance after his return from a League of Nations conference in Geneva.

Speaking here last night, the minister told of better relations between the provinces and the Dominion, rising revenues, trade agreements, increased construction throughout the country and an increase of 46 per cent in the export trade of the Dominion.

The problem of Dominion-province relations was "the greatest problem confronting statesmen," he said, but added he held high hopes the Royal Commission apointed to investigate these relations would place them on an "entirely satisfactory basis," he declared "the report of the royal commission will be notable in the history of Canada."

Canada's deficit was being brought down "to where we are in sight of a balanced budget," he said. "Revenues are outrunning expectations, and are a source of great satisfaction to the government."

The government wished to see that no part of the Dominion or no one industry should lag behind in the progress toward prosperity, Mr. Ilsley continued, for "it is our desire to extend our help to all parts of Canada that require it."

Trade agreements were being made with many countries, with a view to helping industries.

In his only reference to Alberta, the national revenues minister spoke of the "outbreak of sectionalism" there, and pleaded for a United Canada.

Expect Composite Airplanes Ensure Profitable Flights

Heavily-Loaded Machines Will Be Released In Mid-Air From Giant Ship

By Central Press Canadian

LONDON, Oct. 21.—One of the strangest aircraft the world has ever seen—the Short-Mayo Composite Mailplane—took off from the waters of the River Medway, at Rochester, Kent, Eng., recently on its first full experimental trial flight.

Known as the "Pick-a-back" plane, the Short-Mayo Composite Mailplane is really a giant flying boat with a seaplane on its back.

Invented by Major R. H. Mayo, technical general manager of Imperial Airways, this new type of aircraft, which has been built by Messrs. Short Bros., expert British flying boat constructors, of Rochester, is intended for use on the transatlantic air route to America and back.

"Mother" Plane Similar to Others

The flying boat or "mother" plane is a similar aircraft to the Imperial Airways Caledonia and Cambria, and weighs about 26,000 pounds empty. It is powered by four Bristol Pegasus radial air-cooled engines, each of which will develop 950 h.p. at the take-off.

Christened the "Maia," the flying boat has been strengthened to bear the weight of the seaplane on its back.

The seaplane, which will be clamped down on the back of the flying boat, is powered by four Napier-Rapier in-line air-cooled engines, each of which develops a maximum of about 340 h.p.

Will Weigh 20,000 Pounds

A special locking device has been designed to hold both aircraft together. With pilot, navigator, and radio operator, and air mail, the seaplane will weigh about 20,000 pounds. It will be capable of flying across the 2,000 miles of ocean between Ireland and Newfoundland against headwinds, and in calm conditions it will have a range of some 3,500 miles.

The duty of the flying boat is to take-off with the fully loaded seaplane on its back, rise to about 500 feet, release the smaller craft, and glide back to the base.

The commander of the "Mother" craft controls the composite vessel as a whole, but the release of the locking gear is effected by the joint action of the pilots.

Telephone to Be Used

By telephone, the pilot of the flying boat informs the pilots of the seaplane that he is actuating his control to permit detachment.

The seaplane pilot operates his own leaver and effects the separation. The smaller plane will then climb steadily away from the flying boat, which will shut off power and glide, so that many hundred feet soon separates the two aircraft.

The advantages of Short-Mayo composite aircraft over the Imperial Airways Caledonia and Cambria, is that it will permit the seaplane to carry both a fuel load and a payload for an Atlantic crossing. Caledonia and Cambria can only carry crew, fuel and oil. Both machines weigh 26,000 pounds empty, the fuel load of 2,320 gallons of gasoline with oil weighs 19,000 pounds. This totals approximately 44,000 pounds out of their maximum permissable weight of 45,000 pounds.

Small Margin for Crew

Thus only 1,000 pounds is left for crew, maps, chart, food, etc. The great fuel load for a 2000 miles non-stop flight eats into any weight available for payload in this type of flying boat, which are allowed only 30 pounds per square foot of wing area.

The Composite seaplane will be loaded to 40 pounds, and can even bear a still greater weight. While it could not take-off from the water under its own power, the difficulty is overcome by launching it from the back of another aeroplane.

While the mother plane of the composite aircraft has some 3,800 h.p. at its command, the seaplane requires less than 1,400 h.p. Its fuel load will account for only some 850 gallons of gasoline weighing under 7,000 pounds, contrasted with the flying boat's load. The top speed of the seaplane, however, is the same, 200 m.p.h.; and it will cruise at 165 m.p.h., the same speed as the flying boat.

All the transatlantic service will thus require is a mother flying boat at Foynes, Ireland, and another at Botwood, Newfoundland. For the stages between England and Ireland, or between Newfoundland, Canada, and New York, the seaplane can take-off from water.

Too Many Dinners For 'Peg Mayors?

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2.—(CP)1. — Complaints about the gustatory habits of Winnipeg mayors were voiced yesterday as city council passed a by-law to submit to referendum in December the question of increasing the Mayoralty term from one to two years.

Alderman Thomas Flye favored the two-year term, but said "the behaviour of the mayors we have had for the last four years has got under my skin.

"We go through a fight every year to elect a mayor. And for what? I'll tell you. So that the working man can pick up his paper every night and see a picture of the Mayor at some banquet with a fork in his mouth. That is what the fight is for. They spend too much time going to public functions and dinners they have no time to get down to work."

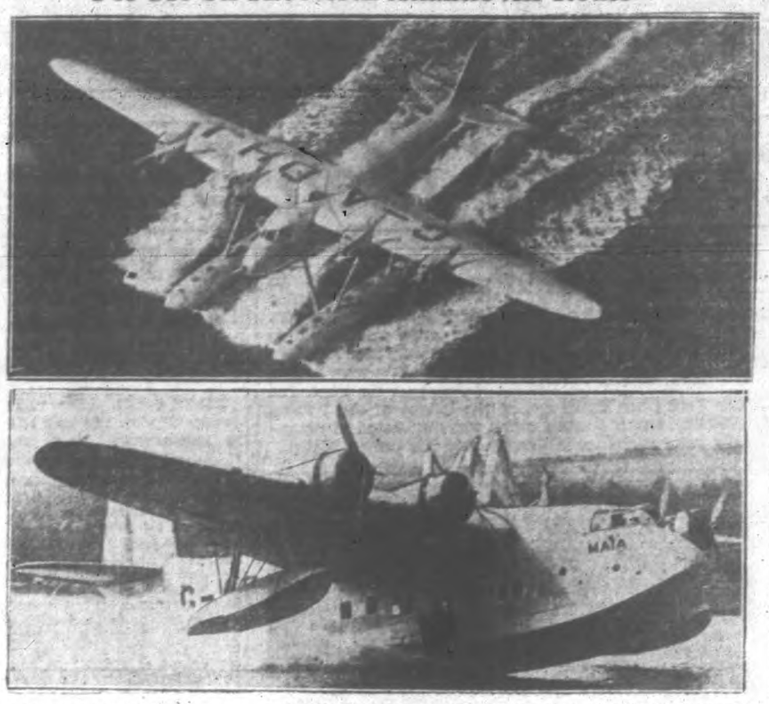
For Use On The North Atlantic Air Route



At top is pictured the upper component of the Short-Mayo composite flying boat, named the Mercury, taking off from the water at Rochester, Eng., for its test flights. In practice it will be released in mid-air from the big "mother-ship" which is seen below landing, also at Rochester, after its own trial flights. The Mercury is equipped with four engines of 340 h.p. each.

GENERAL MOTORS EXPECTS BIG YEAR

OSHAWA, Oct. 21.—Acclaiming this year's three-day national sales convention as the most successful in General Motors' history, the company's executive and zone personnel from coast to coast concluded their sessions on Wednesday with the prediction that 1938 would be their most successful year to date.

Reflected in addresses delivered throughout the convention, the spirit of enthusiasm steadily gained momentum with the presentation of the new 1938 Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile and McLaughlin-Buick.

Conducted under the direction of C. E. McTavish, general sales manager, and E. J. Umphrey, assistant general sales manager, the closing sessions featured the introduction of G.M.C. and Chevrolet trucks for 1938 by J. L. Kirkhope, assistant fleet and commercial manager.

Presentation Made.

A happy event was injected into the program in the form of a presentation to R. M. McIntyre, assistant retail selling manager, who sails for India on December 1. Making a presentation of a chest of silver to Mr. McIntyre, P. N. Berry, retail selling manager, paid tribute to the work done at Oshawa by his assistant since joining General Motors some fourteen years ago.

Joining the tribute, R. S. McLaughlin, president of General Motors of Canada, recalled that he had been in London, England, attending a motor show when he was asked if he could place "a couple of bright young Scotsmen." "Bob was one," smiled Mr. McLaughlin, "and I have been pleased to observe his work, and I wish him continued success."

People of England are protesting because tea prices have jumped.

WOULD SHOW MORE OF IRISH REVOLT

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (CP)—Frederick Robert Higgins, poet and director of Dublin's Abbey Theatre, declares the Irish Revolution has yet to be adequately depicted on the stage.

Shaking a mop of greying hair, the sturdy native of County Mayo said a trifle grimly:

"In recent years we have allowed our writers of comedy to laugh at the Irish people in the most genial and intimate way; the time is now ripe for a return to drama—in Gaelic as well as English."

The poet said two phases had been noticeable in the life of the Abbey since it was founded as a national theatre in 1904. The first was when the work of W. B. Yeats redeemed the country from a slough of sentimentalism; the second was marked by the return of realistic comedies, giving the people power once more to laugh at themselves. A more serious third phase, he predicted, would soon begin.

Higgins, who started work at 14 in a building provider's office in Dublin, became a labor leader and finished high up in the ranks of modern poetry, is here in charge of a tour of the Abbey Theatre Players. They open on Broadway shortly with Teresa Deevy's new play, "Katie Roche."

"This time we are producing no new plays in which the revolution in its most obvious aspects is depicted," Higgins said. "But several of the works reflect the subtle undercurrents of the Irish mentality induced by the achievement of national independence."

The Abbey Theatre, with its new resident company, is in receipt of a subsidy from the Free State government, the poet said. Its board is composed of prominent Irish men of letters, all of whom are entirely Gaelic in outlook and whose object it is to portray on the stage the revitalized Ireland which is the product of a native form of government.

Besides "Katie Roche," plays to be produced on the tour for the first time here are: "Silver Jubilee," by Cormack O'Daly; "Things That Are Caesar's," by Paul V. Carroll, and "Temporal Powers," by Miss Deevy.

Mandate Needed

GENERAL SMUTS

Justice minister of the Union of South Africa, who stated at Colesberg, Cape province, that a mandate over southwest Africa is "necessary for the future safety and security of our boundaries." He claimed that the Union would continue to hold on to that mandate. He referred his listeners to the speech made last spring by Premier Hertzog in which all but British subjects were prohibited from taking part in political organizations in the former German colony.

LANDED AIRPLANE BETTER THAN DAD

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Oct. 20 (CP)—A girl of 16 is one of the best amateur pilots in the country. That, at any rate, is the opinion of her father and, apart from paternal pride, he ought to know, for he is an accomplished pilot himself, and a former secretary of state for air.

The girl is Lady Mairi Stewart, youngest daughter of the Marquess of Londonderry, and her latest achievement is to beat her father in a "forced landing" competition at Newtownards, County Down, near their Ulster home, Mount Stewart.

Lady Mairi flies every day when she is at Mount Stewart, piloting one or other of the three private planes which her father keeps at the Ards airport in charge of his personal pilot. Already she is capable, experts think, of passing for an "A" license. And she has many hours solo flying to her credit. She has been flying since she was 12.

Day after day as she wings her confident way high above the lovely Ulster countryside, another plane flies near her. It is Lord Londonderry, who likes, whenever he has time, to fly with his daughter over the green isle.

Lady Mairi is to take a "blind flying" course—in which she will have to fly by instruments alone, with a green hood over the cockpit, as soon as she is old enough, probably next year. Her father intends to qualify for a commercial pilot's "B" license though, at 60, he is too old to be granted a "ticket."

Higgins said it was hoped to extend the tour to Canada, in which case Montreal and Toronto probably would be visited, but present commitments would hold the players in the United States at least until November.

Dedicate New Havelock Temple In Fine Masonic Ceremony

Over 200 Including Representatives From 20 Outside Lodges Sit Down To Banquet

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Oct. 21.—A memorable occasion in the annals of the Havelock Masonic Lodge, A.F.&A.M. No. 435 was marked by the very impressive and dignified dedication of the new Masonic temple, the ceremony being conducted by Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master, Dr. J. A. Dobbie, of Ottawa, acting for the Most Worshipful Grand Master W. J. Dunlop, of Toronto.

The new lodge hall, dining room and anle rooms, constructed in the former Dineen Hotel, which was purchased by the members of the Havelock lodge following the destruction of the old lodge rooms by fire a few years ago, were highly praised by the visiting brethren, numbering some 130.

The Havelock Lodge was instituted in 1895 with a membership of 35, when the late Wor. Bro. W. H. Port was the first presiding master.

Among those assisting in the dedication ceremony were Grand Senior Warden G. Dowling, of Ottawa, Acting Grand Junior Warden, John Hornsby of Peterborough, Acting Grand Chaplain, Rev. S. A. Kemp of Havelock, Grand Secretary, Ewart Dickson, of Hamilton; Acting Grand Director of Ceremonies, T. P. Lancaster; Acting Grand Architect L. E. Nelson, of Norwood and Acting Deputy Grand Master H. W. Roche of Havelock and several other Grand Lodge officers and Worshipful Masters from all parts of the province.

Wor. Master W. D. Hutchinson, of the local lodge, presided in the East in the preliminary portion of the ceremony, being ably assisted by his fellow officers.

Following the ceremony which concluded at 10.15 p.m. some 200 local and visiting brethern were banqueted at the town hall, by the home lodge. The sumptuous refreshments provided by the ladies of St. John's Parish Guild were followed by the customary toasts and responses. A program was also presented consisting of several numbers by a Peterborough orchestra, Highland dances by a group of local girls, a solo by Wor. Bro. Baker of Bonarlaw, and a vocal quartet by Messrs. McBurney, Childes, Widman, and Brooks.

Of much interest were the addresses of welcome by three surviving charter members, W. B. Ritchie and Joseph Dorricott, of Toronto, and Andrew Knlewasser, of Ottawa. Mr. Knlewasser who at one time taught school in Havelock was very pleased to have 12 of his former pupils present among the brethren. The toast of welcome was extended by D.D.G.M. Rt. Wor. Bro. H. W. Roche.

Representatives from lodges in the following places were present: Peterborough, Millbrook, Keene, Norwood, Hastings, Warkworth, Campbellford, Lakefield, Marmora, Tweed, Alden, Smiths Falls, Trenton, Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, New York City, Ottawa, Stirling.

OVER $200 TAKEN AT FOWL SUPPER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 21.—Decorations in orange and black, carried out in the fluted runners down the length of the tables, small pumpkins filled with marigolds and bitter sweet, orange candles burning in brass holders, and bitter sweet vine arranged over the light shades, brought a Hallowe'en atmosphere for the annual fowl supper held on Tuesday evening in the basement of St. Andrew's church, under the auspices of the Women's Association.

A fire burning in the open grate on the platform, with brilliantly-colored oak leaves arranged on the mantel-shelf, shaded lights on the small tables, and comfortable chairs and settee, added further to the attractiveness of the large room.

The crowd began to arrive about five o'clock and before another hour had passed all tables were filled, many strangers from Peterborough and other out-of-town points being noted among the guests. Mrs. P. I. Bentley, president of the Association, had a general oversight of the whole event, and offered a welcome to the constantly arriving stream of patrons, while scores of willing assistants, including members of the society and other helpers, with a generous sprinkling of men, gave capable attention to the vast amount of work involved in connection with the whole undertaking.

Piano selections by William Edworthy kept the guests upstairs entertained while they waited their turn at the tables, appetites being fully satisfied with the abundant menu which included roast goose, turkey and chicken, hot potatoes and gravy, with the usual accompaniments of salads, jellies, pickles, cakes, biscuits and pies. Efficient organization had much to do with outstanding success of the supper, each group of workers having their own place assigned, and their duties definitely specified.

Enjoyable Program

The program was given in the church auditorium, with the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, as chairman, extending a hearty welcome to the large gathering. The artists who provided the entertainment included Miss Jean Fairbairn, reader, who was given hearty applause for her several numbers, "The Burglar", and "Maisie at the Movies", being especially popular; Miss Joan Shield, soprano soloist, who has more than once been gold Medalist at the Durham County Musical Festival, and who is always heard with much pleasure by her audience; Miss Helen Patton, A.T.C.M., whose piano solos won a well-deserved need of applause, "The Old Rugged Cross", with variations particularly pleasing the listeners; and Mr. Henry Batten, tenor solist, of Peterborough, who was obliged to give a recall to "Little Sod Shanty", and whose closing number, a well-known hymn, was followed by the National Anthem. Mr Leslie Unitt, organist of George Street church, Peterborough, was the accompanist of the evening.

Total receipts were in excess of two hundred dollars, but as a higher price had to be paid for fowl this year, the amount cleared is not yet definitely known.

Bible, Stock Rules Tip For Simon

LONDON, Oct. 21 (CP).—Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told merchants and bankers of the city of London in a speech here he found two books in the chancellor's room when he took over from Neville Chamberlain in the cabinet changes last May.

One was a copy of the Bible, the other was the rules and regulations of the stock exchange.

"I hope," he added, "that this wise combination of the sacred and the secular may signify that our finances will continue to be conducted with due regard both to the highest principles and to the shrewdest calculations."

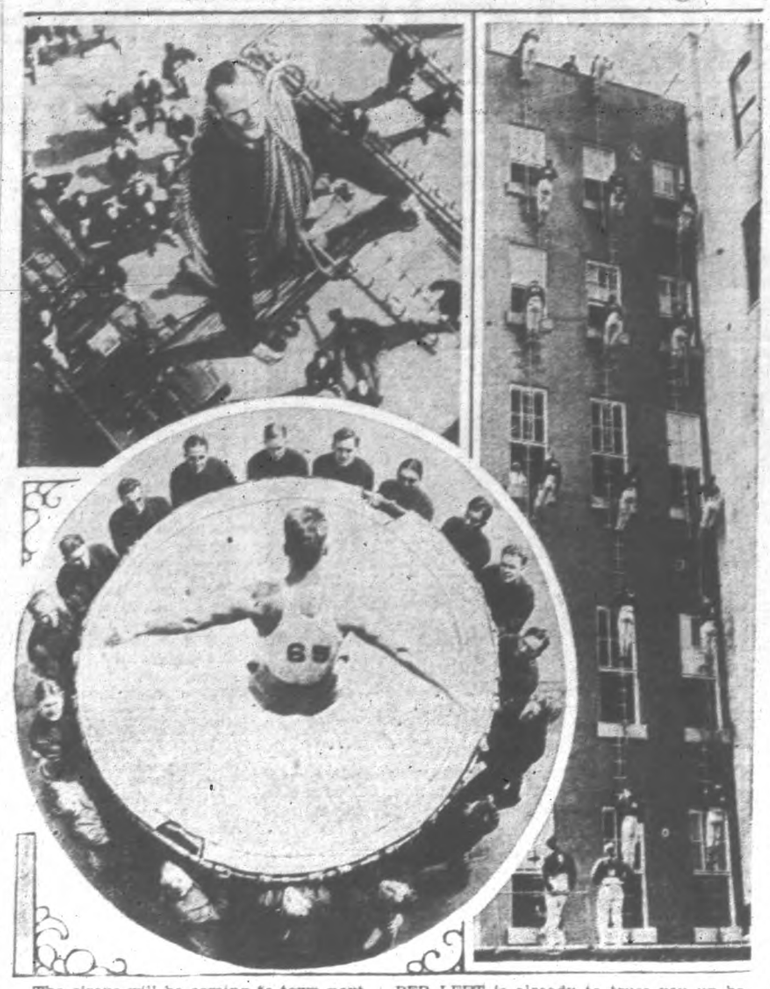
PAINTS BY TEETH ATTAINS SUCCESS

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—(CP)— Earl Bailly of Lunenburg, N.S., famous because he paints with his teeth, opened an exhibition of ris oil in Boston to-day and delighted former Nova Scotians who called with stories of Lunenburg, Mahone Bay and Pegg's Cove.

Bailly's younger brother brought him here from picturesque Lunenburg. Earl's legs and arms have been lifeless since he was two, but he overcame adversity, decided to be a great artist, put a paint brush in his mouth and found his work pleased critics. For a summer he painted under the eye of Pierce Ennis at Eastport, Maine. Now one of his paintings hangs in the House of Commons at Ottawa and another is prized by Prime Minster Mackenzie King.

Bailly and his brother will spend the winter in Florida, travelling in their trailer. Before they go, the Boston Canadian Club will send two of Earl's paintings to Warm Springs, Ga., where sufferers from infantile paralysis will see how another of their number mastered his affliction.

Circus Stunts – But It Is All Part Of Training



The circus will be coming to town next year, but a visit to the New York firemen's school will give you enough thrills to last until then. In their daily course of training the men who are to be future firefighters are taught to make their hazardous calling as safe as possible through training and practice. More than 85 feet above the street, the fireman in the UPPER LEFT is already to truss you up before effecting a rescue. Don't worry, you're in good hands. The rookie fireman in the LOWER LEFT didn't even think twice before he jumped for the net held by his comrades. Climbing straight walls with scaling ladders is just part of the fun for the seventeen embryo firemen shown at the RIGHT.

CONVENTION REPORT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 21.—The activities of the Young People's Convention held in Belleville last week were reported by the delegates at the weekly meeting of St. John's Young People's Union held on Monday evening. Miss Doris Mason outlined the Sunday activities of the convention while Miss Ruth Palliser gave a general picture of the meetings. Rev. Harold B. Neale who had also attended gave an interesting talk on the discussions from the Peace and War group in which he took part as a delegate.

The program for the evening was under the direction of Miss Mazo Blake, social convenor, and those taking part were Helen Nicholson, piano solo; Marjorie Ferguson, a reading entitled "Old Time Wedding"; and a vocal duet by Miss Elsie Rannie and Mitchell Rannie.

The meeting was opened with the customary devotional exercises with Rheta Blake reading the 23rd Psalm and a spiritual reading being given by Miss Ruth Palliser. The hymn "O Master Let Me Walk" and the Mizpah benediction brought the meeting to a close.

DEATH CLAIMS EX-WHEAT KING

BIRTLE, Man., Oct. 21 (C.P.).—Samuel Larcombe, "grand old man" of Western Canada agriculture, and world wheat king in 1917, died in hospital here last night.

The 86-year-old retired farmer, famed as the prodiicer of Axminster wheat, a rust-resistant variety, was brought to hospital several days ago suffering injuries reveiced in a fall. Pneumonia developed and he sank rapidly. Besides giving the world rust-resistant wheat in 1912, Mr. Larcombe won 3,000 prizes for soil products in his forty-three years of farming in Manitoba. His farming career was capped with victory at the International Grain Exposition at Peoria, Ill., in 1917, when he was crowned wheat king.

Born in Muusbury Village near Axminster, Devon, on April 9, 1851, he began work on a farm with his father at the age of 9 as an experienced gardener. In 1889 he came to Canada, becoming a homesteader at Birtle, 180 miles west of Winnipeg.

On three occasions he won the sweepstakes prize for the best soil products exhibited by any individual at international shows. In 1918 he took top honors at the World's Soil Products Exhibition at Kansas City, and again at exhibitions in Winnipeg during 1919 and 1920.

MARMORA

PROSPECTOR SEES 200-POUND BUCK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Oct. 21.—The thrill of seeing a fine, well conditioned buck rise up within thirty feet of him came to William McCoy when prospecting recently. He was crossing the line between Lots 17 and 18 in the 7th Concession of Lake Township, east of Burnt Lake, at the time. After the animal had completed about two-thirds of a circle at the same range from his spectator, he took sudden fright, and vanished from view. Mr. McCoy estimated its weight at being around two hundred pounds.

Asked if he had seen much trace of bear in the locality the prospector said he had seen marks on several beech trees caused by climbing bears.

Due to the wrong date of Marmora Fair being given in the list of fairs appearing in some papers, four carloads of would be patrons had a fruitless journey from the Colborne section on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Kilpatrick visited relatives in Bannockburn on Wednesday.

Mayoral Faces

More interesting to a student of physiognomy than the third game of the world series, which the mayor was watching, are these two camera shots of Fiorello LaGuardia. Severe mental, if not physical pain, is registered on the mayoral countenance in one; in the other is mirrored the pleasure inspired by good baseball performance of his favorite team.

Mayoral Faces

More interesting to a student of physiognomy than the third game of the world series, which the mayor was watching, are these two camera shots of Fiorello La-Guardia. Severe mental, if not physical pain, is registered on the mayoral countenance in one; in the other is mirrored the pleasure inspired by good baseball performance of his favorite team.

PROTEST QUINN'S MILITARY ACTION AT NARRAGANSETT

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Oct. 21 (AP)—Aroused by declaration of martial law at the Narragansett race track, adjoining Pawtucket prepared today to carry its fight against Governor Robert E. Quinn's "flagrant and dictatorial abuse of power" to the United States Supreme Court, if necessary.

A short time after the executive, in an address, said he ordered martial law at the Pawtucket racing plant as the only "way left to me to preserve the honor and dignity of the state" the board of aldermen and common council acted.

It named a special committee headed by Mayor Thomas P. McCoy to protect the "rights, lives and liberty" of the Pawtucket residents and voted it unlimited funds to engage counsel to carry its fight, if necessary, to the highest court.

In a resolution the board criticised the governor's action of last Saturday in sending the National Guard to the racing plant and asserted it had "deprived thousands of residents of the city of Pawtucket of the right and libery" guaranteed to them by federdal and state constitutions.

McCoy is a political and personal friend of Walter E. O'Hara, managing director of the race track, and lost the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last year to Quinn.

HASTINGS

ELGIN CHAMPIONS GUESTS AT SUPPER

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Oct. 21—A largely attended banquet for the Elgin softball team, who won the championship in the Hastings village loop, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Metcalfe, Elgin, last night (Wednesday). Max Scott, one of the players, who is getting married in the near future, was presented with electric bedroom lamps by his team-mates.

The entire neighborhood, comprising a gathering of over a hundred people, sat down to a fowl supper at 6.30 in the evening. A large cake made in honor of the team, was passed around to the many guests.

A program of toasts followed the sumptuous supper. Robert Stinson proposed a toast to the King, which was followed by all singing God Save the King. Oscar Mason proposed a toast to the softball team, and was responded to by Max Scott. A toast to the Sunday school was proposed by Jack Stinson, and was responded to by H. A. Thistlewaite. A toast to the ladies, who had prepared the meal, was proposed by Jack Stinson, and responded to by Mrs. R. J. Leepre.

Rev. Newell, their Sunday school minister, at this time addressed a few fitting remarks to the team. He highly complimented them on winning the cup, donated by Frank Gilbert, and also for their sportsmanship.

An address was read by Robert Elliott and Lloyd Fleming presented Max Scott with electric bedroom lamps. Max will be the first of the players to get married.

Community singing was next on the program. The public school boys, led by their teacher, Miss Jessie Hay, sang a comic song directed to the team, which caused a hearty laugh.

Games and contests were played by all to wind up a big evening for the Elgin folk about 12.30 a.m.

The Elgin team must be highly commended for their clean sportsmanship, which was displayed many times in the past few years, as they played in the Hastings league.

Militia Keeps Narragansett Closed

Bob Gracie Remains Holdout From Maroons' Front Line

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—That Tony Lazzeri-Chicago Cub situation has everyone around here puzzled. Just suppose Tony signs up as coach (on condition he'll manage the club in 1939). That would be a fine mess of fish, wouldn't it? . . . There would be Grimm directing the Bruins from the bench, with the next year's manager whooping it up on one of the coaching lines. Can either of 'em stand it? Tony's pals around B'way and 46th don't believe he'll go for such a bargain—if that's what's in the Chicago minds.

Boston fans who are busy signing petitions for Rabbit Maranville to manage the Bees was wasting their time . . . He's already signed to stay at Montreal . . . And 40,000 Clevelanders, who were pulling for Steve O'Neill via the same route, had no better luck . . . Fordham is all set for an air attack when Texas Christian blows into the Polo Grounds Saturday . . . Gene Tunney, who made some pithy comments on the John Montagne case, was socked plumb in the solar plexus by Judge Brewster, who referred to Gene as "a former heavyweight champion and alleged Shakespearean scholar" . . . Omigosh!

Well, who's going to the Rose Bowl? . . . Right now we'd say Alabama and California . . . Mike Jacobs won't wear a suit costing less than $150, but he sticks to 15-cent cigarettes . . . Bill McKechnie is looking for a couple of grads . . . A coaches' out in Cincinnati . . . Applicants for Travis Jackson's Jersey City job may as well save their stamps . . . "Ole Hoss" will be back on the job . . . Both Henry Armstrong and Petey Sarron are worrying about making 126 pounds for their featherweight title clash in the Garden Oct. 19 . . . Big league club owners are ready to take their managers' tips and vote for a 25-man player limit at the winter meetings . . . Present limit is 23 and are the pilots howling?

Snatched from New York columns: More than passing strange that in a game called football there should be so little foot . . . Survey shows only 54 per cent efficiency in conversions in 42 games . . . Babe Ruth definitely is a candidate for manager of Boston Bees . . . (and more power to him).

Casualties Strike Leafs' Camp On First Day—Langelle And Hamilton Hurt

TORONTO, Oct. 21 (CP)—Too bad Lionel Conacher, hockey "Big Train" had to retire from Montreal Maroons or there might have been three Conachers in the big league at the same time and all playing for different teams. Brother Charlie is with Leafs while brother-the-youngest Roy is trying out with Boston Bruins at Hershey, Pa.

Here's a hot tip: Look for a fast start from Toronto Maple Leafs when the season gets underway. Manager Connie Smythe likes his team to leap in front, then there's no making up ground in the March stretch drive. For that reason, the Smythelan strategy is to work his players into perfect condition in camp.

Goalie Earl Robertson of New York Americans can tell you Happy Day, though a veteran, still packs plenty of power in that shot. Happy let one go in practice at the Calgary camp and it caught Robertson on the knee-cap. Result—Robertson gave way to Harry Braithwaite, a young Toronto amateur, for the rest of yesterday's session.

A note in high C: Archie McVeer, Calgary referee who gets a chance as an arbiter this year in the N.H.L., will handle the whistle in all six games for the tour by Rangers and Amerks of the prairie provinces. The teams open the tour Saturday at Calgary.

Coach King Clancy of Montreal Maroons is looking for Maurice Croghan, a young Montreal amateur, to step into the spot vacated by Conacher on the defence. 'Tis said, too, down at Lake Placid, N.Y., where Maroons are training that the King is "high" on centreman Buddy O'Connor, another youthful Montrealer.

That united holdout front of Maroons' "Green Line" has simmered to a one-man stand. Gus Marker and Herbie Cain have agreed to sign up but Maroons still have to catch Bob Gracie, fleet centreman and high scorer of the ace line. Gracie, from his Toronto home, announced his intention of doing a little sniping—not goals, but ducks.

Maple Leafs, training at Galt, Ont., had two casualties on their hands today with one of a minor nature. Pete Langelle, who played with Winnipeg Monarchs last year when the Manitoban team captured the Memorial Cup, wrenched his shoulder. The more serious accident, however, was that to defenceman Reg. Hamilton who suffered a bad gash over the ankle when struck by a skate.

BLANK PICKERING 1-0

BARRIE, Oct. 21. (C.P.)—Barrie Collegiate Institute Juniors rugby football team defeated Pickering College, Newmarket, 1 to 0, in an exhibition match yesterday.

Captain Vic Reynolds scored the only point of the game in the third quarter, when Creed, Pickering quarterback, was rouged after the Barrie team reached and were shoved back from Pickering's five-yard line.

CENTRAL ENTERS SCHOOL PLAYOFFS

Central Public school soccer team just managed to get into the playoffs after they had been held off the scoring list by Queen Mary until the last minutes of the game, yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon, on King Edward Park, when they scored two goals through the efforts of Millen and R. Clark, who dribbled his way through the defense to get the second counter.

King Edward and Central meet this afternoon (Thursday) in the best of three series for the Public school soccer championship which will declare the winner for possession of the Alex Kay trophy. The next game will be on Monday afternoon.

Queen Mary Outplayed Central.

The spin of the coin fell in favour of Central and they kicked off with the wind in their favour. Ridyard repulsed the attack with a clever punt up-field where Rhodes gathered up the ball to send Matthews away into the Central goal area where he tested Drummond, Central goalie, with a low grounder that he was just able to gather up in the nick of time. Central forwards endeavored to dribble the ball through towards goal but the Queen Mary half-back line of Rhodes, Fowler and Blondin dominating the play, in fact, Millen, at outside right, was held cleverly by Rhodes throughout the game. Jones, Queen Mary, broke away fast along the line when he caught the defense away up the field too far and centered the ball across the goal where Matthews connected with a left footer that Drummond, Central goalie, had to fall upon to save at the corner of the upright. Play ran from end to end with Queen Mary players being better defensively and offensively. Central 0, Queen Mary 0.

Two Goals in Five Minutes.

The west enders, with the aid of the wind, confined the play within Central's territory with Jones evading the defense to rattle a hot drive at the custodian that Matthews sent back immediately to roll past the far post. Exchanges continued even with Fowler, at centre-half for Queen Mary, holding Moorehead at a standstill with his keen tactics in mid-field. On one occasion Central bombarded the Queen Mary goal from every angle to find Taylor, Queen Mary goalie, putting up a brilliant exhibition in goal. While Ridyard and Ackford, at full-backs, nullified their attacks time and again. The former robbed the Central pivot of a goal to send Rhodes, at left half, away down the field, where he delivered a low grounder ahead to Matthews who ran in between the full-backs to complete his effort by shooting for goal. The custodian gathered up the ball to kick it clear, but he was surprised when Matthews ran in to miss the upright by inches from the rebound. With only five minutes to go, Morley forced another corner that proved fruitless and Parsons ran back in time to save a sure goal from the foot of Morley. Kiff and Parsons relieved the pressure by dribbling their way upfield with the former sending Millen into a scoring position that was successful. He was tackled closely but held on tenaciously to make Queen Mary goalie save a hard drive and ran in to have another try that hit the post as Moorehead completed the score. Two minutes later, R. Clark dribbled his way right through the Queen Mary defense to send a long drive into goal, where it dropped under the cross bar. Central 2, Queen Mary 0.

Central—F. Drummond, goal; R. Clarke and G. Lee, full-backs; N. Foster, F. Kiff and F. Parsons, halves; B. Millen, D. Miller, S. Clarke, G. Burns and L. Batten forwards.

Queen Mary—R. Taylor, goal; J. Ridyard and R. Ackford, full-backs; R. Blondin, F. Fowler and Arnold Rhodes, halves; W. Jones, W. Smith, J. Morley, Fred Mortimer and G. Matthews, forwards.

Referee—D. Buchan.

GRANBY PILOT SORE ON CARROL RENEGE

GRANBY, Que., Oct. 21 (CP)—The Granby team has signed up Dick Carroll as its coach in the Quebec Provincial Hockey League and it won't be satisfied with his brother Frank as substitute, General Manager Homer Cabana insisted last night. The Granby boss was firm on the point after hearing that at Chatham, Ont., Dick had said he had an agreement with Granby whereby either he or his brother could coach the Quebec team. Dick, himself, intends to coach at Chatham.

"No, no," Caban exclaimed with fervor. "This brother is in no agreement with us. We signed up Dick Carroll, and we want him."

He added that Dick had told him about the brother all right. Dick had told him of the Chatham offer, too. "But when he left here," Cabana said, "He told me he was going to Chatham to get his brother the job there."

"We are going to make him live up to his contract with us," Cabana concluded.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

SCHOOL SOCCER League here winds up its schedule this week and the two-in-three game final serial will start any night now. King Edward and Central schools again tangle in playoffs, and these were the same school squads that baffled nine playoff games to a draw last autumn—attracting much attention locally and in other towns. As it was feared that some of the lads would be sprouting alfalfa on their chins before the championship was eventually settled, the powers that be upped and called the whole thing off, letting the teams divide titular honors. They sincerely hope the same thing doesn't crop up again this semester. Much credit is due the various teacher-coaches for making this a most successful school loop, and an orchid also to Dave Buchan, who referees gratis all these soccer tilts.

* * * * * * *

YOU CAN'T overlook the value of the school leagues to sports in a town. We had good bantam, juvenile, junior and intermediate baseball in Peterborough until the School Baseball League folded five years ago—going in for softball. There is now oodles of softball played around town. And didn't most of our good picksters start in the school hockey circuits? So soccer should flourish a long time here. Grid officials around Toronto fear that the cessation of rugby this autumn in Toronto schools—due to infantile paralysis—will be a serious blow to the game there within a few years. Kids generally go the way they are started in sports.

* * * * * * *

GRID FANS ought to get enough of their favorite sport here Saturday with no less than three major fracas on the fire. Junior school game at 1130 a.m. in Riverside between Lindsay and P.C.I.—and a twin bill in the afternoon. Malvern Collegians of Toronto tackle P.C.I. Seniors at 2.00 in an exhibition contest, while Toronto Eastsides meet Orfuns at 3.30—it had better start there on time, too—in an O.R.F.U. fixture. We fear the Scrawg kids will best the locals, but figure the senior P.C.I.-ers should win, and Orfuns have a slight edge on Eastsides.

* * * * * * *

AND why do we figure 'em this way? Well, that junior joust looks like a Lindsay win 'cause the hicks Lindseyites smeared Oshawa something terrible whereas the locals didn't shade the Motor Citizens by much. Lindsay also licked Bowmanville and our gang lost to the latter. It's harder to figure the senior school scrap since both teams are pretty classy, but we like the Petes—it'll take a grand team to beat 'em. The Orfuns have a man-sized job too, since Eastsides have bolstered a lot and have improved. They lost early in the season to Lindsay but came back last Saturday to lick 'em handily. They were nosed out by Cobourg whereas Orfuns nosed out a win twice over Cobourg. It'll be close but we think Orfuns will win. We hope.

* * * * * * *

TWO DISTINCT types of rugby may be seen in the afternoon twin bill at Riverside. The Collegians specialize in open passing plays and they take more chances—which generally makes for plenty of scoring. And the O.R.F.U.-ers seem to prefer to play 'em closer to their vests, that is more straight, hard-hitting football, with lower scores, resulting. Not that the school squads don't play plenty of orthodox rurby, too, nor that the bigger teams don't open up sometimes; also, but these are the general types of play shown by these outfits. So fans can't miss out—whether they (the customers) like straight rurby or open football. We really expect two entertaining clashes, and the doubleheader ought to draw a big crowd of rooters. Admish is only two bits for the afternoon.

* * * * * * *

BELLEVILLE PANTHERS pulled out a 7-2 nod over Kingston Garrisons in the Quinte field yesterday to stay in the running for an O.R.F.U. intermediate "B" playdown berth. They earned the win with a sham showing out lost their star halfback Eddie Schneider, for the season—as he had his collar bone fractured. The Panthers are likely to tangle soon with the "B" winner of our group—maybe Cobourg—while the Trenton Fliers will be mixing shortly with the "A" victor, which may be Peterborough.

* * * * * * *

CHURCH BASKETBALL League has a meeting tonight (Thursday) at 6.45 in the "Y". Three games will be arranged then for this Saturday e'en, teams being picked from those who have entered by tonight. Others have until next Monday to enter. St. Paul's, last year's bantam champions, were the first to re-enter and slip in their two bucks' fee. They will do their crusading in juvenile ranks this year. Loop officers are confident they will have three four-team sections operating this cage season.

* * * * * * *

COMPLIMENTING THE C.O.B.L. officers on their return this year and the financial balance reported, the Kingston writer adds: "With Kingston not present to kick up its annual fuss, as much in fun as to keep meetings alive, the only objection reported was in regard to the changing of umpires in Provincial playoffs without notifying Oshawa. There was regret expressed at the absence of Belleville last year and it is doubtful if the good old ball town will be back next year, which should be a warning to other clubs to prepare for the future by developing home talent. Napanee may join Kingston in evening baseball next year to revive interest and get bigger gates though Oshawa and Peterborough do not like coming so far for evening play." Yeah, they miss a lot of sleep on those jaunts.

* * * * * * *

OBSERVATION PLATFORM: School soccer finals started this aft for the Alex Kay Cup, next tilt being Monday afternoon . . . . H. A. Craig of the Collegiate has announced that the junior school 100 yards' record was broken by 1-5 of a second by Stroyan Leith in the recent P.C.I. field day . . . . Leith also captured the 220-yard race . . . . Quinte scribe thinks the Petes' hockey interests have loaded to the hilt this year, as they loaded up in '26 . . . . He adds that Belleville Redmen lost many good players but there are four "high-class picksters from Eastern Ontario" now in Belleville . . . . The Trenton Fliers don't seem to know what they want to do in hockey this winter . . . . Ford (Mike) Loucks is really hitting his gridiron stride now for the Orfuns; he is a clever ball carrier . . . . Wonder if Toronto agreed to have that Eastsides-Orfuns' game here count as a double game or not—we haven't heard definitely . . . . Pome: If a buddy meets a buddy, coming through the line, if a buddy smears a buddy—'tis a healthy gridiron sign!

Two Of Babe Ruth's Records Broken By Iron Horse Gehrig

Lou Ties Third And Still Is American League's Leading Record-Buster

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—Lou Gehrig's announced campaign to eclipse some of the marks Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb set up for the record books didn't get far during the 1937 season, but it was a big year for the "Iron Horse," nevertheless.

The Yankees' iron man first baseman revealed his ambition after the 1936 campaign. Through the recent season he succeeded only in wiping out two of the Bambino's all-time highs, and tying another.

But he was still the year's leading record-buster, accounting for six of the ten big league marks that were bettered, and one of the ten that were equalled.

All told, three of Ruth's records went by the boards. Gehrig bagged the Babe's mark for the player driving in 150 or more runs for the most years, turning the trick for the seventh time in his career, and for the batter hitting for a total of 300 or more bases for the most years, collecting that total for the 12th time to end a tie with the Babe.

Rudy York Breaks Mark.

The other Ruthian swat standard to go was shattered by the Tigers' rookie walloper, Roundhouse Rudy York, when he clouted 18 homers during August, one more than the previous one-month top which Ruth set up during the September of his record-smashing 1927 season.

By scoring 100 or more runs for the 12th year in his career, Gehrig deadlocked Ruth at the head of the record books. In addition, Larruping Lou stretched his consecutive-game playing record to 1,965 games; played 150 or more games for the 11th year in his career for another new mark; set a new high of 30 homers with the bases loaded during his playing career; topped his own mark by scoring 100 or more runs for the 12th straight year, and broke a tie with Al Simmons for a new mark of 12 years in a row for driving in 100 or more tallies.

JOB FOR LAZZERI ON CHICAGO CUBS

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (A.P.). — Tony Lazzeri, late of the world's champion New York Yankees, may wind up as First Lieutenant to Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs.

Owner Wrigley, talking on Wednesday of his desire to move Lazzeri into the Cub organization, was indefinite on just which spot the former Yankee would fill in the ranks. He revealed that he never had met Lazzeri, but he has a great admiration to go higher in the baseball business.

"There are a lot of places in baseball for intelligent, aggressive and enthusiastic men, in addition to those on the playing field," Wrigley said. "There are a number of places that he could fit into in our organization.

"Lazzeri has the reputation as an aggressive, intelligent baseball man. I think there must be room in our organization for such a man."

VITTS IS NAMED INDIANS' PILOT

CLEVELAND, Oct. 21 (AP)—President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Baseball Club announced Wednesday appointment of Oscar Vitt, manager of the Newark club of the International League, as new manager of the Indians, replacing Steve O'Neill. O'Neill becomes a Tribe coach.

Replacement of O'Neill, former Toronto Maple Leaf, as the Cleveland pilot came after months of uncertainty over his status.

Vitt, 47, managed the New York Yankees' Newark farm club for the last two years, finishing 25½ games ahead of Montreal last season and defeating Columbus in the seven-game Little World Series after dropping the first three straight.

He formerly played first base with Detroit and Boston in the American League, winding up his major league playing in the 1921 season.

GABBY STREET MAY BE PILOT OF THE BROWNS

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Gabby Street manager of the Browns?.... they say, the deal has been made and the Old Sarge is back in there firing again ....on his back in the mud of the Argonne forest, sniping at aeroplanes with his trusty rifle? ....well, something like that..... certainly as manager of the Browns the Old Sarge is on his back.... but this time he'll be shooting at Bronx Bombers up there....and it's still tough ....the old war's still on.

Yes, Gabby was on his back in the mud 20 years ago....and what more those planes he was peckin at spotted him, there....and tanks roaring down and let him have it in the leg whoops!....a nice white hospital bed and some food!....A couple of weeks and he was right back in there swinging again, giving 'em the old gas—mustard gas, phosgene, chunk gas.

Street was catching in Nashville when the war started....he had been up and down and across the country five times....Jackson, Hopkinsville, Terre Haute, Boston, Cincinnati, Washington, San Francisco, New York Chattanooga..... In the Kitty league, American league, Pacific Coast league, anywhere....then they called for man-power for a different sort of catching job..... Hank Gowdy of the Braves was the first ball player to enlist, but Gabby was right behind him ....pitching gas and catching hell.

The Old Sarge's first military duties were performed at Chateau Thierry, with the 42nd company Second marines. He was in Belleau wood with the 23rd infantry Second division. He was with the 16th infantry, First division, and the 130th infantry, 35th division, and the 167th.....Alabama boys.... he was an old Alabama boy himself.... Huntsville....but he felt at home just about anywhere anyway ...a very adjustable and durable pest.

Gabby's job was concerned with feeding the fire out of long cylinders filled with deadly gas .... it was mostly night work.... the gas shells were fired out of guns something on the order of trench mortars ....soldiers called them "blasting 'bozes" .... then, once in a while he would pour a little thermite on the opposition .... the visiting team, you might say.

When Gabby came back to baseball in 1919 just in time to open the season at Nashville, beginning where he had left off ....from Nashville to Suffolk to Joplin, then to Muskogee, Augusta, Columbia and Knoxville....catching 2,062 games in 26 years with time out for war.... nice going, Sarge.... he was 47 years old when the Cardinals front office called him in and asked him to manage the ball club! ...imagine that, after all those years!

But he managed them and did all right, too .... winning pennants in 1930 and 1931 and knocking off the Athletics in '31 ....then back to the minors, managing St. Paul, on the way back down the old road again .... team not so good, and the boys in the stands bellowed for blood .... finally Gabby got it.... In midsummer this year .... so with the wife he started west .... I wanted to take it easy and enjoy life for a while," said Gabby, "and then I got a wire from Jim Bottomley to come and help him as coach of the Browns....

So the Sarge came back .... and the old war's still on....going strong.... after those Yankees, Gabby .... come on, give 'em a flock of that phosgene!

May Turn Pilot

JOHN POMORSKI

Reports from Montreal state that John Pomorski, former Toronto Maple Leaf, Montreal, Buffalo, Syracuse and Chicago Cub hurler, will likely manage Three Rivers baseball team in the provincial league next summer. He was given an attractive offer by the Three Rivers entry in the provincial pro league and will likely sign before the end of the month.

HANSON LEADING GRID SCORE LIST WESTERN CIRCUIT

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21.—(CP) — The football adage, "As Fritz Hanson goes so go the Winnipegs," may be proved or disproved when Blue Bombers and Calgary Bronks meet the Western Interprovincial Union playoff.

Whatever the odds on the home-and-home final Nov. 6 and 13 they would swing in Bronks' favor if the blond backfield flash were lost to Bombers. Sparkplug of the team and a vital force on any gridiron, he's the circuit's leading scorer.

Calgary has no ball-carrier to match Hanson, who may hurdle goalward in a dazzling, swivel-hipped dash, may fade suddenly to fire a perfect forward pass or even return a punt 70 yards as he did last Saturday when Winnipeg beat Bronks 16-2.

Not Much Edge.

Elsewhere neither team has much edge. Calgary may have slightly the better line, Winnipeg the best ends. Bronks well-drilled backfield is undoubtedly weakened by loss of its key man, Ray Olsen, out with a broken leg.

With Olsen on the sidelines, punting odds favor Winnipeg's Art Stevenson. Olsen, too, was his team's best passer but Johnny Rosaro and big Ed Rorvig may equal the aerial feats of Hanson. Bob Fritz and Greg Kabat, although they haven't so far this season. Rorvig is generally considered the Union's greatest plunger, but Coach Fritz of Pegs is a power house through the line and has plowed for three touchdowns while Rorvig's scoring has been confined to two field goals and seven singles, five of them converts from placement.

Stronger on the Line.

Calgary, with five United States-taught linesmen Howard Hurd, Jimmy Hadden, Russ Hale, Dick Haughian and Doc Lussier, and three or four Calgary-breds playing fine football, appears strongest in the line. Bombers have a magnificent middle-winger and secondary defence star in Martin Gainor, who came up from University of North Dakota this season.

Brazil and South Africa have just been connected by radio-telephone.

War Admiral Is Out In Maryland 'Cap

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 21.—(AP).—George Conway, trainer of War Admiral, king of the three-year-olds, said yesterday the colt would not run in the $7,500 added Maryland Handicap Saturday.

War Admiral has been out of racing since he split a hoof in winning the Belmont Stakes about four months ago. He previously had won the Derby and Preakness. The decision against racing War Admiral moved Heel-fly, T. P. Morgan's speedster, up to favorite position.

BELLEVILLE BEATS GARRISON 7 TO 2

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 21.—Belleville Panthers put themselves back in the running for intermediate 'B' honors in the O.R.F.U. here yesterday afternoon when they defeated Kingston Garrison of the R.C.A.F. by a score of 7 to 2. Belleville was much the better team on the day's play. Eddie Schreider, brilliant halfback of the locals, will be out of the game for the rest of the season. He sustained a fractured collar bone, when tackled heavily after a long run.

Belleville wasted many opportunities when trying for major counts especially in the third period, twice being within striking distance for a placement kick. They scored the only major count of the game after a series of forward passes and line plunges in the second period. Garrison scored a point in the first quarter, when a high punt by Johnson was blown back across the Belleville line for a point. Schreider crashed over for the touchdown from fake formation and the touchdown was converted by a pass. The third period was all Belleville, but only one point resulted, when Johnson booted a single. In the last quarter Palmer booted for a point.

Faulkner, Cole, Johnson, Kelley and Rigby were the best for the locals, while the back line stood up well for Garrison with Huston, Palmer and Agnew quite steady.

Belleville — Snap, Faulkner; insides, Baker and Faux; middles, McCreary and Rigby; outsides, Kelley and Cole; quarter, Schreider; halves, Odell, Storey and Johnson; flying wing, Yanover; subs, Ireland, Reneuf M. Haffey White, J. Haffey, Brummell, Langabeer, Loghlin Grant, Cain and Derry.

Kingston—Snap Wright; insides, Huston and Stearns; middles, Potts and Bond; outsides, Gleason and Rowen; quarter, Lawford; halves, Jenkins, Palmer and Agnew; flying wing, Osrander; subs, Houston, Burtch, Fooks, Boutillier, Law Pullen, Robinson, Petrick, Anderson and Vivian.

Turns To Track

Robert Taylor, primarily of Hollywood, is seen here winning the last lap of the "inter varsity" relay race on the famous "Iffley road track at Oxford," one of the scenes from his first British film, to be entitled "A Yank at Oxford," now being made at the Denham studios, England, by British M-G-M. Taylor is performing on a reproduction of the Iffley road track.

Remember When—

Lefty Grove, Baltimore pitcher and rated tops in the International League, failed to last an innings against Kansas City in a Little World Series game at Kansas 14 years ago Today. He was yanked after walking four men and allowing three runs. Grove went to Philadelphia Athletics in 1924 for $100,000 and was traded to Boston Red Sox in 1933.

SHILL ON SECOND FORWARD LINE FOR SPANGLED AMERKS

CALGARY, Oct. 21 (CP)—With his players rounding rapidly into condition, Manager Red Dutton today named those who likely will form the regular New York American team in National Hockey League warfare this season.

Two forward lines and one defence combination are definite and there is little speculation about the other spots.

Heading the outfit is the ace forward line used by Amerks the last two winters, Art. Chapman, Lorne Carr and Sweeney Schriner. Nels Stewart will act as pivot for the next string, with Joe Lamb and Jack Shill on the wings.

Charlie Mason was the inside track in the race for the third line's left wing job, with Tommy Anderson and Eddie Wiseman, but he will have to fight off Lloyd (Dede) Klein and Doug. French.

In Clarence (Happy) Day and Johnny Gallagher, Dutton thinks he has a defence combination to match any in the league. Joe Jerwa and Al Murray may form the other rearguard combination, but there is still a possibility one of them may be dropped in favor of Wilf Field. Winnipeg boy with New Haven Eagles in the International American League last year. Earl Robertson will play goal.

TO NUMBER PLAYERS

BELFAST—(CP)—When England plays Ireland at soccer, October 23, players on both teams will be numbered. It will be the first time that identification numbers have been worn in international soccer.

DEAD RECKONING

BY

BRUCE HAMILTON

READ THIS FIRST:

Tim Kennedy graduated into wouldbe homicide from the school of armchair murderers. With a lucrative dental practice and an enviable social position in a small town near London, Tim at middle age, feels happy and secure. Then Esther is run down by a truck, returning home weeks later a physical wreck, with all her former beauty shattered. Tim loses all interest in his wife and is greatly attracted by Alma Shepherd, a widow and a new client. He maneuvers to invite her to their annual tennis party. Tim assures Esther that he still loves her. He begins to see more and more of Alma who Esther now considers a friend of the family. Finally Tim is determined that Esther must die.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 16.

It was all very well administering arsenic to a person, reasoned Tim as he planned his murder of Esther; then trusting the family doctor, either through lack of experience or timorousness, to certify the cause of death as gastroenteritis or some other intestinal complaint. It was true that such a method gave a reasonable chance of security.

But there was too much of a gamble about it—it was like backing an odds-on favorite in a race; a conservative, even cautious bet, when a few pounds were at issue, madly reckless when the stakes were life and death. You could not rely on your doctor giving a certificate in so accommodating a fashion, and even if he did there were other potential sources of danger: nurses, servants, relatives, gossips, busybodies, all capable of bringing about the final most dreadful threat of all—exhumation. It had happened so often. And then, since the primary concealment had been made, your case was nearly hopeless. You had no second line of withdrawal, you had knocked the ladder from under your own feet.

No—the ideal method required the complete absence of concealment, save only for the one vital factor. The necessity of lying, with all the hazards, contradictions, and inconsistencies that elaborate falsehood is liable to involve, must be cut down to a minimum. Esther must die a death whose nature must be clear and aboveboard from the beginning. There must be no medical doubts, no period of suspense made dreadful by the fear of discovery. The immediate cause of death must be admitted bodily and the events leading to it made so plainfully clear by collateral evidence as to put out of court the fear that anyone would think it needful to investigate further.

And the medium must be poison. Firstly, because it was the most natural means for the circumstances he was devising; secondly, because the nature of his profession removed the risks of surreptitious purchase, for which no legitimate ground could be argued. He had only to choose wisely from the store of drugs of which he was in perfectly lawful possession—or better still, to use drugs that Dr. Arkwright had prescribed for his niece.

His plan, as finally worked out, was simplicity itself. But it had one prerequisite; the removal of all supervision over Esther's personal life, save only his own. The nurse would have to go. And now, in the most natural way, without an active step from himself, the excuse for dismissing her had been provided. He was not sending her away of his own will; in letting her go he was surrendering to pressure from others, against his own judgment.

A few days after his conversation with Harold Arkwright he slept again with Esther. As he lay for long hours awake, while she turned in her restless, dream-haunted sleep, his purpose hardened.

A few brief conversations, spread over the following fortnight, will serve to indicate how Tim set about preparing the ground, and planting the seed.

. . . The West Shilston cricket field, where the Kennedys had been accustomed to spend a restful hour or two on Saturday afternoon, when there was nothing special doing in their set. The local club had been given a long day in the field, their opponents knocking their bowling all over the place. In the late afternoon, as the shadow of the pavilion lengthened and crept toward the pitch, their own wickets fell fast, and it looked as if they were unlikely to last out to the agreed time for the drawing of the stumps.

With six wickets down the Reverend Doctor Grantley, a former Authentic, and for many years West Shilston's captain, came in—an imposing figure in his yellow-and-red striped cap, able, by sheer pride of bearing, to carry off an abdominal expanse that would have shattered the dignity in a lesser personage. An uncompromising and militant champion of orthodoxy, the rector held the fort for 20 minutes, like the Harrovian he was: left elbow out and chin in air; but at length he got down to earth too late for a ball that came through low, and was bowled. . . . But he had hit two or three fours on impeccably correct principles; in the pleasant afterglow of achievement he felt exhibitionistic, so donning his blazer and muffler, he strolled out to where the Kennedy were sitting on deck chairs in front of the pavilion.

"Good knock, Mr. Grantley," said Tim, as he came up. "Too bad getting that shooter, just as you were settling down. Who is the bowler, do you know?"

"Anno Domnini, my dear Kennedy," replied the rector sententiously, "Anno Domini. . . . It appears we lose."

"I'm afraid so."

"Yes. . . . You feeling more yourself these days, Mrs Kennedy?"

"Yes, thank you, Mr. Grantley, much more."

"Excellent! . . . In that case I can scold you both—oh, very pretty, sir, very pretty! . . ."

"You wanted to scold us?"

"Yes. . . . Young Carter shapes well, doesn't he? . . . Oh, yes, scold you. . . . I can't have my two best parishioners walking out on me without making a stand—I don't know how long it is since I've seen you in church. Oh, well fielded, well fielded indeed, sir!"

"I'm afraid Esther doesn't often feel like church these days." Tim grinned. "I suppose you're quite incorruptible—I can't square you?"

The rector fingered his chin.

"Well, the church restoration fund is dragging rather. Perhaps we might come to some arrangement. The principle of composition is an old one . . . authority of tradition."

"Would a sovereign meet the case?"

"Oh, pretty again, sir, very pretty! . . . Yes, I think perhaps it might. . . . The spirit of compromise, Kennedy, one of the great beauties of our church. . . . Would you care to take a stroll round? I want to get behind the bowler; I'm not quite satisfied about young Carter; I believe he's picking up from third man. . . ."

"Seriously, though, Doctor," said Tim, as they walked slowly round

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY FACE

"Ha Ha Ha!" giggled the Wolf.

"What are you laughing at?" asked the Fox.

"At you," answered the Wolf.

"What's so funny about me?" the Fox wanted to know and he curled back his lips and showed his teeth as if he wanted to bite.

"It was funny," chuckled the Wolf, "how you thought Uncle Wiggily's pile of yellow carrots were a golden treasure and got me fooled into trying to take some."

"You weren't any more fooled than I was," said the Fox. "And if you feel that way about it I'll not tell you what I was going to tell you."

"Oh, go on; tell me?" begged the Wolf. "Is it about anything to eat?" he asked eagerly. "I'm very hungry."

More Gold?

"Yes, it is about something to eat," said the Fox. "You don't deserve that I tell you after you laughed at me. But I just found out that Uncle Wiggily is going by himself over to his cornfield, far away and if we sneak after him we may catch and nibble him."

"I suppose you think he is going after more gold—golden yellow corn—eh?" asked the Wolf.

"If you're going to be silly about this I'll go alone," said the Fox, sort of losing his temper and not caring whether or not he found it again.

"I'll be good?" promised the Wolf. "But how do you know Uncle Wiggily is going alone to his corn field?"

"I saw him go. I heard him tell Nurse Jane he was going to bring back some ears of corn to roast. I happen to know the corn field is a very lonely place and we ought to be able easily to catch that rabbit."

"Sure. I'm with you. Trot along," said the Wolf. So the two Bad Chaps headed for the rabbit gentleman's cornfield which was a long distance from his hollow stump bungalow.

Meanwhile Uncle Wiggily, just as the Fox had heard, was himself on the way to the cornfield.

"I'll pull plenty of the big ears," he said to himself. "Nurse Jane will roast them for me. I'm glad they are not my ears that are going to be roasted. How the Bad Chaps would love my ears roasted! but there are no Bad Chaps around now. Ha! Ha!"

Makes a Face.

Uncle Wiggily wouldn't have laughed if he had known the Fox and Wolf were on their way to the cornfield. Reaching it, the rabbit gentleman gathered several ears of corn. Then, seeing some pumpkins growing in the field he said:

"Just for fun I'll make a funny face Hallowe'en Jack o'Lantern out of a pumpkin. It will be good practice for me." So Uncle Wiggily hollowed out the seeds and pulp from a large pumpkin and carved it into a face. He made a hole in the top of the pumpkin to remove the seeds and as he looked at this hole he said:

"It's big enough to stick my head in. Then I would be wearing the funny pumpkin face upside down. I'll try it."

So Uncle Wiggily put the hollow pumpkin face upside down over his own head and then, finding a little puddle of water he looked at himself as in a mirror. All of a sudden the rabbit gentleman heard a noise.

"What's that?" he whispered. "Maybe somebody is coming!"

And what happened next I'll tell you in the story after this. It will be about Uncle Wiggily's masquerade. But please don't let the monkey open the ice box door or it might freeze its tail.

GERMAN WRITERS STIR ANTI-CZECH FLAMES AFRESH

BERLIN, Oct. 21—(CP)—Anti-Czech feeling in Germany was whipped to a new heat by the press today.

German newspapers supported editorially the position taken by Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten Deutsche Party, who wrote an open letter to Czechoslovakia's President, Eduard Benes, insisting on autonomy for German districts of the Czech Republic.

Henlein's letter followed a border incident in which Czech police were said to have manhandled members of his party attempting to hold a banned rally.

German editorials said Benes had promised in 1919 to grant autonomy for German districts and said 500,000 Ukrainians in Eastern Czechoslovakia had been granted self-government. It was hinted this was done to please the Soviet Government.

"The future of European peace and European policies hinges upon a satisfactory solution of the Sudeten question," the newspaper National-Zeitung of Essen said. "Let us hope the solution is a pacific one.

"This problem does not merely involve German-Czechoslovak relations, but is a matter of interest to all European capitals. In this affair the Reich counts on Italy's support.

"The scope of the Rome-Berlin Axis does not merely involve friendship between Berlin and Rome but also the solution of problems which have to be settled with courage. The necessity for the Sudetes to regain their right to live is one of these problems."

COUPLE HONORED AT JANETVILLE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, October 21. — On Wednesday evening a presentation was held in the Foresters' Hall in honor of Mr. Orloe Wright of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wright of Janetville, and his bride, the former Miss Mary Raymer of Markham. A short program was enjoyed during the first part of the evening, for which Rev. W. H. V. Walker was the genial chairman. An orchestra selection by Messrs. Omer and Bryce Capstick, Harold Bradburn, and John McNeil was followed by a vocal solo by little Miss Verna Mae Allison, accompanied by Miss Verna Wright. Rev. M. A. Bury, B.A., pastor of the United Church, was heard in a short address, and Herman Wilson nd Percy Hamilton then favored with a violin and banjo number.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright were then requested to come to the platform, where they were given seats of honor while Roy Marshall read an address and Miss Bessie Howe and Leonard McNeil made the presentation of a well-filled purse and a lovely floor lamp.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wright made suitable reply, and all sang "For they are jolly good fellows."

A delicious lunch was served and a social hour spent over the teacups, during which time a generous treat of candy was enjoyed. The latter part of the evening was spent in dancing, music being provided by Percy Hamilton's Orchestra.

Those from a distance included Mr. and Mrs. Milton Wright, Miss Helen Potton, Messrs. Mansell Wright and Harry Latham, all of Bethany, and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wright and family of Burketon. The best wishes of the entire community go with Mr. and Mrs. Wright to their new home in Toronto, where the groom has for some time been successfully established in business.

C. H. McGreer, a nephew, told of the request made by Jardine before he died yesterday, and quoted him as saying:

"I've been on them so long I figure I couldn't climb the golden stairs without them."

Jury Claims Horseman Murdered

Thought to have been killed when a horse in a stable stall lashed out at him with its hoofs, Percy Link (ABOVE), Toronto riding instructor, is said to have been slain in a verdict returned by a Collingwood, Ont., coroner's jury. Link was found dying in a Wasaga Beach riding school stable with the stable door locked, it was reported. A fracture of the skull was similar in shape to a revolver handle, and wounds on the man's arm might have been caused by a pitchfork, according to Dr. Frankish, provincial medico-legal expert who examined the body after it had been exhumed at the request of provincial police. Township Constable John Barker (inset), told the jury of taking Link home because he had been drinking, and that he "was in an ugly mood."

beneath the elms. "I wish you could persuade Esther to go to church again, and take more of an interest in . . . your sort of thing. It might be a great comfort to her. . . . I'm far from happy about her, you know."

The rector nodded sympathetically.

"A dreadful catastrophe. . . . But you must give her time, my dear fellow."

"I wonder if that is it. . . . I thought at first time was on our side. But now I'm not so sure. She seems to be losing ground—not physically, but mentally, spiritually, if you like. . . . A sort of dead despair. . . . I seem to have lost hold of her; sometimes she frightens me."

"I'm very sorry to hear that."

The rector took Tim's arm.

"Would you like me to speak to her?"

"I'd be glad if you would. . . . It would have to be done delicately . . . but, of course, you understand that. . . . If you could make religion mean something to her again, get her to help with church work, work her really hard, so far as she's physically capable. . . . It might be her salvation."

"I'll do what I can, Kennedy. I'm very glad you've spoken to me. A word to the wise. . . ."

They had reached the sight screen, and now came to a standstill by it.

"Yes!" exclaimed the rector, "I knew it! Worse than I thought, he's picking up from point. He corrects it on the down stroke, you may argue. Quite true, but see what happens if one comes off the pitch with a little extra pace."

He made an illustrative waggling motion with his arms.

"He's not there, my dear fellow, he's not there. . . ."

458 CARS OF FOOD ALREADY BEEN SENT TO SASKATCHEWAN

REGINA, Oct. 21.—Four hundred and fifty freight cars filled with goods on one track would make a train almost three miles long. Fill these cars with garden produce or, in other words, food. Then realize it is all a free gift.

That is the extent of the generosity of Canadians to the drought victims of Saskatchewan.

In a small office in Regina 450 carloads of food have been handled between Aug. 1 and Oct. 15. During all the previous years only 262 carloads were dealt with. The office is that of the Saskatchewan Voluntary Relief Board, and wages are paid to two out of the three board's staff. The other acts voluntarily.

Free Railway Transport.

Railways transport this food from point of origin to final destination free. In all, there is a feeling that has not been experienced since the Great War.

Ontario has sent 131 carloads, British Columbia 87, Manitoba 170, Quebec and Alberta 22 each. Manitoba's generosity is outstanding. Last year the Province itself suffered drought, but this year, with a better crop, it did not hesitate to help.

Dr. J. W. Hedley, Chairman of the Board, is a retired teacher working without pay. He is a farmer's son and his family is still occupying the farm originally settled in 1819 in Middlesex County north of London, Ont. His wife is from the same district.

In Dr. Hedley's office are his secretary and assistant and a recently appointed Government official whose job it is to co-ordinate Government relief services and those of the Voluntary Board. On one wall of Dr. Hedley's office is a large map of Saskatchewan with a great number of pins, marking practically every town, village and hamlet in the south part of the Province.

Over Wide Area.

"These," he says, "represent carloads that have been distributed in this Province. There is hardly a spot that does not contain a pin. There are varied colors for the different Provinces, and one can see from their distribution they have been spread over as wide an area as possible. Think of the good-will that has been raised by these donations. Imagine people in Ontario who perhaps have never seen the West and maybe never will collecting their surplus produce and shipping it more than a thousand miles. They have shown their friendliness toward Saskatchewan people and in turn there is a gratefulness from all Saskatchewan.

"The contribution in freight rates alone is a fairly large sum of money. If these cars were paid for at usual transportation rates it would be impossible for us even to consider receiving them. As it is, any carload of donated goods, no matter where it is, is put by the railways wherever we say at absolutely no cost from its point of origin to final destination. Such action, coupled with that of the donors, will do more to cement the people of Canada than anything I know of."

Committees Responsible.

Dr. Hedley operates under the guiding hand of an advisory committee which includes ministers, social workers, business men and others. This committee in Regina is headed by T. H. Moffatt, C.A., Vice-Chairman, who has been on the job five years. On the final distribution end there are local committees at each point, consisting of leading citizens in each community. A carload is delivered in their name and it is their responsibility to see that it is given to those needing food most.

There have been remarkably few complaints, Dr. Hedley said, "I find," he added, "that if I leave matters to the parties involved they usually reach a better solution than any I could suggest. They know their community and are in a better position to deal with any situation that might arise."

Where possible, Saskatchewan people are helping themselves, and it is a pleasing note in the whole of the relief problem to be able to state that Saskatchewan, hard pressed as its people are to make ends meet, has given three cars of produce.

"A fine spirit by a fine people," Dr. Hedley said, "and that goes for every one in Canada who has contributed of produce, time or labor."

All Toronto Milkmen Threaten Strike

Toronto, Oct. 21 (CP)

GENERAL strike of milk drivers in Toronto will be staged unless Canada Dairies Limited or the Ontario Labor department moves to settle a strike underway at the company plant for the last four weeks.

A union meeting was held last night when a vote approved a strike if reconciliation steps were not forthcoming. John Kellythrone, union organizer, said a general strike would affect 1,200 members of the union, employed by 60 dairies.

The union organizer said the meeting last night voted 100 per cent for the strike and also voted $4,000 to be used as strike pay. He declared since the Canada Dairies strike was called four weeks ago the strikers have received $22 each every week.

PERMANENT 'HEAD' NEW BEER GLASS

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (CP). — It's here—a potential boon to beer imbibers, bartenders and breweries, but not to barflies—a new kind of glass that gives beer a permanent "head."

S. Peter Barracca, Professor of Chemistry at St. John's University, Brooklyn, perfected the glass. He said tests indicated the new glass would eliminate the plaintive plea heard so often over the bar: "Bartender, put a head on this."

Too, he said it would eliminate that habit of even the best of lager, of going flat soon after being poured. The new glass keeps the beverage effervescing gently, thus making it form its own head that lasts indefinitely.

Professor Barracca's process consists of sand-blasting, in any desired design, a certain portion of the bottom of the glass so that bubbles in the liquid do not escape all at once as they do in ordinary containers. In the new glass the bubbles rise gradually as they come into contact with the roughened portion.

THIRD MURDER CHARGE IS LAID IN LONDON CASE

Mrs. Robertson Named; Doctor Is Committed

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 22.—(CP).—Dr. Charles Aylmer Cline, Sr., was committed for trial on a charge of murder by Magistrate Donald Menzies to-day. The 70 year old doctor is charged in connection with the death of Mary Wilkinson, 37 year old London school teacher.

Her body was found in the Thames river early in September.

Third charge of murder in the case was laid to-day before preliminary hearing of Dr. Cline was resumed. Mrs. Emily Robertson, whose husband, Lauchlin, is also charged with murder, and who was previously held as a material witness against Dr. Cline, was charged with the capital offence.

The Crown alleges Miss Wilkinson was chloroformed to death after an illegal operation and her body thrown in the Thames river. Medical evidence at to-day's hearing was that no water was in her lungs and death apparently was not caused by drowning.

Prof. Joslyn Rogers, provincial analyst, said he found chloroform in Miss Wilkinson's lungs.

Dr. W. L. Robinson, University of Toronto Professor of Pathology, also examined organs of the dead woman. He believed she had been pregnant six to eight weeks. The septic condition he found had existed for some 48 hours, he believed.

When the murder charge was read against her Mrs. Robertson collapsed. She was remanded until Oct. 26.

Analyst Testifies.

Prof. Rogers said he had examined five organs including the brain, liver and lungs in the body of Miss Wilkinson.

Asked if he found any traces of chloroform by Crown Attorney Norman Newton, he replied in the affirmative.

Charles Bell, defence counsel, took up the cross examination. He asked Prof. Rogers if he examined the organs for the sole purpose of detecting chloroform. Witness replied he also sought other minerals.

He was unable to say what quantity of chloroform was present in the organs.

Provincial Constable Ben Milligan described the finding of Miss Wilkinson's body.

Asked by Mr. Bell if he had told Mrs. Lauchlin J. Robertson that she would be charged with murder, Constable Milligan said he told the woman that "very likely" a charge of that nature would be preferred against her.

At that time Mrs. Robertson was held in jail as a material witness. Her husband faces a murder charge in connection with the case.

Vining Campbell, a relative of Miss Wilkinson, gave identification evidence.

Mr. Bell questioned Dr. A. P. Routledge, Middlesex chief coroner, as to how many autopsies were performed before the organs were delivered to Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico legal expert at Toronto for examination.

The doctor said the organs were removed at the first autopsy, which was performed by Dr. Percy C. Banghart.

Dr. Banghart, in reply to a question by the Crown Attorney, said he formed an opinion death was not due to drowning.

Surprises House By Announcing British Navy Has Evacuated 30,000 Refugees From Gijon

LONDON, Oct. 22—(CP)—Great Britain today was embarked on a search, in the words of Prime Minister Chamberlain, for "practical means for restoring peace in the world."

The Prime Minister denounced talk of economic sanctions against Japan, and commended Italy for her move to withdraw volunteers from Spain, as he defended Great Britain's foreign policy last night in the House of Commons.

The Prime Minister said he accepted Italy's declarations she has no intention of retaining possession of any of Spain's territory after the civil war ends. He said that when troubles arising out of the civil war finally are ended, a real attempt can be made to remove deeper and more serious causes of European unrest and anxiety.

Concluding a bitter eight-hour debate on the opening day of Parliament's reassembly, in which Labor accused the government of encouraging the Chinese-Japanese conflict by failure to stand by the League of Nations, the Prime Minister declared: Pending rejuvenation of the League we have got to find practical means for restoring peace in the world."

Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor opposition, attacked the government which he accused of "leading this country to the brink of another war."

Let Down the Bars!

On the one hand Mr. Attlee called for letting down the barriers to government Spain so that it could procure arms and munitions for its warfare with the insurgents; on the other he declared in favor of economic sanctions against Japan.

He believed Japan had embarked upon her "Chinese adventure" only because of the attitude of "this government and other governments in always letting the aggressor get away with it."

Mr. Chamberlain, referring to the forthcoming conference at Brussels of signatories to the nine-power treaty, asserted:

"I suggest it is a mistake going to the conference talking about economic sanctions, economic pressure and force. We will be there to make peace and the first thing we have to do is to see what concerted effort can be brought to bear in order to bring about a peaceful solution of that problem."

Must Be Sure of Ground.

Saying he understood Mr. Attlee to suggest an economic and financial boycott of Japan, the Prime Minister said:

"You must bear in mind that if you are going to do that there may be some counter-action by Japan and ....you must be assured beforehand of sufficient force to enable you to overwhelm the counter-action."

The Prime Minister said he had assurances from Italy that the end of the Spanish Civil War would not

ABERHART FINDS NO SIGN OF GRAFT IN ROAD BUILDING

EDMONTON, Oct. 22.—(CP). — Premier Aberhart to-day issued the report of Mr. Justice H. W. Lunney on his investigation into construction, reconstruction and maintenance of sections of two highways in Alberta.

In brief, the report declared:

1. There was no sign of graft or wrongful payment of money or wrongful acceptance of money on the part of anyone.

2. There was negligence, carelessness and unnecessary expense in the road building system.

3. High costs were "to a very considerable extent due to the direct action of the minister," Hon. W. A. Fallow, Public Works Minister.

Mr. Justice Lunney was appointed to conduct the inquiry after complaints were made by J. J. Bowlen, Liberal House leader in the Alberta Legislature, alleging excessive costs on sections of the Edmonton-Wetaskiwin and Edmonton-Jasper highways.

The report showed 37.06 miles of the Edmonton-Jasper highway cost $249,993.44 and 25.36 miles of the Edmonton-Wetaskiwin highway cost $254,026.95 or a total for the two highways of $494,020.39.

His Lordship referred to the change of policy from awarding contracts by tender for specified sections to that of using day labor and renting road building equipment while the government did not own equipment.

"Last time I was home," he told the court, "I had a little argument with my mother and she struck me with a wet dish cloth. Then she screamed and my four brothers came upstairs and my mother held me while they beat me in the face."

Home life being intolerable, Walker said, he decided to make his own home. So he married a girl near Grimsby where he got employment.

Walker said there is a job waiting for him in Washington, D.C., when he obtains a United States immigration visa for his wife. She is 17.

The shortage of men in the territorial army, Mr. Hore-Belisha indicated, was 7,000 less on October 1 than it was on the same date last year.

Find Two Brothers Dead In Blazing House

Police Believe They Quarreled And One Shot Other Then Suicided

DUBUC, Sask., Oct. 22.—(CP).—Bodies of the Goodlaw brothers, George, 48, and Sidley, 45, were found yesterday in a blazing farm house near this town 100 miles east of Regina. Both had bullet wounds in the head and police said they suspected murder and suicide.

Neighbors were attracted by smoke from the house and found the body of Sidney with a .22 calibre rifle between his knees. Flames breaking through the roof of the small house were extinguished with water from the well and George's body was located.

Police said they were informed the two brothers had not been on good terms. George owned the farm and had been barbering in Brandon, Man., for eight or nine years until he returned recently to the farm where he lived in a granary. Sidney had been operating the farm on a lease arrangement.

Sidney appeared battered about the face and his right collarbone was broken.

Police believed the brothers quarrelled and that one shot the other, fired the house and then committed suicide. An autopsy has been ordered.

20 Pilots Train For Mail Run

OTTAWA, Oct. 22—(CP). — Twenty pilots are being put through an intensive course of training at Winnipeg in preparation for launching the Trans-Canada Air Lines regular service by mid-summer, 1938, Transport Minister Howe said today.

It was possible, he said, some mail might be carried this Fall between Winnipeg and Lethbridge, but passenger flights would not start until early spring. The proposal was to open up short sections of the route at first, but Mr. Howe was satisfied regular passenger and mail schedules would be in effect between Montreal and Vancouver by July 1 next, barring unforeseen obstacles.

Hooking Pheasants Draws Frowns

Fort Credit, Oct. 22.

THE practice of hanging small fish hooks baited with raisins and wet grain on wire fences to trap pheasants received strong condemnation from Bert Oakes, Toronto Township game warden, today. Many residents have indignantly reported the discovery of this type of trap upon the boundary wires of wooded sections near the Credit River in recent weeks. Pheasant, attracted by the lure, become impaled on the barbed points of the hooks and sometimes hang for hours before dying.

CAR RUNS AMOK A. E. SILVERWOOD DAIRY HEAD HURT

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP.), —Albert E. Silverwood, well-known Toronto dairyman, and Fred McLaren of Hamilton, are in hospital here suffering fractured skulls and severe lacerations as the result of a motor accident on the new Middle Road yesterday. Both men were unconscious during the night, and their condition was still serious early today.

The accident occurred when an automobile driven by Silverwood got out of control and plunged across the Middle Road boulevard into the path of oncoming traffic.

Silverwood's machine struck a car driven by Arthur Jones who with McLaren was driving eastward. Silverwood was travelling west.

The impact threw both machines to the south side of the road. Jones' car was demolished and the driver injured. Silverwood was alone in his machine, while McLaren was Jones' only passenger.

Provincial Traffic Officer L. O. Rawlins said Everhardt was holding up "half a mile of traffic."

BAPTIST ATTACK ON 'WICKED NORTH' STARTS SOMETHING

TIMMINS, Ont., Oct. 22 (C.P.). — Rev. Dr. J. R. Fraser of South Porcupine United Church to-day said he would bring before the Porcupine Ministerial Association regular meeting on Monday statements in the Home Mission Board report to the Ontario-Quebec Union of Regular Baptist Churches.

The report, presented yesterday to the Baptist Convention in Toronto, said "sin truly abounds beyond anything imaginable in Northern Ontario." During presentation of the report Rev. H. C. Slade of Timmins described Kirkland Lake as a "modern Sodom and Gomorrah."

Members of the Porcupine Ministerial Association agreed with Dr. Fraser, acting president, that the statements should be discussed at the meeting on Monday.

When informed of Dr. Slade's remarks, Dr. Fraser said, "These things are not true." He added he felt "that the best way to deal with the statements is by a discussion at the ministerial meeting next Monday."

"Unfair to Canada."

"I will certainly bring the subject before the ministers and I believe a statement from the association and signed by all of the members would be the best way to settle the matter," he said. "It is unfair to Canada."

Rev. Murroy C. Tait, pastor of Trinity United Church, Schumacher, said Mr. Slade "evidently has a wrong conception of the North Country and has not entered into

Thought His Victims Had Killed Wife Were Chasing Son

Tells Expert The Lord Delivered "These 3 Men" Into His Hands to Be Slain—His Duty to Act

HAMILTON, Oct. 22.—(CP)—"Mr. Lee is definitely insane," Dr. R. T. Finlayson, psychiatrist, said today in reply to question put to him by Joseph Sweet, assistant defence counsel in the murder trial of Joseph C. Lee. This statement brought from C. L. Snyder, crown prosecutor, the suggestion that the jury would have to be resworn to determine if the prisoner was fit to stand trial.

Lee is on trial for the fatal shooting of George Jackson last June 4. The 58-year-old Hamilton businessman is also accused of the slaying of John Anderson and the wounding of Anthony Anderson, his former business partners.

Defence contends Lee is not fit to stand trial. Dr. Finlayson's testimony was interrupted for some moments before Mr. Justice Kingstone ordered him to proceed.

"Lee is always talking to these three men," said Dr. Finlayson. "He said to me that the Lord had delivered these three men into his hands and had protected him and seen that the deed was accomplished.

"I remarked to Lee that the Lord did not deliver people into the hands of others to kill. He said: 'Oh yes He does, he delivered them into my hands.'

Claimed There Is No Law

'On another occasion he used the expression: 'The Lord sent me down there to kill those three men.' I could not reason with him. He simply said there was no law. There was no condemnation."

Dr. Finlayson quoted Lee as saying that these three men had killed his wife. Dr. Finlayson asked him if Mrs. Lee had not died of pneumonia, and Lee replied that the doctors called it pneumonia, but "these three men killed her." Lee had said this on a number of occasions.

Lee was afraid for his son, Dr. Finlayson said. Lee told him that the three men had killed his wife and were pursuing his son. When Dr. Finlayson tried to reason with him, he would break off into irrelevant passages of Scripture.

Asked by Mr. Sweet for a final statement of his opinion of Lee's mental condition, Dr. Finlayson said:

'I believe that he was insane. That he knew the nature and quality of

KING COMMENDS STRENGTHENING OF EMPIRE DEFENCE

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(CP Cable.) —Parliament was prorogued to-day. Only a few members sparsely scattered over the green benches were present in the House of Commons when the black rod appeared from the House of Lords with the summons to the House of Peers. Smiles ran round the house.

The speaker, Captain E. A. Fitzroy, rose, followed by the members, and proceeded to the Lords. There the Lord Chancellor, Viscount Hailsham, read the speech of King George VI, bringing to a close the session opened last November by King Edward VIII.

The speaker returned to the Commons. But he no longer occupied the Speaker's Throne. He took a seat at the head of the clerk's table and read the King's speech and Royal Commission proroguing Parliament. Then, headed by Prime Minister Chamberlain, the members filed past, each shaking hands with Mr. Speaker.

New Session Tuesday.

Their respite will be short. On Tuesday King George, accompanied by the Queen, will proceed to the House of Lords to open the new session in State.

The King's prorogation speech detailed the government's "persistence" in its efforts to isolate the Spanish civil war and noted "with satisfaction the strengthening of all three of my defence forces."

After referring to the Coronation, the speech said: "The Imperial Conference, which followed immediately after the Coronation, afforded ample evidence of the value of such meetings for discussion of matters of common concern. I earnestly trust their result may be to enhance the security as well as the prosperity and happiness of my peoples in all parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Dealing with the Far East, the speech said: "I have seen with the greatest concern the development of hostilities between Japan and China. The sufferings which have been inflicted upon innocent non-combatants by attacks from the air and sea cause me particular distress."

Text of Royal Address.

The text of the King's Speech from the Throne on the prorogation of Parliament, read in the House of Lords to-day by the Lord Chancellor, follows:

My Lords and members of the House of Commons:

It was with deep satisfaction that the Queen and I on the solemn

ALL-AUSTRALIAN VOTE SATURDAY.

SYDNEY, Oct. 22 (C.P.-Reuters), —Australia's major political parties wound up their campaigns to-night and to-morrow more than 3,000,000 voters will go to the polls to return Prime Minister Joseph Lyons' Government to office or elect the Labor Party headed by John Curtin.

Compulsory voting prevails in Australia and shirkers will face penalties. Vital problems of defence and foreign policy have bulked large in the speeches of Mr. Lyons, who campaigned in widely-separated parts of the Commonwealth, travelling by air from Tasmania to Queensland. Mr. Curtin travelled by boat, train and car.

The campaign ended with Labor insisting the Government was committed to Conscription and with the Government attacking Labor's isolation policies. The Prime Minister replied to the Labor charges by declaring there would be no Conscription while he headed the Government.

Escape From Dread Deformity Assured Paralysis Victims

Head Of Sick Children's Hospital Asks Only That Parents Follow Treatment Rules

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (CP)—Freedom from deformity that the general public have associated with infantile paralysis victims will be the result if parents follow the directions given them for the treatment of their paralyzed children, Dr. D. E. Robertson, chief surgeon of the Hospital for Sick Children, told the Ontario Hospital Association last night.

Survivors of the recent epidemic, which started in Ontario last June and took 83 lives before its Dominion-wide ravages abated, would either regain use of their limbs or receive such treatment that they would at least be able to walk again.

Dr. Robertson praised the new splintering treatment, which he described as "a very great orthopedic advance" and spoke of the co-operation of the provincial department of health in the manufacture of splints and frames and providing other help.

If after a reasonable time the affected limbs show no returning power of movement, a brace of joint operation is necessary, Dr. Robertson said.

Cigarette Sales Jump 11-Fold

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—(CP).— Consumption of cigarettes in Canada for September totalled 627,062,494, and excise duties collected therefrom amounted to $2,506,986, according to figures released by National Revenue Minister J. L. Ilsley here to-day. This compared with a consumption of 51,171,573 cigarettes in the same month last year, yielding a revenue of $26,164,944.

Reduction of the excise duty from $6 a thousand to $4 a thousand in Oct., 1932, has resulted in a steady increase of cigarette consumption, and, despite the lowered duty, an increase in the revenue derived therefrom.

4 Tame Geese Cost Hunter Usual Price Plus $20 Fine For One Shot

Guelph, Oct. 22 (CP)

TWO Waterloo men admitted in police court today they were members of a party which shot four geese on the farm of Kenneth Dowling, Kenilworth. Albert Scholl, Waterloo, pleaded guilty to damaging property and discharging a shotgun from a car, and was fined $10 and costs on each charge and ordered to pay for the birds. Eugene Overholtzer, also of Waterloo, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and was given suspended sentence on payment of costs.

A. W. Boos, defence counsel, told the court the men were returning from a trip north of Guelph and for some reason hard to explain they discharged a shotgun at a flock of tame geese.

LAST OF GIJON TROOPS CAUGHT IN REBEL TRAP

Over 60,000 Asturians Surrender With Arms

RENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 22 (AP).—Two insurgent forces, seeking to wipe out the last government resistance in Spain's northwest, marched today in a vise-like movement against Asturian troops caught in a "pocket" west of fallen Gijon.

Insurgent headquarters said one force was driving west from Gijon and another northeast from Pravia against the disordered Asturians near Aviles. Aviles lies about 12 miles west of Gijon and Pravia 19 miles southwest of Aviles.

Communications were established between insurgent bases at Pravia and Gijon, and the long beleaguered insurgent garrison at Oviedo, about 24 miles southwest of Gijon. The Asturian siege of Oviedo was reported broken.

Insurgents maintained control of the Biscayan seaport, Gijon, which capitulated yesterday. General Franco's aides estimated more than 60,000 Asturian soldiers had surrendered with their arms.

General Rejoicing.

The Salamanca government ordered a general celebration throughout insurgent Spain for what was termed "disappearance of the northern front."

(At Madrid the celebration took the form of a severe bombardment of the insurgent-besieged former capital of the republican government. More than 2,500 shells from the batteries only three miles away rained into the city in a little more than an hour last night.

(About 800 of the projectiles scored direct hits in the centre of Madrid, but loss of life was believed small).

Insurgent sources said the Asturian mop-up campaign would be completed in a few days, releasing about 75,000 insurgent troops for an offensive elsewhere—possibly in Eastern Spain, against either Barcelona or Valencia.

POWELL, UNWIN ARE COMMITTED

EDMONTON, Oct. 22 (C.P.). — Committed and released on bail of $20,000 on four charges each, George F. Powell, British Social Credit expert, and Joseph H. Unwin, member of the Alberta Legislature for Edson, may face trial early in November as result of distribution of pamphlets alleged to contain libel.

Mr. Powell and Mr. Unwin were committed for trial at conclusion of a preliminary hearing before Magistrate A. H. Gibson in City Police Court yesterday on charges of counselling to murder, seditious libel, and two charges of defamatory libel.

Thirteen witnesses were heard by Magistrate Gibson on one charge against Mr. Powell of publishing defamatory libel knowing it to be false. The same evidence was accepted in the three other charges against Mr. Powell and on the four charges against Mr. Unwin, except his own evidence, and commitment was made on all charges.

Mr. Powell and Mr. Unwin have the option of electing a speedy trial before a district court judge without a jury or going before a jury during the Assizes opening on November 8. Charged separately, the men will be tried separately.

The charges were based on distribution of a pamphlet entitled "Bankers' Toadies." The pamphlets were printed late in September. Police seized about 15,000 copies on October 2 at the Social Credit League offices. and Mr. Powell and Mr. Unwin were charged on October 5 and released on bail.

JAILED RELIEFERS TO MAKE ROADS

VANCOUVER, Oct. 22.—(CP).—British Columbia police officials prepared to-day to re-open Federal Government relief camps as prison camps to two Fraser Valley centres as 29 more unemployed men went to jail for obstructing police.

Sentences yesterday, 28 for one month and one for two months, lifted the total for this week to 125. The charges were laid after the jobless men refused to obey police orders that they stop soliciting funds on downtown streets.

Overcrowding of the provincial prison in Burnaby municipality which adjoins Vancouver on the east, and in the city jail was responsible for announcements by Victoria authorities the camps at Deroche and Harrison Mills would be converted into temporary prison camps.

BYRNES REFUSES ANSWER QUERIES AT INCOME PROBE

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP)—The Ontario government's succession duty probe of the estate of the late P. V. Byrnes, Hamilton utilities magnate, entered a new stage today with Gordon L. Fraser, treasury department counsel, suggesting John T. Byrnes was "in contempt of this commission" for not answering questions properly.

"Do you deny that he removed securities aggregating over $1,000,000 to the United States of America?" Fraser asked yesterday.

After several similar questions, the counsel declared to Judge D. C. Ross, investigating commissioner: "I suggest that this witness is in contempt of this commission in refusing to answer my questions."

"Let us not strike any snags now," Judge Ross replied to the statement referring to Byrnes' son. "If I feel that the witness is in contempt I may take action."

"Did you go across with auto, chauffeur and revolver?" Fraser asked Byrnes. "Will you tell me whether on May 18 last you took securities from the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Royal Trust Company and the National Trust Company and went across the border at Fort Erie with them?"

"I say what I did with securities at any time is no concern of this hearing," Byrnes replied.

Later, Byrnes protested against examination by Fraser who asked if Byrnes told his counsel tying up his act, but did not know that it was wrong."

Not a Sane Act.

A sane person would not have shot people in broad daylight with no chance of escaping detection and then have given himself up to police, said Dr. Finlayson. He would have either tried to escape or committed suicide. But an insane man would think he had done no wrong. Lee thought that the Lord had told him to do the act and that when he had done it, he had done his duty.

"Mr. Lee is definitely insane," Dr. Finlayson answered to Mr. Sweet.

At this point Mr. Snyder rose from his seat at the counsel table. "Is or was?" he asked.

"Is," replied the witness. Mr. Snyder then observed to His Lordship that "this was just what happened in the Vermilyea case." A witness there, he said, testified that the accused was insane at the time of the trial.

"It occurs to me," he submitted, "that the jury will have to be re-sworn and determine if Lee is fit to stand trial."

Orville Walsh, K.C., defence counsel, then said: "We all know that insanity has different phases. A man may be rational one day, and irrational the next. In my opinion, Mr. Lee is fit to stand trial."

Dr. Finlayson said he could not say anything as to the sanity or insanity of the accused after October 8, for it was on that date that he made the last of his four examinations.

Ready for Evidence.

"I'll hear the evidence," His Lordship ruled.

When he was called to the stand, Dr. Finlayson told of his qualifications. He is in charge of the Psychiatric Department at the General Hospital, psychiatrist of the Department of Health, and prisoners are referred to him by Magistrate H. A. Burbidge so that he may determine the mental condition of persons charged.

"I was instructed by the defence to examine Mr. Lee, and asked to give an opinion on his mental condition, and to determine whether he was sane or insane. I examined him on July 28, 1937, August 4, September 15, and October 8.

After the interruption brought about by Dr. Finlayson's answer, Mr. Sweet continued questioning.

"How long back from October 8 would you say the insanity had been in an acute stage?"

"I do believe that since April 2, 1937, there has been evidence of it being acute. There is some evidence of it prior to that date. It is difficult to say definitely.

"Evidence on June 4, 1937?"

"Yes."

"Can you explain the general factors that led you to reach that conclusion?" asked Mr. Sweet.

"His family history, his personal history — life, aims, his successes and reverses. I have also examined him on four occasions. I have observed his demeanor here. I have listened to the evidence," he replied.

"In his family history, what is worthy of note from a psychiatrist's point of view?"

"His grandfather being a heavy drinker, his father being an opposite type of person. It shows an unbalanced—well, one being an extremist in one way, the other being an extremist in another way."

Said Father Out of Mind

"You have heard Miss Rose Lee (blind sister of the accused man) give evidence here. Would you care to comment on what she said?" ask Mr. Sweet.

"I recall she said her father was out of his mind for the last four months of his illness; that those he liked he turned upon, and those he didn't like he asked for," Dr. Finlayson answered.

"Would you comment on that?"

"I suggest he was out of his mind," answered the psychiatrist.

Dr. Finlayson recalled also evidence that "Lee's Aunt Jane was hysterical and his uncle John was a very hard man to get along with. He was very disagreeable, and for the last six or seven years had been separated from his wife, that he was out of his mind. It was a peculiar thing that he wanted to be by himself."

DEFENCE FOR LEE PLEADS INSANITY TRIPLE SHOOTING

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 22—(CP)—Joseph C. Lee is "abnormal mentally," in the opinion of Dr. T. C. Gibson, defence witness in the trial of the 58-year-old business man on a charge of murder. The defence seeks to show Lee was insane when he shot and fatally wounded George H. Jackson last June 4.

The Hamilton physician testified before Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone and an assize court jury yesterday that in six visits he had made to Hamilton jail, Lee appeared to him to be in a "confused state of mind" and was "mentally ill." He had "flights of imagination and was abnormally emotional."

Dr. Gibson said, however, he did not feel qualified to express an opinion as to whether Lee knew his alleged act was right or wrong when he allegedly shot Jackson and John and Anthony Anderson during an altercation before a Hamilton plant the four men once operated. He said he was not a specialist in mental cases.

Will Press Other Charges

Lee is charged with the murders of Jackson and John Anderson and with the attempted murder of Anthony, brother of John. Anthony Anderson is in hospital, paralysed with a bullet in the spine. The charge of murdering Jackson now is being proceeded with. The Crown has announced Lee's trial on the other charges also will be pressed.

Since Monday, when Lee was arraigned, five psychiatrists brought from various parts of Ontario have been in attendance at the trial. The demeanor and behavior of the accused is being noted preparatory to expert testimony as to his sanity. This evidence is expected to be the last to be placed before the court.

Defence Counsel Orville Walsh, K.C., yesterday told the jury Lee was distraught at the death of his

RUBBER WORKERS PLAN BOYCOTT

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP)—Employees from four Kitchener rubber-manufacturing firms decided at a meeting early today to organize a "country-wide boycott" against the products of the Kaufman Rubber Company, where a month-old strike has held up production.

Representatives of the Kaufman strikers, who seek union recognition and wage increases, and employees of the Dominion Tire Company, the B.F. Goodrich Company of Canada and the merchants Rubber Company attended the meeting. It also was decided to form a joint strike committee comprising representatives of the four firms.

After the meeting, which opened last night and continued until early this morning, Lloyd Brown, organizer for the United Rubber Workers of America, an affiliate of the Committee of Industrial Organization, said in a statement it was decided to institute "during the period of the strike a country-wide boycott of all Kaufman products."

B. F. Kaufman, president of the company, is scheduled to meet Hon. M. M. MacBride, Ontario Minister of Labor, in Toronto today to discuss the strike situation.

GEORGE VI. CLOSES PARLIAMENT

occasion of our Coronation received proofs of the loyalty and affections of my peoples and their devotion to the Crown. The significance of this ceremony was emphasized by the presence of the Prime Ministers of my Dominions and representatives of my Empire in India and every part of my Empire overseas.

The deliberations of the Imperial Conference which followed immediately after the Coronation afforded ample evidence of the value of such meetings for discussion of matters of common concern. I earnestly trust their result may be to enhance the security as well as the prosperity and happiness of my people in all parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

My relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly. The treaty of alliance with Egypt has been duly ratified by myself and the King of Egypt. In the spring of the year an International conference was held at Montreaux for the abolition of the capitulations in Egypt. Thanks to the practical, conciliatory spirit in which the complex issues involved were faced by the delegations of the participating governments, the conference was brought to a successful issue.

Concerned Over Spain.

Throughout the course of the past year my Ministers have followed with concern and anxiety the tragic events in Spain and have persisted in their endeavors to prevent the spread of the conflict beyond that country's borders. I am happy to note the successful outcome of the conference at Nyon.

I have seen with the greatest concern the development of hostilities between Japan and China. The sufferings which have been inflicted upon innocent non-combatants by attacks from the air and sea cause me particular distress. I trust the conference of powers which is shortly to be called together may contribute to bringing this deplorable conflict to an end.

In the field of naval limitation I am happy to state that the London naval treaty signed in London on March 25, 1936, has now been ratified by all the signatories. Further, with a view to extending the scope of that treaty, bilateral naval agreements have recently been concluded between my government and the governments of Germany and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Federation of India.

The provisions of the Government of India Act giving responsible government to the provinces of India and of the Government of Burma Act have come into operation during the year. I am watching with deep interest the developments in the two countries. I hope that in no distant time there may be realized the full project of the Federation of India.

Members of the House of Commons:

I thank you for the provision you have made for public service. I thank you for the provision you have made for the honor and dignity of the Crown.

My Lords and Members of the House of Commons:

I note with much satisfaction the continued strengthening and improvement of all three of my defence forces as a result of the measures laid before you last year.

We have the burden of this necessary rearmament. It has to some extent been lightened by continued growth of trade, employment, savings and purchasing power among my people.

Provision of facilities for recreation and, healthy outdoor activity, more especially for the younger members of the community, has always been a matter of special interest to me. It was therefore with particular pleasure that I gave my assent last summer to the physical Training and Recreation Act. It is my hope that the fullest use will be made of this contribution to the physical well-being, and through it, to the happines of the nation.

Better Health Services

National health services have been further developed and improved. The rate of progress in the clearance and replacement of slums has been satisfactorily maintained. Abatement of overcrowding is proceeding. House building is continued at a high rate. The act relating to the special areas has been continued for a further period and additional powers have been conferred with the object of further promoting the establishment of new industrial undertakings in those areas and in other areas of heavy unemployment.

I have given my assent to a bill in which the law regulating conditions of work in factories has been codified and brought up to date and greatly improved. Provision has been made for securing the safety and health of factory workers. My assent has also been given to bills extending voluntary insurance for pensions to persons with limited incomes, making further provision for superannuation of local government officers and providing for distribution of exchequer grants with increased regard to the needs of local authorities.

Aid For Stock Men

Bills have been passed into law to assist the livestock industry and promote its efficiency, to increase the productivity of agriculture by measure to encourage the application of lime and basic slag to the soil, to promote land drainage, to provide further assurance for civilization of cereals and to combat animal diseases. Assistance to the milk industry has been continued for an additional period.

I have given my assent to a measure extending with certain amendments the operation of the empire settlement act of 1922 for a further period of 15 years.

Acts have been passed to authorize the raising of defence loans, to increase the amount which may be issued to the exchange equalization account, to continue the temporary subsidy granted to tramp shipping, and to consolidate and amend the law relating to export guarantees.

Bills relating to Scotland which have received my assent have included, in addition to bills dealing with exchequer grants to local authorities and superannuation of local government employees, measures for the development and improvement of maternity services, for the regulation of wages of agricultural workers, and for the better custody of public records. A number of other measures of public utility have been passed into law.

I pray that the blessing of almighty God may rest upon your labors.

the real spirit found among Northerners.

"I believe that the miners are the finest type of men to be found anywhere and I consider the statements to be a libel on the country and the miners," said Mr. Taft.

Archdeacon J. E. Woodall, of St. Paul's Anglican Church, South Porcupine, said: "The speaker has evidently exaggerated greatly."

J. P. Bartelman, Timmins Mayor, remarked that "We certainly aren't as bad as Toronto."

FIREMEN NEED $200 IN PENNIES

A generous response of Peterborough citizens to the Fire Department's Penny Day effort to be carried out on downtown streets on Saturday will enable firemen to equal or better last year's record of 2,000 toys for distribution at Christmas to the children of Peterborough's needy families. Firemen hope $200 will be netted.

Few contributions toward Christmas cheer of the needy mean more than a few coins placed on the sidewalk line which Boy Scouts will lay. A five-cent piece may easily represent the entire cost of repair to one toy to gladden the heart of a child who would otherwise miss a visit from Santa Claus. Two hundred dollars will mean that no child in the city will be without toys this Christmas.

Thirty Scouts will be assisted by uniformed firemen throughout the day.

EXTENDING PEACE HULL'S MAJOR AIM WRITER BELIEVES

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull's visit to Canada represents the type of thing close to his heart—the extension of the hand of friendship to other peoples.

It was only the other day that I had a long chat with the Secretary in his private office in Washington. We got on to his favorite topic of peace on earth and the application of the golden rule among nations.

As I listened, and watched the face, I couldn't help feeling some animation play across his mobile of the glow from his enthusiasm. I came away much less of a cynic about the world at large. That's the way this courtly Tennessee gentleman affects one.

Whether he likes the designation or not (anyway my guess is that he won't), it is fair to label him an evangelical prophet who is striving to reawaken western civilization and save it from the smash. And a pretty fair job he has been doing, too, according to returns.

A Visionary?

Some people, of course, say he is a visionary. Others assert he is a tariff crank and that all his activities in trying to get international trade barriers lowered are the outgrowth of this.

However that may be, Mr. Hull has made measurable progress in his peace campaign abroad. European statesmen, as in England and France, are beginning to think along his lines.

I first encountered Mr. Hull when he came over to London as chairman of the United States delegation to the world economic conference in 1933. He didn't look like much of a scrapper but on the contrary gave an impression of being a retiring sort of chap. We soon discovered the soft-spoken gentleman from Tennessee carried dueling pistols around with him, in a manner of speaking. That cropped out when Raymond Moley, brain-truster extraordinary, came over from Washington.

The two experts didn't see eye to eye, to put it mildly. In fact, sparks began to fly almost immediately, and it then appeared Mr. Hull wasn't at all bashful. When the blaze died down we newspapermen considered he wore the wreath of victory.

TO DIVORCE SWIMMER

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 22—(AP)—Art Jarrett, actor-husband of Eleanor Holm, 1936 Olympic swimmer, screen actress, said here to-day he was taking up legal residence in Texas to obtain a divorce.

Jarrett, appearing in a revue at the Pan-American Exposition Casino, has been here six months. The Texas law requires a minimum of a years legal residence before a divorce.

"Eleanor asked me four months ago for a divorce, but so far has done nothing about it," Jarrett stated. "I am seeking one on my own free will."

'Pick-A-Back' Ocean Plane Begins Test Flight

Photographed on the water at Rochester, Eng., at the start of the first test flight is the composite aircraft, composed of two aeroplanes, one, the Mercury (on top), a long-distance seaplane for ocean flight; the other, a much larger aeroplane with great lifting capacity. The large aeroplane is designed solely to help lift the smaller, heavily-loaded aeroplane into the air. It is the invention of Major R. H. Mayo, technical general manager of Britain's Imperial Airways.

WANT MARKETING IDEAS

OTTAWA, Oct. 22—(CP). — The Ontario Cheese Producers' Association decided at a meeting here yesterdy to bring Thomas Grieve, its representative in London, England, to Canada to discuss the question of marketing in the United Kingdom.

Grieve will arrive at an early date and meeting at which the question will be discussed will be held. Grieve has been in charge of the organization's London office since its establishment in 1936.

WILL BE ASSAILED

LONDON, Oct. 22—(CP Cable). — A storm of controversy was predicted last night for the newest work of Jacob Einstein, whose sculptures have been bitterly attacked for 20 years.

His latest work, — he calls it "Consummatum Est"—is his depiction of Christ in the tomb. It will be shown in public for the first time at the London Gallery on October 29.

Photographs reveal it is a massive, recumbent figure.

Among works by the New York-born artist that have been the centre of controversy were "Genesis," "Figure of Christ," the Hudson Memorial, and a group of statues removed from the front of Rhodesia House in the Strand.

SCREEN'S FREDDIE IS A BIG SHOT NOW

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22. (AP).—Freddie Bartholomew is a big shot now.

He asked for more money—a lot more—and sat down until he got it—$102,000 a year.

Thus he automatically rates the inner circle where sit such box office values as Temple, Raft, Flynn, Garbo, Dietrich, Ginger Rogers and a score of others.

Due to the way term contracts are written, starting with small salaries and advancing by modest steps, every player who becomes a sudden sensation finds himself in a position to demand more money or else.

A typical case is that of Errol Flynn, who was a star as soon as "Captain Blood" hit the screens. He was working for what movieland terms peanuts—$400 a week. He got a salary adjustment almost immediately, before he could tie up production by "sitting." He is in the $3,000 class now.

Few salary arguments get to court, as did Freddie's. Hollywood has found it is more expedient and less expensive to settle.

SORRY FOR THEFTS

DETROIT, Oct. 22—(CP). — One of the things John J. Inch, 26-year-old Canadian of no fixed abode, told Judge J. Moinet to-day after pleading guilty to entering the United States illegally was that he was sorry he had robbed church poor boxes three times during 1929 in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

After looking over a record of Inch's arrests for wife beating and petty thievery, Judge Moinet sentenced Inch to one year in Federal Penitentiary—heaviest sentence possible under the law.

LAWYER PASSES

TORONTO, October 22—(C.P.)—A. J. Russell Snow, K.C., 81, prominent Toronto barrister, died here last night.

Born in Hull, Que., in 1856, Mr. Snow was called to the Bar of Ontario in 1884. He was created a King's Counsel in 1906. He pleaded before the Privy Council in England as senior counsel in several important cases and was appointed a Royal Commissioner for several investigations at various times by the Ontario Government.

"War" Chief Game Of Jap Kiddies

BANFF, Alta., October 22—(CP)—War games are the delight of Japanese children to-day as their fathers and brothers battle in China, Harold S. Robinson of Banff reported on his return from Canton.

Telling of a brief visit to Japan, Robinson, an exchange medical student to Lingnan University, Canton, said most of the Japanese children were dressed in military uniforms. They played war games with toy arms.

Young Robinson, son of Dr. J. Dean Robinson, Banff, was in Canton on September 22 during a six-hour bombardment when buildings on Lingnan University campus were hit.

They Said The War Was Over

Rev. Charles M. C. Hallowell, rector of St. George's Anglican church in Thorndale, conducted the services in his church on Sunday, October 10. On the following day he found it advisable to go to hospital in London, and in ten days he was dead. He was 45 years of age and a wife and three small children are left.

It is another old story in a new location. Charles Hallowell was starting his studies at Western University when the war broke, and he enlisted for overseas service. He was wounded.

Returning to Canada he completed his studies and was ordained. The church at Thorndale was his third, and like most other men Rev. Charles Hallowell married and became the father of children.

Only a few days ago he was going about his chosen work and when the week-end services were through Mr. Hallowell went away and did not return. And once more they say "it was the result of injury received in the war." Received in a war which in a few more days will have been officially ended 20 years. War seems to let some of its victims go their way and run their course for a time, and then reaches out to add them to the casualty list. The figures given out at the close of the war showing the number killed or injured were impressively large, but they were incomplete. There are not many days or weeks pass without the statement being printed that "he died as a result of injuries received during the war," and on each of such occasions the grand total of those killed by the war should be officially increased by one. On a November day in 1918 the world was told the war was over, but that was true only so far as the actual fighting at the front was concerned. For many of those who took part in it the war still goes on and will until the end of the road.

The Better Way

In connection with the work of churches in Western Ontario, the women's associations have been holding a conference at Kingsville. As usual there were resolutions passed, and one of them was worded to express regret at the increasing number of places which have been licensed to sell beer in Ontario.

The women who passed that resolution were as sincere as any body of delegates could possibly be, but we doubt if they are going to accomplish much by passing a resolution. A resolution simply places on record the feeling of a meeting without adding what the people are going to do about it.

Years ago there would have been a good deal done about it, and there would have been in each one of the churches represented some sort of an organization for the young people, the aim of which would be to teach them the dangers of drink and to try and impress upon them the value of total abstinence. In the days of the open bar there was a great deal more temperance effort than there is today. And we are certain that personal effort is more effective than the passing of resolutions.

The Law Is Plain

Six men in Toronto have been arrested because they assaulted a driver of a milk wagon. There has been a strike in progress for some time and this particular driver had apparently decided to go to work. When making his rounds it is charged he was attacked by six who were on strike.

And that is not a good way to win a strike. In fact it is a poor way. The law is all on the side of the man who wants to go to work, and the law is all against the man or men who seek forcibly to keep a man from working.

Our courts do not make laws. They only interpret them and apply them to the various cases with which they deal. And the fact that a man working while others were on strike is not considered an offence against the laws of this country. A good many otherwise reasonable men seem to lose sight of that plain fact when a strike is in progress.

It's A Strange Life

The President of the Humane Society, Thos. E. Sargent, has written a letter to the Examiner in which he explains why a reporter was asked to leave the meeting of the society. It seems the reporters are given to putting down almost everything that is said, and there may be things said which it is not desired to have printed. Otherwise we can think of no reason to objecting to a reporter writing as much as he might like about the meeting.

Mr. Sargent says it is wrong to have stated that the meetings are closed to the public, and we gladly give space to having such an impression created. The general public is welcomed but not the reporter.

It is a little difficult at times to keep on sending reporters to the right places. There are gatherings where they are welcome, and people even become a trifle nervous if the reporter has not arrived in time to hear the speeches. Other places the door never swings quite so wide nor is the welcome so cordial. Truth is reporters become accustomed to going places where there is even a little frigidity if not open hostility in the atmosphere owing to the fact that one is present. Being asked, requested or positively informed to leave is not entirely a new experience to a reporter. They become somewhat hardened to it and it does not hurt their feelings. Even being asked to depart from a gathering with so kindly a name as the Humane Society will not put a reporter out of commission.

In his letter Mr. Sargent takes occasion to refer to reporters as "ambitious bright lights," evidently attempting a mild excursion into the field of sarcasm, rather a surprising departure for so mild-spoken a gentleman as Mr. Sargent actually is. It may be the reporters themselves will have to appeal to the Humane Society for a share of the kindness and protection it so gladly extends to animals in general.

Why Get So Excited?

We learn in a report from London, Ont., that there may be an investigation by the Provincial Department of Health, and the Board of Education is likely to be touched into action as well. Reason? There has been a series of addresses delivered in the Collegiates by a visitor and he told the pupils to look at the sun to strengthen their eyes. After which the storm started in a mild way but became more boisterous.

It seems hard to try and get a little peace and quietness established. So many people are saying so many things today and then so many other people are rising up to say that what has been said is not so. Possibly if one were to go and look at the sun it would cause a blinking sensation and the average person would not repeat the experiment. It seems to be human nature to adapt ourselves and our faculties to what can be endured or enjoyed or tolerated.

Just why the Department of Health or the London Board of Education should be called into the field we cannot well understand. We are killing a great many people and injuring many more every week of the year by driving cars and we do not seem to be doing much about it. So why get so excited when some person raises the old question of trying to take a look at the sun?

Something To Do At Home

At a meeting of the Union of Regular Baptist churches of Ontario, held in Toronto, it was decided that France would be a good field in which to carry on gospel efforts in the form of a missionary campaign. One of the delegates said he spent nine months in France some years ago, and he was convinced that in the larger cities the sin that abounded "is very near that of Sodom and Gomorrah."

When Christian bodies are looking for new fields to conquer we wonder if they do so on the assumption that the home field has been thoroughly attended to, and that the situation within our own boundaries has been brought so well in hand that there is plenty of surplus energy and strength to be expended elsewhere.

If attendance at church services is regarded as one of the outward and visible tokens of Christian faith, then we think there is quite a bit of territory to cover in Canada, and a good deal of the territory exists where the churches are the closest together. On a Sunday evening there are a good many churches where great numbers of people could be seated without any fear of crowding.

As a people we are drinking more beer and liquor than we used to, and each succeeding report from the government agency proves that beyond argument. The record of crime shows that the criminals are becoming younger in point of years and the stream is being poisoned at an earlier age. Our divorce records point upward. Nor can it be said we give away a great deal when there is need for it. Too often if some worthy object is to be aided it is necessary to come and sell us a ticket in order that a small amount can be secured, and the ticket is bought not so much for the aiding of the object as with the high expectation that the purchaser may possibly have a lucky number.

We mention these things just as a sort of stock-taking of our habits and inclinations. We do not know whether a devout visitor from France coming amongst us for a season would be much impressed by our outlook or by our claims that we are a Christian people. Truth is there is quite a lot of home work to be attended to yet.

How Would Control Operate?

Eastern Ontario Municipal Electrical Association held a gathering in Kingston; at the gathering there was a banquet and at the banquet there was an address. And the address was by Judge M. Tudhope who presides over the courts of Leeds and Grenville. It may be a clumsy title to give to an address but we believe the text of the learned gentleman was actually "What we ought to do with the press in general." Judge Tudhope agreed at the outset that a publisher was responsible for what appeared in his paper, then "editorials should be as free as anything could be." That is not so bad. If a newspaper wants to express an opinion it would do so on its editorial page, so with that department left free we can consider other details.

Judge Tudhope asked a rather pertinent question this way: If the press is to be controlled, who should fix the control? If there is no control over the controller there would not be any freedom. And right there the speaker was close to the centre of the situation.

The banquet speaker had little patience with what he called the "spread" which had been given to the grave-robbing case in Streetsville. He considered the story giving all the gruesome details had been as shocking as the crime itself. And right there is opportunity to get a better understanding of what people mean by the word "control" as applied to the press. Judge Tudhope did not like the way the Streetsville story had been handled, so we take it he would have liked to have seen what he terms "control" applied to the publishing of such a report. To begin with the story itself was of a shocking and gruesome nature; the person who committed the crime had invaded a sacred field and there was a feeling of revulsion which came at once to the surface. It is not possible for a skilled or even a "controlled" writer to make anything pleasant or beautiful out of such a story if the truth is told. Even if the telling of the story is reduced to the plainest statement of fact it will cause a shudder to pass through a sensitive system, and most systems are sensitive. It is one of those cases where there was a gruesome story to be told because a gruesome deed had been done.

Judge Tudhope believed newspaper were given to "mussing up public institutions by sending bouquets to prisoners in our penitentiaries," and recalled that on account of the efforts of "sob-sisters" one criminal had been allowed his freedom, after which he again took his gun to kill people and was himself killed by a policeman's bullet. That of course was the Red Ryan case placed once more on parade. The Examiner has no knowledge of which papers Judge Tudhope had in mind when he spoke of them as being busy in the work of "mussing up public institutions." There was but one paper which ever had much to say about prison reform, and that was the Toronto Globe of several years ago. Newspapers as a rule have more sympathy for the victims of criminals than they have for the criminals themselves, but they would not hesitate to speak plainly if they were convinced there was something in our penal system which needed correction.

In all of Judge Tudhope's address, which must have been an interesting one to hear, he brought to the surface, according to report, but one specific case, that of the grave robbing at Streetsville, and the sum total of his opinion was that he did not like the way the story had been handled. He believed it had been overdone. Which caused us to wonder how Judge Tudhope had he been a reporter, would have handled that story if he had been sent out to bring it in to his paper.

WEAKNESS

(By A. R. S.)

¶ Once more I read that it is best, that men be not so overdressed, their hides should be more tough; and summer underwear should stay, when fall has up and passed away, and winter sets in rough.

¶ 'Tis then that men should exercise, get circulation in their thighs, and harden up the chest; should go and face the winter breeze, without much wrapping on the knees, and little 'neath the vest.

¶ Old fogie in my views I know, but when the north wind starts to blow, I tremble in the breeze; and my ears rattle as I walk, I fear before I go a block, that one of them will freeze.

¶ And when the winds begin to whine, I like some packing on the spine, for then I will not wheeze; and when there's ice and snow about, I long for something warm and stout, to wind around my knees.

¶ When snow falls on me by the peck, I like a quilt about my neck, it sort of soothes my fears; I like to get my fuzzy cap, and careful like adjust the flap, that folds upon my ears.

¶ I like to get my wristbands too, big socks inside my overshoe, I buckle them with care; I'd freeze inside a week I know, if I would start to come and go—in summer underwear.

ACCORDING to Morrias A. Hall, writing in the Seng Book, the eighteenth century in England is known as the age of mahogany for an interesting reason. The English folk did not always care for mahogany, although it lends itself admirably to fine carving and finish. At the time however England was carrying on long wars with France in Flanders. Seasoned English walnut was the best possible material for rifle stocks so the Duke of Marlborough commandeered all the walnut trees in England for his soldiers. Oak was already losing favor. Mahogany, moreover, was an expensive wood, imported from the West Indies and this fact made it popular with the rich and so eighteenth century designers used it extensively.

The reason that outdoor furniture seldom made of beech wood is because this is perishable outdoors, easily succumbing to decay after the winter snows and spring rains.

With the increasing Australian demand for mountain ash for furniture the old stumps, once a waste and in the way for farming, are providing a great source of quick cash. These old stumps have an unusually beautiful grain and after many years of exposure are well seasoned.

Something About Hail.

FROZEN raindrops with rain descend as sleet, the larger masses of ice which we call hailstones are formed in the upper atmospheric regions of rain, freezing temperature and strong upward air currents. The structure of hailstones is typically alternate layers of snow and ice. Hailstorms usually occur in summer and during the hours between sunrise and sunset and are invariably accompanied by a thundershower.

In the annals of a professor it is recorded that red white and blue hailstones were precipitated in Russia in June, 1880, another story says that a hailstone seventeen inches in circumference fell at Potter, Nebraska, July 6, 1928, and the report of the Smithsonian Institute for 1870 amazingly states that hailstones the size of elephants fell at Seringapatam, India, a metereological occurrence that seems as incredible as a Baron Munchausen fabrication.

Another interesting thing about hail is that the use of cannon in attempts to ward off hailstarms was common in Italy as recently as the beginning of the present century.

One of the greatest monuments to human toil, that was ever constructed, the John O'London Weekly says, is the amazing system of rice-terraces, more than 4,000 years in the making, which the wild Ifugaos have built in the Philippines. Without the benefit of science and employing only the crudest implements to aid the labor of their hands these natives have in the course of many centuries completely changed the face of nature and transformed one of the steepest mountain chains in the world into enormous gardens of fantastic beauty. Every year new terraces are added and repairs done to the 14,000 miles of stone walls that girdle the mountains.

THE STUPENDOUS task of creating a dictionary is indicated by the fact that starting a Brazilian dictionary in the Portuguese language thirty years ago the Brazilian Academy of Letters has not yet completed the definition of words beginning with "A". Another piece of evidence along the same line is that three hundred years ago work was begun on a great French dictionary which is not yet finished and at the present rate of progress will not be completed until about three hundred years more.

As to words, Samuel Johnson's dictionary of 1755 contained about 15,000 words while the complete modern dictionary contains about forty times that number—the Oxford dictionary for example defining more than 600,000 words.

Noah Webster is said to have lost money on his dictionary, the first edition of which contained 70,000 words of which 12,000, as well as 40,000 definitions had not previously appeared in any dictionary. An amusing feature is that Webster's dictionary was once banned by the state of Arkansas because its definition of evolution was objectionable to fundamentalists.

LOCAL MEN NEED JOBS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Permit me to enlighten the citizens of our city of a poor condition that is allowed to exist. Whether we, as citizens, taxpayers or tenants—own our homes or are paying rent, there persists this evil, that is undermining the financial structure of our city; besides causing untold privations on people who are respectable, law-abiding citizens, people who are Canadian to the core, born and raised here, as their grandparents were before them.

Why, I ask, is this condition of discrimination against Peterborough labor allowed to continue. Why aren't the rights of a citizen respected? There are able-bodied, good workers, right here, who can do the work, without hiring help from out of town, or worse, bringing in people from distant places. There is one concern that excels over other plants in hiring people from places other than the city, that has a perfect right to expect her citizens given 100% preference, except in cases such as where local help is not registered for some particular trade or profession. Such cases are few, regardless of statements to the contrary, and also that preference is given local help. It is with quite good faith and authority, I say that in one department alone, on one shift, there are employed twelve men, who recently have been given jobs and who did not live near the city or within one hundred miles. We know of the drought condition that prevails in the prairie provinces and we sympathize heartily with them and would willingly "give till it hurt," toward contributions of cash or food, if it were not for the fact that this concern is hiring not a few but many from those same parts.

There is an old saying, that holds true, just as much in these times of haste, bustle, and craze for efficiency, production, and more production, as it did when business was run on a sane basis, with respect for the worker and a decent living for those who desired their right to work, namely, "Charity begins at Home!" How can one reasonably be expected to spend their wages, to pay taxes, or rent, food, clothing, or the every day bill of life if the wages that should be paid to locally hired labor are paid to those who till previously, did not know on what street the firm fronted?

I am a local man, the son of Canadian parents, who have spent practically all their earnings in this city and seen it grow and prosper, just as hundreds of local people have, and now find ourselves shoved back and told, "There's nothing to-day," while others from outside the limits get jobs.

Being married, and having a small family of little children, with an education rated as good, and better than average, I find that, I am faced with the reality of asking for relief or what? Whether one is working or not, expenses have to be paid, and every good living man tries to pay. Relief is a great help, but it doesn't pay rent in every case, or the back bills of necessities. I for one do not want relief, just a citizen's right to the work in the city.

A young able-bodied man, anxious to work, who is worth his wages, should never be unemployed here especially if he is skilled and conscientious. Other towns and cities have shown complete preference for their local help, here's hoping the firms here will do the same. Furthermore, I recommend that the citizens of Peterborough ask the council of 1938 at the commencement of the new year to enact and pass a bylaw making it prohibitive, to engage or hire labor for services in the city, in any capacity, of work, trade, or profession, from points outside the limits, and to require every person engaged in services pertaining to the city to be a resident. Exceptions to be made only after it is ascertained that such help for skilled positions cannot possibly be obtained locally.

The result would naturally be, wages earned here would be spent here, homes would be saved, tax returns substantially increased, every place of business would feel the benefit. It would be as beneficial to the landlords as the tenant, the private business man as the shareholders. It would create a new buying power that would be spent considerably more right here, benefitting all upholding character, creating a better understanding between landlord and tenant, and cutting down substantially the city's cost of relief. This letter is an open invitation for every citizen to get behind the town and boost "Peterborough men for Peterborough jobs."

REPORTERS NOT WANTED

Editor Examiner:

Sir: There appeared in the local columns of the Wednesday issue of your paper in large print these words: "Humane Society decides to hold closed meetings." This article is very misleading to you many readers and I wish to make a very emphatic denial to the most of its content. Quite true, the press reporter was asked to withdraw as these modern agents seem to think that unless they record almost every word that a member of the Executive may give expression to when discussing the questions under consideration they would not be up-to-date. It is not any wonder that this reporter was informed that we did not want all this detail printed.

The article further stated that the President declared that henceforth the meetings of this society would be closed to the public. This I wish to emphatically deny as no such words were ever spoken. The public has always been welcome at our meetings and it is an asset to our society to have as many visitors as possible attending our meetings. This article is referred to and brought back again to your readers the question of "Donkey Base-ball" — a question which had been disposed of by the members of this Society to the entire satisfaction of all and no reference whatsoever to this question was mentioned at the meeting on Tuesday evening. It is no wonder after reading this article in your paper that these ambitious bright lights would be asked to absent themselves. Our society has been in action for many years and has held its meetings in the past without a press reporter in attendance, and the public has been kept well informed as to the work done by the society by the inspector's report which has been given monthly publication in our paper by our press secretary.

THOS. E. SARGENT.
President.

Something "Happened" In Election

And It Struck In Victoria Rather Hard; 150 Mile Section Where No Liberals Won

(Woodstock Sentinel Review)

WESTERN ONTARIO, once a Conservative stronghold, elected no members of that party to the Legislature in 1934, and on October 6 of this year elected precisely the same number. What baffles analysis of the situation is that the eastern part of the province, which in 1934 elected seven Conservative members, this time returned 10.

Take Victoria, for example. William Newman, farmer and creameryman, carried the riding for the Liberals in 1926, 1929 and 1934. In the latter year with 2,647 majority over L. M. Frost. This month M. Frost won the seat by more than 300, a turnover of 3,000 votes. The sweep affected rural as well as urban divisions. The townships of Fenelon, Ops, Verulam, Somerville and Emily, which at last election rolled up majorities for Newman, this time went into the Conservative column, and the town of Lindsay gave Frost 926 instead of the former 75. The circumstance that Mr. Newman resembles the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier no longer availed.

Searching for an explanation, one finds in a Lindsay despatch to Peterborough Examiner the following passage: "With T. H. Stinson, K.C., ex-M.P., as campaign manager, the Conservatives had perfect organization in every part of the riding. This fact, together with certain statements made during the campaign, which had a tendency to inflame a section of the electorate, contributed largely to the Conservative triumph."

The latter sentence is so cautious as to be unnecessarily mysterious, for everyone knows that there was resentment in the riding when Mr. Newman supported the Hepburn government on its school tax legislation. An Orangeman, he was reported in Toronto Telegram to have been expelled from his lodge, but in the campaign Mr. Newman denied the accuracy of this statement.

At any rate, something happened—something drastic—and maybe Kingston Whig-Standard has placed a finger in the following comment:

"The School Tax Act did, undoubtedly, play a part in Eastern Ontario, where religious feeling runs higher than in the western part of the province. It undoubtedly had much to do with the fact that in a block in Eastern Ontario, of about 150 miles square, there is not a government supporter. East and West Hastings, Kingston, Frontenac - Addington, Prince Edward-Lennox, Lanark, Leeds, Carleton and Grenville-Dundas all returned Conservatives."

BIT OFF A LOT.

(Detroit Free Press)

THE REPORT from Tokyo which tells of the enactment of an emergency law banning the importation of nearly 700 "luxury" articles—including wool, clothing, coal, cigarettes, liquor and candy—in order to conserve national resources, also fixes the unofficial estimate of the cost of the Chinese war at about $5,000,000 a day.

This means $1,825,000,000 a year, an enormous sum for a relatively poor country like Japan, where labor is cheap, ordinary living costs low, and a worker would consider an American wage-earner's annual income real riches.

A drain of this sort on the resources of Nippon effectually dispels any lingering fiction that the Chinese campaign is a mere punitive expedition or an easy war like the Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

In relation to Japan's resources and power of endurance it is a first-class war and in which time is an essential factor with the balance in that one particular on the side of the Chinese.

This will prove particularly true if the cloud of international boycotts, which darkens the skies of the island empire, finally descends.

EMOTIONS FINEST THINGS WE HAVE, BELIEF OF ADAMS

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 22—(AP)—Maude Adams, the Peter Pan of yesteryear, drew from an old French book on acting today to tell how she feels at 64 about the theatre.

"It is the mission of all art to refine and cultivate the instincts and the emotions," she said.

That, the veteran actress explained in the first newspaper interview of her long career, is the challenge she accepted when she came here to teach dramatics at Stephens College for girls—a challenge to instill in her proteges "something which will relate the theatre and acting with the emotions of every day life."

"We should know more about our emotions and have a greater respect for them," Miss Adams continued. "They are the finest things we have."

She broke a retirement of 19 years at the behest of Dr. James M. Wood, president of Stephens, who said he believed that "for each one of us who may be trained to act, there are thousands of us who may be trained to appreciate acting."

It was not simply to train actresses that Miss Adams came here. She is attempting "to integrate the cultural with the professional"—to leave with her students something that will make their lives fuller even though they never step on a stage after leaving school.

The theatre, she asserted, is "more elemental than the other arts," because "any man, with or without training can go into a theatre and respond at once to the emotions of the actor," whereas music, painting and sculpture require special training to be appreciated.

STOMACH PAIN

If you have gnawing stomach pains between meals, your case is something like that of Mr. A. B., of Scarboro. For ten years he suffered from these nagging stomach pains between meals. During all this time he had tried dozens of treatments and remedies. Finally he took Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. "From the first dose I felt like a new man," he writes. "Every time these pains come on I take a dose or two of Maclean Brand and in a minute or two they have vanished."

When you get those pains in you stomach, or gas, dyspepsia or heartburn put you in great discomfort, your trouble is in an acid condition. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, which is used in leading British hospitals, counteracts this condition. It relieves the pain and soothes inflamed tissues. Get a bottle—either powder or tablets—at druggists, 75c. Be sure to look for the signature, "Alex. C. Maclean", on bottle and carton. None other is genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. 11C

CRUISER FREES SEIZED STEAMER

LONDON, Oct. 22—(CP Cable)—Escorted by the British cruiser Southampton, the steamship Stangrove ploughed across the Bay of Biscay today after a dramatic adventure with Spanish Insurgent warships.

The Stangrove flies the British flag. She left Gijon yesterday morning, bound for Bordeau. Aboard were 600 refugees, nearly all women and children.

Shortly after she left Gijon, an Insurgent trawler hurried up and seized the Stangrove. Lying in the neighborhood were H.M.S. Southampton and the Insurgent cruiser Almirante Cervera.

Noting the incident, the Southampton immediately signalled the Cervera, demanding release of the Stangrove. The Southampton held the Stangrove was outside territorial waters when captured. Protesting, the Cervera released the Stangrove, which then proceeded to Bordeau, France, the Southampton escorting her.

It is expected the incident will have diplomatic reactions.

PEOPLE TO PITY

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 22—(CP)—Those who are too fussy about trifles, who are particular about their food, or who fly into a rage on the slightest provocation, may find comfort in the words of Miss Mae Fleming, supervisor of Children's Aid Societies for Ontario. Such people, she told the Essex County Society here last night, are to be pitied, not blamed.

"The way parents handle temper tantrums when the child is two years old will determine how the adult will behave 30 years later, Miss Fleming said. Habits formed between the age of two and four years, particularly those to do with eating and sleeping, persist through life.

CLAIMS HIS PART IN DIVORCE BILL

LONDON, Oct. 22—(CP)—Magistrate Claud Mullins has been taken to task by A. P. Herbert, M.P., promoter of the Matrimonial Causes Act, extending grounds for divorce, for his critical remarks before the Modern Churchman's Conference on the new Bill. The magistrate has now declared he had some part in preparing the measure.

Mr. Mullins had said that if the Act worked—that was very doubtful so far as the masses of the people were concerned, for a breakdown of the poor persons' system of litigation might be expected—it must result in innumerable ill-considered divorces which would bring havoc in the homes of the people.

Mr. Herbert wrote to The Times:

"Mr. Mullins (if he will forgive me) is paid by the state not to attack but to administer the law. He will have to play some part in the administration of this Act. With what confidence will any citizen be able to apply to him for his lawful rights under an Act which he has already publicly condemned?" Mr. Herbert concluded by hoping that Mr. Mullins would now be quiet.

The London magistrate had a reply, however, also in The Times:

"Consistency cannot, I suppose, be demanded from a humorist.... At my own request Mr. Herbert has never made public my share in the preparation of his Bill, but, as he now criticizes me for not confining my activities to sitting on the Bench, I must reveal that it was I who suggested and drafted clauses that made the Herbert Bill so different from, and so much more acceptable than, the Buckmaster-Hoiford Knight Bill. Mr. Herbert did not then point out to me that I was 'paid by the state not to attack but to administer the law.'

"In court a magistrate administers the law as he finds it. Out of court it is perfectly legitimate and proper for a magistrate to interest himself in law reform or in improvements in procedure, and to take a public part in advocating these changes'—I am quoting from an authoritative ruling.

"So without Mr. Herbert's permission I shall continue, among other activities, to deplore in private and in public that, while unhappy wives and husbands who cannot afford solicitors will have invaluable social assistance when they seek separation, no more social help is to be available when they seek the more serious relief of divorce."

In his address to the Modern Churchman's Conference, Mr. Mullins said the sternest opposition to social reform often came from professing Christians. If religious opinion could be led into constructive paths of birth control, eugenics, marriage law reform, and sound sexual instruction, the future would really be more Christian.

Deny Injured Girl, Suicide, Lovers

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct. 22.—(CP)—Andrew Reid, the 21-year-old University of Toronto student who allegedly shot Miss Patricia Lang, pretty 19-year-old school teacher yesterday at Sundridge and then committed suicide, was not Miss Lang's boy friend, according to Mrs. L. D. Lang, a cousin of the injured girl, who is visiting in Kitchener.

Mrs. Lang accompanied the injured girl to hospital in Toronto and stated the family had been told that Miss Lang would recover and not be too badly marked. She was wounded in the face. She pointed out that in Sundridge people do not lock their doors and therefore it was easy for one who knew the household to get in at night.

U.S. NURSES BITTER OVER CANADIANS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(CP)—A complaint, heard frequently in recent years, that Canadian girls were keeping homebreds out of the nursing profession here, was voiced again yesterday by Miss Virginia Mirabelle, president of the National Nurses Association.

A statement of S. S. Coldwater, New York hospitals commissioner, a serious shortage of nurses threatened the health of the population, drew the fire of Miss Mirabelle. She denied such a situation existed. On the contrary, she added, "our institutions are flooded with applications from Americans which are turned down while Canadians are given preference."

"The New York City department of Hospitals imported practically the entire graduating class of Saint John's Hospital of New Brunswick and took care of all passport arrangements for them," she said in an interview.

"These foreign nurses are reliably reported to have been brought into the United States in violation of the immigration laws. They come under six-month tourist visas which makes it illegal for them to seek employment here."

"We nurses know there is no shortage," she said. "We have information that more than one institution has stacks of employment applications from qualified graduate nurses of American citizenship. If there was a shortage, as alleged, such trained members of our profession would not be turned down as frequently as they are."

CUT THIS OUT

EXCELLENT RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises, or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. Scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is equally as dangerous. The following formula, which is used extensively is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

Wide Spread Housing Development In Europe Is Found By C.N.R. Head

LONDON, Oct. 21—"Everywhere I went, I found strongly expressed sentiments for good will among the nations of Europe and a desire for the expansion of International trade," S. J. Hungerford, chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways, said on his return to London to-day from a visit to his company's offices and agencies in France, Germany, the Netherlands and Belgium.

In all these countries, he said, he found evidences of general prosperity, and inspection of harbor operations at Hamburg, Bremen, Rotterdam and Antwerp, with the provisions being made for expansion, impressed him with prospects for the continuance of the present satisfactory business conditions industrially and in the shipping field.

Mr. Hungerford was impressed, too, with widespread housing developments, designed to improve living conditions of industrial workers in the large centres of population.

Alvin Mark, Cameron, took individual honours for the match, winning four different prizes, including the Dominion Bank Trophy which he has won for the fourth consecutive time. Stinson, K.C., prize, while in class 4, Harvey Greenaway, who has won different prizes in matches throughout the country, took first honors in this department. For the boys under sixteen years of age, Victor Webster, of Woodville, was given his choice of any prize he wished to care for in Mr. Alex Horns' Woollen Co. In presenting the prize, Mr. Horn stated that farming was a healthy vocation, out under the sun, free from all turmoil and worry. The prosperous farmer is the one who takes a pride in his home and land, and hoped that his message would give the younger generation an inspiration for furthering the great agricultural vocation.

The William Newman prize, presented by Mack Morrison for the boys plowing 16 and under, was won by Victor Webster, of Woodville. Harvey Greenaway, also of the same village was presented a prize by Mr. L. M. Three-Cornered Fight Is Seen In By-Election In Dufferin-Simcoe

ORANGEVILLE, Oct. 22.—Three parties have announced their intention to nominate candidates to contest the riding of Dufferin-Simcoe in the by-election on November 15. The by-election is caused by the resignation of Hon. Earl Rowe to become Leader of the Conservative Party in the Provincial House.

Until yesterday it was thought that only the Conservative and Liberal parties would enter candidates, but official word was received from Collingwood that the Farm-Labor Party will contest the riding. The Liberal convention date is set for October 25 at Alliston where, it is said, at least four men will stand for the nomination. Those mentioned are: T. J. O'Flynn of Shelburne, Fred W. Rayfield of Camilla, W. J. C. Boake of Thornton, who opposed Hon. Earl Rowe at the last Federal election, and ex-Reeve C. W. Henry of Innisfill.

As far as can be learned, there are only three who are actively after the Conservative nomination which will be decided at Alliston on Tuesday, October 26. They are: Dr. G. H. Campbell, C. R. McKeown, K.C., and Mayor T. P. Parkinson, all of Orangeville.

Mae To Kiss Her First Man On Screen – A Nice Old Gentleman

Hollywood, Oct. 22 (AP)

IF the censors, bless 'em, let her get away with it, blond Mae West of Brooklyn and Hollywood is all set to kiss a man and take a drink for the first time—on the screen.

For all her vamping reputation, acquired in semi-naughty comedy, Mae has had to keep her movie characters as essentially pure as Little Eva.

She is still pure in her current movie, but she hopes the censors won't mind if she gives venerable Charlie Winninger a sweet smack on the face.

As for hoisting a cocktail, why Garbo, Dietrich, Crawford and Colbert have been getting away with it for years!

Miss West has been exercising down to 117 pounds on the theory that while curves are the most interesting distance between two points, they should be controlled. She knew all the answers to this questionnaire:

Q—How can a girl get and hold a man?

A—Don't let a man know you're smarter than he is. As for holdin' him—well, the best way is in your arms.

Q—What should a man do, vice versa?

Q—Do you think the costume of the gay nineties was more alluring to me than modern dress?

A—Decoration's got nothin' to do with it.

Q—What type of clothes do you wear off the screen?

A—Oh, any little thing that isn't too restrainin', if you know what I mean. I like to relax.

FIRST AID TALK WARSAW WOMEN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Oct. 22.—The past few days have been so full there were not as many as was hoped for at the W. I. meeting on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Weller presided.

It was passed by vote that any church in the village may have the Institute's screen's for use for missionary work, free.

Clothing is to be supplied a motherless babe and the Institute will also see that other children are properly clothed.

It was reported that some motherless boys, whose father has refused to part with them, are alone in the house for days at a time while the father is away working. This is to be investigated.

Mrs. McIlvena sang "An old Dusty Trunk in the Attic" with Mrs. Wilkinson accompanying on the piano.

The feature of the day was an interesting and helpful address by the guest speaker, Miss McDonald, who described the car and treatment in case of accidents and emergencies. Miss McDonald also gave a description of infantile paralysis, of its prevention and how it spreads.

The president announced Mrs. Everett Birdsall would give a talk on Peace at the next W. I. meeting, which will be held at Mrs. Lallas' home on Thursday, November 10, at 2.30 p.m.

As soon as the pamphlets on the girls' project work arrives the girls' project club will meet, probably on Saturday, October 30.

Supper Well Attended

Nearly three hundred people took supper at the Bethel anniversary chicken pie supper on Tuesday evening, October 19. Supper was served in the S. S. room. The two long tables each had a birthday cake with its fifty pink candles, Mrs. Ernie Batten and Mrs. Charles Frankish made and donated the cakes which were auctioned after the entertainment was over.

During the greater part of supper the Atkinson family and a cousin, Mr. Payne, supplied music. Mr. Atkinson brought his bass viol from Dartford, his daughter presided at the piano, other instruments were violins, accordion and mouth organ.

After supper there was community singing of a few old hymns, accompanied by the orchestra with Miss Atkinson's clear voice leading.

Mr. Wilkinson thanked the guests on behalf of the ladies, elders and officers of the church. They had redecorated the church for its semi-centennial anniversary. The program began with singing "All Hail the Power"; Edna and Lass Clysdale sang; Mr. Wallace Anderson recited "The Engineer" with "Paddy's leather britches", as an encore; Norma Payne sang; Mrs. Wilkinson gave a piano selection; Stuart Miller gave a violin selection, accompanied by his mother; Donald Darling recited; a playet "Double Crossed"; questette "Resting in the Shelter of His Love" by Atkinson family; recitation, Margaret Clysdale; piano duet, the Misses Atkinson.

A hearty vote of thanks to Miss McDonald was moved by Mrs. T. Cooper and Mrs. Wilkinson, and was carried with a hearty clap.

Refreshments were served and a happy social half hour was spent.

Those accused were Edward Carpenter, Harry Yurovitz, and Mrs. Ethel Shanahan.

"These cases have to be dealt with under the process prescribed by the Contraverted Elections Act and must be heard by two High Court Judges," said the Crown Attorney.

Celebrating Centennial Of 'Sam Slick' Whom Thomas Haliburton Made Famous

Nova Scotia Author Was Also a Noted Jurist In The Maritimes

By PETER O'DAY
Central Press Canadian Writer

HALIFAX, Oct. 22.—One hundred years ago, back in the days when Nova Scotia was in the teeth of its battle for responsible government, there appeared for the first time in book form the writings of a now famous judge-author whom a grateful posterity since has described as "the father of North American humor." The book was a collection of stories which was published anonymously in Joseph Howe's Novascotian, and offered to the public as "The Clockmaker."

The centennial anniversary of the first publication of this early Canadian piece of fiction, the author of which eventually was disclosed as Thomas Chandler Haliburton, was recognized recently when the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada unveiled at Windsor, Nova Scotia, a tablet to the memory of Haliburton, and which now is being celebrated by a series of radio dramatizations by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. It is an anniversary in which every appreciative Canadian and, indeed every booklover the world over, should take an active part even if that part were merely the reading of the book itself.

Carried Satire

Haliburton's "Sam Slick" stories undoubtedly were intended to amuse but it is generally believed that he really created them to express indirectly his own opinions on the customs and calibe of the Nova Scotians. Haliburton, unlike Joseph Howe, was opposed to responsible government and chided the public for the lack of qualifications and their incapableness in dealing with the direction of their government. "Responsible government," wrote this opponent of democracy elsewhere, "is responsible nonsense." Haliburton, however, even though he was not successful in public life, did find in Sam Slick the means of satirizing his countrymen for their lack of faith in their native land and he did it so well that what fame he might have lost as a politician he won as a writer.

"The Clockmaker" is a series of tales about an itinerant clockmaker, of Onion county, Connecticut, and his inseparable companion, the Squire, who found Nova Scotia a profitable place in which to peddle his wares and the people receptive to his caustic comment on morals and customs. When they first appeared in the Novascotian, Bluenoses were amazed at the broad humor and the temerity of the writer who lampooned them with merciless criticism and boasted of his own country which, he claimed, was the home of the "most free and enlightened citizens on the faith of the earth." Many of the tales, and especially those which followed "The Clockmaker," verged on the unprintable and were rather fitter for the tap room than for the parlor.

Published in 1837

In 1837, just 100 years ago, Joseph Howe collected the papers in part and published them in book form. Soon Sam Slick became internationally known even though, at the time, he did not become internationally popular. In England the book became the favorite topic of discussion. In America readers took Sam to their bosom. In Nova Scotia most readers avoided it with an attitude suggesting genuine disgust. Upper Canadians were not quite sure that Sam was really funny so the book was set aside to mellow for a few years; it was not long, however, when they decided in the affirmative and in time Sam became known and loved in every home.

Thomas Chandler Haliburton must indeed have felt the broadside of stern criticism from Nova Scotians when they discovered that he was the author of Sam Slick. He apparently took but little notice of whatever was being said about him. However, for he continued his writings and gave to the world other books in the Slick series: "The Attache; or Sam Slick in England;" "Sam Slick's Wise Saws and Modern Instances; or What He Said, Did, or Invented;" and "Nature and Human Nature." The praise of these volumes was not nearly so great as the praise of "The Clockmaker."

Died in England

Haliburton was born at Windsor, Nova Scotia, in a flourishing Tory atmosphere, was educated at the Grammar school and later at the University of King's College, from which he graduated in law. The next year he married Louisa, daughter of Captain Lawrence Neville, who bore him seven children and died in 1840. Called to the bar in 1820, Haliburton practiced for some time at Annapolis Royal and, in 1826, was elected representative of the county in the Nova Scotia House of Assembly. Two years later he was appointed chief justice of the court of common pleas, and afterwards, when this court was abolished, he was elevated to the supreme court. In 1856 he resigned from office, moved to England, received an honorary D.C.L. from Oxford and married again. Through the influence of the Duke of Northumberland he was elected to the House of Commons in 1859 as a member for Launceston, and unsuccessfully expounded his belief in imperialism. In 1865, however, he became seriously ill and died.

EARLY CANADIAN AIR MOTOR FOUND

OTTAWA, Oct. 22—(CP). — The Aeronautical Museum of the National Research Council soon will outline air developments in Canada since its infancy. Recently the engine of the Silver Dart, the first plane to fly in Canada, was added to the museum.

This was the machine in which J. A. D. McCurdy, pioneer Canadian airman, made his historic flight nearly thirty years ago. The engine was salvaged in Nova Scotia from an old power boat, to whose use it had long been relegated.

Propeller models carved by the late Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, whose home at Baddeck, N.S., was an early laboratory of aeronautical science, have been added to the collection, together with ancient kites which he had made.

Airplane engines of every type made in Canada are exhibited in the National Research Council's museum, together with war-time machines flown by Canadian pilots.

East Whitby Youth Awarded Dollar In Case Alleging False Arrest

WHITBY, Oct. 22.—A Supreme Court jury, after half an hour's deliberation Thursday afternoon, awarded Albert Wheeler, 18, of East Whitby Township, $1 damages in a $10,000 action for false arrest, alleged to have been executed by County Constable Norman Sanders upon the instructions of Samuel Burgoyne, defendant, farmer neighbor of Wheeler.

The arrest was said to have taken place in April last at the "Five Points" just nort hof Oshawa, when Wheeler was taking away some doors and windows which he had removed from a house of which the defendant, Burgoyne, was the mortgagee.

Sanders, in company with Burgoyne, had gone to the farm to restrain Wheeler from removing the windows and doors, and according to Constable Sanders, Wheeler jumped off his wagon, brandishing a stick three feet long at Burgoyne, and swore at him, saying :"I'll kill you.". The handcuffs had been put on Wheeler, and he was taken to a car, while the doors and windows were unloaded and returned. He had been so subjected to humiliation by the use of handcuffs that he felt he would never be able to live it down, Wheeler said.

14 PUPILS HOLIDAY OVER SCHOOL TIFF

FORT ERIE, Ont., Oct. 22, (CP).—Fourteen pupils in School Section No. 4, Bertie township, adjoining Fort Erie, were still out of school today, their parents refusing to make them attend a township school three miles away and the township refusing to pay tuition for them in the Fort Erie school.

The Bertie school section board will meet tonight to discuss the situation caused when it notified Fort Erie a month ago it would not pay fees for pupils in Fort Erie Schools.

Secretary A. Layland of the No. 4 section board said:

"Our board takes the view it is illegal for this school section to pay for these pupils to attend an outside school in this section. If their parents wish to pay their tuition in For Erie school, it is their own affair. I have sought co-operation from bus lines to carry this group to our own school but without success."

The school section previously paid For Erie school board fees for the pupils affected.

Held in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., on Thursday afternoon the vice-president, Mrs. C. S. Thompson presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Charles M. Scott.

The universality, influence and continuous public service of the Y.W.C.A. were ably shown by Miss McElheran, who gave also a short account of the formation and growth of the organization.

Quinn-Trudeau.

TWEED, Oct. 22.—A wedding of much interest took place in St. Edmund's Church, Stoco, on Wednesday, October 20, when Sarah Eliza, youngest daughter of Mr. Eleasaam Trudeau and the late Mrs. Trudeau, became the bride of John Patrick Quinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn, Thomasburg.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in sapphire blue velvet, fashioned on princess lines, with a neckline and leg of mutton sleeves. The bride wore a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom, and carried a shower bouquet of Briarcliffe roses. A matching halo hat and blue velvet slippers completed her ensemble.

She was attended by her cousin, Miss Carmel Trudeau, wearing Burgundy chiffon velvet. Her turban of velvet was in matching tones, and she carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Little Miss Helen LaBarge, the flower girl, was daintily gowned in a pink taffeta frock and carried a small nosegay of pink snapdragons.

Michael Quinn, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony, a dinner was served at the home of the bride and a reception was held the same evening in St. Edmund's Parish Hall, where the happy couple received about four hundred guests.

Later, the happy couple left on a trip by motor through Northern Ontario and Michigan, the bride travelling in navy sheer, blue turban and a tailored topcoat of blue haircloth trimmed with grey wolfe.

On their return, they will reside in Stoco.

STYLE WHIMSIES.

A dignified ensemble for wear right now is a soft suit in a rust nubby wool with a short jacket buttoning snugly to the throat. Brown alligator shoes, handbag, and felt toque complete this outfit.

The fall tailleur is especially smart in mannish worsteds, square shoulders and draped sleeves. Low closings are preferred and jackets are of wrist length.

NEW SHORT SLICKER IS CHIC

Short silkin slicker worn with rust colored flannel skirt

By Central Press

IF YOU are a college girl and attend the football games, it is a good idea to be provided against storms.

The new slickers may be short, like the one pictured. It is an oilskin and is worn with a rust colored pleated flannel skirt.

Even if you are not going to the fotoball game it is a good thing to be provided against rain. These short slickers are very new. But the modern rain coat doesn't take itself or its job very seriously— it fairly shouts, "Let us be gay!" and means it. It does an efficient job, nevertheless. You can't be grouchyq in a shower when you are wearing one of the brightly colored—red, blue, green, or other gay shades—raincoats with umbrella to match.

Novel Accessories Warn

"They' are wearing unusual accessories with their suits as they come from Europe and step off the gang plank on to their native shore — these smartly dressed people. Jeweled lapel pins were worn by two smart looking women, one a gold dagger set with brilliants, one a beautifully designed palm tree pin of diamonds.

A large blue and a wine colored artificial dahlia were the highlight of a suit in royal blue tweed with back strap, and was worn with a tweed suit, quite sporty in character.

A large double crescent shaped pin of platinum, diamonds and braid trimming and a large pin and wine, the colors being repeated in the stitched felt hat and hand-sewn six-buton suede gloves and sweater.

A red belt and bolero, soutache braid trimming and o large pin of brilliants were style points another woman exhibited when she stepped on to the dock for customs officials to interview.

Keeping of Cheese Fresh In Home

The question of storing cheese in the home is a particularly appropriate one at the present time, in view of the advent of National Cheese Week which will be held this year from October 29 to November 6. The majority of persons who live conveniently near a grocery store buy cheese, as they do other foods, in rather small quantities. In such cases, there is really no problem of storing cheese in the home. It is simply a matter of keeping a pound or less for a short time. If a whole small cheese, or part of a large cheese, is bought to be stored in the home, care must be taken to prevent drying-out or development of mould.

A good plan is to cut a small portion from the cheese and cover the cut surfaces of the remainder with a coating of paraffin wax, applying the melted wax with a brush. When stored in a cool, well-ventilated, dry place, cheese so treated will keep in perfect condition for some considerable time. The portion cut for immediate use should be covered and kept in a cool, dry place. When it is consumed, another portion may be cut from the waxed cheese, again covering the exposed surfaces of the remaining cheese with paraffin wax. This simple operation can be repeated until only one portion of the cheese remains.

The reason why cheese should be kept in a cool, dry place is that high temperature will cause some of the fat in the cheese to melt and escape. High temperature also has the effect of drying-out the cheese, particularly if it is left uncovered. The best place in the home for cheese is in the refrigerator, or in a very cool cupboard free from dampness. The flavor and texture of the cheese will be preserved if it is kept in a covered container or is wrapped in heavy waxed or parchment paper. To prevent waste, scraps of cheese may be grated and put in a covered jar, to be used as required in cooking. Process cheese should be stored in the refrigerator, and may be left in the package in which it was purchased.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Saturday, October 23

The planetary configurations for this day are of a rather adverse and perhaps harrowing nature, with possibly bereavement and certain perplexities due to duplicity, collusion, fraud or other baneful undercurrents. It may take much wariness and sagacity to circumvent such treacheries, but when these wiles are disposed of, a change of definite benefit should result. Sign all papers cautiously and be careful in employment.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of perplexities and experiences of a tricky or confusing nature, with underhanded or subtle menaces requiring more than customary vigilance and precaution. Secret contacts might call for drastic remedies.

A child born on this day may have eccentric or curious leanings, although clever, crafty and successful with elders. It may have a rather visionary, emotional or quixotic temperament.

Symptoms are: fever, refusal to eat, affection of eyes and nose, listlessness. No two cases of distemper are alike; complications like pneumonia may follow to bring the case to a swift crisis. How splendid if you know what to do in such an emergency!

Proper feeding, while not a preventive of distemper, gives your dog a better chance of recovery. Our 32-page booklet gives complete details on how to feed a dog, as well as how to train and housebreak him.

Send 10c in coins for your copy of HOW TO CHOOSE AND CARE FOR YOUR DOG to Examiner Home Service, 10 Front street, west, Toronto. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Smart Fall Models Shown In Parade Of Styles At Richard Hall Store

The Richard Hall Store seemed en fete Thursday evening with all departments brilliantly lighted and much attractive and fashionable merchandise on display (though no sales were allowed) while on the second floor many ladies watched a wide range of the season's most interesting styles displayed.

Announced by the store manager, C. H. Saunders, the fascinating clothes were modelled by Mrs. C. Allen, Mrs. E. Fowler and the Misses Ruth Pogue, Gladys Gerrard and Grace Sharp. The lovely little girls were Barbara and Gloria Lang, and the sturdy little boy was Don Allen.

Chic and practical models in the sportswear section included as their most striking a two-piece combination of knitted top in rose with grey brushed wool front, worn with a 10-gore skirt in black faille, the flaring hemline suddenly reverting to grandmother's day with three rows of silk braid. A two-piece buckle in hunting green with braided girdle, showed the ribbed uplift front, and a Royal blue knitted suit sported a narrow rose belt. An unusual "earth" brown wool was trimmed with leopard fur fabric, and the new butterfly skirts were featured in faille worn with sweaters dyed to matching shade.

Afternoon Frocks

A fascinating procession of afternoon frocks, headed by smart tailored models, included a tile crepe with sash encircling its fitted waistline finished with a long silk fringe—a favorite New York trim. For the junior miss, pleated white net edged the Peter Pan collar and short puffed sleeves of a navy taffeta with 16-gore skirt. A gay pair was composed of a junior miss taffeta in Royal Stuart tartan with butterfly skirt, and three gold Scotties at the neck, worn with a perky little Scotty hat with quill feather; and one of the little girls in matching plaid skirt and Austrian knit sweater. In the women's section, brown patent flowers trimmed the high neck and jacket hem of a cinnamon crepe, and a saffron blue tunic showed "antique" gold ornaments at waistline and throat.

A striking model was wool embroidered in diagonal zig-zag pattern in red, blue and green, and a studded and jewelled corselette girdle finished a corded satin in nomad green. Another green with embroidered pattern in silk floss had the long fringed narrow sash; a porto red alpaca in tunic style was studded in gold; and a smart wine crepe with jewelled medal at the shoulder featured the inset girdle of matching satin.

Coats Chamois Lined

The coats were distinctly exciting. All chamois lined, fitted, with squared shoulders, they were finished with smart and unusual fur and button treatments. A light brown travel coat with alligator leather belt, was double breasted with two rows of buttons below the luxurious raccoon collar. Fitted and belted, a princess model in hunting green showed a small collar of black Persian and four narrow pockets of the fur, and wide reveres of grey Persian trimmed a rubby grey wool. A black bubby wool crepe had little collar, breastplate and narrowing panel to the hem of black Persian, and uniquely smart was another of the same type, but fastening down the front by means of a black zipper.

A fascinating group of extreme styles in hats displayed accentuated smoke stack crowns. Mad Hatter cap effects, draped tams and of course off-the-face models, with short veils, metal and link trims and touches of fur and feathers. Smart moderate priced hats in the new doeskin felt that does not easily mark were also featured.

Smart and good looking fitted and flaring evening wraps included an almost Victorian black velvet, and another was striking with a band of white bunny encircling the neckline and edging the front to the hem. A delightful little cape of white lapin was worn with stunning effect over an evening gown of black corded silk. Extra fine tucking and shirring puffed the little sleeves of the gown and formed the draped bodice above the twenty-gored sweeping skirt. A cluster of magnolia green flowers finished the narrow neckline. A cocktail frock in gleaming delyon blue moire showed a maywine velvet lining to the shorter in front hem and matching velvet bows on the bodice; a double-date gown in dull black moire taffeta was uniquely charming with narrow velvet ropes forming a girdle and threaded through brilliant studded eyelets at neck and waist, and could be topped if necessary with a velvet bolero. Black martinized velvet gowns included a Grecian draped model with large pink cameo finishing the narrow low neckline.

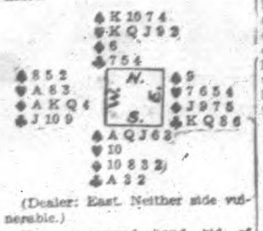
The curly-haired little girls paraded in smocked and pleated jersey frocks; intriguing little wool crepes; green and blue coats with fur trim and matching hats and muffs; playsuits in blanket cloth; and party frocks in blue and pink crepe. The little boy wore sweaters and shorts, bright knitted wool suits, and a three piece suit in blanket cloth with buttoned leggings and double-breasted coat.

The mannequins wore gloves and hose in the new fall shades and in the line exclusive to Hall's. They carried handbags of English suede and leather, the delightful new printed satin and painted taffeta bags with bone handles, and gleaming seguin for evening. Luxurious and lovely fur scarves and coats from Leeh's and smart footwear from Neill's set off the frocks and chic hats. Music was supplied by a radio kindly lent for the occasion by Ken McCannan.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

NO TIME TO LOSE

ONE OF THE prettiest defensive maneuvers consists in making the dummy ruff so that its trumps cannot be used for late enough entries to bring in a long suit. In most cases where this is the only way to beat a contract, the forcing of the dummy must be done at the earliest possible moment. Delaying the thrust for even one trick can spoil the entire success of the effort.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

Here a second hand bid of Spades was overcalled by West with 2-Diamonds, North bid 2-Spades, East 4-Diamonds, South 4-Spades, West 5-Diamonds and North 5-Spades, which East decided to double on general principals.

The diamond K was led by West, who then switched to the spade 2 in an effort to prevent diamond ruffs. South won with his A and led the heart 10. West crashed in with the A and offered a second spade to the Q. Now a spade to the K enabled the declarer to run the hearts, discarding the losing clubs and making the contract, with the loss of only one trick in each of the red suits.

Had West taken a good look at the dummy, he would have seen that the danger lay in the almost set up heart suit. He then should have attacked the dummy's entries by means of ruffs. A second diamond lead, ruffed in the dummy, would have been followed by a heart to West's A and then a third diamond would have smashed another spade off the board. Declarer then could not have run the hearts because he could not have won a third round of spades on the board. He would have been obliged to lose one trick in each red suit.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-Spade on this deal and West 4-Hearts, what should North do?

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Teach me half the gladness
That thy brain must know,
Such harmonious madness
From my lips would flow,
The world would listen then, as I am listening now."
—Shelley.

Dear Friends:

Sitting this week trying to think of something else besides pain, I tried to remember some of the things I had laughed at, in the past, and here are some of them, and maybe you will laugh at them too.

Once I saw a man step on a roller-skate at the top of the stairs and shoot right to the bottom, and even if he had hurt himself badly I could not have stopped laughing until the tears came. The way he got up, breathing fire and sudden death to his young son who had left it there, the way he dashed upstairs to give him a beating will be a memory that will always make me mirthful as long as I live. (He just got a few bruises).

Another thing which makes me laugh are some of the photographs and snapshots we have collected through the years. The clothes we wore, thinking they were pretty snappy at that. The look of strain on our faces, the unnatural poses, and the feeling of consternation we had when we saw the finished article. Surely we were betterlooking than that? But some kind friend always told us "the camera does not lie." Oh well, they are good for a chuckle anyway.

Once I came out of a store, opened the back door of a car, chucked all my parcels on the back seat, and said annoyedly, "You might have helped me with those. Lost your arms or something?" Then hearing someone laugh heartily, and find to my consternation I was in someone else's car, and had to lug the darned parcels out again.

When I was in New York, my sister and I laughed till we ached at the memory of one of them who, when she was young had got a new pair of shoes, and was so taken with them, that we found her asleep in bed with her new shoes clasped to her bosom. How funny she looked.

And another one of us who went to bed with a new wool beret on so that she would not be late for the picnic the next day. That same one had us looking for her hat a few years later, she could find it nowhere, and after we had hunted until we were all late for the office, we found she had it on her head.

Not so long ago I was highly amused when a friend advised me to read Roberta's column, as she was sure I would like it. She doesn't know yet, but may laugh when she reads this.

Did you ever step jauntily along the street, not bothering about anything, then step on a little pebble and shoot up in the air like a jack-in-the-box? Funny isn't it, but you don't get any fun out of it at the time.

I get a great deal of fun out of things I overhear on the street, and trying to piece the one with the other as I go along. The results are sometimes so startling I have to laugh.

And so I sit here telling you these things so that you may get a laugh out of them too. I like to store up memories of funny things, don't you? Then we can take them out on drab days and enjoy them all over again.

Once my foot caught on the edge of the pew at church and I shot into it trying to save myself from falling. We were no good for the service that morning, all we could do was laugh silently.

Why not tell us some of YOUR funny experiences? Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Pass Grant For War Memorial

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 22.—The Seymour West Women's Institute decided at their regular meeting to give a substantial contribution towards the War Memorial in town which has recently been altered by Mr. A. H. McKeel.

Mrs. James Waters presided over the meeting which sixty-two members attended as well as visitors from Stanwood, Seymour East and Campbellford. Mrs. Walter Brunton played the accompaniment for the Institute Ode, after which the Lord's Prayer was said in unison.

"Something to be thankful for," the roll call was well responded to and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

In making their decision to contribute to the War Memorial Fund it was made known that all those wishing to make donations within the next month should do so either through the president or the secretary. It was also reported that an Armistice Day donation would be given.

To Send Delegation.

The discussion of the Belleville convention on October 27 and 28 decided members should send a delegation and arrangements were made for several of the members to attend. The three schools which the Institute aids in various ways will again be given prizes for the oratorical contest and for the destructive birds' eggs collected for the school fair.

Arrangements were made to hold a cooking sale and tea on Saturday, November 27, for which all members and adherents were asked for their co-operation. An institute section will be sponsored again next year at the agricultural fair. Next month points are to be given the members for bringing recipes for the bride's cook book.

Discussion followed the report of the Codrington rally and district executive meeting which was given by Mrs. Howard Clark. Mrs. George Longmuir, one of the oldest grandmothers present, was called on by Mrs. James Clark and contributed a very interesting reading to the program.

The National Anthem was sung and lunch was served, bringing the meeting to a close. Among those assisting Mrs. A. M. Anderson, the hostess, in serving lunch were Mrs. Charles Craighead, Mrs. Harold Shaw, Mrs. Robert McCulloch, Mrs. Howard Clark and Mrs. David Durran. Mrs. Archie McCulloch very generously offered her home for the next meeting.

"BETTER 'Y'-BETTER GIRLS"

CALVES ADVANCE, HOGS AND CATTLE OFF DURING WEEK

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (CP).—Killing cattle traded at the slowest pace of the year on the Toronto market this week, the Dominion livestock branch reported, and stockers also became almost unsellable towards the close. Cattle prices dropped about 25 cents as did lambs. Hogs were off 50 to 65 cents cwt., but veal calves advanced 50 cents and sheep were steady.

Killing cattle of any quality found few buyers after Monday. The holdover of 700 head from the previous week was increased to around 3,000. Toronto packing plants were overloaded with live and dressed beef, chiefly from Western Canada.

The cattle run of around 10,000 head included 5,100 from the Prairies. Monday's market showed a top of $9 for good heavy steers with several loads unsold at the close. Butcher cattle moved to smaller buyers at $3.50 to $6, with top heifers $6.50. Butcher cows ranged from $2.75 to $4.25, canners going generally at $2.

Good butcher bulls sold at $3.75 to $4.50 Monday, with none above $4 in later trading. Bolognas were $3 to $3.50 cwt. A few choice fed calves reached $11, others bringing $7 to $10.

Store cattle inquiry was fairly active in the opening session but weakened afterwards and prices were down about 25 cents. A top load of weighty feeders sold at $6.25, while ordinary stockers traded from $3 to $4.50. Another load of good feeders moved Wednesday at $5.65. Milkers and springers brought $35 to $95 each according to quality.

Slow Sales Ahead

Indications are the market will show no improvement in the coming week, the Livestock Branch said.

Calf receipts included 900 from the West. Export buying was responsible for the higher prices. Choice vealers were $10 to $10.50, with occasional tops at $11. Common lights ranged down to $5. The best Western calves went to killers at $6 to $7 while stocker calves brought $4 to $5 cwt. Some heavy grassers went at $4.

Hogs opened 50 cents lower at $8.50 to $8.65 off trucks for bacons and the loss was extended by Wednesday. Thursday's light run was steady at $8.35 to $8.50. Light Western feeders sold at $3.50 each, while some around 100 pounds reached $8.50 cwt.

Three cars of Western lambs and some sheep were received. Lambs dropped to $7.75 off cars for good ewes and wethers, and $7.50 off trucks. Bucks and heavies were discounted $1 cwt, while culls were priced at $6 to $6.50. Western feeding lambs brought $8.50 to $7 cwt.

Sheep ranged from $1.50 to $4.50 cwt., with salesmen asking $8 each for breeding ewes. Show lambs from St. Joseph Island in Lake Huron sold at $8.35 for tops, with others from $6 to $7.50. Middleville Fair lambs brought $8 cwt., and two champions reached $10. Middleville is 40 miles west of Ottawa.

Lieutenant-Governor Opens New Runway

wife at the time of the shooting. The bereavement had followed business reverses in which Lee had lost his interest in the plant, which had been taken over by Jackson. Walsh also said blows on the head when Lee was young tended to unbalance him mentally.

Brought from Brazil, Ind., to testify on behalf of her brother, Miss Rose Lee said he was a "fanatic" in his opposition to drink. Lee always was religiously inclined, Miss Lee said, and told of three accidents in which her brother suffered serious head injuries. Blind, Miss Lee was led into court by D'Arcy Lee, son of the accused.

Completing the Crown's case, Detective Howard Moreau told of a conversation he had held with Lee and two of the victims in hospital after the shooting. He quoted Lee as saying: "Those fellows lying there yelling don't bother me a bit," and that he had "wanted to blast their hearts to pieces."

OTONABEE BOY WINS TOP PLACE

Arthur Drummond of Otonabee was named high boy of the Norwood District Boys' Holstein Heifer Calf Club as seasonal results were compiled and announced yesterday. He scored 948 points out of a possible 1,000, and won the Coronation Sweepstake ribbon awarded by the Ontario Fairs Association.

The first fifteen boys in the final standing after Drummond were: Irvine McIntosh, North Monaghan, 947; Gordon Stalker, Smith, 943; Alan Davis, Otonabee, 935; Jim Moore, Smith, 933; Elwood Eason, Otonabee, 919; Bert Fife, Otonabee, 908; Alan Drummond, Otonabee, 907; Keith Manley, Otonabee, 899; Ray Hope, Otonabee, 897; Archie Elmhirst, Otonabee, 896; Richard Coughlin, Asphodel, 890; Douglas Armstrong, Otonabee, 880; James Hope, Otonabee, 879; Frank Fife, Otonabee, 873.

Exhibitors of the first seven pure-bred calves were named as follows: Arthur Drummond, Irvine McIntosh, Gordon Stalker, Elwood Eason, Ray Hope, Keith Manley and Alan Davis.

Exhibitors of the first six pure-bred yearling heifers from the 1936 calf club were named in the following order: Douglas Armstrong, Jim Moore, Frank Fife, Alan Drummond, Alan Davis and Bert Fife.

MILK WAGON HIT BY C.N.R. TRAIN

LINDSAY, Oct. 22.—Ralph Mark, a locaiy cairyman, and his nephew, Clayton Mark, narrowly escaped serious, if not fatal, injuries on Wednesday morning when their delivery wagon was struck by a C.N.R. train on the Lindsay street crossing. The horse became unmanageable at the crossing and ran in the same direction as the train, which completely demolished the outfit. The occupants both jumped clear of the wagon, but Mr. Mark was between the outfit and the train. His escape was nothing more than miraculous. Milk bottles were strewn in every direction and milk spilled in large quantities.

Such suggestions had been made, he said. These are very serious suggestions," he said. "I do not underrate them for a moment. I know the idea that the Italian Government had some such notion is widely held, and not only in this country. But I believe the idea to be unfounded."

He surprised the House with an announcement that British ships, protected by the Royal Navy, had evacuated 30,000 refugees from the Spanish port of Gijon that fell yesterday to the insurgent troops driving through north-western Spain.

May Move Only 5,000

The prime minister said that token withdrawals of volunteers from Spain under the new plan before the non - intervention sub - committee would be made, in equal numbers from each side in the war.

Pressed by Labor for a clarification as to the meaning of a "symbolic" withdrawal, Mr. Chamberlain described it as:

"A trifling, small amount. The number has not been actually fixed. Suppose it was 5,000. I do not say it is. It may not be as many as that."

Foreign Secretary Eden, in a lengthy review of the situation in the far east and Spain, praised Italy for her conciliatory move toward settlement of the volunteers question. He reaffirmed to the House that Britain would zealously guard her imperial interests.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, opposition Liberal leader, called for close co-operation with the United States in steps to settle the Sino-Japanese conflict.

The debate ended when the House approved by a vote of 200 to 111 a government motion for adjournment.

CREAM CANS SPILL AS TRUCK UPSETS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 22.—A truck belonging to Jeffrey's Creamery, Millbrook, was turned right over on its side, and partly in the ditch, just below the corner on Argue's hill, north of the village, shortly after noon on Wednesday.

Coming down the hill, and making rather too wide a turn to avoid a second truck coming up, apparently led to the accident, the slippery condition of the road because of the heavy rain, also having a share in causing the mishap. The driver, Arthur Richards, and his companion, Harry Freelove, were unhurt, and while the load of cream cans was spilled, they were fortunately empty and loss of contents was thus avoided.

BYRNES REFUSES ANSWER QUERIES

of certain deposit boxes was embarrassing him for cash, Byrnes declared: "I don't think that is any of your business. I'm sick and tired of being persecuted by you and I don't intend to help you and that is my main reason for refusing to answer."

Byrnes' counsel, W. N. Tilley, K.C., argued the provincial treasurer "cannot revoke a discharge of an estate which was given by another provincial treasurer."

"It can and has been done," Fraser interjected. "The discharge in this case has been revoked."

The discussion closed with announcement of Byrnes' counsel this point would be argued in another court.

APPLES IN CLUSTERS

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP).—Arthur Embrey and son, Bobbie, are displaying branches from an apple tree on which the apples grow in clusters of five. The apples are very small.

Children's Aid Society Asks Department To Explain Its Present Dissatisfaction

Continuance Of Society's "D" Grading Worries The Members

A decision to ask the Department of Public Welfare to send a responsible representative to appear before the Children's Aid Society here and explain the Department's dissatisfaction with conditions in the Society which have resulted in continuance of the Society's "D" grading, was reached by a special Children's Aid meeting last night.

The meeting had been called specifically for reception of a committee report on Society conditions. During this summer a report to the Society from the Department indicated dissatisfaction with the work of Superintendent John Edgar and dissatisfaction with other features of the Society organization and functions, and the committee had been appointed to look into the Department's findings and report back.

The report tendered last night by Alderman James Dutton, chairman of the committee, urged that opportunities be afforded Miss Morrison, assistant to Mr. Edgar, for special studies in social work. It suggested that the criticisms of the Department were made without full investigation of records. The Department's claims that foster home findings was being neglected and that thorough medical examinations are not provided were dismissed but the report contained recommendations for complete school records of wards and for formal daily cost accounting at the Shelter.

Another Worker

Feature of the report was recommendation of the employment of "a properly qualified worker." The report said: "In making this recommendation your committee is not unmindful of the fact that such an appointment would mean added local expense. Should such appointment be made we feel that some assurance should be obtained from the Department that the rating of the Society will be raised so as to make possible increased financial assistance. Your committee also feel that in making such an appointment the preventive aspect of the Society's work would be receiving proper attention and in the light of the experience of others in this work would eventually result in decreased cost of maintenance and possibly the elimination of some of the causes that place liabilities on the municipalities."

Although Superintendent Edgar's name was mentioned but a few times directly during the discussions, Ald. Stocker opened a discussion which centered on the Department's dissatisfaction with the work of the Superintendent through the greater part of the meeting.

"Can anybody tell me what are the real duties of our superintendent?" Mr. Stocker asked.

In the Field

Mr. Dutton said the duties were outlined in the statutory regulations whereupon Mr. Stocker declared he felt Mr. Edgar should get out into the field during the greater part of the day rather than sit in his office from 9 to 5 o'clock.

When Mr. Dutton attempted to call Mr. Stocker a point of order, Mr. Stocker continued: "Give me a chance to say what I've got to say. You had better try and make the best use of the workers you have instead of talking about a new social worker. Put the present staff to better use and then, if you want, think about increasing the staff."

James Gifford, reeve of Ennismore and a member of the Society, said: "I am thoroughly convinced that we do not need any more workers. If our superintendent is not giving the proper service he could very easily overcome this in order that our rating could be raised." He suggested it would be advisable to have a member of the Department down so that both the Department's side and the Superintendent's side of the story could be heard.

Mr. Stocker stated that there were members present who had discussed the Society with the Deputy-minister and that they could reveal to the meeting facts which would "open your eyes." He looked to the row of seats occupied by County Warden Roy Brown and Mr. Gifford.

Alderman Dutton charged that too much petty criticism was being bandied about.

"That's the trouble," declared Mayor Macdonald. "There are too many going to Toronto and interviewing the Department. If the Department has any complaint why does it not come down here and make them. I believe one of Mr. Edgar's troubles is that he is a poor publicity agent for himself."

No Need

Warden Brown said he agreed with Mr. Gifford that there was no need for an additional worker. He declared also that the Society should have some more plain-spoken analysis of conditions than the report which had just been laid before it.

"The more I see of social workers the less use I have for them," Mayor Macdonald declared heatedly. He said the Society had no need for a social worker. If the members would support their superintendent all would be well, he insisted. He urged that that plan be followed for a year to see what can be done.

Alderman Stocker moved that the report be left with the committee and that a committee be sent to interview the Department of Welfare. He was seconded by Reeve James Milby.

"It appears that unless we make some changes we will stay in Class D," Alderman Dutton said.

"We'll stay in Class D as long as conditions continue as at present," Alderman Stocker declared.

Mr. Dutton moved that the Department be asked to send a responsible representative here to discuss conditions with the Society and the amendment carried.

BRIGHTER FUTURE FOR THE CHILD IS BEING PREDICTED

The new standpoint from which education of the young boy and girl is being approached was outlined to Kiwanians as K. S. Wightman, Public School inspector, addressed the club at luncheon today. He predicted that the new system will result in a brighter future in the entire realm of education, a future which will see the child learning because of a natural desire to learn.

A change in the fundamental concepts of elementary education has occurred gradually over many years, Mr. Wightman said. Unaware of this, many laymen have the idea the innovations being effected in the system this year represent a sudden, revolutionary departure but the basis of the changed viewpoint lies in a deep-lying evolution in concepts.

Going back to elementary education of the middle 19th century, Inspector Wightman said the early idea was to immobilize the young pupil as far as possible and cram his mind with as many facts as possible.

"The underlying concept was the memorization of facts," he said. "There are still some who will defend it saying the old-fashioned way was best. In this fact-stuffing education, however, the mortality was very high."

Not Empty Reservoir

Educators are beginning to learn the truth of Plato's claim that knowledge taken in under compulsion has little hold on the mind, he continued. "We have come to realize that the child is not an empty reservoir to be filled up with all the facts we can find but a living, growing organism."

The old system at its worst had little regard for the pupil as a human being, he said. The new concept is that his physical, emotional and social growth must be tended as well as his mental growth. Health and physical well-being in particular have already been given a more important part in most schools, he stated.

A real endeavor is being made to make the school a place which will mean pleasant associations for the child rather than a place of emotional stresses and strains, Mr. Wightman reported. He said the newer idea is to encourage the desire of the child to learn rather than merely compel him to absorb facts and figures.

Children Are Happier

"We do believe we are coming to an education where children are happier, where they are much better looked after and where there will be a much better promise for the future than there is today."

Hearing an apeal for support of the local Western Relief Committee effort from Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, the club voted immediately a donation of $50. As secretary of the committee, Rev. J. D. Paterson estimated the donation will mean almost 10 bags of potatoes. Conditions in the West are even worse than any newspaper reports have yet been able to depict, he said.

Spanish Loyalists Are Fighting For Democracy Maj. Lord Says

Great Bulk of Franco's Army Made Up Of Foreign Conscripts

"Spain is not fighting a civil war, but is fighting an invasion of international Fascism," Major Frederick Lord, D.F.C. (bar), claimed when he appeared on a local platform last night under the auspices of the Canadian Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy.

Pro-Loyallst in his sympathies, as is his pretty young wife Mildred, who also spoke, Major Lord has recently returned to America from Spain. When he went to that country last November as a combat pilot, Major Lord went in the role of a soldier of fortune, but what he saw there has made him a fervent supporter of the Spanish Loyalist cause.

A Texan by birth, who served in the Royal Flying Corps with the British forces during the World War, Major Lord was presented to the Peterborough audience by J. McArthur Conner, associate secretary of the Canadian Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy.

Asks Financial Aid

After Major Lord and his wife had related their experiences of the Spanish conflict, Mr. Conner supplemented their appeal by asking the financial support of their audience on behalf of the Loyalists.

The money was to be used by the Canadian Committee, he said, to send blood to Spain. The committee has from 1,500 to 2,000 blood donors on the list and blood is forwarded from Canada to the battle front in special refrigerated containers at the rate of about 90-gallons a month.

Though he had gone to Spain indifferent to the issues involved, Major Lord said, he soon saw that there was something fundamentally different than any other war he had fought in as a soldier of fortune.

He saw an entire people fighting to protect their government; fighting for their very lives. "They were laying down their lives in willing sacrifice that their new-born democracy might survive," he asserted.

The Major spoke of "the callous cruelty with which Franco is waging war on the Spanish people," and of "the unquestioned aid he is receiving from Rome and Berlin."

Franco's Conscript's

He gave the following figures, he claimed made up the bulk of Franco's army and stated that while Franco had no volunteers, on the other hand the Loyalists have no conscripts but all volunteers: 200,000 Italians; 40,000 Germans; 25,000 Portugese; 30,000 Moors; 20,000 Arabs, and others.

"Hitler and Musolini are pouring troops into Spain to destroy the Democracy that the people of Spain have created. The war is costing Mussolini over one million dollars a day and I don't know what it is costing Hitler. Both are becoming desperate and within the next thirty or sixty days they are going to launch a gas attack on Madrid," Major Lord Claimed.

See Writing On Wall

Speaking of the Loyallst forces, he declared, "there are today many thousands of foreign volunteers fighting for the Spanish cause. They are men who in many cases made sacrifices to get there and are fighting for a few cents pay per day. These men are not adventurers, but are men who have seen the Fascist writing on the wall and are determined to stop the Fascist avalanche now." He was proud to state, he added, that the international brigade comprised over one thousand Canadians, while it also included 5,000 German volunteers and a similar number of Italian volunteers.

"Spain has a fine army, which she has built up while keeping her wheels of industry turning; a fine courage and the will to win in their fight against the forces of Fascism." But one great need, he said, was medical supplies.

He contended that non-intervention pacts were hampering the Spanish cause, and complained that while the United States had refused to supply Spanish Loyalists with arms, the United States still chose to recognize Hitler and Mussolini.

United Against Fascism

"As these Spaniards have united and are fighting against all the powers of Rome and Berlin, they know they are fighting not only their own battle, but ours as well. This is a most important truth for Americans to understand. The Spain of today is the battle ground between Democracy and Fascism. That fight is ours as well as theirs. And they feel that as Franco is being openly supplied by Fascist countries, so their struggling democracy is going to receive the support of great democracies such as ours, and that someway, somehow, we will aid them in the common fight against Fascism."

Is that faith only a myth? Are you going to permit the Fascist slaughter of women and children to continue, or are you going to do something about it?" he challenged.

"For my part whether with bullets or words, I am continuing the fight for democracy and freedom," he concluded.

Made Appeal

Major Frederick Lord, D.F.C. (bar) and his pretty young wife Mildred Lord, are touring eastern Canada under auspices of the Canadian Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy. Recently returned from Spain, where Major Lord originally went as a soldier of fortune, the pair are pro-Loyalist in their sympathies. They made an appeal on behalf of the Spanish people in Peterborough last night.

2 Bridgenorth Men Were Lost In Woods Thirty-Six Hours

Exploring Territory North Of Oregon Trail For Hunting Grounds

Lost in the woods north of the Oregon Trail for a day and a half, with very little food and a cigarette-lighter their only means of making a fire was the exciting experience this week of two Bridgenorth hunters, Albert Nicholls and Harold Telford.

Nicholls and Telford, along with two other Bridgenorth men, Thomas Davis and Harry Pearson left Tuesday to locate a site for a hunting camp for the coming season.

The party who expected to be back home by Tuesday night and consequently carried only a few sandwiches as food struck off north of the Oregon trail and went as far as possible by car. Then Davis and Pearson, the two older members of the expedition remained at a shack while the others went on into the woods on foot.

While they were between Crane Lake on one side and an extensive swamp on the other darkness overtook them and they could not find their way out. Worse still when morning came they were still lost and wandered around all day trying to work out to civilization somewhere. Meanwhile their companions waited at the shack for the missing men to return.

When none of the party had returned to their homes in Bridgenorth by Wednesday night their relatives became alarmed and a search party that included the wives of Nicholls and Telford went north at midnight, fired off rifles and conducted an extensive search without locating the missing men.

However Thursday morning when blasting operations began on the Oregan trail road construction job, the sound gave Nicholls and Telford a chance to locate their whereabouts and they succeeded in working their way out of the bush and back to their car, none the worse for their exciting adventure.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN THE WOODSHED SOUTH-END HOME

Robert Taylor, 34, was found dead in the woodshed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Downer, 172 Lake street, with whom he had boarded for the past four years.

Mrs. Downer's son, Hilton Palmer, made the tragic discovery when he arrived home shortly after 11 o'clock last night. He notified city police.

Coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young who said death was suspected to have been caused by carbolic poisoning, declared an inquest would be held on Wednesday night of next week.

The remains were forwarded from the Duffus Funeral Home here this afternoon to the young man's home at Cobourg for interment at the Union Cemetery there on Saturday afternoon. Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thelbert Taylor he leaves a sister and four brothers.

Resident of Peterborough for seven years, he had been employed with Canada Packers Limited for a greater part of that time. Recently he was said to have obtained employment with the Scott Coal and Lumber Company but had not been at work a few days prior to his death.

The house smelled strongly of a carbolic disinfectant and it was reported police recovered a cork and a label.

Mrs. Downer declared the family had all gone to bed leaving Taylor alone downstairs. When her son Hilton arrived home shortly after 11 o'clock she called downstairs to him and asked if Bob was there. A search revealed his dead body crumpled up in the woodshed just off the back kitchen.

BE TEMPERATE IN ALL THINGS DOCTOR URGES

"If you would be well be temperate in all things," admonished Dr. J. E. Slocum, of Des Moines, Iowa, research director of the National Chiropractic Association of America, in a better health talk, entitled "Solving Your Health Problems," given to an overflowing audience in the Paragon Hall, Peterborough, Thursday evening, under the sponsorship of Drs. M. C. Goodwin and C. M. Lawrence, chiropractors and physiotherapists, of Peterborough. Dr. M. C. Goodwin introduced the speaker, while Dr. Lawrence acted as chairman.

Dr. Slocum, who is tarvelling throughout Ontario on a lecture tour in the interests of better health, counselled his listeners to protect their health as the most valuable thing they possess, for it was only through being healthy that one could be happy. He urged the audience to keep smiling, because it only takes 13 muscles to make a smile, while it required 65 to make a frown.

Three Things Cause Trouble.

The speaker pointed out that three things were at the root of all unhappiness in the world to-day. These three he defined as pain and suffering, want and thwarted ambition. These, he declared, were the most important things in the world.

Pointing out that the civilization of to-day had advanced further along the paths of knowledge, then any existing before, Dr. Slocum asked why people should continue to be sick. There are no people who are absolutely well, anywhere, he declared.

The reason for this state of affairs, he continued, was because people do not obey the natural, simple laws of health. Some people actually enjoy being sick, he declared. "Why, in America to-day, people spend $9,000,000,000 annually for the privilege of being sick.

Dr. Slocum stated that there were many things that caused disease. Among these, he pointed out, were over-eating, lack of exercise, uncongenial environment, and the prevailing habit of not taking enough liquids daily to counter-balance the amount of solids eaten. In this regard, he advised that everyone should take, at least, two quarts of liquid into the body daily.

Habits Cause Disease.

The speaker declared that the tap root of all disease was embedded in the soil of human habits and behaviour. Habits, he said, are to our lives what the rails are to a train. They take us to our destination.

In counselling temperance, Dr. Slocum said that this means everything that pertains to the human body, and urged his listeners to obey natural laws of health. "The mandate of the Universe is obey laws or become sick. Obey law or die," he said.

Giving a brief outline of the history of Chiropractic, Dr. Slocum declared that it was a mistaken idea that this was a new science. It was in existence over 2,000 years ago, and was practised by Hippocrates. "But," he continued, we have to thank a Canadian—Daniel D. Palmer, who formerly lived just east of Toronto, for having given it rebirth in Davenport, Iowa, in 1895.

He urged his listeners, when in need of certain treatment for health conditions, to go to the specialist in that field, and not to go to the person who had no knowledge of the methods used, or the principles involved. He also advised looking at the sun for just a second, to stimulate the eye.

Enjoyment of the gathering was greatly enhanced by a program of musical, vocal and elocution numbers, given by the following artists: Master Bob Hendry, boy soprano, who was accompanied on the piano by Master Albert Stevens; Miss Anna McLeod, violinist; Miss Grace Craighead, elocutionist of Lindsay. Miss Evelyn Martin also played some piano solos.

An interesting feature of the program was the drawing for prizes donated by local merchants and companies. Winners were as follows: Groceries, value $3, donated by Boyd's Grocery, won by Mrs. H. C. Lord, 129 Edinburgh street; merchandise, value $3, by Peterborough Printing Co., Mrs. Jennie Hill, 162 Parkhill Road; silver sandwich tray, value $3, by Warne's Jewellery Store, Mrs. Wilfrid Boorman, 243 McDonnel street; merchandise order, value $3 on purchase of Health shoes, by Neill's Shoe Store, Mrs. F. P. Patterson, 162 Parkhill Road; 5 lbs. Vip by Scientific Foods, Ltd., Mrs. F. S. Lambert, 161 Park St. N; 6 lbs. Ovaltine by A. Wander, Limited, D. C. Grant, c/o Neill Shoe Store.

During the afternoon, Dr. Slocum gave an interesting talk on health matters in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum to the students of St. Peter's High school and St. Mary's Convent, at which Mrs. F. Maybee played an enjoyable piano solo and Miss Margaret McCabe acted as accompanist for the general singing.

Canoe Traffic Up In September

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—(CP).—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported to-day September canal traffic amounted to 15,455,535 tons against 13,577,586 in September, 1936. Traffic on the Welland and St. Lawrence canals was the heaviest September traffic on record.

Total traffic on the Sault Ste. Marie canals in September was 12,585,095 tons compared with 11,041,096 in the same month last year.

Welland ship canal traffic amounted to 1,566,447 tons against 1,406,502 in September, 1936, while traffic on the St. Lawrence canals totalled 1,308,993 compared with 1,129,988.

Shipments of iron ore through the three canals showed large increases.

OTTAWA DOORWAY THING OF BEAUTY

OTTAWA, Oct. 22 (CP). — Under steady chipping of pneumatic chisels plain blocks of stone which have marked the main entrance to Canada's Parliament Building for the past eighteen years are being steadily transformed into intricate sculptured design.

The six men working at it—and most have worked abroad as well as here—are convinced the result will be comparable to the most beautiful doorways of Europe.

The design of ornament on the arches of the Peace Tower surmounting the entrance is not only notable for its general beauty, in the opinion of C. Soucy, foreman of the work, but also for its distinctly Canadian flavor. It incorporates such traditional national symbols as beavers, maple leaves and coats-of-arms, as well as the common pumpkin, wheat, partridges, owls.

Main feature of the archway design is a band bearing the Provincial coats-of-arms on a background of Canadian tree leaves and farm fruits. A smaller band embodies the Tudor rose, maple, shamrock, thistle, lily and Canadian birds.

A life-size lion on one side and a unicorn on the other bear the coats-of-arms of Great Britain and Canada. Immediately over the door under the arch is another large Canadian coat-of-arms on a massive background of maple leaves, and beneath it a lifelike beaver standing.

Grand Mufti Flees Jerusalem Following Acts Of Terrorism

Terrorist acts on the part of Arabs in Palestine have caused Haj Amin el Husseini (LEFT background), Mufti of Jerusalem, to flee from Palestine to Syria, while British authorities began dynamiting Arab homes in reprisal for the banditry and murder in the Holyland. The Mufti, until recently president of the Moslem supreme council and of the Arab high committee, is shown in this photograph as he addressed a group of representatives of the Arab peasantry in the petitions' room at the office of the Moslem supreme council in the temple area at Jerusalem. Following his escape from Jerusalem the Mufti hid in the Mosque of Omar, where he was free from arrest. He later escaped by sailboat to Syria. It is expected he will attempt to arouse Moslems in Iraq and Syria against the British and the Jews.

MURRAY STREET CHOIR PRESENTS MUSICAL COMEDY

Comedy, romance and rare musical pageantry, combined in classing "Miss Cherryblossom," one of the outstanding productions of the season.

With Arthur Colison, A.D.C.M., directing, this three-act musical comedy was presented Thursday night by the Murray Street Baptist Church Choir to a capacity audience.

At the rising of the curtain the music lovers present were transported into a fairyland that is Japan, showing them only its cherry blossom beauties, rather than the war clouds hovering over this island kingdom to-day.

A typical Japanese setting, together with the beautiful costuming, formed a charming background for the players, who wandered through the tea garden as the pretty romance unfolded in three acts. Through the rollicking songs and the witty dialogue, the story was disclosed, centring around Miss Cherryblossom, who is really an American girl, born in Japan and whose parents died when she was a child. Her father's secretary uses her property for himself, leaving her to be brought up as a Japanese maiden by Kokemo, the owner of the tea garden.

When Cherry is about eighteen years old, the secretary returns to Japan on his yacht with a party of American friends. One of them, John Henry Smith, falls in love with Cherry ad wishes to marry her, but Kokamo wants her to marry Togo, a wealthy politician. The action of the piece centres around Jack's efforts to outwit Togo and Kokema. Eventually Cherry learns her true identity, comes into her own property, marries Jack, and all ends happily.

Cast Well Chosen.

The cast was well chosen, showing fine musical ability, as well as a real talent for acting. A fascinating maid of the Orient, Mrs. H. R. Scott took the stellar role of Cherryblossom and captivated the hearts of her audience, as wel as those of her two lovers, John Henry Smith and Togo. The role of the former, a rich young American, is taken by Grant Palmer, who, with Mrs. Scott, sang some of the fine solo and duet numbers.

In startling contrast was the Japanese suitor, Togo. This dificult part was done in picturesque style and clever acting, by Walter Farr, whose deep bass voice was heard with fine efefet.

Carlos Palmer, as Kokemo, introduced much of the humor of the piece, in his "comedy of errors." In an inimitable manner, Mr. Palmer put acros his snappy witticisms. In one case he addresed his Geisha girls as my "Carrie Nations"—I mean—"My carnations," which was typical of h is many slips in speech.

An especially lovely character was Jessie Vanderpool, a niece of the visiting American, Horace Worthington. The role of this vivacious belle was charmingly taken by Mrs. L. Groombridge, while playing opposite to her was Walter Cocks, as Henry Foster Jones. These two bring a second romance to the plot and add much to the musical program with their fine selections.

Colorful Picture

A bevy of Geisha girls made a pretty and colorful picture in their gay kimonas, obis, graceful fans and rosettes.

In perfect harmony they sang the opening number, "We Are Geisha Girls," and various other choruses which followed. These girls, all of the choir, included Mesdames P. Johnson, Wells, Ingram, McNab, Clark and Fitzgerald, and the Misses Lemmon, Kitchen, Burgess, Weart, Barringer, Roseborough and Stenton.

Pretty afternoon frocks and lovely evening gowns were worn by the American girls of the play in their rhythmic numbers. Among these were Mesdames Budden, Cocks, Mann, and the Misses Rome, V. Scott, Pearson, Foster, Ellis, and Graham.

Squiring this bevy of maidens were the American men in navy coats and white trousers, and carrying the traditional cane: J. H. Bell, J. Dundas, Sylvester, Dallin, F. Trotter and R. Lynch.

In addition to the brilliance of the stage work and the fine harmony of voices, much of the success of this musical comedy was due to the efforts of those "behind the scenes." Not the least of these were the two pianists of the evening, Misses Pearl Smith and Edith Rennie, whose fine technique was greatly enjoyed. To the play director, Mr. W. Fitzgerald, much credit is due for the smooth and effective handling of the dialogue, while Mr. S. Valentine was responsible for the splendid staging, some of the scenery being the product of his own art.

The lighting effects throughout were especially good and were in charge of Mr. T. J. Stenton.

CAMPBELLFORD.

Mrs. T. A. Brown, Toronto, was a visitor in town during the early part of the week.

Mrs. J. E. Birks is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. P. Morton, and Mr. Morton in Chapleau, Ont.

BAR LEFT-HAND DRIVING

To stop accidents caused by British motorists, Brussels, Belgium, is erecting bold signs reading "Remember to drive on the right."

Back To Stage?

Mrs. Jack Dempsey, wife of the former heavyweight champion, will return to the stage she left in 1933 to marry Jack, according to amusement circles in New York. Mrs. Dempsey, who as Hannah Williams, was a star in Billy Rose's "Sweet and Low" in 1931 and popularized the song, Cheerful Little Earful."

Whitby Board Of Education Starts Action Against County Of Ontario

WHITBY, Oct. 22.—The County of Ontario will be sued for $8,007.36 by the Board of Education of Whitby, it was revealed this afternoon when Town Solicitor Duncan McIntyre served a writ on County Solicitor R. D. Ruddy.

The county, at the last session, authorized the payment of $3,251.52 to the Board of Education as being their claim against the county under the provisions of the new school act. The cheque was returned and action instituted for the whole amount plus interest.

MARAUDERS STEAL SUPPER REMNANTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 22. — Some time after the fowl supper in St. Andrew's basement on Tuesday night, possibly during the early hours of Wednesday morning, some person or persons unknown broke a window in the primary class room, obtained entrance, and stole all the food or elsewhere, following the supper, which had been left in the kitchen.

Fortunately the fowl and the best of all the baking left over had been sold, but there was quite a quantity of cakes, and pies which had been cut and partly used, biscuits, bread and butter, etc., on hand which it had been the intention of the Women's Association to use for a tencent tea for the young people on Wednesday evening. However only a few jars of pickles were overlooked by the marauders.

The loss was not discovered until some of the workers arrived on Wednesday morning to complete the work of clearing up after the supper. Apparently the night visitors were in a position to know that a quantity of good food would be left in the church basement after so big an event as the annual fowl supper invariably is, and laid, and carried out, their plans accordingly.

Member of the Association and other helpers had not left the church on Tuesday evening until midnight or shortly after, the sale of fowl and baking after the program, and other tasks keeping them fully occupied until a late hour.

Signed Treaty

With a peculiar expression on his face, probably one of pleasure, Dr. Milan Stojadinovic, premier of Jugoslavia, walks into the French foreign office, where, a few minutes later he put signature to the treaty between his country and France. The doctor, apparently, is happy that his country, if few others, has been able to conclude peace instead of war arrangements with another power.

HART HOUSE FOUR PLANS ITINERARY

LONDON, Oct. 22 (CP)—The Hart House String Quartet of Toronto, which has been in England since April has just spent a month on an estate adjacent to that of Lady Maud Warrender near Rye, Sussex. A disused chapel was placed at their disposal for rehearsals.

Several musicales were given by the quartet before enthusiastic music-lovers. The artistic colony of Rye includes such personalities as its mayor, E. F. Benson, Fuller Maitland, Radclyffe Hall, Sheila Kay Smith, and W. E. Seward, famous American collector of Italian musical instruments.

Before their second London recital on Oct. 9 the Canadian quartet will fill engagements in the English provinces. This will be followed by November tours in the Scandinavian countries. Their plans for returning to Canada are still indefinite.

Novel German Zeppelin Plot Comes Out 20 Years After

Craft "Built Of Supplies" For Cornered African Troops Failed At Goal By Ruse

LONDON, Oct. 22—(CP). — Almost 20 years after the event, the story of how a British ruse foiled a novel and daring attempt by Germany to send relief to her hard-pressed forces in East Africa during the Great War is told in the book, "Zeppelin," relating experiences of the late Captain Ernest A. Lehmann.

One of Germany's greatest Zeppelin commanders, Capt. Lehmann died from effects of injuries suffered when the airship Hindenburg crashed and burst into flames near Lakehurst, N.J., last spring.

Aware their troops in German East Africa were in urgent need of food supplies and war materials, Admiralty officers entrusted Capt. Lehmann with a bold plan to relieve the situation. With utmost secrecy, he ordered construction of an airship, given the naval designation "L59."

A Queer Craft.

When it emerged from the factory it looked like any ordinary Zeppelin, but a stranger craft never saw the light of day."

The "L59" had a cotton envelope, designed to be remade into tents and tropical uniforms when it arrived at its destination. Sleeping bags were to be cut from the gas-bag material and shirts from the linen partitions.

Girders and struts of the duralumin frame were to be converted into portable collapsible barracks and a wireless tower. The airship's motors were to serve as motor power for the dynamos. The cat-walks were covered with sturdy leather, which was to be used to make shoes for the colonial troops.

Included in the cargo were 311,900 boxes of ammunition, 30 machine-gun belts containing 13,500 cartridges, 30 machine-guns, nine spare gun barrels, medical supplies, sewing machines, bush knives and food supplies.

In November, 1917, Lieut. Commander Ludwig Bockholt was placed in charge of the ship and under sealed orders was given instructions to take off from Staaken, with the first stop at Yambol, 900 miles away.

The secret was so well kept the ship was fired upon by Turkish anti-aircraft guns. And the Turks were allies of Germany. From Yambol the "L59" headed for Crete, crossed the Mediterranean and the Libyan desert. Meanwhile, news of the flight reached the British war office. How the secret leaked out or the precise burden of the ruse may remain a secret for all time. But the "L59" never reached her East African destination and this is the story members of the expedition told on their return:

"When we crossed the Nile at the second cataract it was already dark. We navigated by the stars and made a wide circle around Khartoum for we did not wish to be seen by the English.

Ordered To Return

"Then on a wave-length previously assigned to us by the German station at Nauen, we received a terse message from the admiralty: 'Abandon undertaking and return stop enemy has occupied great part of Makonde highland and is already at Kitaugari stop remainder of troops attacking Portuguese from the South.'"

"Although everyone on board was against the return, emotional reactions carried no weight. Bockholt was too much of a soldier not to obey orders. Abandonment of the flight was a closed issue and would very well have remained so even if Bockholt had known that the semi-official English message from the Malta wireless station, which had inspired the order from the German admiralty, had falsified and exaggerated the situation."

As Italy Signed To 'Play Ball' On Mediterranean

CENTREVILLE, Oct. 22.—The annual public speaking contest for the public schools of South Monaghan township was held in the Sunday School Hall on Tuesday night. KITCHEN SHOWER ENJOYABLE EVENT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 22.—About two hundred invited guests were present in Lynch's Hall Wednesday night at a kitchen shower, arranged by some young men of the village in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon English (nee Eleanor Garvey).

A table on one side of the hall was loaded with gifts and a towel pinned to the wall had many gifts of money pinned to it.

After supper, Mr. and Mrs. English were called to the floor, Gordon, on behalf of his wife and himself, thanked the donors for the many gifts and extended an invitation to visit them at their home.

Michael English, Sr., of Peterborough, was floor manager for the square dances and the music was furnished by Grady's orchestra, of Elgin. Doug. Hutchison and his band from Havelock furnished the music for round dancing.

A feature of the affair was when a dozen or more step dancers performed for the big audience. Among them were: Michael English, Clement English, Charlie Deemie and others.

Used to Wake Up With a Headache

Now Fresh and Lively Every Morning

Here is a man who work up every morning with a dull headache. Then Kruschen transformed his days. Read his letter:—

"I used to wake up in the mornings with a dull headache. A year ago, I started taking Kruschen Salts regularly. Today, I wake up fresh and lively and can do my day's work without any exertion. I can recommend Kruschen for anyone suffering from headaches and constipation, and for putting new life into you. I intend to continue with Kruschen for the rest of my life."—E. P.

Headaches can nearly always be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them from forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings quick and lasting relief from headaches.—advt.

Wedding Parties Who Toot Horns Are Violating Anti-Noise By-Law

NEWLY weds who ride in procession through city streets to the accompaniment of tooting automobile horns violate one of the provisions of a city ordinance enacted last July.

The ordinance in question is the Anti-Noise By-Law, which has a provision specifically prohibiting "unnecessary blowing or tooting of automobile horns". It carries a penalty clause which empowers the magistrate to levy a fine not in excess of fifty dollars on conviction. Assistant City Clerk E. A. Outram said the provision definitely applied to the indiscriminate use of horns on motor cars taking part in wedding processions through the city.

Since the by-law came into force the motorcycle traffic constable has halted wedding parties on several occasions and warned drivers about unnecessary noise, it was learned at the police office. So far however no summonses have been issued in this connection and the blast of auto horns is still the general accompaniment to wedding processions. There was such a procession on Thursday.

A local King's Counsel, a married man himself by the way, thought use of the word "unnecessary" in the provision of the by-law might provide a loophole for any bride and groom unfortunate enough to be summoned before the Bench. The court might have to decide, he laughed, whether the "blowing or tooting of automobile horns" was unnecessary at a wedding.

Another lawyer, also a married man, asked for his opinion cautiously replied: "It all depends. If they can blow their horn twenty years from now, it might be better than blowing it on their wedding day".

Hanson's Spectacular Running Features Blue Bombers' Drive For Another Title

Coach Fritz Confident Winnipeg Team Will Regain Grey Cup

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 22. — Bob Fritz, head coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, powerful grid machine that astounded football followers all over Canada with its upset of Hamilton Tigers in the Dominion football final of 1935, has another team of championship calibre again this year.

Bob has been working hard since his history-making 1935 aggregation rolled smashingly to the Canadian title, and this year's team shows all the effects of his strenuous building and improvement campaign. With most of the 1935 stars back in the lineup, and many sparkling young additions, together with a reserve list much surpassing in strength that of any previous year, Coach Fritz can see no reason why Winnipeg shouldn't bring the Grey cup to the west for the second time in its history.

"We have a team this season," states Bob decisively, "that I will personally guarantee to give any grid machine in North America a battle. We have backfield strength and line strength, and what's more, both my backfield and line improve every time out."

Weakened By Oja's Injury.

His statement is without exaggerstion. The Bombers admittedly didn't look so good at the first of the season. This was due partly to the fact that Dr. Bert Oja, strong man of the Winnipeg line since he came here in 1935, was hurt in the first Western Conference game when Calgary defeated the Bombers and has been unable to play since. He gave up his position as line coach to the team captain Greg Kabat, and is serving in an advisory coaching capacity.

Another factor that makes Bob's predictions easy to believe is that Fritz (Here-He-Comes-There-He-Goes) Hanson is having one of the best seasons of his career. So far this season Hanson has scored an average of one touchdown per game and two in one contest, all on runs averaging over 40 yards.

Everyone present at the Dominion final of 1935 will remember his sensational 65-yard run through the entire Hamilton team for a touch. Imagine, if you can, Fritzy doing this same thing six times, and twice in the same game. That against opposition that Bob Fritz admits is stronger than the Hamilton team of '35.

Power on the Line.

Bud Marquart, Jeff Nicklin, Cliff Roseborough, Eddie James — just glance over those four names, folks, and you have something that signifies power, or I don't know how to spell the word. Marquart, the lanky flying wing, hauls in passes if they are anywhere within hailing distance, and excels in getting down the field to make tackles after punts. Jeff Nicklin is a dependable end, and James and Roseborough, plus the dynamic Bob Fritz himself, supply the plunging power that will carry the Bombers far along the trail to the Grey cup.

Fritz Hanson . . . Star of Winnipeg Attack

Along the line the Peggers are especially strong. With Lou Adelman, Ole Midgarten and "Phat" Hatakin alternating at centre, Slush Harris and Lou Mogul at inside positions, and a pack of experienced huskies such as Mel Wilson, Bill Nairn, Eddie Kushner, Martin Gainor, Herbie Mobberley, Bill Cerretti, Mike Shista and Howie Masson filling in, the Bombers have a front wall that will hold with the best.

In the backfield, backing up Art Stevenson, a newcomer from Hastings College, Nebraska, and the old guard of Fritz, James and Hanson, are Bill Boivin, Percy Daigle, Tubber Kobrinsky and Harry Badger, all promising youngsters, fast and shifty.

This year, under the Western Conference agreement, the top two teams in the loop standings will play off at the end of the schedule for the right to represent the west in the Dominion final.

Winnipeg looks like the one, but there is another team in the Western Conference who will give them plenty of trouble, and that is Calgary Bronks. The Regina Roughriders, third team in the group, is far below their usual mark and have been eliminated from a playoff berth.

Whichever of these two teams comes out on top, look out, you easterners, you're going to know you've been in a rugby game after the Dominion finals are over.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd C'uckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

SOME SATURDAYS it comes up a blank, athletically speaking, around these parts, and other Saturdays it comes up a heavy slate. And tomorrow sees it come up a heavy slate—there being no less than three rugby games billed for Peterborough. A junior school scrap in the a.m. and a double-header in the aft, both at Riverside Park. Lindsay and P.C.I. Juniors play at 10.30 in a loop fixture, while at 2.00 the Malvern Collegians of Toronto tackle P.C.I. Seniors in an exhibition tussle, and at 3.30 ye Orfuns take on Toronto Eastsides in an O.R.F.U. number. Just two bits to see this nifty twin bill in the p.m. These games deserve a huge crowd of football fans. The local lads need their vocal and financial support, they dish up dandy rugby, and the customers can't go wrong on an offering like this.

* * * * * * *

COACHES JACKSON and Bamforth have their P.C.I. squads in the pink and rarin' to go. The local junior have a well-nigh impossible task facing 'em in the big, experienced Scugog squad, but they'll make it a battle And the senior Garnet and Gray gang will be meeting tough opposition in that smooth Malvern outfit, but they ought to cop the nod. Orfuns, too, are liable to get a severe jolt when they crash into those hard-hitting Eastsides, recently bolstered a lot, and may absorb their first reverse of the season — though we call Coach Turnbull's team to win. They'll all be bruising, exciting tilts from beginning to end.

* * * * * * *

ORFUNS ARE playing their fourth season in O.R.F.U. company. They were organized in '34 with Charlie Carson the manager and Gord Young the coach. They knocked off Belleville and lost to Mining World of Toronto but still went into Provincial finals 'gainst St. Thomas—there being some sort of mixup in playdowns. They were rubbed out by the Ontario champs. Some of the gridders on that team of 1934—and a number are still seeing service in Orfuns sweaters include: Hope, Magee, Richardson, Gardner, Gord Young, Sloan, Ashmore, Waddell, Francis, Kirkwood, Reynolds, Weir, Mitchell, Parnall, Broadley, Newson, Griff Young, Dinesen, Janeway, Gerow and Mesley. In fact the locals organized the present Central Ontario group.

* * * * * * *

LINDSAY WARDER player-writer concedes Orfuns the group title this year, but won't admit they are any better than the Lindsay Rotarians of 1936. He says we are right as far as Peterborough finishing stronger than Lindsay last fall—but then he persists in saying Meikle can boot 'em as good as Crowe. We merely stated Meikle was no better. The scribe says: "Efforts are being made to have a double game between Orfuns and Eastsides in Peterborough Saturday. The old proverb 'Experience teaches' can be applied in this case and, if the Petes are wise, they'll play both of their games at home instead of going to Toronto. Meanwhile, we hear that Toronto have been practising three nights a week, so this game with the Petes is going to be a struggle." Local players, beware and be wary.

* * * * * * *

COBOURG COLUMNIST bemoans the fact that local luck is too much for Lakeshore teams. Says he: "Once again the old Peterborough jinx triumphed and this time it cost us a chance of reaching top position of the O.R.F.U. group. To some that may sound like a first-class alibi but we really mean it. For some reason or other, the girls' softball team and our rugby hopes both staged the greatest display of off-colorness ever seen by any team. When playing Peterborough, with the checks down, as they say, it was nothing but a case of over-anxiousness (not to mention the umpire affair) and the feeling that they were on the well-known spot that beat the gals last summer. Then along comes our rugby hopes to suffer from the same ailment." Yeah, a doggone shame — but over-anxiousness, the well-known spot, and tough luck, are not peculiar to any one town in sports. We all bump into these troubles at times.

* * * * * * *

WORD FROM Port Hope is to the effect that efforts are being made to form a Central Ontario girls' basketball grouping to take in Port Hope, Cobourg, Belleville and Peterborough. It is the first year such an attempt is being made to form a lasses' cage loop east of Toronto—with teams consisting of school grads—and affiliated with the L.O.B.A. Haven't heard any local comment on the matter, but the idea is sound. There are plenty of good cagers in the Ladies' Basketball League which operates each winter at the Y.W.C.A. here. Maybe Lindsay would be interested, too.

* * * * * * *

CHURCH CAGE Loop opens tomorrow e'en in the Y.M.C.A. gym with two league games. St. John's and St. Paul's have a juvenile tussle at 6.30, while St. John's Junior play St. Andrew's at 7.30 o'clock. A bantam tilt may also be lined up if any of the other three teams of "under 15 years of age" want to tackle All Saints. An executive meeting was held last p.m. to line up these games and consider entries, all of which must be in by Monday. Last year's rules will be used for the first half, at least. This lively young circuit is shaping up okay for a busy season and teams planning entry should look lively over this weekend.

* * * * * * *

SOME SAY that Trenton Fliers may not play home games in Belleville this winter if there is no artificial ice there. It may be just chatter, but at anyrate there will be no artificial ice in the Quinte arena for another year anyway. Bill Hume, Belleville's hockey "angel" feels that the citizens of that town should get busy and do something for themselves if they want a return of artificial ice. He will help but will not go the whole hog again. As the writer there points out, not one artificial ice rink in Ontario—with the lone exception of Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto—showed a profit last winter. They all dropped dough. Places like Oshawa and Kingston get a donation each year to help out—and the Motor City plant isn't being opened this season till much later than usual. 'Tis an expensive undertaking, ye ken.

* * * * * * *

DESE, DEM and dose: Belleville Panthers play Trenton Fliers at the airport next Wednesday afternoon . . . . Belleville is three points down now in its battle for second place, the team having most points getting the nod in case of a tie . . . . In our book, Rusty Ringland was about the best gridder to play for Lindsay in recent years . . . . Dipiock is playing nice rugby for P.C.I. Seniors lately . . . . Puck rumors float about thick and fast in the town—but it's a trifle early as yet . . . . All is quiet concerning the boxing club here for several weeks now . . . . Blue Bombers play in Cobourg tomorrow and in Peterborough next Sat'day to end their schedule . . . . Got to shovel—that is, we gotta shove off now, so take her away, garcon.

LIONEL CONACHER TO PLAY HOCKEY IN BENEFIT GAME

TORONTO, Oct. 22.— (CP).— Life, evidently, is just one hold-out after another for Hooley Smith. The veteran centreman failed to come to terms last year with Montreal Maroons and wound up wearing a Boston Bruin sweater. Now the Hooligan's at it again and is the only player unsigned on the Boston squad.

Murray Murdoch never will equal in hockey the record of 1,965 consecutive games set up by the New York Yankees in baseball. But when hockey's shorter schedule and the tougher physical aspects of the game are considered, Murdoch's record looks pretty good. He'll play in a six-game exhibition tour with New York Rangers, starting this week-end that will run his streak to 600 straight games.

More hold-out news: Manager Red Dutton of New York Americans, says he is through trying to talk Nels Stewart into signing a contract. From now on, says Red, the matter rests between "old poison," as goalkeepers call Stewart, and Frank Calder, the N.H.L. prexy.

Farmer Eddie Shore is defenceman Eddie Shore again. The Boston ace, who has a large wheat farm outside Edmonton, reported for practice yesterday with Bruins at their Hershey, Pa., camp. He signed up and will be used Saturday night in an exhibition game against Hershey Bears.

Charlie Conacher just can't seem to shake that pre-season injury jinx. The burly Toronto Maple Leafs' right winger was out for a good many weeks last year when he broke his wrist at the start of the season. Yesterday he crashed to the ice at the end of a netward dash and injured his shoulder. Manager Connie Smythe and Coach Dick Irvin hope it won't turn out to be as bad as last year's injury.

Keep an eye open this winter for the new Ranger line of Bobby Kirk, Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall. The trio, brought up from Philadelphia Ramblers, a Ranger farm team, scored six goals in a practice game yesterday. If they keep that up it looks like a tough winter for seven N.H.L. goalkeepers.

Lionel Conacher is coming back to hockey. It's only for one game, though, for sport's "big train" will play Nov. 2 in the benefit game at Montreal for the family of the late Howie Morenz, famed Montreal Canadien's centre.

Badminton

R. O. BENSON

AS MENTIONED before, the Peterborough Badminton Club which plays in the market hall began its 1937-38 season last Saturday night with the first of the regular social evenings. Seated near the fire where a number of other players and spectators were taking their ease, Walter Perks became reminiscent as he informed us of the early history of the club. Way back in the days when badminton was cutting its teeth, locally at least, The Peterborough Badminton Club began playing the sport in the Y.W. Gym. Racquets and birds were supplied to the members. In 1922 the playing site was changed to the Armouries and remained here until six years ago. Then the market hall became the permanent residence of the group. For two years before they went to the market hall, they shared the armouries with the present Armouries Club. "Preferring not to merge the two groups, the officials decided to make their home where they are now situated. 'Forty per cent of the members now, are originals,' says Mr. Perks.

THE EXECUTIVE for this semester has been elected, putting W. M. Perks in the "White House." Vice president is H. I. Bradburn. W. A. Donnelley is treasurer and H. A. Toole, professor of economics and badminton, will have the position of secretary. An executive committee includes Dr. A. G. Howson, Miss Lenore Lyle, Mrs. Clare Collins and Don Ross, another school master who cuts some pretty nifty capers on the courts. Lenore Lyle is also ladies' captain while D. Ross is the men's captain. There will be one hundred and twenty members in the senior section. Mrs. B. D. Hall will have charge over the fifty juniors, but they will choose their own team captains.

THE OFFICERS have not yet made definite arrangements for the year, but they do have a few plans already in mind. One of these is the operation of a ladder tournament and the set-up which they have is pretty swanky indeed. In addition four teams will be chosen among the members and here material will be obtained for use in the regular tournaments as well as for the big Central Ontario joust in the spring. Knox Club courts will be ready for play Monday, Oct. 25 and Trinity is planning a formal opening party next week. All for now—So long until Monday.

clubhouse, will when completed, be one of the most modern. In the centre of the west wall is a large stone fireplace with cedar log mantel, while at the end of the house is a handy kitchen. Facing the rink and tennis courts is a spacious verandah.

The project is being supervised by Lou H. Ingram, organizer of the club. John Campbell is in charge of the work.

New Club House Is Being Erected

Over $1,500 is being spent on a new club house and a flood-lighting system is being installed over the skating rink and tennis courts at the Quaker Oats Limited property in Ashburnham. Nine horseshoe courts are to be built under the new flood-lights, while the ice surface on the rink is to be enlarged to cover an area 68 by 176-feet.

Members of the Quaker Fellowship Club of which Fred Ash is president are doing the work on the clubhouse, including installation of the lights. Heated by electricity the

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

AT THE FIRST meeting of the newly elected board of directors of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, the following officers were appointed: President, W. K. Sloane; vice-president, Judge S. L. Smoke; secretary-treasurer, F. M. Brown; chairmen—Property and Greens, B. Chesler; Finance, H. G. Walker; membership, H. Clegg; Games, R. Hendry; Open Tournaments, J. B. Fitzgerald.

IN PROMOTING K. Sloane from the office of vice-president to that of president, the board recognized service and the honor is well deserved. Two years ago Ken was chairman of the Membership Committee, and last year chairman of the ladies section. He has been a member of the board for several years, and the experience that he has gained during that time should enable him to guide the club to great heights during the season of 1938. Judge Smoke, the newly-appointed vice-president, while he may be considered somewhat of a newcomer to our club, yet he has had many years of experience at lawn bowling up in Paris. No doubt his experience will be of great assistance to the board. The secretary is again F. M. Brown and while no doubt there are other Browns, and lots of them, there is only one Fred. His work is outstanding for the club.

WE UNDERSTAND the ladies' section is holding its annual banquet at the Bob rooms next Thursday evening, October 28, and thus the 1937 bowling season will be decared closed.

Two Toronto Teams Play Here Saturday

The best fare offered local gridiron fans here this year is being served tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon in Riverside Park. It is a classy rugby double-header with two good Toronto teams playing two smart Peterborough outfits — and the admission for the afternoon is but 25 cents. Malvern Collegiate of Toronto plays P.C.I. Seniors at 2.00 while Toronto Eastsides tangle with the Orfuns at 3.30 o'clock. There is also a grid game at Riverside tomorrow morning, Lindsay and P.C.I. Juniors clashing at 10.30 in a regular C.O.S.S.A. scheduled fixture. The Malvern-P.C.I. tilt is an exhibition affair, while the Eastsides-Orfuns contest is an O.R.F.U. scheduled contest.

The twin bill in the afternoon will provide all kinds of keen action between smart squads. Malverns won out in Toronto last year and are rated just as strong in 1937. P.C.I. Seniors have a better team than last year, when they went to the Ontario semi-finals. The Eastsides have added to their lineup and will dish up a hard-hitting, close scrap, but will be meeting an undefeated team in the Peterborough Orfuns. These games—and the a.m. junior joust—should draw a big crowd of local football followers, and the fans are sure to go away satisfied.

BASKETBALL LOOP OPENS SATURDAY

The Church Basketball League will open this Saturday night at 6.30 in the "Y" with St. John's Juveniles playing St. Paul's, and St. John's Juniors meeting St. Andrew's at seven. If another bantam team wants to play All Saints, a three-game opening will be staged. The league executive made these arrangements at last night's meeting, and stated that all entries must be in by next Monday, the full schedules to be arranged next week. Last year's rules will be used for at least the first half of the season.

St. John's were the first junior entry. They have Chivras, Coleman and Jefferies of their '35 squad and several of last year's juvenile players. St. Andrew's have stepped up after winning the juvenile title four times and look like the team to beat again. St. Paul's, George St. and Murray St. are still considering entry and the league hopes at least two of them will floor junior squads.

St. John's look like the class in juvenile, having most their champion bantams of two years ago. St. Paul's, last year winners, and an expected George St. entry, may make them step plenty. Murray St. may enter here instead of junior. In both these sections, the league allows for teams with players playing rugby in arranging schedules. Other churches may enter as with some players moving up or out by the over-age route, an inexperienced team might win out.

The bantam group will present almost all new faces. George St. is the lone 1936 survivor with many former players. They are not definitely in yet. St. John's have but two of last year's team. Knox and All Saints are relying on two or three fair players and a bunch of novices. St. Andrew's will have a new team, while Trinity should enter a good outfit. This section should have at least four teams in, but any number can be obliged and would be welcomed this season.

McGill Is Favored To Repeat Triumphs

TORONTO, Oct. 22.—(CP).—McGill University of Montreal sought to-day to win its eighth straight Canadian Intercollegiate track and field championship in competition with four other Eastern Canadian colleges.

Because of its run of successes, the McGill team was favored with University of Toronto next in line and the other spots apparently a toss-up. University of Western Ontario apparently lost whatever chance of victory it had when Johnny Loaring, their great quartermiler and hurdler, was forced to forego the meet because of studies. It hardly seemed likely Queen's University or McMaster University of Hamilton would dominate for the team title.

The meet carried added importance to the athletes because winners might be included on the Canadian team that carries Canada's chances next year at the British Empire games in Australia.

Beaches - Imperials Battle Draws Most Interest Along Eastern Battlefront

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (CP).—The serious business of the East's football teams eliminating one another from championship consideration will begin tomorrow in the O.R.F.U. The Big Four and Intercollegiate Unions will reach this stage in another week.

If there is a decision in the second meeting of Sarnia Imperials and Balmy Beach, the losing team will play after that for marbles only. The winner at Sarnia—barring an unheard-of victory for Hamilton Panthers—will be the O.R.F.U. champions of 1937. Panthers are confidently expected to lose their remaining games to Sarnia and Balmy Beach.

Because a championship hangs on the result, the Beaches-Imperials clash should draw most interest in the East this week. Elsewhere, too, the football offerings are choice.

Scheduled Games.

Toronto's unbeaten Argonauts play hosts to the 1936 Big Four champions, Ottawa Rough Riders, while Hamilton attempts to win its first game of the season against Montreal Indians, tied with Ottawa for second place in the standing. The Intercollegiate schedule throws Toronto into action at University of Western Ontario and the winless Queen's against McGill in Montreal.

A third straight loss for Queen's will leave the tri-color all but on the outside looking in at a championship they have won twice in three years. Tigers also will lose a great deal of interest in titles if Indians hand them another licking.

Imperials and Beaches have met once this season, in a 7-7 tie at Toronto. The Eastern Canadian champions should win, but in these contests the Toronto east-enders are an inspired group. They have slim Abbie Box ready for a supreme kicking and passing effort. Herbie Moore is showing some of the best running of his career and altogether the team is primed to its highest form.

It will be a collision of well-timed machines, anyway. Both have been put through a hard week's training in rain, mud and fine weather. To put down this latest uprising of the Beachers, Sarnia has Ormond Beach and Hugh (Bummer) Stirling, plunging stars, a powerful line and a fleet backfield. The punting duel between Stirling and Box should be a treat to watch.

Shakeup With Bengals.

Drastic shakeups in the Hamilton lineup, threatened after Tigers' second loss, may take place, but on the season's play, Indians should hand the Tiger its third straight beating.

But the Tiger at home is a tough Tiger, and, with elimination on the wall, Indians may be surprised. What is needed most, from a Hamilton standpoint, is a return to form of Hawley (Huck) Welch and Doc Painton, the American star from Buffalo's Bonaventure College.

Western Mustangs will be without Claude Moore, one of the better Canadian passers, for the clash against Toronto.

NOT TOO OLD AT 75

LEEDS, England—(CP)—A founder-member of the Moortown Golf Club, H. Binks, now 76 years old, holed out in one at the 200-yard sixth hole while playing in a four-ball match on the course recently.

Fractures Leg

RAY OLSEN

Calgary Bronks of the Western Rugby Football conference suffered a severe blow when their star kicker and passer, Ray Olsen, fractured his left leg during a game with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Winnipeg. Olsen is one of the several American stars imported by Calgary. He will be lost to them for the remainder of the season.

CREIGHTON MINE WINS FIRST GAME

COPPER CLIFF, Ont., Oct. 22.—(CP).—Creighton Mine Cubs took a 4-to-1 victory from Strathroy Royals, defending champions, yesterday in the first of a best-of-three series for the Intermediate "A" title of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association. Second game and third if necessary, between the champions of the Nickel Belt and Southern Ontario will be played at Strathroy Saturday.

Thursday's game was postponed from Wednesday when a day-long rain made the diamond a sea of mud. Rain, hail and snow failed to stop play.

Babe Marchildon, Creighton pitcher, scored the winning run in the eighth inning when he came home from third on Bertulli's hot drive past Frank Fidler, Strathroy manager. Marchildon tripled as the first man up in the eighth inning to get in scoring position.

Two more runs were scored by the Cubs in the eighth when Cerre was safe at home when Fidler's peg on Barnett's hot fielder's choice to third was wild. Barnett romped home on a wild pitch.

Fidler scored Strathroy's run in the second. He singled to centre field, moved up on Barnes's sacrifice and Washington's infield out Mac McGowan drove in the Cubs' first run in the third, his fly to short right scoring Jacque from second.

Central Scores Last Minute Goal To Defeat King Edward

Smart Exhibition In 1-0 Victory—Goalies Play Clever Game

After battling throughout a smart soccer tilt yesterday (Thursday) afternoon to decide the winner of the Public School soccer championship, Central scored the only counter of the tussle just two minutes before the finish, through the efforts of Batten, who scored with a left footer that gave Curtis, King Edward goalie, no chance to stop, from a pass across the goal by Millen. Central. Both teams gave an excellent display of the scientific code. They meet again on Monday afternoon at 3.30 in the second game.

Last year these two teams battled in a nine-game series to divide the honors.

Smart Soccer Played.

From the kick-off Central penetrated the King Edward goal to find Dalliday repulsing their effort to send his front line into the Central goal area where Murduff connected with a terrific drive that Drummond, Central goalie, handled well, but it had the earmarks of a counter. They continued to bombard the goal until Kiff intercepted a combination play in the nick of time to send his pivot away to the other end where Batten rattled a hot drive into goal. Curtis, King Edward goalie, coming out in time to save a left foot drive by Batten. A smart combination play by H. Foster, for South-enders, sent his left winger into the Central goal to be blocked in the act of scoring. Clark dribbled his way back again up-field to find the going hard, as Foster, King Edward, bumped him and punted back into goal where Murduff compelled Drummond to throw himself at the ball for a fruitless flag-kick. At this point, the players gave an excellent account of themselves through effective combination that brought out the superb qualities of the half-back lines, particularly Parsons, at left half for Central, holding the dangerous right wing of Leether and Murduff, in fact, they were artists in their positions. Just before the interval, King Edward half-backs concentrated in positional play that had the Central attack in a quandry whereby their outside men delivered dangerous shots into goal that Drumomnd responded with accuracy in clearing. Two corner kicks by King Edward terminated in scrimmages in front of goal. Murduff picking an open corner that Kiff blocked quickly to lift the ball out of danger. The next corner McMaster placed a perfect centre amongst a sea of legs. Lee dribbling the ball out to the touch line. No scoring.

Goal Scored in Two Miutes To Go.

On resuming, King Edward forwards set a fast pace to keep the ball in the vicinity of Central's citadel, where the full-backs hild a busy session as Foster, King Edward, kept lifting the ball into goal. Clark and Lee replied with an aggressive first-time clearance to find the centre forward distributing the ball to the wings with an effective bombardment of the forwards. They fell into an easy going attitude that Central took advantage of as they kept sending the ball up into the scoring territory where Dalliday replied with a clever exhibition of defensive work. After a scrimmage in front of goal, Foster, King Edward, was injured but resumed playing. He took the situation in hand himself by sending his right wing away to the other end. Parsons battled with Leether and Murduff to find their combination bringing them inside the central goal area where Leether met a nice pass from Murduff to hit the crossbar with a lightning drive. Langton met the re-bound as Kiff pounced upon him to prevent a tally. He slipped the ball out to his left-half who sent Millen away to the other end. Two King Edward players battled in the corner but the outside right delivered a centre across the goal. Batten met the ball quickly with a left footer that skimmed the cross-bar. On the next visit Millen again broke through to send a low grounder across the goal. Batten, coming running in from the wing, delivered a first time left footer past the custodian. King Edward went back to find the defensive giving no latitude to again get within shooting distance to witness Curtis saving a sure goal from the Central centre. Central 1, King Edward 0.

King Edward—W. Curtis, goal; H. Dalliday and L. Shea, full-backs; A. McMaster, T. Foster and K. Anderson, half-backs; R. Leether, C. Murduff, K. Langton, H. Foster and D. Jamieson forwards. Subs—J. Weaver and L. Smith.

Central—F. Drummond, goal; R. Clark and G. Lee, full-backs; N. Foster, F. Kiff and J. Parsons, half-backs; W. Millen, D. Miller, E. Moorehead, S. Clark and G. Batten forwards: Subs—G. Burns and W. Smith.

Barry-Goodfellow Represent Wings

DETROIT, Oct. 22.—(CP).— Two veteran performers named on The Canadian Press all-star National Hockey League team last season will represent Detroit Red Wings in the Howie Morenz benefit game at Montreal Nov. 2, Manager Jack Adams announced last night.

The two are Marty Barry, centre player, whose work was a feature of the Stanley Cup playoffs last winter, and Ebbie Goodfellow, hard-hitting defenseman.

Soccer Notes

Saturday's soccer tilt is a cup game between the Canadian General and Canada Packers on King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock prompt. Referee W. Jones.

There were no less than three Posters playing in the school soccer championship final for possession of the Alex Kay trophy. Two brothers in south-end eleven and Neil Foster for Central at right-half.

The second game of the school series will be played on Monday afternoon between Central and King Edward at three-thirty. The Central boys are heavier but the King Edward boys are smart with the ball.

DEAD RECKONING

BY

BRUCE HAMILTON

READ THIS FIRST:

Tim Kennedy graduated into wouldbe homicide from the school of armchair murderers. With a lucrative dental practice and an enviable social position in a small town near London, Tim at middle age, feels happy and secure. Then Esther is run down by a truck, returning home weeks later a physical wreck, with all her former beauty shattered. Tim loses all interest in his wife and is greatly attracted by Alma Shepherd, a widow and a new client. He maneuvers to invite her to their annual tennis party. Tim assures Esther that he still loves her. He begins to see more and more of Alma who Esther now considers a friend of the family. Finally Tim determined that Esther must die. He begins to ponder on the safest means of ridding himself of his wife and plans a hoax suicide.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 17.

Six o'clock in the afternoon in Dr. Harold Arkwright's drawing room. He had wandered in rather vaguely, and sat moodily, picking at the hem of the brocade on his armchair.

"You've got the fidgets, Tim," said Arkwright brusquely. "Want a drink?"

"Thanks—I will. . . . Yes, I'm a bit out of sorts."

"Want me to run you over?"

"No, I havent come to that yet." He smiled, but his face quickly returned to gravity. "It's just that I'm not on terms with myself. . . . I'm worried, Harold."

"Well, let's have it."

"What about your little lot in there?"

He nodded toward the surgery.

"They can wait. Come—what's on your mind?"

"Esther."

"What about Esther?"

"That's just it—I don't know. . . . And I don't know why I've come to you. I suppose it's because you've known her since she was a baby. . . . I thought, after our talk a few days ago, things would be better. . . . Well, they aren't. There's no resilience in her. She gets more and more apathetic, more hopeless. . . . As if she's giving up the struggle. And I seem to have lost all power to help her. . . . Harold, it's breaking my heart to see her going the way she's going. Isn't there anything I can do to pull her out?"

Arkwright pursued his lips.

"Aren't you making rather heavy weather? She hasn't struck me as being as bad as all that."

"You haven't seen her relaxed. She can buck herself up when she wants to, but it's purely artificial."

"I still think you're exaggerating. You know, when she came to me the other day—her trouble wasn't the trouble of a woman who was giving up hope."

"It might have been clutching at a straw. . . . I tell you, I'm frightened for her sometimes. Her dreams. . . . And not only them. Sometimes it seems to me that she finds she ought to have died, that she's only leading a sort of posthumous existence now."

Arkwright shook his head.

"You're getting morbid, Tim. . . . There may be something in what you say, but I think your trouble is mainly subjective."

"Maybe you're right. I hope so, anyway. . . . Harold, how would it be if I took my holiday a bit earlier this year, and stayed away rather longer? We might go on a sea voyage. Don't you think a sea voyage might help Esther?"

"The old prescription. . . . It might work out; you'd be none the worse for it, anyway. All right, if you're waiting for my authority, go ahead with your sea voyage. And in the meantime I'll think over what you've said, and have another look at Esther in a day or two. But don't worry more than you have to."

The lounge of the William and Mary. Tim had fallen into the habit of ringing up Alma from the surgery when his last patient was gone, about once a week. If she was at home and disengaged, she would generally agree to come down to the hotel for a glass of Amontillado.

"Alma, will you do something for me?" he said abruptly, after a longer pause than usual.

"Yes, of course, I will, Tim, if it's something I can."

"You're pretty free during the day, I know. . . . I want you to go out of your way to see Esther, every now and then. Drive over to The Wilderness any time; she'd always be glad. . . . You see, I have my work. . . . She needs somebody sympathetic, to take her out of herself. Somebody who can have a bracing influence on her."

"Of course I will. . . . As often as she can stand me."

"I'm frightened about her, Alma. . . . You see, you never knew her as she used to be. She's so different—it's almost terrible. As if she's lost all will to live. . . . I hate to leave her alone."

He looked up, and to his surprise he saw that Alma's eyes had filled with tears.

"You know, Tim," she said, "I think you're about the nicest man I've ever met."

. . . And so to Esther herself.

Tim's first step was to cut off her supply of drugs. Ever since her return home her sleep had been scanty and fitful. She hardly ever had any difficulty in going off, habitually reaching her bed thoroughly exhausted; for during convalescence every little movement worked on her nerve cells with tenfold attrition. But her wakings were frequent, and, as has been seen, often violent. Sometimes, however, she would open her eyes quietly soon after midnight, with the dismal certainty that sleep would not return to her for many hours.

For the first few weeks, since she was no longer in pain, an attempt had been made to induce gradually a habit of natural sleep. She was given no drugs during this time, but the results were so unsatisfactory that a compromise was quickly made by which she was allowed 15 grains of aspirin every night. (It should be said that aspirin had never been a familiar recourse at The Wilderness in the way it is in many modern households.)

This produced a marked improvement, though by no means complete alleviation. The nurse had been in the habit of administering the aspirin, mixing it with a glass of barley water. When the nurse left Tim took over this duty, and he began experimenting at once.

During the first week he gave her the dose as prescribed, noting its normal effect on her. In the second week he graduated it off, letting her have 10 grains on Tues-

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MASQUERADE

"Well, here we are," said the Fox to the Wolf.

"Yes, and now to get Uncle Wiggily," spoke the Wolf. "I hope there will be no more of that silly fooling business of taking a lot of yellow carrots for gold."

"If there is to be any fooling done it will be done by you, as you are such a foolish fellow," snapped the Fox, who was not the most polite Bad Chap in the world.

"Oh, is that so!" sneered the Wolf.

"Yes, it is!"

"Bah!" growled the Wolf.

"Double bah and a couple of pish pushes!" snarled the Fox.

It was this quarreling noise of the Bad Chaps which Uncle Wiggily heard when he was in his cornfield where he had made a funny false face out of pumpkin as is often done at a Halowe'en masquerade.

Worries

"I had better stop this masquerade business and look to see what's doing," thought the rabbit gentleman to himself. "We rabbits cannot hear strange noises without finding out what makes them if we are to remain safe and happy in this world."

Laying aside the pumpkin false face, which he had put on upside down, Uncle Wiggily peered through the rows of tall cornstalks.

"Oh, bless my pink, twinkling nose and a pailful of soap bubbles!" he exclaimed when he saw the Fox and Wolf sneaking along. "They must be after me!"

They were. No wonder Uncle Wiggily was worried.

"But just being worried will not help matters any," said Mr. Longears to himself. "I must do something about it. Now what shall I do?"

His first thought was to run away. That's what any animal thinks when it meets danger—to run away—to get as far from it as possible.

"But if I start to run through this cornfield," said Uncle Wiggily to himself, "I will make a great rattling noise in the dried stalks. The Bad Chaps will surely hear it and come after me."

Then, all of a sudden, he had a bright idea.

"I'll masquerade!" he chuckled. "I have everything here I need to masquerade, as I would at Hallowe'en, though it's a bit early. I will drape some cornstalks around myself for a costume and I'll put the hollow pumpkin false face upside down over my head."

Wolf Jumps

No sooner said than done. In a few minutes Uncle Wiggily was transformed into a shock of corn with an upside down Jack o'lantern false face for a head. Then he stood very still. On came the two Bad Chaps. Suddenly the Wolf gave a little jump.

"What's the matter?" asked the Fox.

"Look! Do you see what I see?" whispered the Wolf.

"Oh, my goodness! It's a Hallowe'en masquerade," said the Fox. "Where in the world can Uncle Wiggily be?"

You may be sure the rabbit gentleman did not tell them. Instead he nodded his pumpkin head at them, with its grinning upside down mouth and when the Bad Chaps saw that they cried.

"Oh, don't chase us! We didn't do anything!"

Then away they ran as fast as they could run and how the rabbit gentleman laughed as he took off the pumpkin false face.

Now if the cake of soap will give the tablecloth a merry-go-round ride on the clothesline pulley I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the eggs.

DUCE MARSHALLING VAST NATIVE ARMY AFRICAN COLONIES

LONDON, Oct. 21—(CP)—Vernon Bartlett, diplomatic correspondent of the News Chronicle, charged in that paper yesterday that Italy is marshalling a native army of 3,500,000 trained troops in its northeast African colonies and carrying on a large-scale campaign aimed at gaining the support of the natives in British and French African possessions.

He said 300 translators were employed in the Italian Ministry of press and propaganda turning out material in 28 African dialects, with special emphasis placed upon various Moslem tongues.

Special efforts are being devoted to converting Emperor Hailie Selassie's former Amharic followers to the Italian cause, the article said. In Harar and Addis Ababa 50 new motion picture theatres have been opened where Fascist films are exhibited. Numerous Italian schools also were said to have been opened.

Militarization of the population is proceeding on a par with cultural steps, Bartlett said, adding that a five-year plan now under way would give Italy a native army of 3,500,000 soldiers in active service with an unestimated reserve composed of troops serving at least one day a week.

DEAD RECKONING

day, five on Thursday, and five again on Saturday. No very marked change was produced. Esther, of course, had no idea she was not receiving her draught properly. He gave her the barley water as usual, and as it had always effectively concealed the flavor she noticed no change. Tim would take the proper dose out of the bottle and dispose of it—either taking it himself, or letting it dissolve and run away with the waste as he washed himself in the bathroom basin.

The third week he let her have the barley water straight, and as he had anticipated, suggestion and habit began to prove too week to do the work of the drug. She became noticeably more restless, her wakeful periods came sooner and were longer protracted, and on the Friday she had another nightmare. Her loss of sleep left its mark on her face. . . .

It was about this time that Grantley, Harold Arkwright, and Alma Shepherd, following up Tim's hint, came to appreciate that his anxiety was based on rather firmer ground than they had suspected. . . . Tim was well satisfied, but he was not going to force things on. He wanted the initiative to come from Esther; and it took about 10 days for her to come to the point.

Hallowe'en Party Planned By Y.P.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINNGS, Oct. 22—"A night ni British Columbia" was the theme of the program of Trinity United Young People's Society, held on Monday evening in charge of Miss Jessie Lamb. Despite the rainy evening twenty-six members were present and enjoyed the interesting and educational program.

The call to worship by the president, Mrs. T. W. Newell, was followed by the devotions. Mrs. Newell then gave a splendid address on the life of Wesley Weatherhead, author of the New Study Book on "Dicipleship."

Next Monday evening's program will be in the form of a Hallowe'en party when the members will appear in costume. Mrs. J. B. Scriver and Mrs. C. Baker were appointed as a commitee to arrange for the evening's entertainment.

"O Canada, Our Fatherland" was chosen as the opening number of Miss Lamb's program and the following, some appearing in appropriate British Columbia costumes, presented their parts in very interesting manner. Preface of British Columbia by Mr. Kitchener Smith; the easly history of British Columbia by Miss Margery Scriver; transportation by Miss Jessie Hay; the Crowe's Nest Pass by Miss Frances Hoard; a prospector's story by Victor Scriver; the Orientals by Mrs. J. B. Scriver; current events on British Columbia by Miss Pauline Scriver and the tourist by Walter Edwards.

The closing hymn "God Bless our Native Land", was followed by the Mizpah and then games, supervised by Miss Jessie Lamb.

MANY-TOED CATS

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct. 22—(CP)—The kitten owned by Florence J. Bell, Hamilton, which has six toes on each foot doesn't compare with the feline pet at a department store here. In the last year the cat had 27 kittens and many of them were born with extra toes. Some had 25 toes—seven on three feet and four on the other. The store cat is now raising several kittens which have seven toes.

DROP IN RELIEF SOURCE OF JOY FOR OTTAWA

Long Range Measures Making Rapid Strides

OTTAWA, Oct. 23—(CP)—Unemployment and relief are diminishing in Canada at a rate which is a source of satisfaction to the federal government. Latest figures compiled by National Employment Commission and the Department of Labor show substantial decreases in the number of persons receiving relief.

This situation gives the authorities an opportunity to consider long-range plans for dealing with the unemployment problem and at Winnipeg yesterday Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, said he expected the relief burden, except for unemployment might eventually be liquidated.

The National Employment Commission has not yet worked out detailed long-term plans but in its next report something of the sort may be expected. The commission has carried on a registration and classification of the unemployed and recommended a number of temporary measures some of which have been adopted.

It is now turning its attention to measures of a permanent character and looking to the time when direct relief for persons able to work may cease.

Reorganization of the employment service of Canada is one of the longe-hange measures being considered. This would provide for speedy and efficient placement of unemployed workers wherever openings were available.

When the long-term policy is completed it may also include continuance of the present registration of unemployed persons on a permanent basis. This, it is believed, would provide a constant check on unemployment throughout the country and make it possible to plan ahead of time for prospective periods of unemployment in particular areas.

STUDENTS BLOCK TIM BUCK RALLY

MONTREAL, Oct. 23 (C.P.). — Mayor Adhemar Raynault issued orders yesterday to Police Director Fernand Dufresne to prevent holding of a public meeting last night by "The Popular Front," at which Alfred Coates, French Communist Deputy, and Tim Buck, Toronto Communist leader, were to be guest speakers.

The order was given by the Mayor after a delegation of 250 students from the University of Montreal crowded into City Council Chambers and demanded that permission for the meeting be cancelled.

Dufresne was summoned to the Chamber after the delegation met the Mayor, who suggested rioting might result unless plans for the meeting were cancelled.

"There are two ways of preventing such a riot," said the Director. "One is to send 1,000 policemen and keep apart those who want to hold the meeting and those who don't want the meeting to be held. The other is to prevent holding of the meeting. I will take the obvious step to prevent rioting and disorder.'

The students left the City Hall shouting and cheering, celebrating their success in suppressing another meeting. They made similar objection to the announced plans for addresses by Father Sarasola, the Spanish priest, several months ago. That meeting also was cancelled.

The Seamen's Union reiterated Japan is acting in self defence in China.

Suspect Lancaster Lad Murdered In Drunken Fight

Broken Wine Bottle Found Near Death Scene; Arrested Youth Confesses He Fought Dead Boy

CORNWALL, Oct. 23 — In the belief that 16-year-old Alex Lariviere was murdered and not killed accidentally, Provincial Police last night arrested Daniel Thauvette, 21, of Lancaster, who is alleged to be involved in the case.

Lariviere was found dying beside the C.N.R. right of way near Lancaster early Wednesday morning, and it was generally concluded he had been struck by a train or had fallen from a passing freight.

Suspicion was aroused by unusual circumstances and Provincial Constable R. P. Labelle and Constable A. R. MacLeod carried out joint investigations which led to the arrest of Thauvette, who will appear before Magistrate P. C. Bergeron today when a formal charge will be laid.

Found In Ditch.

Young Lariviere, whose home was at Bonville, but who had been employed at Lancaster, eighteen miles east of here, by N. Rudolph, a fruit and vegetables peddler, left the latter's home early Tuesday evening and was not seen again until 6:30 next morning, when the crew of an extra westbound freight saw his body lying in a ditch beside the right of way. Dr. W. R. W. Haight was summoned from Lancaster, and the boy was rushed to Hotel Dieu Hospital here aboard the freight. He was attended by Dr. M. A. Kelly. He died about an hour after admittance

Constable A. R. McLeod suspected foul play when he found the boy's cap lying more than 100 feet from where the body was found. There were one or two spots of blood on the peak of the cap and the leather covering glittered with tiny fragments of glass. Within a circle of a few feet around the cap the constable found the shattered remnants of a forty-ounce wine bottle. There was no blood on the ground near the cap, but a large spot of blood was found on the track ballast on the embankment of the ditch in which the body lay.

Skull Fractured.

A post mortem was performed last night by Dr. J. A. Tallon. It was revealed that death was due to a sever fracture at the base of the skull, evidently caused by a blow sufficiently heavy to break away a piece of the bone, which has not been found. Bruises about the boy's face and deep gashes over both eyes, coupled with the fact there were no bruises on the body, confirmed suspicions of police that the injuries were due to blows, rather than having been inflicted by a train.

Sergeant Labelle and Constable MacLeod interviewed a number of persons at Lancaster and arrested Thauvette shortly after 6 o'clock. Police said Thauvette had admitted purchasing a forty-ounce bottle of wine on Monday, and that he fought with "the boy who worked for the Jew" on Tuesday night. when arrested, Thauvette's left hand was bandaged, covering a deep gash. Police say he admitted he cut it on the broken wine bottle.

Coroner Stewart said an inquest would be held, but no date was fixed.

Egypt's exports to Italy are nearly five times those of a year ago.

ABERNETHY GIVEN TWO-YEAR TERM IN REFORMATORY

(Special to the Examiner)

COBOURG, Oct. 23.—Convicted by a jury of criminal negligence in the death of Miss Florence Watt, who was drowned in his car in the Trent Canal south of Campbellford on May 1 last, Russell Abernethy of that town was sentenced to two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory by Mr. Justice Nichel Jeffrey at the conclusion of the fall assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario for Northumberland and Durham here late Friday afternoon.

"The jury might very well have found you guilty of manslaughter," His Lordship said in addressing the prisoner. "You did not explain by going on the witness stand what took place when your automobile left the road and went into the canal. It may be that your physical condition at the time was a contributing factor. At any rate it has all seemed very mysterious."

Cyrus Ashton, Port Hope garage mechanic, was sentenced to a similar two years less one day on a charge of criminal negligence as the driver of an automobile that struck down and killed Mrs. Edgar Neal of Detroit and Miss Kathleen Freer of Toronto on the Cavan Street bridge, Port Hope, July 22 last. Ashton was indicted for manslaughter but pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of criminal negligence which the Crown and court accepted.

John Beggs of Port Hope was found guilty of carnal knowledge of a young girl was sentenced to three years in the Kingston penitentiary.

Campbell To Run In North Renfrew

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—Dr. John C. Bradley, Liberal member-elect of the Legislature for North Renfrew, was reported Friday at Queen's Park as ready to resign his seat in order to provide a means of entrance to the House for Premier Hepburn's Minister of Public Works, Hon. Colin A. Campbell, who met defeat in his own constituency of Frontenac-Addington, in the recent election.

Chinese Confident Of Holding Chapei Sector Indefinitely After 70-Hour Attack Fails

SHANGHAI, Oct. 23—(AP). — A Chinese army spokesman declared Chinese forces to-day definitely checked a Japanese threat to capture Tazang after 70 hours of fighting on the front north of Shanghai.

The centre of fighting shifted from Tazang, where Japanese were trying to cut off Chinese communications about five miles northwest of the International Settlement, to Kwangfu, well to the rear of the Chinese 26-mile front.

At Kwangfu heavy Japanese forces apparently were attempting to smash the Chinese lines to capture Nanziang, China's powerful "winter line."

Japanese troops were reported to have reached within four miles of Kwangfu. The Chinese army spokesman said entanglements along creeks and irrigation ditches were impenetrable and that Nanziang was not believed in danger.

"The worst is now over and we are confident of holding out in Chapei indefinitely," the Chinese spokesman said.

65,000 Casualties

Chinese authorities reported Japanese casualties on the Shanghai front have totalled 65,000, including 24,200 killed. About 5,000 wounded Japanese, they said, have been transferred to Dairen, Kwangtung leased territory, rather than to Japan.

The Chinese spokesman conceded that the Japanese forces were within 1¼ miles of Tazung, where a Japanese victory could cut off Chinese in the important Chapei sector and open a path toward Nanking, China's capital. The possibility the town might fall, however, still was considered remote, he said.

Death and destruction virtually encircled Shanghai as both forces intensified their attacks and bombardments from land, sea and air, both in the Tazang sector and at Kwangful, an important point on the route to Klating, well in the rear of the Chinese 25-mile defence line.

Trios of Japanese bombers raided Chapei, dropping explosives close to the International Settlement with deafening detonations.

TEN ARE KILLED NINETEEN INJURED TRAIN HITS BUS

MASON CITY, Ia., Oct. 23 (AP).—Ten persons, including seven High School students, were dead and 19 injured today in the wake of the most disastrous streamlined train accident on record in the United States Midwest.

Besides the students, two teachers and a bus driver were killed when the glistening new "Rocket," three-car streamlined passenger train of the Rock Island Railroad, plowed into a school bus on the outskirts of the city yesterday.

The bodies of dead and injured were scattered 500 feet down the right-of-way.

The students came here from Renwick, Ia., early in the day on a tour of Mason City industrial plants.

George Simpson of Des Moines, Ia., the engineer, said his train was travelling "between 20 and 25 miles an hour."

The dead:

Rex Simpson, 28, bus driver; Dorothy Ross, 25, of Creston, Ia., and Loren Morten, 26, of Guernsey, Ia., both teachers; Lillian Cedar, 14, Hardy, Ia.; Don Amossen, 16, Goldfield, Ia.; Patsy Turney, 14; Norman Eggerth, 16; Lowell Kelling, 15; Jimmy Bell, 15; Albert Siemans, 16, all students, the latter five from Renwick.

KAWARTHA CLUB PLANS EXTENSION 4,000 SQUARE FEET

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club held in the club house Friday night plans were approved for the erection of an extension to the locker-room. The building built on a solid stone foundation, is 100 feet by 40 feet and will give ample accommodation for both ladies and gentlemen. The ladies locker-room will be in the north end of the building and will be complete with wash room and showers.

The gentlemen's locker-room will be in the south end of the building with wash room and shower room. The professional's shop will be in the centre of the building.

The plans also show a large stone fire place in the men's locker-room. The president reported to the Board that the 18 holes were now completed and that the new holes would be ready for play in the early part of next year.

The president also reported that No. 1 fairway had been tile drained which it was hoped would allow players to get on to the first part of the course earlier in the spring. Other improvements have been completed or are under way it was reported.

Ties of Two Nations Grow Stronger Says Premier King

Guest of Governor, Washington Secretary of State Receives Honors in Toronto; Pleads Peace's Cause

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of state, took back to Washington today Canada's "message of a good neighbor" and the assurance of Prime Minister Mackenzie King that the ties between the two countries are strengthening.

Mr. Hull ended his three-day goodwill visit to the Dominion last night. A distinguished group said farewell to the State Secretary and Mrs. Hull and a detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police accompanied them to the international border.

After two days in Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Hull came to Toronto yesterday, accompanied from the Dominion's capital by Premier King and Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General. At the convocation of the University of Toronto Mr. Hull received an honorary degree of doctor of laws.

To the large gathering at the University, the Secretary of State said he was confident the "outraged conscience of mankind will set in motion forces which will create, in the sphere of international relations, unshakeable order based on law." He deplored "international lawlessness."

"My country and the countries which compose your mighty union," he said, "are among the protagonists of the idea that peace rather than war is the normal state of human relations, within and among nations." He said war was "thorough and effective in its unrestrained savagery."

Happy Occasion.

Earlier, at a luncheon, Mr. Hull told the Prime Minister: "I am happy to take back with me to my people your message of a good neighbor, just as I was happy in the privilege of bringing such a message to Canada in the name of the government and people of the United States."

Mr. King expressed satisfaction in the "strengthening of the ties between Canada and the United States." He praised the Secretary of State, who "preached the doctrine of the superiority of common over special interests, of a wide international rather than a narrow national outlook."

The Prime Minister headed a distinguished group that bade farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Hull at the station. Arthur S. Redfern, secretary to the Governor-General, represented Lord Tweedsmuir. Also in attendance were Norman Armour, United States Minister to Canada; Herbert C. Hengstler, United States Consul-General, and Damon C. Woods, United States Consul.

In an informal interview, Mr. Hull said he would like to see more Canadian newspapermen in Washington to promote the better understanding between "our countries." He invited his interviewers particularly to Washington.

Expressing interest in Ontario, Mr. Hull studied a large relief map of the province at Queen's Park where he met Premier Mitchell Hepburn.

LOYALIST PREMIER BITTER AT DELAY BY WORLD POWERS

HENDAYE, France-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 23.—(AP).—The Spanish Republican government was reported to-day dispatching reinforcements to the Teruel and Aragon fronts to meet assaults of strengthened insurgent forces against either Valencia or Catalonia.

Government ministries at Valencia, temporary capital, awaited an order to move to Barcelona, capital of autonomous but allied Catalonia, following affirmation of an accord between the two regimes.

While, the insurgent, chieftain, Francisco Franco, mopped up northwest Spain in a victory sweep that would liberate most of 100,000 soldiers for a drive at either the present of future capital of the Republic, other developments added drama to the 15-month conflict.

Government sailors, taking refuge at Arcachon, France, reported insurgent bombing planes sank the government destroyer Ciscar in Gijon harbor on Wednesday, the day before Gijon capitulated to the insurgents.

None of the destroyer's crew was killed but several were wounded.

30,000 Dead, Cost of Drive.

Government sources estimated the Gijon, or Asturias, drive had cost Franco at least 30,000 men.

Premier Juan Negrin of the Valencia government, on a visit to Madrid, said "procastiantion" of European democracies had permitted Italy and Germany to gain all the time they needed to further their aims in Spain, "the wealth of which already has been mortgaged to them by the insurgents."

(Construction of 42 new bomb shelters was hastened in Madrid, which was the capital when the war broke out—now besieged for nearly a year. With the new refuges for 23,000 persons, Madrid will be able to shelter 355,000 of her 1,000,000 population.

(An advance party of Valencia officials moved yesterday to Barcelona where the government had requisitioned more than 2,500 buildings to house its ministries. More than 2,000 troops and 1,500 assault guards accompanied the party to Barcelona).

AUSTRALIAN VOTES PUT LYONS BACK

SYDNEY, Oct. 23.—(CP-Reuters).—As counting of ballots in Australia's general election neared an end to-night, indications were the government of Prime Minister Joseph Lyons had been returned to power with its majority in the House of Representatives slightly reduced.

Late returns indicated Labor had gained three seats. This would make the standing in the Lower House: Labor 31, United Australia Party 28, Country Party 15.

The government is a coalition of the United Australia Party under Mr. Lyons and the Country Party, headed by Deputy Prime Minister Earle Page.

In the last House the standing was: U.A.P. 32, Country Party 4, Labor 28.

Labor also was leading the poll for several Senate seats, but it was thought unlikely the government's top-heavy majority in the Upper Chamber would be threatened. Before dissolution Labor had but three Senators out of 36, half of whom were up for re-election.

Epstein's New Statue Of Christ Creates Storm In London

Outrage On Christian Ideals Noted Artist Charges Of Work With Huge Hands, Feet

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(CP Cable.)—Jacob Epstein, whose creative work has aroused more discussion than any other modern sculptor, to-day became the centre of a violent storm of controversy.

The latest clash in London's artistic colony revolves around the noted British sculptor's most recent statue, "Consummatum est," shown in the Leicester galleries here.

It purports to represent Christ after the crucifixion, recumbent in the tomb, with enormous hands and feet.

"It is a disgusting travesty and outrage on Christian ideals," famed Sir Charles Allom, a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts and founder of White, Allom and Company, of London, Montreal and New York, decorative contractors.

"How could it be possible for Christ to have been the clumsy, heavy, bloated figure Epstein has depicted," Sir Charles asked. "Artistically, the presentation is inconsistent with what we know of Christ. If he had seen himself as Epstein has seen him, he would have realized that not one piece of himself was not crippled.

"There is not a single art which is not under the thumb of the JAPANESE raised the bid to Chinese soldiers to surrender to-day—from $.294229 to $1.471145 for each Chinese who will quit fighting.

The new proposition was advanced in leaflets dropped from airplanes, apparently because the first offer received no response in Chinese money, the ante was raised from one Chinese dollar to five.

Scottish Lass Who Kissed In Public Is Exiled From The Irish Free State

Dundalk, Irish Free State, Oct. 23

JULIA Clarke, a Scottish lass, blue-eyed and brunette, was barred for life from the Irish Free state today for kissing her boy friend in public.

Three members of a local vigilance committee witnessed the tender interlude in a churchyard at the seaside village of Blackrock in County Louth and summoned a policeman.

District Court Justices sentenced Julia, absent in Scotland as the case came up, to one month of imprisonment. The sentence was passed, in the words of the presiding Justice, "to keep her out of the Free State for ever," since she would be liable to arrest if she ever returns to Ireland.

Julia's boy friend was fined $10.

The case was the first in which section eighteen of the 1935 Criminal Law Amendment Act, known as "De Valera's Vice Law" was invoked. The law forbids 'any act offending modesty or causing scandal or injuring the morals of the community."

France, Britain Call On Franco To Spare Asturian Miners

Every Able-Bodied Man In Surrendered Gijon Area Summoned To Rebel Ranks

VALENCIA, Oct. 23 (CP-Havas)—With the vital port of Gijon in Fascist hands, Government Spain to-day called upon every able-bodied man in government territory to present himself at once for war duty.

A decree prepared for official publication in the Government Gazette cancelled all exemptions from military service, threatened the "severest punishment" for attempted evasions and planned thorough reorganisation of the commissariat of war.

Gijon's fall, presaging the collapse of Leftist resistance in the Asturias, was officially admitted in a defence ministry communique.

(Paris despatches reported that, with refugees arriving hourly at French Atlantic ports, the French and British Governments had joined in an appeal to the insurgents to observe "the rules of humanity" in dealing with the Asturian miners, whose bitter resistance, it was feared, might bring grim punishment from their conquerors. Leaders of the Asturian Government, including the President of the Provincial Council, reached the Breton port of Quimper safely, the dispatches said.

(Later reports from Saint Nazaire indicated that the Council President, Belarmino Tomas, and all members of his government had landed on French soil at Douarnenez, 15 miles north-west of Quimper

Fiery Cross Burned In Cornwall Area Gives Provincials New Worry

Cornwall, Oct. 23.

PROVINCIAL police are investigating the burning of a fiery cross on the highway near St. Andrews, ten miles north of here, Wednesday night, the first incident of the kind ever reported in this district.

The cross, a 10-foot wooden frame wrapped with oil-soaked sacking, was erected near the road.

A passerby arrived on the scene just as the cross was fired and saw several men run to an automobile and speed toward Cornwall. The passerby pushed the cross over and it fell across the roadway, where it tied up traffic until the flames subsided.

Police have no explanation to offer and little information to work upon.

part of the government's drive to reduce the relief burden. Whatever proposals may be adopted for the employment of youths leaving training centres have yet to be worked out.

The labor department's figures for September showed a total of 132,944 employable persons receiving relief apart from farmers and their dependents. The total was made up of 79,580 heads of families, 19,192 individual cases and 34,172 dependents over 16, years of age, not including wives, in short dependent persons who presumably would be at work if work were available.

In September 1936 the total employable persons on relief was 206,423. During the winter it climbed to a high of 260,393 in February and dropped to 181,689 in June and still further to 158,381 in July. Then comes the labor department's September figure down to 132,944.

HALIFAX BLOCK IS DAMAGED BY FIRE LOSS IS $100,000

HALIFAX, Oct. 23.—(CP).—Loss estimated at more than $100,000 was counted by four Halifax firms today after a fire which swept through a part of a north end business area. The blaze was the city's worst in two years. At least half a dozen who fainted were given treatment at nearby drug stores.

Either destroyed or damaged were:

Jack's Limited, men's and women's wear shop, owned and operated by Jack Simon; Metropolitan Stores, Limited, damage to stock placed at $35,000 to $40,000; Dominion Stores, Limited, damage to stock, $4,000; Coombes' drug store, damage to stock, $5,000.

Simon, owner of the building housing the Metropolitan Stores branch, set his total loss at $50,000. The Dominion Stores structure, owned by the Eastern Trust Company, was valued at $25,000, partly covered by insurance.

The fire threatened the entire district. Firemen said absence of wind, removal of a tank of liquid carbonate beofre flames reached it and the presence of alleyways just north of the Coombes building prevented further loss.

CONACHER SEES HIS LEAD DROP

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—Lionel Conacher's 47-vote majority over Russell Nesbitt was definitely reduced by six votes as the Bracondale recount wound up its sittings at City Hall yesterday.

Chief interest is now centred in the 568 ballots in dispute, of which 318 are Conacher's and 250 Nesbitt's.

Argument on the ballots set aside will be heard to-day, and will likely be continued on Monday.

Nesbitt is conceded only a slim chance of upsetting the election of his Liberal opponent. Should all the ballots in dispute be rejected, the Conservative would have a net advantage of 27 votes.

Not Many Nurses Going To U.S.

DETROIT, Oct. 23 (CP)—No large scale of migration of nurses from Canada to the United States has been noted here, Dorsey Phillips, assistant inspector in charge of U.S. immigration at Detroit, said today in commenting on a charge by Virginia Mirabelle, president of the National Association of Nurses, that Canadian girls were taking jobs from American nurses in U.S. hospitals.

"A year ago we received complaints of this kind and made a complete check-up on all Detroit hospitals," he said. "By last April or May the whole situation was pretty well cleaned up. We found some 18 or 20 Canadian girls employed in hospitals over here.

"We gave them a certain length of time to go back to Canada and get things straightened out. I believe, however, that most of them obtained visas and were able to return to their jobs.

A RELATION PUZZLE

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 23—(AP).—Clerks in the Hennepin county marriage license bureau pored over law books to-day and consulted district court judges, but could find no satisfactory answer to a telephone query:

Can a girl marry a boy whose father is the brother of the girl's grandmother?

The law forbids the marriage of relatives closer than second cousins. However, no one in the marriage license bureau was able to determine whether the girl was the first or second cousin of the boy.

BELIEVE KILLER IS SARNIA-BOUND

DETROIT, Oct. 23 (CP).—Police believed today William Bommarito, Detroit, on parole from a Federal prison, alleged to have shot and killed his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Fox, and wounded his estranged wife, Constance, had fled to Canada.

It is believed he was en route to Sarnia, Ont., when he called at New Haven, Macomb County, to visit his first wife and their children after the shooting here Wednesday.

Police and Customs officials at Sarnia and Windsor were warned to be on the lookout for the fugitive, police said, and pictures, fingerprints and detailed description of the man were sent to law enforcement agencies in every Ontario city.

Bommarito went to his second wife's home to visit his child. A short time later he shot his wife, and then turned the gun on his mother-in-law when she ran for a telephone.

WHEAT FUTURES RALLY AT CLOSE

WINNIPEG, Oct. 23 (C.P.). — Traders looked to-day toward rallying stock and security markets with continued keen demand for top grades of cash wheat to bolster wheat futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

At the close yesterday futures ended a mixed week 1⅝ cents higher to 1⅛ cents lower after being pushed about by bullish and bearish influences of almost equal importance—October at $1.25⅝, November $1.23⅜-½, December $1.19¼-⅜, and May $1.17.

Unstable stock and security markets, lack of foreign demand, improved crop prospects in the Southern Hemisphere, and easier freight rates caused futures to slide early in the week. But renewed buying swung prices up five cents on Wednesday when stock markets rallied.

Demand for high-grade wheat together with a short crop in Western Canada and small hard red spring wheat production in United States resulted in No. 1 Northern climbing to 25½ cents above the October future and No. 2 Northern 16 cents above the future at the week's high point.

ACKERMAN MINE SHOWS ACTIVITY, 25 MEN AT WORK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Oct. 23.— Travellers on No. 7 Highway this week arriving in Marmora from the East have been enquiring as to the illumination of what to them previously seemed an ordinary tract of land. The site in question was the original Blomfield Mine. To-day eight or nine buildings show that further activity has taken place by the Ackerman Gold Mines, Limited, which have taken over the project.

Living quarters for the staff have been erected and close beside is the kitchen and dining room for Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Neal, who are in charge of the cooking.

The office and machine shop are ready for business and the powerhouse is almost completed. The shaft house is a very solid structure and has modern hoisting equipment. Water is pumped from the Moira River, about six hundred feet away, the pump-house being close to the bank of the river.

About twenty-five men are at present employed there, and a wave of optimism prevails in the district that the faith of Colonel C. H. Ackerman will be fully justified, and that a profitable mine will be ultimately developed.

EPSTEIN STATUE CREATES STORM

Bolshevists' art, modernism contaminates everything."

Not Up to Standard.

Thomas Mewburn Crook, chairman of the British Empire Society of Arts and a noted sculptor, said he believed the statue did not compare with Epstein's earlier works.

Artists, he said, could hardly hope to improve on the human body as God made it, and they should try accurately to represent it while emphasizing one or more aspects of its beauty or meaning.

Alfred Charles Bossom, Conservative member of Parliament and Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects, came to Epstein's defence, however.

"This is a statue which illustrates most powerfully the great sacrifice our Lord made," he said. "It seems to me to be a very courageous piece of work. Do you know of any other piece of sculpture like it?"

Meanwhile Epstein remained unmoved by the storm. "It is no good trying to get right ideals into the minds of wrong-headed people," the sculptor said. "People have called me bad names before and accused me of travestying Christianity. I shall take no notice. Quite a lot of people think my works beautiful. I do not care what others think."

Controversy over his work is no new story to Epstein. His "Genesis" and "Figure of Christ" raised furious gales in artistic circles in recent years, as did his memorial to W. H. Hudson, author of Green Mansions.

LINDSAY PLANT RUNS DAY, NIGHT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 23.— The local chemical plant of the Consolidated Distillers, Limited, is now running to full capacity with night and day shifts, turning out large quantities of its products for foreign markets. Recently a large refining still was installed at the plant, together with a large number of tanks. Big shipments of acetate of lime are going out daily. There is at present 700 cords of wood in the yard to be used in the manufacture of products, with 7,000 cords in the bush.

A local young man was sentenced to one month in the county jail Friday morning by Magistrate Gee on the charge of theft of advertising material from an automobile. The accused, who has been in trouble on previous occasions, was seen by two girls going through the contents of the car and they promptly notified the owner.

Lindsay Liberals held an important organization meeting last night in their committee rooms. Warden Moncrief, of Omemee, presided, and Bruce McNevin, M.P., Victoria and Haliburton, addressed the meeting. A chairman for each ward was appointed and plans for sound reorganization were perfected.

It has been announced that Premier Hepburn will visit Lindsay at an early date, and will deliver an address at a meeting of the Canadian Club.

RECORD IN SIGHT FOR JEAN BATTEN

DAMASCUS, Syria, Oct. 23 (CP) —Curly-haired Jean Batten today apparently had within her grasp the speed record for solo flights from Australia to England.

Poised to leave early today for another lap of her speedy journey from down under, she had a considerable margin on H. F. Broadbent's time record of six days, 10 hours, 55 minutes.

Miss Batten, who left Darwin, on the northern coast of Australia, at dawn Tuesday, reached here yesterday, having used approximately 3½ days for the journey to date. She was well ahead of Broadbent's time as he reached Cyprus in the eastern Mediterranean and only about 200 miles from Damascus, well into his fourth day.

The 27-year-old New Zealand aviator, who ranks with the late Amelia Earhart and Amy Johnson Mollison as a great distance flier, holds the distinction of having been the first woman to fly the South Atlantic solo from Africa to Brazil. She made the 1,961-mile ocean hop in 1936 over a route regularly flown by mail planes and set a new time record.

STOCK MARKETS STAGE LIVELIEST WEEK IN 2 YEARS

TORONTO, October 23—(C.P.).—Periodic sharp dip that permits the investor with patience to step in at the right time and clean up at the expense of the margin traded, came along this week and stock markets had their liveliest season in a couple of years.

It had been apparent since Labor Day that weakly-held stocks were likely to spill into the market any day, and several New York investment services had predicted the break. Climatic selling developed on Monday and Tuesday, and on those days Canadian share prices left the 1937 and 1936 lows behind and, in some cases, crashed through 1935 lows.

Brokers, in seeking to explain the situation that started the New York market on its downward course, talk of the uneasiness in financial circles regarding the goal of Washington policies, the uncertain immediate industrial outlook and the trimming of business profits to satisfy the demands of labor.

The New York decline fully accounts for the Canadian crack-up. New York makes the market for 30 or more leading Canadian stocks. It would be impossible for International Nickel to trade at $46 on the Toronto floor and at $42 on the New York floor, while the currencies of the two countries remain practically on a level. The arbitrage trader makes his living by scalping eights and quarters of points when such differences do appear at times of quick movements.

Profit-Takers Active

By Friday the market had quieted down and the return to normal heralded moderate profit-taking that cut one to two points in the indices off the gains of Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday and Thursday.

Gold stocks held to a steadier course than the industrials and the miscellaneous mines during the last week. The Toronto Exchange index for the golds lost 11.33 on Monday and Tuesday and more than recovered the loss, while the industrials dropped 13.60 and the miscellaneous mines 18.15. The latter groups have already recovered all but a couple of points of their losses since last Saturday and all groups are above their October 15 prices.

Net changes over the week show Lake Shore and McIntyre up $2 to $2.50, and Hollinger and Dome up 50 to 90 cents. Among the cheaper golds there are more net gains than losses.

Base metal leaders were hammered severely on Monday and Tuesday, Noranda and Smelters dropping $5 to $6 in one session, but they all came back to show net gains for the week.

25 HURT IN CAIRO IN STUDENT CLASH

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 23.—(AP).—Twenty-five persons were wounded to-day when police clashed with several thousand students of Giza University trying to enter Cairo for a demonstration against the government.

The demonstration was planned to coincide with the opening of a special session of parliament late today.

Several policemen were seized by students, dragged into the University and man-handled. Students also attacked a group of pro-government members of the Wafdist youth organization, but the students were dispersed.

Police patrolled Cairo streets wearing steel helmets. The government prohibited publication of reports of the disorders.

King And Hepburn Meet In Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King Friday called on Premier Hepburn at Queen's Park and spent half an hour in what Mr. King subsequently described as "talking over one or two questions of mutual interest."

"Just an informal visit," was what Mr. Hepburn had to say of the conference.

Mr. King's visit followed an earlier call on Ontario's Premier by Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State. Mr. Hull met all the Provincial Cabinet Ministers as well, but Mr. King had Mr. Hepburn all to himself. It was their first meeting since their reported "break" over the C.I.O. question last spring.

Man's Thumb Hurt In Sawing Machine

DOWNEYVILLE, Oct. 23.—T. J. Morrissey met with a serious accident on Tuesday while working with his sawing machine. He had his thumb on the right hand badly mangled, and it had to be taken off by Drs. Gleason of Lindsay and Earl of Omemee.

The recent rain was a great help for the plowing, as the ground was very hard and almost impossible to plow.

Duncan Marshall May Head Board

Duncan Marshall, former Minister of Agriculture in the Hepburn Government, who was defeated in Peel in the recent election, will be offered an important Civil Service post—possibly the Marketing Commissionership—it was reported on Friday at Queen's Park.

W. B. Somerset, former Marketing Commissioner, was retired by the Government the day following the election.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 23. — Wheat futures went into reverse in the late trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to close ¾ to 1⅝ cents lower.

Trading was generally dull, with prices moving nervously on both sides of the previous close. Export buying of Canadian wheat estimated at 250,000 bushels, and purchases, apparently in connection with previous export sales, buoyed the market up from early 1-cent low points.

Beneficial rains reported in Santa Fe, Entre Rios, and Cordoba Provinces of the Argentine had a bearish influence on North American markets as well as at Liverpool. Lack of export interest in United States wheat did much to thrust quotations down 1 to 1⅝ cents at Chicago.

Coarse grain futures were off around a cent in the listless session. Oats closed ⅝ to 1⅛ down, barley unchanged to 1 cent lower, flax ¼ to 1 cent off, and rye ¾ to ⅞ cent under Thursday's close.

Morning Matinee Fails In Court

LONDON, Oct. 23 (CP-Havas)—A test case brought by the Board of Trade to decide the legality of "morning matinees" designed to skirt the requirements of the British film quota was decided against the Associated British Cinemas, Ltd., in a West London court today.

In order to meet the quota requirements, a number of theatres have been showing the British films at "morning matinees," before the regular program is offered.

Citing the Commodore Theatre at Hammersmith and the Savoy, at Acton, the Associated British Cinemas, Ltd., was charged with failure to comply with the provisions of the Cinematograph Films Act of 1927 regarding the quota of registered films.

The court ordered the defendant company to pay $297 fine, in addition to $52 costs.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

THE TRANSFIGURATION

Jesus we transfigured before them. St. Matt. 17:2.

An ancient Greek fable tells of a remarkable idol temple. Those desiring to enter had to look at themselves in a glass at the entrance. This mirror was so constructed that the beholder saw his natural face and then by degrees his countenance was changed into the form of the idol he worshipped. What a profound and practical truth. A man becomes like his god.

"Jesus was transfigured before them." St. Peter had made his great confession:— "Thou art the Christ." Then the Lord plainly tells them of His awful end; His betrayal into the hands of the Gentiles; His passion and death on the Cross and His resurrection. St. Peter, the impulsive, speaking for himself and the Apostles, cries:— "Be it far from Thee, Lord; this shall not be unto Thee." The Christ severely rebukes him:— "Get thee behind me, Satan. Thou art an offence unto Me, for thou savourest not of the things of God but those that be of men."

Consequently six days later Our Lord takes the inner circle, Peter, James and John, up the mount and "was transfigured before them." They had discovered part of His secret; that He is indeed the Christ. They had to be convinced that He is indeed the Lamb of God—both the Priest and the Victim — Who, through His willing obedience was to offer Himself as a full, perfect and sufficient sacrifice, oblation and satisfaction for the sins of the whole world.

With Him they see Moses and Elijah, the Law-giver and Prophet, who spake of His decease, His departure, His exodus, which He should accomplish at Jerusalem. This inner circle is learning that the thought, which was an offence and stumbling block to them, was indeed the will of God revealed through Law giver and Prophet. They are privileged to see Him transfigured and to hear the Father's command:— "This is my beloved Son, hear ye Him." Later they are to strengthen their brethren.

"Jesus was transfigured before them." All the days of His earthly ministry He has been looking into the Father's face; "I am come to do the will of Him that sent Me" is His claim. With the psalmist He could say:— "Unto Thee do I lift up mine eyes." His human soul is depressed because His beloved disciples could not understand His exodus; that He is the suffering Servant of Jehovah. So the man, Jesus, looks into the heavenly Father's face and opens His heart. "As He prayed" there came the transfiguration, the inner change. His face became like the Father's face. His soul was satisfied with His likeness. His heart and mind were strengthened as He heard the Father's command:— "This is my beloved Son. Hear ye Him."

"Jesus was transfigured before them." His apostles saw the mysterious change of His earthly body. He became etherialised, to use a modern expression. His transfiguration helped them after His resurrection to understand and believe that He is indeed risen from the dead. Two of that band, Peter and John, on the resurrection morn, ran unto the sepulchre. It is written:— "They saw and believed." This vision on the mount helped them in that hour. How free from modern sensationalism is the Gospel writer. It is the greatest event of the ages. Yet he calmly writes:— "The disciples went away again unto their own homes." They remembered that "He was transfigured before them."

"Jesus was transfigured before them:" Have you read His words; looked earnestly upon the four pen pictures of Him in the Gospels? Have you heard His Spirit saying: "This is the way, walk ye in it" and have you obeyed? Then slowly, gradually, unknowingly to yourself, Christ will be formed in you. You will reveal something of His goodness, His purity, His lovelliness.

Perhaps these words of Tennyson reminds you of someone you have been privileged to know:—

Her eyes became
Beyond my knowing of them, beautiful;
Beyond all knowing of them, wonderful,
Beautiful in the light of holiness.

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 24 is John 3: 7-16 and Titus 3: 1-11, the Golden Text being from Titus: "For the Grace of God hath appeared, bringing salvation to all men."

OUR LORD Jesus Christ was pre-eminently concerned with life. As the source of the world's spiritual life his all all consuming passion was to share his life with a world dead in trespasses and sin. "In him was life; and the life was the light of men."

The Source of Life

Christ's own claim in explanation of His mission to the world was, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." He made claim that He was the very door by which entrance into life is found: "I am the door; by Me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep . . . No man taketh it from Me, but I lay it down of Myself I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again." By His death and resurrection He proves His power over all the forces of life and death, and his consequent ability to give unquenchable and abundant life to all.

Manifesting Christ's Life.

Those who have this life Christ came to give should "show signs of life." Paul expected to see such signs of life even among the Cretans to whom his young friend, Titus, was ministering. They had been a hard lot before the gospel found them. "Liars, evil beasts, idle gluttons," one of their own poets called them. And Paul described them as "abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate." Certainly these Cretans needed what Paul here calls "the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Spirit, poured out upon us richly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour." As a result of their hearing the gospel and accepting "the kindness of God our Saviour, and His love toward man," there was a great change in the lives of these rough people of Crete. Paul even speaks of their slaves "adorning the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things."

A Work of Grace.

They became good citizens: "In subjection to rulers, to authorities, obedient, ready unto every good work, speaking evil of no man, not contentious, gentle, showing all meekness to all men." Such great changes are not the work of man but the work of God's Spirit: "Not by works done in righteousness, which we did ourselves, but according to His mercy He saved us through the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Spirit . . . that being justified by His grace, we might be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life." Paul urged the young minister to "affirm confidently to the end that they who have believed God may be careful to maintain good works." So, always, faith should prove itself by its works and creed by conduct. Christians must be channels through which Christ can live His life over again in every generation.

Old Church Faces Same Old World

On Sunday morning at St. Paul's Church, the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr will commence a new series of sermons on the subject: "The Old Church Faces the Same Old World." The various subjects are as follows: "Is this the same old world? Is there the same old need? Have we the same old sins? Is there the same old gospel? Is this the same old church? Is not Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today and forever?" Everyone interested is cordially invited to hear these up-to-the-minute addresses.

Evening Subject Special Interest

In response to many requests, the subject of the "Partition of Palestine and Prophecy" will be the topic of the sermon at All Saints' Church on Sunday evening.

LARGE FAMILY

KENNETCOOK, N.S.—(CP). — When 83-year-old Mrs. William White celebrated her birthday here a large crowd gathered to pay her homage—all of them relatives. She has 11 children living. There are 72 grandchildren and 79 great-grandchildren, with one great-great-grandchild rounding out the list; 163 in all.

May Be Made Saint

Possibly sainthood may be attained by Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini (ABOVE), who died in Chicago in 1917 and was buried in New York, when Pope Pius XI takes the first step in proceedings which are expected to make the founder of the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Jesus a saint late this month. The step will be taken when the pontiff and the congregation of rites will pass on the proposal that Mother Cabrini be proclaimed as having "exercised Christian virtue to a heroic degree." A favorable decision would accord the title "venerable" to the nun and would open the way for her possible beatification and eventual canonization.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

Let us not be deceived in externals, for as we develop spiritual vision the more do we see that the earth is filled with the glory of the Lord and the heavens show forth His handiwork: through all creation is the love of God made manifest. Surrounded as we are by the beauty and perfection of the infinitely small and the infinitely great, we must needs lift up our hearts in gratitude and joy that our eyes are opened so that we may perceive that to which we have hitherto been blind. It is said that "beauty lies in the eye of the beholder." It may be added that everything else does also, for as the inner consciousness grows and expands so also does the realization of the beauty and wonder of God, until at length one's consciousness synchronizes, as it were, with the Divine consciousness, and one apprehends directly. In other words, the third eye of the seer, the "single" eye is opened. These are, of course, only symbolic terms crudely expressing the inexpressible, for it is impossible to properly define that intuitive apprehension of truth, the noetic faculty of Plato, purely spiritual in its nature and only attained by reaching a certain stage of inner growth. However, all can grasp that the more one is attuned to the divine harmony of God the more perfectly one reflects His truth, love and beauty, and the more one perceives these things not only inwardly but outwardly also in all that God has made. It is also obvious that this illumination is not a matter of creed or formula, but the attainment of a different state of being. This is confirmed by the fact that the experiences of mystics have been similar, irrespective of race or religion. The chief factor common to all of them and therefore logically essential was a deep love, a passion rather, for the Light, Life and Love of God. And this passion for God so widened and deepened their vision that their love for Him embraced also His creatures and His creation. So that the great Hindu mystics were right when, in enumerating the various ways to God they termed the way of love, the "Royal Road," for all the other ways must in the end converge and unite in that Royal Way. In the story of the Master we see the way of duty exemplified in Martha, but Mary chose the way of love, the "better part." While we may act conscientiously towards others because it is our duty, yet after all it is but a poor, cold way of doing right compared to the vital living way of love. "As cold as charity" is proverbial, but true charity is encompassed about and vivified by love. The charity of duty done quite conscientiously but unsympathetically is indeed cold, but is not the true charity of the apostle. We might represent the virtues by the seven colors of the rainbow and love by the pure white light that contains these colors. Take but one color away and the light that remains is not a pure white. Take but one virtue away from love and there is no love, it is sullied and lacking an essential. It is well to meditate on these things, to reflect on the fact that our love must embrace not only God and our neighbors, but all humanity alike, enemies as well as friends, and not only all mankind but also all the living things that obtain life from the Giver of Life, for as He loves all so must we also.

A National Message

(By the Late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.)

Another axiom of the Law of the Lord is: "They shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid."

Far from debarring the people from private ownership, the Law of the Lord requires that every man shall have a possession in land sufficient to supply him with a homesite and with ground enough for him to grow his own supply of fruit. To this end the land may be leased, but not alienated. For the purpose of the administration of this law, the time limits of contracts for land is based on the jubilee period of fifty years. No reference is made to the particular year in which such a contract for land shall be made. Such contract may never overlap the end of the current jubilee period. It must end on the last day of the forty-ninth year of the fifty-year jubilee period. If the contract is made immediately on the commencement of the jubilee period it may run for the full period of years. If it is made midway of the jubilee period it cannot run more than twenty-five years. If made in the fortieth year of the jubilee period it cannot be for more than nine years. If in the forty-seventh years of the jubilee period it would be a short-term lease of two years, and so on. The price shall be according to the number of years to run. At the end of the jubilee period the land shall return to the original Crown grantee. So the families of Israel shall in their generations be secured of their homesites.

City land may be sold for ever, subject to one year in which to redeem after the sale has been effected. God is not very much interested in city land and property.

Conclude Series Sunday Morning

The series of addresses on Dr. J. Arnup's book, "A New Church Faces a New World," will be concluded next Sunday morning in St. Andrew's Church by Rev. E. W. Young. Dr. Arnup shows that the United Church of Canada is at once catholic and Canadian. He traces the various unions that eventually led up that which was consummated of June 10, 1925.

The author attempts in the closing chapter to deal with the new world in which the church is operating today. There is a net balance of gain, he says, arising out the new knowledge and power which modern science has brought to human society.

At the same time he makes clear that there has arisen a sense of disillusionment which has resulted in the diverse philosophies of life which have obtained a hold over men's minds in modern times.

Dr. Arnup is an historian rather than a philosopher, yet he must be congratulated on the manner in which he defends the principles of Christianity, and shows that the church holds the key to the world's salvation. It is foolish to talk to people today about such isms as Communism, Facism and Nationalism without explaining in simple language what they mean. It is equally ridiculous to say that the church has the major remedy for the world's ills without analyzing these, and pointing out what the church really has to offer the world.

Dr. Arnup faces these difficult issues, and the thoughtful reader should find real help in the closing chapter of this popular book.

Christian Renewal — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—John 10:7-16; Titus 3:1-11

Jesus said a great deal about life. He claimed to be "the door" by which we enter into life. "I am come," he said "that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly."

Paul addresses Titus as "my true child after a common faith", advising him how to deal with the difficult problems with which the young minister was confronted.

The inhabitants of the Island of Crete had been described as "liars, evil beasts, idle gluttons," yet they became "obedient, ready unto every good work," and "adorning the doctrine of our Saviour."

The change came "when the kindness of God our Saviour appeared", and "through the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Spirit . . ."

Where Britain Fits In

We regard it as highly significant that an agreement has been reached for withdrawing foreign troops from Spain. Britain has acted throughout all the long and tiresome negotiations with a great deal of patience, and less skilful handling of such a delicate situation might have resulted disastrously.

Italy has agreed to start taking her nationals out of Spain; those belonging to Britain will leave and in this way there will be accomplished the undoing of something which should never have been done in the first place—the piling in of outside troops to fight the war in Spain.

That has been a danger spot where anything might have happened. The fact that the trouble has not spread all over Europe is due to the fact that Britain seems to keep on producing statesmen who are not easily stampeded into dangerous action. When other nations have muddled things hopelessly there is always the British diplomat ready with the suggestion of how to find the proper way out. There are people right in Britain who call their own statesmen cowardly, but those who go more deep find the course one which is quite consistent with a sincere desire to preserve peace in the world. And it is a great thing for this troubled world that Britain stands just where she does, at the gateway of Europe, and that her genius for statesmanship and her system of training statesmen has not diminished.

Finding The Cause

The Children's Aid Society of Peterborough has decided to ask the Department of Public Welfare of Ontario to send a representative to this city in order to find out why the local Shelter continues to receive a "D" rating, one which is admittedly low. What the department may or may not do about it is something no person knows. If it is a case of reorganization it may be the officials in Toronto will advise the local people to attend to such business themselves.

The exact nature of the trouble which keeps the local Shelter from gaining a higher rating is a matter of importance, and the decision to have a revelation of the cause of the "D" rating is commendable. The location and nature of the Shelter here is better than in some cities which receive a higher standing and therefore greater assistance. We believe it will be found that preventive work must be more stressed here. Its importance may not at once be recognized by the community in general, but it produces results when carried on carefully and persistently. By that sort of work conditions in homes are corrected before they reach the stage where it is necessary to remove children, and it is as definitely a part of Children's Aid work as caring for orphans and neglected children entrusted to the Shelter. The community could well stand to be much more sympathetic toward the work of the Children's Aid Society for it is in a field where it deals with and cares for those who can do so little for themselves.

Clean Their Own House

There is this to be said for the legal profession: Its membership through its own organization weeds out those who are dishonest and who have refused to observe the ethics of sound and wholesome tradition.

There was a report in the paper about a barrister in Aurora whose name has just been removed from the roll of barristers and solicitors of Ontario by an order made by the registrar of the Supreme Court. The order was made on the motion of the benchers of the Law Society of Upper Canada. And it all happened because the barrister in question was considered "guilty of professional misconduct and conduct unbecoming a barrister and solicitor in connection with an estate in his hands."

That means the gentleman in question will not be permitted to practice, so he has ruined his own chances. It may seem to be harsh treatment, but actually it is not. The individual who goes to consult a barrister or who places papers and documents in his hands does so in confidence, and if that confidence is not respected then the barrister has no place in the legal world. The legal profession keeps its own house clean, and no one is more aware of that fact than the man who has been removed from the premises in the cleaning process.

How Liberals Lost Peel

A report coming from Brampton in the county of Peel tells of a great potato having been taken from the farm of Robert Barclay in the township of North Chinguacousy. In fact it seems there should have been one of the many available superlatives placed before the word "great," because this potato is fifteen inches around the waist and almost one foot in length. And the weight thereof is nearer four pounds than three. Whether Mr. Barlay has a machine with which he excavates such potatoes, or whether it is necessary to erect some sort of a derrick for the purpose we do not learn from the report as it is not mentioned. But it should have been.

The County of Peel was the place where Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, was defeated by Col. Thomas Laird Kennedy, himself a former Minister of Agriculture. Going through Brampton a short time before election it was noticed that all the poles in the community were bearing placards for Grits and Tories alike. From each pole Duncan Marshall looked down and put upon those who passed by, and Thomas Laird Kennedy was doing exactly the same thing.

As an old campaigner in this and other provinces, Mr. Marshall should have used his agricultural wits to advantage. We believe had he secured an order-in-council causing potatoes to be taken from their hiding places only a day or so before election the result might have been different. Had Farmer Barclay brought forth that enormous spud then Mr. Marshall would have been able to have taken it with him as he went up and down the county. He would not have had to depend upon reduction of car licenses, balancing budgets, industrial strikes and battles with the C.I.O., nor yet would he have had to say a word about his prize bull. He could have exhibited that potato and explained that a small family could feed upon it for a week, and then explained that such potatoes grew only when the soil of the land was happy and those who worked the soil were in similar mood. And then clinched the matter by promising that if he remained Minister of Agriculture all potatoes would grow that way. We cannot but feel that Farmer Barclay was holding out on Duncan Marshall, when he did not come forth and display the thing a few days before voting took place. If a potato could feed a small family for a week it could also have swung an election.

Could Hardly Be A Plot

Always is there a new plot. If it is not here then it is there. It is rather a lean day when some one has not come to the front to expose a new one. Garnet C. Neff, K.C., of Grenfell, Sask., when speaking at Regina, told of one which had taken on the form of discrediting Western Canada in Great Britain, and therefore paving the way to the granting of larger bonuses to induce British settlers to come to the country.

Mr. Neff referred to a meeting of the Empire Migration Conference in London at which a letter was read written by a woman in Saskatchewan telling that there were many British families there who would like to return to the land from which they originally came. This woman represented an organization which was said to have but eight members, and the speaker at Regina described her as being one of the "disgruntled" class.

We are possessed of much doubt regarding the existence of any plot to discredit Saskatchewan or any part of this country in the eyes of the people of Britain. What is taking place in any part of the world today can hardly be kept secret from the rest of the world. There are so many ways of spreading information. If there is a crop failure or a crop shortage or a better-than-average crop condition in any part of the world the grain markets of the world know about it. If there is much rain or too little rain—if there is frost or bad winds—all such things are matters of record at once, and they all become public property the world over.

So people in Britain, if they cared to read the news and reports, would know all about the conditions in Saskatchewan at any stated time. They would know the extent also to which the Canadian Government had found it necessary to go to the assistance of farmers there in the matter of seed and of direct relief. They would know too that the credit of the Western provinces was not considered strong enough to pledge against loans and that it was necessary to supplement their credit by that of the Dominion Government. All such matters have been freely discussed in the Canadian parliament and they are all on record.

We believe that is the best way to do business and the most satisfactory basis for carrying on immigration. It enables people to go about the serious business of moving from one land to another with all the facts plainly before them. With so much available and reliable information on hand pertaining to almost any known corner of the world it is hardly possible to concoct a plot to discredit any portion of the universe. In fairness to British folk or any others who desire to come to this country we believe the only plan is to have them impartially informed in an honest way regarding the possibilities and the crop histories and tendencies of our entire land. Then they can make their own decisions intelligently.

Assessing Property

The school for municipal officers at the University of Western Ontario got around to the discussion of assessment methods the other day, and the statement was made that the amount of money generally paid to an assessor was not sufficient to attract those who might be classed as experts. That may or not be the case, and there is nothing to indicate that paying more money would improve the system or the results it produces.

One speaker said it was necessary for the assessor to visit each property, but there are a number of cases where an assessor will allow the value to stand as of the previous year if there have been no improvements made.

The school at Western University was not told the ideal system of assessing had not yet been worked out, but we believe that is true. What might be called a fair market value for a property should have a considerable bearing on the assessment, but for a number of years there has been very little market for real estate in a good many communities, and a number of sales have been made because the owner was overly anxious to sell or was forced to do so. It is also a fact that there is plenty of property all over the province assessed for a figure at which it could not be sold. The value may well be there and probably is but that mark of value cannot be transferred into an actual transaction. So it is when there is not that frequent process of buying and selling there is no recognized standard by which to judge assessment based on its bearing to what might be termed a fair market value.

The chief trouble with assessment of property is that the entire financial structure of a municipality is based on maintaining the assessment at the point where it will yield the required amount of taxation income to pay the bills of the community. When property values decline and when the earning power of a good many citizens may also have declined, it is not possible to bring about a similar decline in assessment because the needs of the municipal treasury have not experienced a decline. Truth is, with the addition of relief, the municipal needs may even become greater in a period of decline of earnings and property values.

The municipal school at London touched on a highly complicated question when it considered assessment. The proper answer to the question could not be provided in a few sessions, but if they keep talking about it and examining it we may yet come to the point where there will be evolved something better than we have at the moment.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Canada imported only 300,000 cigars last year as against 13,000,000 in 1913 so that the politicians must be using the home-grown article at election time.

A rare Arctic bird called a skua has been discovered in the Meaford district and timid souls will immediately hail its advent as a sign of a cold winter.

One of the leading crooners of United States has been given a Ph.D. by a university, so every other Ph.D. in the country will now be busy explaining to his friends just how he happened to get his.

Gananoque man is thinking about trading in his old car which he has been driving for seventeen years. We do not know a great deal about the machine but we do not suppose it is a streamlined affair.

A Tampa football coach hires a crooner to sing to his team before they go on the field. The official reason is to offset pre-game "jitters" but we would be inclined to say that the real idea is to put the players in a fighting mood.

Man in Hamilton inquiry was asked if he had removed a million dollars in securities from Ontario to United States. To a question of that kind the average man could look court, judge, jury and the whole world in the face and answer "No sir."

A Fenelon Falls man has gone to the Ontario Reformatory for six months on his second conviction for drunken driving. That seems to be the only way to deal with offences of that kind, where appeals to courtesy and common sense are only wasted.

REASON

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I can recall when pleas first came, for folk to go and fight in Spain, and guns would be supplied; and meals were promised every day, some small amount would come as pay, and one could get a ride.

¶ And friends that I knew here and there, were all for joining this affair, they were for going ahead; when they had travelled far away, they'd face the enemy some day, and shoot some person dead.

¶ Old John McStew would up and go, he argued with me I was slow, because I stayed at home; if they just showed him where to fight, why he would get along all right, he'd run the war alone.

¶ I told him plain I would not go, there was no Spaniard that I'd know, nor would I waste my time; I told him too I was afraid, that some wild man might take a spade, and whack me on the spine.

¶ I heard today from John McStew, and he scarce knows just what to do, for he has lost an arm; he's half way back and out of luck, he tells me he is mired and stuck, and sleeping in a barn.

¶ I can't write much to John McStew, and lecture him on what to do, point blunders he has made; for when I meet him he will say, the reason I kept from the fray—because I was afraid.

THERE ARE no fewer than three Sundays in the Holy Land, the Sunday of the Christians, the Sabbath of the Jews and the Friday of the Moslems. The Turks however are simplifying the situation as far as their country is concerned by making the official "day of rest" the Christian Sunday—not from any religious standpoint but in order to have their week-end coincide with the European one. Previously business—especially banking — was paralyzed from Thursday evening to Monday morning, due to the Turkish and European week-ends coming so close together.

In the days of Merrie England none but "lawful and discreet knights" could be chosen as coroners and in one case a person was actually removed from office for insufficiency of estate. In some parts of England the duties of the coroners are enlarged embracing also investigations into the origin of fires. Up to 1887 the English coroner was also called upon to hold inquests on royal fish (sturgeon and whales) thrown ashore or caught near the coast.

The bromine will be used for chemicals, dyes and anti-knock gasoline.

Interesting Cyprus.

CYPRUS, THAT 3,600-square-mile island situated in the Mediterranean has some quant old ruins and some quaint new laws. One of them is that before one may have a radio he must obtain a permit from the Postmaster General—provided that official accepts the testimony of two persons approved by the same Postmaster General as to the blamelessness of the applicant's life. Then after the successful applicant does get his radio he must use it only in the place specified in his license nor can he sell it or give it away.

Another quaint Cypriot custom which at first puzzles the tourist, then later amuses and finally annoys him, is the habit of the youth of the country everywhere greeting him or her with a hearty "Good-bye" in place of "Hello"——all due to a mistake in a Greek-English grammer used these many years in the public schools of Cyprus. Begger-beset tourists often wish the "good-bye" was actually a farewell.

It's Not a New Racket.

COUNTERFEITING is by no means a new racket. Nearly three hundred years ago the wampum, which consisted of beads made of shells, used by the Indians as money was counterfeited in the vicinity of Boston.

Strangely enough an "apparatus for making imitation counterfeit articles" has been patented in the United States. Its use, although perhaps legitimate, seems obscure.

Employed by a company which makes currency for foreign nations an expert counterfeiter is continually trying to copy the product. If he succeeds in producing deceptive duplicates his ability to do so signifies the need of making the bank notes more complicated.

Peculiar among counterfeiting schemes was the attempt of European traders to deceive the natives of the island of New Guinea by using porcelain imitation canine teeth instead of the genuine dog teeth used as currency by the natives whose familiarity with the genuine teeth soon thwarted the scheme to defraud them.

An amusing story about the counterfeiting racket is that told of the lawyer who successfully defended two counterfeiters arrested in Brazil and who were charged with passing bogus American currency. After getting the pair off he accepted as his fee from the prisoners five one-hundred dollar bills, which, though handsomely printed, he afterward discovered to be also counterfeit.

During the decade preceding the year 1980 a disingenuous rascal in New York realized a huge profit from the sale of counterfeit bills to customers by mail. He sold bills at the rate of $12 for $1.

Peterborough In Stage Coach Days

Glimpses of Newly Incorporated Town As Seen in 86-Year-Old Newspaper

AMONG THE effects of the late Thomas Blodgett who died recently was found a copy of one of Peterborough's earliest newspapers, the Weekly Despatch of January 30, 1851. From its four pages a fascinating glimpse can be obtained of the little town that had just sprung into being as an incorporated municipality shortly before that year. Here and there can be seen a name that is still a familiar one in this community but for the most part the firms and the citizens who are mentioned in this ancient paper have long since passed into the limbo of forgotten things.

The Despatch was a weekly publication with its offices on George street and the printer and proprietor was G. Haslehurst. His statement of business policy, printed at the masthead of paper, was that "no paper will be discontinued and no ad will be taken out of the paper until all arrearages are paid."

The professional cards published in the issue under review include those of three members of the legal profession. One announced himself merely as Mr. Dennisoun; the others were G. W. Keigan, with office on Hunter Street and W. H. J. Vizard who was located on George Street. Two physicians were listed, one described as Dr. E. Perry, the other merely as Mr. John MacNabb, surgeon and coroner. The drug business had as its representative A. W. Kempt. Two names that were household ones in Peterborough for a good many years after and are well known to the elder citizens were those of William Cluxton who was at that time a dealer in fancy and staple goods with a store located at the corner of the market square and W. H. Wrighton who was then the agent for the British—American Fire and Life Insurance Company. The Bank of Montreal had an agency here with R. Nicholls as its representative and John F. Aibro operated a general store at the corner of Hunter and George Steets.

LOCAL NEWS SCARCE

THERE was not a great deal of local news in this particular copy of the Despatch, in fact a clearer picture of the conditions of that period can be obtained from the advertisements than from the news columns. The longest item dealing with local happenings told of the missionary anniversary of the Wesleyan Church at which it was stated there was an attendance of between 800 and 1,000 people and the chairman of which was Walter Sheridan, the clerk of the county, who incidentally is buried in the old cemetery north of Nicholls Hospital. There is a short note covering a meeting of the town council to the effect that Wm. Clukton, T. Harper and D. Taylor had been appointed assessors and James Ferguson had been named coroner. It was also stated that a special committee had been appointed to define the duties of the chief constable and fix his salary and another to consider the "expediency of buying the waste land on the south end of the town."

Of the county council the Despatch said "The only business as yet transacted is the appointment of a warden which we need hardly say rested upon Thomas Short, Esq. of Keene. We hope to be able to lay a full account before our readers next week."

Canadian news got scant space in the issue. About the only item of interest was a report from Toronto quoting Hon. Robert Baldwin's opinion as to the responsibility of School Boards providing Separate schools when these were asked for by Roman Catholics. There was a shipping note to the effect that steamer Arctic had arrived at Halifax from Liverpool on January 25 carrying 26 passengers while the America had reached Liverpool from this side on January 7. The chief world news was a paragraph telling about the collapse of a number of buildings in New York city.

INTERESTING ADVERTISEMENTS

HERE IS ONE of the most striking advertisements. "£5 reward will be given by the town council of the town of Peterborough to any person who will give such information as will lead to the conviction of the person or persons who left a newly born male child at the door of the home of Mrs. M. and to the identity of the mother of the child."

Another advertisement offered for sale a lot at the foot of Rice Lake with the statement that it was favorable for a "house of entertainment and a ferry." It is interesting too to learn that the Vermont Marble Company which many decades after was to establish a Canadian branch in this city had an agency here in that faraway year for James K. Biglow, tin and copper smith described himself as local agent for the company.

In the small amount of what is now known as national advertising that appeared in the 1851 Despatch was a display calling attention to the merits of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and that is the only familiar name in the list.

STAGE COACH DAYS

TRANSPORTATION in those days was most assuredly not a very speedy matter. This particular issue of the Despatch contained a notice to the effect that during the winter months a mail stage would leave the Commercial Hotel in Peterborough on Monday and Thursday morning of each week for "Emily, Lindsay and the Four Corners, Mariposa," with return trips on Tuesday and Fridays. The advertisement further pointed out that passengers leaving Toronto or Oshawa on Monday or Thursday morning would arrive in Peterborough on the evening of the following day, if they took the Scarboro bus. The notice winds up with the statement, "Sleighing on this line is generally first rate and the hotels are very good."

In the same issue can be found an advertisement for the Victoria daily line of mail coaches, offering the "cheapest, shortest and most expeditious route between Peterborough and Lake Ontario. The stage left Cobourg daily at 8 o'clock and Port Hope at 9 o'clock for Peterborough and the service was operated by W. and J. Bletcher, proprietors. These two eighty-six year old travel advertisements tell their own story of the transportation facilities of the Peterborough of the middle of last century before the first railway entered the district.

Can Give More Jobs To Their Friends

Effect of One Tax Levied in Quebec; Industry Pays Cost of Fair Wage Board

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR,—I am rather surprised that employers throughout the Province have not hitherto taken strong exception to that provision of the Fair Wage Act, compelling them to contribute 1 per cent. of their pay roll toward the administrative expenses of the Commission. This seems to me a rather original and novel way of extracting money from industry. Why should the employer, already harassed by the municipal and federal Governments, be called upon to pay this additional exaction. No province, to my knowledge, has adopted legislation of this kind. It is unfair to both the employer and the employes.

If no exception is taken to this unfair toll upon industry, it will enable the Government to secure a huge amount of money which it can spend as it sees fit, in appointing to offices its friends who have earned or need jobs. It is quite likely that all those appointed to fill various offices will be chosen largely because of their sympathy or services rendered the party in office.

In any event, leaving this phase of the situation aside, industry must now contribute toward the meeting of claims in connection with injuries due to employment. If the Government thought it advisable to enact this legislation, why must it place upon industry the burden of maintaining the personnel required? No charge is made in connection with the inspection of public buildings and factories. Why then this 1 per cent? Industry is being almost suffocated because of the numerous vexatious taxes it has to pay.

I think the same purpose the Government has in mind can be served by guaranteeing and protecting the right of workers to organise without any fear of discrimination on the part of employers. The labor unions in the past accomplished a great deal to help the exploited workers. Employers should likewise become sensible to the advantages of a satisfied staff. The protection which the Government seeks to give can be just as easily secured through encouraging labor unions, that will, as they have already shown, be able to very effectively enforce agreements in the matter of fair wages, shorter hours and conditions.

I hope that the Board of Trade, the Manufacturers Association, and the leaders of industry will make their influence felt, and unitedly demand the abolition of this unfair tax upon industry to support a large administrative body whose salary should be paid out of the consolidated revenue and not the earnings of industry.

To the Editor

RED APPLES

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The Institute meets today and a neighbor called to ask me to give a short reading for her. (In her stead) I had saved a large pile of Examiners which I began over a second time and clip many useful articles for future use. There was a certain write up I wanted to find. After looking over a lot of papers I was afraid it was lost. Finally at the bottom of the pile I came across it. It was called: "The Folk on the Back Concessions". I think that is very clever. It has common sense, good philosophy and a lot of humor. The fact of the matter is, with radio, good newspapers, telephones etc., there is no reason why any one should be ignorant these days.

There are some beautiful large elms and maples on some of these places and a great abundance of very good water. The harvest is good this year and where we consider the lack of all these things in the West, we should be very thankful.

It is threshing time on our line and the pantries are over flowing these days with pumpkin pies, apple pies, and lots of good things to eat, which the threshers make short work of when they come.

I often go to the theatre when I go to town, and made a friend of a bright young boy, who sits about where I do at the "Capitol." He was telling me about a party he went to, where he had so many good things to eat and seemed very pleased over receiving a large red apple.

"Why," I told him, the first thing I see when I wake up in the morning is a whole tree hanging with those large red apples just out in the orchard.

Your paper is much enjoyed, especially the editorials telling about the "Tenth Concession." It is particularly interesting to the blind patient in this home as his family have lived here for a good many years.

Yours truly,
EMERALD ISLE.

THRILL OF PLOWING.

(Windsor Star)

"WHAT was the attraction?" probably the first question many persons asked on reading the news despatch reporting an attendance of 25,000 people on the second day and 45,000 on the third day of the International Plowing Match at Fergus.

Fergus being a town with no great population it would be readily assumed that a large percentage of the people came from outside points. It would be further assumed that only a small percentage of those 45,000 actually took part in the contest.

The answer, of course, would be obvious to anybody who knows anything about plowing. There is nothing like the thrill which accompanies plowing a straight furrow, and when you can't do the plowing yourself the best thing is to watch.

210 Weddings In City This Year But Only 29 New Homes Built Where Are Rest Residing?

Shortage Of Homes In Peterborough More Apparent Every Day

Here's a problem for local sociologists and any other persons who are interested in the welfare of society. And there's nothing academic about it. In fact it relates to realities.

Since January 1 Peterborough has rung the bells for 210 weddings, and during the same time only 29 houses and apartments have been built.

One new house or apartment for every seven newly married couples! Obviously the problem presents itself. What has become of the other six? Quite a number of them, perhaps, are living in other cities; but the great majority of them have remained in Peterborough.

Not Like Olden Days

In the old days of large families, the young bridegroom expected to have a house of his own for the woman he was about to marry. He probably did not have the deed of it, but he had a rental lease, and in many instances he was on the way to actual possession. The young married man of our fathers' day did not ponder the possibilities of staying in the old nest—his or his wife's—because two many brothers and sisters used most of the available accommodation. And, any way, it doesn't seem to have been a custom. Young people desired to set up their own households, and the building trades were busy from March to December.

Just to state the glaring and provocative facts once more,—210 marriages in Peterborough since New Year's Day and only 29 new buildings, meaning houses and apartments, including the improvised duplex.

Avoiding In-Laws

Dorothy Dix advises young newlyweds to keep away from their in-laws, except friendly visitings. "Daughter am I in my mother's house, but mistress in my own." Every young bride hopes for a house of her own, or an apartment. That being so, a large number of those who married this year must be facing domestic disappointment.

The city hall record of 29 new "places of abode" includes the seven or eight room house converted into a duplex; alterations for apartments and any other phrase that means the same thing.

Three Families, One House

Some seven and eight room houses in this city, and also on its borders, that were built for one family are now sheltering three families; but all the space is being used from cellar to garret.

"If the "where have they gone" question is not readily answered, an easier one is suggested by its disparity.

"Has Peterborough a housing problem?"

Marriages 210; new habitations 29.

The Examiner began a year ago a campaign to stimulate the building industry in Peterborough and to encourage investment in new homes. Since the first of the year City Engineer Parsons has issued 386 building permits but only 29 of them have been for houses or apartments. The rest have been for verandahs, summer kitchens, sleeping porches, shingling and so on. The estimated total expenditure was $71,350.

For twelve months the scarcity of houses has been repeatedly mentioned, and apparently the lack of housing is more acute now than it was a year ago. It must be, with 210 marriages, each marriage representing a family in embryo at least, and only 29 new houses and apartments erected in the city.

Having Your Curtains Same Color As Walls

A small room which is broken by numerous windows and doors may gain a unity of effect if the curtains are the same color as the walls and no draperies are used. If curtains may not be obtained in the desired color, the natural shade of the cloth may be dyed.

This is a good thought when doing over a room under the Home Improvement Plan. The matter of window treatment should be kept in mind when the paint or paper is being selected for the walls.

MODERNIZING OF A CHILD'S ROOM

In modernizing a child's room, one should remember the children and their likes and dislikes. Boys, nine times out of ten, will want a "hobby room." Ships, dogs, hockey, football or soldiers will be the theme they want carried out.

But girls are another problem.

A little girl will want a room "like Mother's." She will want a dressing table a desk, a comfortable chair for reading. And maybe a socially-minded young person would want a coffee table from which she might dispense cocoa or orange juice to her young friends. The home-making instincts of a little girl may be fostered or stunted by the kind of room she lives in.

One couple who had acquired a very old house and were modernizing it decided to let their six-year-old daughter choose as many of the furnishings for her room as she cared to. They started with the wall paper. The mother explained to the child that she must choose the background for her room and then pick out the other articles accordingly. The little girl was like a child in a candy store with the various wall papers that she saw, but with Mother's guiding hand the choice narrowed down and she eventually decided on a paper in apricot and blue. Small bouquets of flowers formed the design.

Ceiling Painted Blue

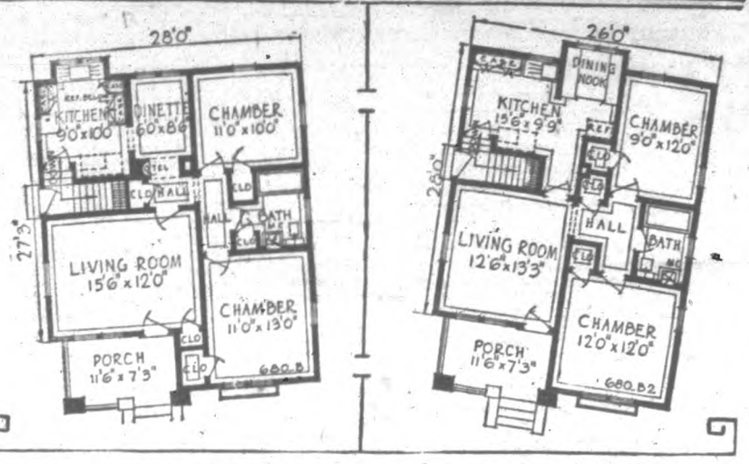
The ceiling, being low, was painted blue to match the paper and also to give a feeling of spaciousness. The woodwork was finished in apricot. A new mantel was built over the old fireplace. The original bricks were painted to look well with the apricot woodwork.

The wide board floors were scraped and waxed. Electric outlets were placed conveniently and the light switch was placed low enough for a little girl to reach without standing on tiptoe and groping, leaving smudges on the paper. The large window was weather stripped to prevent drafts.

A screen was purchased which matched the general colour scheme and which, when placed about the bed, allowed fresh air for the sleeping child but kept chill winds from blowing directly on her. The pride of the child's heart was her draped dressing table. "like Mothers". An egg crate was utilized by an ingenious father and the ruffled skirt was made of inexpensive wash materials. A bathroom mirror with its frame painted apricot was hung over the table, of a height appropriate to its six-year-old mistress.

The floor was covered with a large rag rug. A book-case held the usual child's books and a desk allowed ample space for studying or colouring pictures, a favourite pastime.

Bungalow Type Of House Appeals To Many



Bungalow type home that may have either four or five rooms, showing exterior and alternate floor plans.

By Central Press

THIS NEAT little bungalow type of house may be built to contain five rooms, as shown in plan B, or four, as pictured in plan B2. It is a frame building.

The rooms, in either case, are all arranged on one floor—always appreciated by the busy housewife. This type of home is popular, on account of its simplicity of design and economy of space.

The five-room floor plans show living room, kitchen, dinette, two bedrooms and bath. The other plan substitutes a dining nook for the dinette, and eliminates one or two other conveniences, such as a space for telephone and table. Both plans provide closet space and hallways.

The size of the main building in plan B is 28 by 33 feet; in plan B2, it is 26 by 34 feet; total in plan B is 16,800 cubic feet; in plan B2, 16,000 cubic feet.

WESLEY CHURCH HAS ANNIVERSARY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORTH SMITH, Oct. 23. — With ideal weather adding greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion, the reopening after decoration and anniversary services of Wesley United Church, 16th Concession of Smith, were held both morning and evening Sunday. The contributions of the Curve Lake Indian choir, with Mr. D. Taylor, leader, and Mrs. Allan Taylor, organist, at the morning service were greatly appreciated, while at the evening service, Wesley choir, with Miss Mary Nicholls, organist, rendered appropriate anthems.

Mr. Ken. Stewart, student minister of the church, conducted both services and preached to capacity audiences, which included many visitors from nearby points.

The entire cost of decoration has been removed by the donations of the congregation and by the splendid efforts and leadership given to the project by the Ladies' Aid.

On Tuesday evening the celebrations were continued when the ladies served a goose dinner in the hall adjacent to the church. Although rain fell during the day the evening was all that could be hoped for and even by 5 p.m. the tables were filled and from then till 10 p.m. a steady crowd of people was catered to. The large turnout far exceeded all expectations and for the first time the food supply was nearly exhausted. It is estimated that over 500 persons were fed, and many went away unable to gain admittance.

Following the dinner a play entitled "Blue Bag" was presented by talent from Orange Corners. The proceeds of the evening amounted to over $190.

Youth Awarded $1 For False Arrest

WHITBY, Ont., Oct. 23—(CP).—Albert Wheeler, 19, East Whitby township farmer, was awarded $1 damages by a Supreme Court jury in his action over alleged false arrest against Samuel Burgoyne, farmer, mortgagee of the Wheeler property.

The alleged false arrest was aled to have taken place April 3 when police restrained Wheeler from taking doors and windows off the mortgaged propery. Wheeler claimed the stigma of having been handcuffed would follow him through life.

Mr. Justice Makins told the jury it might conclude the whole matter was a tempest in a teapot. Burgoyne had a right to stop the articles being taken from the house and to use sufficient force to that end.

Panelled Walls In Living Room Will Radiate Hospitality

Room That Has Become Tiresome Will Take On New Life

The housewife who wants her living room to radiate hospitality while it maintains an air of dignity may well choose panelled walls as a background for the furnishings. A room that has become tiresome will take on new life with the added distinction of panelled walls.

One housewife decided on this means of bringing the interior of her house up to modern fashion. She did not feel that the expense of making structural changes to the house was justified, so concentrated her efforts on the rooms in which the family spent most of its time.

The wall panels used were in an interesting design. The wood was not of a uniform size and the irregularity kept the room from too formal an atmosphere. Over the mantel small squares of the panelling formed a design, obviating the necessity of any wall decoration.

Chinese tiles were used in the fireplace, striking a note of colour against the sombre background of the wood. The floor was refinished and leaded windows replaced the regulation ones which had formerly graced the room.

When the transformation of the room had been completed the owner had gay chintz covers made for the furniture and matching drapes hung. No curtains were used at the leaded windows. The entire character of the room was changed and the family had an individual room which stood out from others of the neighborhood.

Funds for modernization and redecoration of the home are now available under the generous terms of the Home Improvement Plan.

Decorating Conventional Home Real Problem For Housewife

Hundreds Of Houses Throughout The Country Are All Built Alike

A decorating problem which faces numerous housewives is what to do with the conventional house which looks exactly like its neighbors and to which no structural changes may be made.

Throughout the country there are hundreds of square houses, the entrance and hall on one side, a sun porch at the front. These are frequently built in rows and restrictions sometimes prevent any material changes in outward appearance.

One housewife with such a problem decided to make the inside of her home so attractive that one would forget that the house had been built too long ago to be modern in outside appearance. She had the outside of the house repainted and then devoted her attention to the inside.

The house had a long, narrow hall with a living room and dining room to the left and the kitchen in the back. A sun porch ran across the front and was the same width as the living room. Doors which led to this were removed, making the porch an integral part of the room.

Walls Painted Yellow

The walls were painted a soft yellow and white Venetian blinds were hung at the long glass windows. The walls of the main part of the living room were covered with fibre insulation board. Wide panels were left a natural tan colour and narrow panels were finished in deep yellow and brown. The entire wall space between the fireplace and ceiling was covered with an unframed mirror.

A composition covering in deep brown was laid over the worn wood floor. This also covered the dining room floor. This apartment, easily visible from the living room, had walls of deep cream. Floors of the entire group were bordered with two narrow white stripes. The old-fashioned heating plant was changed for an air-conditioning system.

Bought New Furniture

To supplement this modern background, the housewife purchased new furniture with her own funds. Brown, tan, and yellow were used in furnishings and accessories for the main part of the living room. The sun porch was furnished in keeping with the general decorative trend but bright shades of orange and blue were introduced in the figured upholstery on the chairs.

As a result, the living quarters of the house gave an effect of spaciousness and harmony where previously three small separate rooms had existed. Any individual with a good credit rating can obtain a loan from his bank through the Home Improvement Plan to improve his property. The loans are re-payable in small equal instalments and may be spread over a period of five years, if desired.

Auto Production Up 29 Percent

OTTAWA, Oct. 23—(CP)—Canada's September automobile production totalled 4:417 units against 10.742 in August and 4.655 in September, 1936. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, reported to-day.

In the first nine months of this year 161,671 motor vehicles were produced, a gain of 29 per cent. over the 125,738 units in the corresponding period in 1936.

Passenger car output in September numbered 1,926 units and commercial vehicles totalled 2,491. Of these totals, 541 passenger cars and 854 trucks were made for the Canadian market with the balance of 1,385 passenger cars and 1,637 trucks intended for export.

3 DRIVERS FINED IN TWEED COURT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, October 23—In Police Court, held before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, Stafford Lessard, Flinton, pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving and was fined $10.00, and costs, while his driver's license was suspended for a period of ten days. The charge followed a motor accident on Highway 41 on October 9.

In the same Court, Ray Lloyd was found guilty of operating a car without the proper lights, and was assessed $1.00, and costs.

William Lee, a Lakefield truck driver, pleaded guilty to a charge of having a trailer on the highway after dark without the proper lights. He was fined $5.00, and costs. The case arose from an accident on No. 7 Highway between vehicles operated by Mr. Lee and a Tweed Creamery truck operated by A. M. Wood.

After having been stolen in Barrie Township early this week, an automobile was found in a blazing mass north of the Village of Coyne. The vehicle was a complete loss, being burned beyond repair, only a twisted mass of metal wreckage remaining.

Provincial Constable Fred Barrett investigated and announced the automobile, a 1936 Hupmobile, had been the property of Arnold Caird, Barrie Township, and had been stolen along with a Johnson twin outboard motor. The outboard motor was not recovered, and is not believed to have been in the automobile. Provincial authorities state Mr. Caird was of the opinion that the automobile had been stolen and purposely set on fire by persons unknown, due to spite held. Subsequent investigations by Provincial Police have been in progress.

Infantile paralysis has struck the Village of Marlbank, the schools having been closed since last Friday. The churches were also closed.

Leaves Boulder on Road.

Through the gross carelessness of some motorist, the mechaniam of the automobile owned by a local medical man was damaged. It appears that a large boulder, used by an errant motorist for "packing up" his vehicle, was left on the road over the brow of a hill and approaching drivers were unaware of the existing danger.

Heard before Chief Coroner Dr. C. Wilson of Napanee, and conducted by Crown Attorney K. Ham, the inquest into the death of the late Sandy Thompson, 23, killed on Highway No. 41, north of Kaladar, on September 27, was held this week at Flinton. William Hinchey, 38, escaped with serious injuries in the same accident, from which he is still suffering.

The jury, under the foremanship of Hawley Stone, after considering the evidence, brought in a verdict which stated that Thompson came to his death in an auto accident on Highway 41, and that the fatality was entirely due to his own negligent driving.

Walter Vilneff, Tweed, pleaded guilty in the Police Court here on Thursday, when charged with selling liquor. He was ordered to pay a fine of $500.00, plus six months in the County Jail. NEWLYWED COUPLE GUESTS AT SHOWER

YOUNG'S POINT, Oct. 23. — On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Millage who have been recently married were charmingly entertained at Young's Hall when they received a miscellaneous shower of gifts from their friends.

Among the presents were a set of kitchen utensils in cream and black enamel, also a dinner and tea set combined.

Rev. E. C. Moore presented the gifts to the bride and groom, who were seated beneath an evergreen arch. The groom, on behalf of his bride and himself, thanked everyone for their great kindness to them both. After the presentation the dance commenced to music of Wilson's orchestra, until eleven o'clock when lunch was served by the committee in charge. After lunch dancing was resumed until the wee sma hours when everyone trotted to their own homes, having spent a very happy evening with Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Millage.

Among those from a distance who were present were, Mr. and Mrs. John Millage (father and mother of the groom) and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Brown, of Lakefield.

Basement Space Can Be Converted Into Pleasant Rooms – No Dinginess

It used to be that when you went into the basement you knew pretty much what you would find. There would be a furnace, a coal-bin store room and probably dusty piles of broken furniture. But today you never know. When you reach what should be the basement you might find an Italian street scene, the deck of an ocean liner or an African jungle.

Many home-owners have discovered that this space can be converted into pleasant rooms. Modernization funds for this purpose may now be obtained from any Canadian bank under the generous terms of the Dominion Government's Home Improvement Plan.

The basement of one home in which there were several children was converted into playroom for rainy days. There was a sand-pile, a slide, see-saw, a table for ping-pong and other games. Gay pictures decorated the white walls.

HAT CUPBOARD WOMAN'S DESIRE

Every woman has hoped some time or other for a cupboard just for her hats, and here is a suggestion for one. It is built of white pine which takes stain or paint equally well.

At either side are niches for a candlestick or a pot of flowers, and underneath each niche is a small drawer—one for makeup and the other for gloves. A long drawer provides space for pocketbooks and scarves. Inside the door is a mirror.

Several interesting color schemes may be used here. The wood may be stained a lovely warm mellow brown, while the floor may be tile or linoleum, in shades of rich reds, tans and blues.

Another delightful effect may be obtained by painting the cupboard white (and let that be a dull eggshell finish). Then set it off with dull dead black hardware. Something a bit more unusual would be to paint the door and niches robin's egg blue, and again use the dull black hardware with it.

On the other side of the same wall, you can have a bookcase. Imagine how it would completely transform your living room!

Don't worry if you haven't books to fill it. You probably soon will have. Let some of the books stand up straight, lay the bigger ones flat, and let some lean over.

A bookcase gives you an opportunity of displaying a bit of metal or pottery on the top—for instance, one side could have a brass candlestick, a pewter plate and a little blue pot—the other side, a copper plate with a jade-green vase in front of it. You can build cupboards and bookcases in under the Home Improvement Plan. Any bank will be glad to explain the plan.

FIVE YEARS TO PAY FOR HOME IMPROVEMENTS

Owner Of Old Fashioned House Tells How He Modernized

First Prize Essay In Recent Contest Tells Of What One Man Did

As a part of its generous support of the Home Improvement Plan, the Winnipeg Tribune recently conducted an essay contest. Stories were invited from people who had used the plan, and money prizes were offered for the four best. In order that the excellent suggestions contained in these essays may receive wider circulation, the National Employment Commission proposes to send them out from time to time. Here is the first prize essay submitted by P. G. Hiebert:

"I owned a small brick cottage, very old fashioned inside, but well built. The plaster was loose, the fir floors old and warped, the plumbing fixtures hopelessly out of date, and a stove-pipe led from the furnace through the kitchen to a fire hazard chimney of the bracket type. The living-room was very small, the dining-room, kitchen and bath-room all needlessly large. This house rented for $20 a month, with a big repair and decorating bill in prospect. As it was in a convenient location I decided to take advantage of the Home Improvement Plan to modernize this house and reduce my own expenses by living in it."

Replanned the House

"By moving the front entrance I was able to replan the house without tearing down too many partitions, and this also gave me a front vestibule leading to the living-room and having a small extra door to one of the bed rooms. The partitions between living-room, dining-room and kitchen were shifted giving these rooms proper proportions. The bracket type chimney was replaced by one built from the basement and this enabled me to put in a fireplace in the living room at the same time.

"The warped floors were easily straightened by raising a post in the basement. Inlaid linoleum was cemented on three-ply wood in kitchen, bathroom and vestibule. Bedroom floors were refinished in narrow oak and wide oak planking was laid in the living-room and dining-room.

"The hot-air heating system was overhauled, and oak grill registers replaced the old type in the living and dining rooms.

"In re-wiring for these changes, modern electric fixtures and extra plugs for radio and mantlepiece clocks, etc., were installed.

Now Will Rent for $35

"I now have a home completely modern, thoroughly insulated, with low taxes for five years. Its rental value, according to an appraiser's estimate, is between $35 and $40 per month. I have borrowed most of the money for the reconstruction under the Home Improvement Plan. I find that I can pay taxes, interest on my investment, insurance, heating, water, repairs and repayment of my loan under the Home Improvement Plan, borrowed on a three-year basis, and still pay $3 a month less than I at present pay in rent for my suite. The monthly repayments under the Home Improvement Plan constitute an increasing equity in my home.

"As the old plaster had at this stage fallen off I had the walls, with the exception of the bathroom and kitchen, refinished in insulating wall board of decorative design and having a rough oatmeal finish which requires no paint for a number of years. The ceilings were finished in smooth-texture square panels of the same insulating material.

"The old large bathroom was made into a small extra bedroom and room was found for a new bathroom was built-in cupboards and fixtures, recess bath and pedestal basin. In the kitchen also a modern sink replaced the old one."

SPURT SEEMS SURE IN HOME BUILDING AS DEFICIT GROWS

TORONTO, Oct. 23. — A wave of house-building rising to a peak possibly within six years was forecast for Canada by Earle C. Brockett, vice-president of the Canadian Johns-Manville Company Limited, in an interview today. Mr. Brockett did not say that the higher construction level was long overdue, nor that there would likely be any startling upturn immediately, but based his confident prediction on a definite accumulated deficit of houses; on factors which currently favor construction; and on the apparent cycle for the Dominion which would seem to indicate a peak before 1946.

An outlay of $200,000,000 for homes annually for the next ten years is necessary, he said, if Canadians are to be as well-housed as they should be. Compared with the $66,000,000 which will be spent in 1937 on residential building, this may seem high, but it is the only way, Mr. Brockett warns, to avert housing bankruptcy.

"The spurt in construction is a certainty; may even now be on its way," said Mr. Brockett. "How long it lasts when it arrives depends chiefly on the rate at which our previous building deficit is made good."

Cycle is 17 Years

"Economic phenomena", he continued, "seems to recur at more or less definite intervals. Even the price of cattle seems to run in cycles. In the case of construction volume, the cycle is well marked. In Canada it seems to average about seventeen years. There was a building peak in 1912 and the next was in 1929. There was a trough in 1915 and the next was in 1933.

"Building has only begun to recover since then. It seems obvious that there will be a steeper upward swing to a crest corresponding more or less to the 1929 peak. If the peak arrives early in the cycle it may be with us in five years."

"Short recessions in building activity should not be taken seriously," Mr. Brockett said. The long-term view is essential to a clear understanding of the house-building picture. He then pointed to Canada's increasing shortage, now totalling roughly, 200,000 houses.

"Canada requires a certain number of houses each year to shelter new families and to replace houses destroyed or obsoleted. Let us say this annual requirement is 40,000 homes, of which 35,000 will take care of the annual population increase of 150,000 people, at the rate of about four persons per home; and the other 5,000 for normal replacements; that is for homes destroyed by such things as fire and flood.

"The figure of 40,000 homes also seems reasonable when construction figures over a long period are studied. However, Canada has never yet built 40,000 homes in a year; the nearest approach was some 35,000 homes in 1929. A deficit of residential building, therefore, has been growing all along. The accumulated deficit to the end of 1937, it is estimated, will be about 200,000 homes. Therefore, it is plain, if we are to be as well-housed as we should be, we must build not only 40,000 homes a year for current needs, but also 200,000 to wipe out the shortage; in other words, 60,000 homes a year for ten years.

Under-Building Right Now

"This creates a house-building budget of at least $240,000,000 a year, based on average home cost of $4,000 per home. It appears likely that 1937 expenditure on construction of homes will reach only $66,000,000, so that right now we are under-building at the rate of $174,000,000 a year."

Reasons exist, Mr. Brockett pointed out, for believing that the wave of building may start soon. Factors affecting construction in Canada are mostly favorable. These include increased export trade; (35 per cent. gain in fiscal year ending March 31); a 20 per cent. jump in income tax collections, and a decided rise in rents. Paralleling these upturns the construction contracts awarded in the first seven months in Canada revealed a gain of more than 35 per cent. over the same period of 1936. Building costs have been such as to check any quick rise in construction activity but, nevertheless, the rise is on the way.

"In addition," Mr. Brockett observed, "there are many influences at work to stimulate building, such as the Government Home Improvement Plan and mortgage loan plan, and slum clearance projects.

"Building," he concluded, "is highly postponeable, but not indefinitely so. Increased rate of home construction can be confidently expected. When this happens, it will be a potent stimulant to general business, for the building cycle and the business cycle are interwoven. The building of homes represents building for Canada's future. Design and materials and equipment available today make it possible to deliver far more house for the money expended than in previous years when Canada's building was at a high level."

SCHOOL PUPILS HAVE GOOD FAIR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORTH SMITH, Oct. 23.—The Community League of Wesley United church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sage, on Wednesday evening.

Owing to the annual school fair, which is regularly held at Buckhorn, being cancelled, the teacher of S.S. No. 10, Smith, Miss E. Evans, and her pupils held a very interesting and successful miniature exhibition in the Orange hall on Friday evening last. In addition to the exhibits the pupils presented a short concert, and were aided in this project by Mr. H. C. Renaud, of Peterborough, who is director of music in the school. Mr. John Harrison acted as chairman while Mr. Ralph Garbutt judged the boys' exhibits, and Mrs. H. Shearer and Mrs. G. Dunford judged the sewing and cooking exhibits.

The concert period was devoted to public speaking, reciting and singing and all the numbers were well received. At the conclusion the pupils served dainty refreshments. The proceeds of the affair are to be devoted to purchasing additional equipment for the school.

The congregation of Wesley United church is again contributing fruit and vegetables to be sent to the West, and any donations of such are to be left at the following homes: Mr. Russel Davis, Mr. J. W. Blewett and Mr. Bob Armstrong.

Woman Is Put In Her Place Take It Without A Murmur

Union Of St. Jean Baptiste Told Off By Priest At Annual Convention

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 23—(CP)—A goal was kicked for the henpecked husband here by the annual conference of the Union of St. Jean Baptiste, most powerful Franco-American society in America, and delegates now have returned to their homes knowing full well who is head of their household.

It was a peaceful convention up until the time a proposal was made on the floor that women be accepted as delegates to the next conference. The men, chivalrous, and mindful, perhaps, of the presence of women in the gallery, were about to vote the privilege when Monsignor J. Alfred Laliberte of Central Falls, R.I., sprang to his feet.

His oration apparently achieved the desired effect, for women were barred from holding important office in the society, and apparently the women liked it, for from the gallery came rounds of applause.

When the male delegates considered the proposition, Father Laliberte took command.

Priest Shows Them Up

"You are blinded by an error of logic," he shouted to the convention delegates.

"Some one here has referred to the Catholic Church as the perfect society. Yet in the history of the Church it has never permitted the direction of men by women.

"Would you gentlemen like to have your wife the head of your home?" He reminded the women that the Bible warned that when they left their rightful places they lost their heritage.

"When has a woman ever been a leader, with a few rare exceptions?" he asked. "The only true woman leader was John of Arc.

"Men, you have enough intelligence to direct yourselves and I ask that your vote be unanimous in opposition to giving women the right to become delegates in this organization."

Some one arose and asked that a secret vote be taken on the question. The Father was on his feet again, his face flushed.

"Men should be men enough to vote openly," he shouted.

The vote was taken orally — a mighty roar in opposition to the women. Even the fair sex in the galleries applauded. Man had conquered. Father Laliberte received congratulations.

Woman Who Hankers After Modern But Has Heirlooms Has A Problem

The housewife who hankers after the modern but has some old possessions that she wants to keep has an interesting problem on her hands. The room itself in such a case is important.

The new horizontal panelling is an effective background in a modern room, contrasting pleasantly with old furnishings and toning in with the new. It may be used on all four walls, or on one, two or three.

Many small houses are combining the dining and living rooms with success. A room with a bay window alcove lends itself particularly well to this arrangement. If such a spot is not available, the dining furniture may be placed in a corner of the room.

Funds for renovating and redecorating interiors may now be obtained from banks at a very low rate of interest under the generous terms of the Home Improvement Plan.

W.M.S. Fall Sectional Rally Is Held At Fairmount

Every Auxiliary In Section Represented At Most Inspirational Gathering

MILLBROOK, Oct. 23.—A new outlook on the wide range of work carried on by the Women's Missionary Society throughout Canada, and the foreign field, and a new enthusiasm for its helpful activities characterized the annual Fall Sectional Rally held in the United Church, Fairmount, on Wednesday, opening at 2 p.m., with the president of the hostess society, Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge, in the chair and giving the call to worship.

Prayer was offered by Mrs. (Rev.) J. R. Trumpour, of Cavan, and the lesson read by Mrs. T. J. Jackson, of Bethany.

Mrs. (Dr.) Charles Scott, of Peterborough, president of the Peterborough Presbyterial W. M. S., was introduced by Mrs. Hanbidge, and in her brief address, stressed the importance of Stewardship, urging an increased membership for all Auxiliaries, "for while we have many of the best women of the church in our Societies, our hope is that we may have all the women on the auxiliary rolls."

Outlining the many phases of the work accomplished by the National Council of Women, and mentioning that the Dominion Board of the W. M.S. is now affiliated with this organization, the speaker pointed out that any Auxiliary may be a member of the local council by paying a fee of one dollar a year "and we shall be glad in Peterborough to welcome any Society from this district. It forms a link in the chain of influence for good that goes out through all the world." In concluding her remarks, Mrs. Scott mentioned that her term of office as Presbyterial President, expires on January 25, 1938, and warmly thanked the members for their co-operation; she also made a special point of urging each Auxiliary to send in names of capable women, nominating them for the vacant offices on the Presbyterial executive.

Words of cordial welcome to the visiting speakers and delegates were graciously voiced by Mrs. T. W. McIndoo, after which the offering was received, Miss Jessie Schaffer offering the prayer of thanksgiving.

Interesting Reports

The roll-call showed representatives from each Auxiliary in the section covered by the rally being present, and the reports received covered the year's work thoroughly, indicating both interest and progress. A duet, "Beautiful Garden of Prayer," was sung by Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Miss Eva Hansman, of Millbrook Auxiliary, and following this Mrs. W. W. Yale, of Lakefield, gave a comprehensive report of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch Meeting held at Arnprior, her complete story of the various addresses giving the delegates a sense of having been practically present at the several sessions.

Mrs. Charles Renaud, of Norwood, brought a very fine report of the Training School for Missionary Leaders held in late August at the O.L.C., Whitby, note being made of the fact that Dr. Jesse Arnup, author of the new W.M.S. study book, was among the speakers, both inspiration and information being the outcome of his presence and addresses.

The Guest Speakers

After the prayer hymn, "Breathe on me, Breath of God," the presiding officer introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Miss Evelyn Mitchell, travelling secretary for the W.M.S. in Canada, who brought a Spirit-inspired message, with particular relation to the women's work in the home field. In vivid language, Miss Mitchell carried her hearers to the lumber camps, the mining centres, the mission schools and hospitals, telling many personal incidents connected with her visits at these widely-separated points. Illustrating the need for the cars of fruits and vegetables now being shipped to the West, Miss Mitchell told of one home where she had been a guest, where fare was very scanty, and the man of the house, rising with appetite from the table, said bitterly: "I would give my soul for a plate of greens."

Asked if she thought an excess of supplies was being sent, the speaker told of being at a point in the West where the contents of one relief car were being distributed and seeing one wife getting a single bunch of carrots as her share, the solitary turnip remaining in the car being divided between herself and one other woman that each might have a little of the welcome addition to the family's menu.

Miss Mitchell closed with an earnest appeal for better work for the Master, "avoiding crucifying Him afresh by indifference. Shirk spells failure; work spells success."

Rev. Mr. Brown, pastor of the convention pronounced the benediction, and afterward adjournment was made to the Sunday School hall where the hostess society served tea, and a social hour was enjoyed. The literature table was in charge of Mrs. William Stevens, of Peterborough, Presbyterial literature secretary, and many took advantage of the opportunity to examine her large stock of study books, maps, leaflets, etc., her brief address, made during the tea hour, explaining their meaning and value for local readers in planning programs and study periods.

ROGERS HONORED

WINNIPEG, Oct. 23—(CP).—Degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred last night on Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor, by J. W. Dafoe, Chancellor of the University of Manitoba.

Prof. Robert McQueen, head of the University's Department of Political Economy, spoke of Mr. Rogers' academic and political achievements.

A Question Mark

Soviet Russia has thrown a question mark into the proceedings of the non-intervention committee meeting in London because the military ally of France has rejected a French compromise plan whereby withdrawal of volunteers from Spain would be made on a proportionate plan to be followed by settlement of the belligerency question. Russia's rejection of the plan was carried to the committee by Ivan Maisky (ABOVE), Soviet delegate. Russia, staunch ally of the Spanish loyalist government, has refused to consider the belligerency question until all volunteers have been withdrawn from Spain.

DISTINGUISHED COMPANY

TORONTO, Oct. 23—(CP)—Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, came to Toronto today in distinguished company to spend the last day of his brief Canadian visit. Secretary Hull and Mrs. Hull will be guests today of Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor, Dr. Herbert A. Bruce and Mrs. Bruce.

On an overnight train trip from Ottawa, where he visited two days, the Secretary of State wa saccompanied by the Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir, and Lady Tweedsmuir; Prime Minister Mackenzie King and the United States Minister to Canada, Norman Armour.

1937 POTATO CROP HIGHER THAN 1936

According to the first official estimate, the 1937 potato crop in Canada of 69,665,800 bushels is slightly larger than the 1936 crop of 65,056,666 bushels. As usual, there were considerable differences in the provincial yields as a result of the varying weather conditions. Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, after an unusually dry summer and autumn, are estimated to harvest lower yields on an increased acreage with a total production somewhat below that of 1936. New Brunswick and Quebec are also estimated to get lower yields per acre, but the increased acreage of New Brunswick will give that province a slightly higher production.

Consequent upon dry conditions during the period of tuber development, yields per acre in Quebec are running lower than in 1936. In Ontario, both acreage and yields are higher than in 1936. The ample rainfall in Manitoba in 1937 has contributed to a notable increase in the 1937 crop over the drought-affected crop of 1936. With the exception of Saskatchewan the western provinces show a very substantial increase over 1936 which appears to preclude any possibility of higher prices.

Big Crop in United States

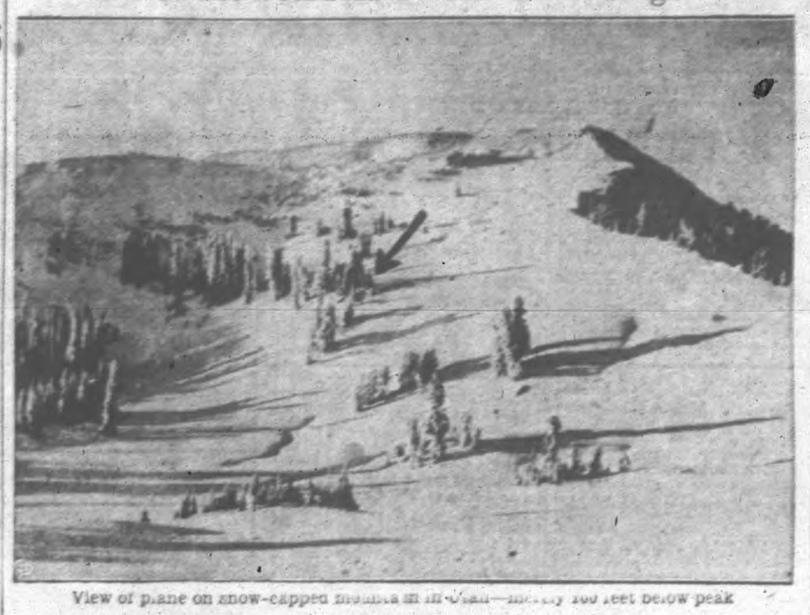
The general outlook may also be affected to some exient by the fact that one of the largest crops on record is reported in the United States. Unless an appreciable export demand for table potatoes develops in the Maritimes, thereby reducing the quantity available for central Canada, it does not appear as if there will be any substantial price advances during the season. Present price levels are comparatively low due to the large volume of local truck movement. With colder weather, however, and the narrowing down of trading to normal commercial channels the prices established will be more indicative of what may be anticipated during the season.

According to the recent estimate, the 1937 production of potatoes is gathered from 532,500 acres as compared with 496,400 acres in 1936, with yields per acre of 130 bushels and 131.4 bushels respectively. By provinces, the total production is estimated as follows: Prince Edward Island, 5,270,000 bushels; Nova Scotia, 3,116,666 bushels; New Brunswick 9,706,000 bushels; Quebec, 30,525,000 bushels; Ontario, 16,316,000 bushels; Manitoba, $4,508,333.2 bushels; Saskatchewan, 2,251,666.4 bushels; Alberta, 4,030,000 bushels; British Columbia, 3,843,333.2 bushels.

PEAR TREE IN BLOOM

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 23 (CP).—A pear tree on the farm of Howard Degeer near here seems to have the seasons mixed. The tree, which failed to produce a crop this year, is in bloom.

If The Pilot Would Have Been 100 Feet Higher



View of plane on snow-capped mountain in Utah—nearly 100 feet below peak

If—that big little word—the pilot of the wrecked United Air Lines' Mainliner would have been flying 100 feet higher in a blizzard there would not have been a crash and there would not have been a death toll of 19 persons. For, 100 feet higher would have taken the ship over the mountain crags to safety. This picture, showing the wreckage of the plane high up in the mountain over the Utah border 40 miles southwest of Evanston, Wyo., gives some idea of how close the plane came to safety.

Wilkins Arctic Trip Expected To Help Guide Price Of Silk Stockings

New York, Oct. 23 (AP). SIR Hubert Wilkins will leave for the Arctic today with a twofold purpose: To seek six missing Russian fliers and to explore further into the possibility of controlling the price of silk stockings.

The stocking business seems to be hooked up in some way with long-range weather forecasting.

"Whenever I am asked why I go into the polar regions," said Sir Hubert, 'I always say, to find out how I can prevent fluctuations in the price of women's stockings.

"The present trip, of course, is being made to find Sigismund Levanetfsky and his fellow aviators, but incidentally I expect to find out more about the weather."

In a nutshell, the theory is that the weather for 1960 can be forecast possibly in 1950, thereby enabling silk worm owners to determine in advance how many mulberry leaves will be available for consumption by their herds. Rubber manufacturers would be able to gear their production schedules on overshoes.

Meteorological stations are being established in the Arctic and Antarctic for long-range weather studies." Sir Hubert said. "It will take 15 years to arrive at any conclusions."

MUSIC FOR PRODUCTION

STAUNTON, Va., Oct. 23—(AP).—Finley Tynes put a phonograph and a loudspeaker in the packing shed of his orchard and says his workers are packing seven per cent more apples than they did in pre-music days.

STUFFED OWL USEFUL

BALZAC, Alta.—(CP).—Here's a tip for farmers. An elevator agent here has found a solution for the sparrow pest. He placed a large stuffed owl in his elevator and has not been bothered since with sparrows around the building.

FAIR CATCH FOR LABRADOR SHORE

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct.23—(CP)—The Newfoundland fishing fleet—100 vessels strong—is back from the Labrador voyage somewhat earlier than usual, and with each vessel approximately 100 quintals off a full cargo.

Schooner skippers reported that during the early part of the summer, codfish were fairly plentiful, but that a heavy gale Aug. 17 drove the fish far off the land, and small catches were the order of the day from that time on.

Average catch for each schooner was 800 quintals, and the average earning for shoremen out of the summer voyage was $130. Most of the vessels turned homeward while they still had salt left in their holds, convinced the run of cod was over for the season.

About two-thirds of the season's catch was dropped at curing plants at St. Anthony, Valleyfield, Port Union, or Harbor Grace, while the remainder was sold to St. John's buyers. Much of the Outport fish was expected to be of somewhat inferior quality this year because of the abnormally hot sun during curing.

Children of England are reviving the pastime of riding donkeys.

32 DROP IN CHASM

TOKYO, Oct. 23—(AP).—Thirty-two Tokyo school girls plunged into a chasm in the Kofu mountain district northwest of Tokyo today when a bridge collapsed. The death toll was not known.

BENNETT ASSAILS LIBERAL'S TARIFF "HYPOCRISY"

Relief Money Is Used To Build Political Machine

Dominion Conservative Leader Declares Liberals Passing Buck on Revision of Canadian Statutes.

BRANDON, Man., Oct. 23.—(CP)—Tariff policy "hypocrisy" of the Liberal government of Canada and the "irresponsible and unrepresentative" commission appointed to inquire into Dominion-Provincial relations were assailed by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, in a speech here last night.

Speaking at the Manitoba Conservative Association annual meeting, Mr. Bennett charged Hon. T. A. Crerar, federal minister of mines and resources, with vacillating on tariff policy.

Mr. Bennett commented on a charge made at a dinner prior to the general meeting by J. G. Diefenbaker, Saskatchewan Conservative leader, that Hon. J. G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture, was attempting "to build a political machine on the basis of relief administration in Saskatchewan."

"Concerning relief in Saskatchewan, money is being given by the people of Canada and being used to create a great political machine," said Mr. Bennett. "How long can Democratic government last with that sort of thing?"

Canada's constitution should be reviewed by a conference next summer of all political parties rather than by the royal commission headed by Chief Justice Newton Rowell of Ontario, said Mr. Bennett adding it was a question "for statesmen to consider."

Passing the Buck

The Liberal are merely 'passing the buck' to have someone else do their duty for them and then have an election on the report of the commission."

He approved appointment of Chief Justice Rowell as commission chairman but said the latter was "one of the most violent partisans." He attacked another commission member, J. W. Dafoe, editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Free Press, as "the most violent, partisan journalist the country has produced."

Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, Liberals, Conservatives and Labor should be represented in the conference Mr. Bennett proposed. "Are you going to stand for a few lawyers and a partisan publicist attempting the job," he asked.

Mr. Bennett said Mr. Crerar resigned as agriculture minister in the government of the late Sir Robert Borden in 1919 "because he found tariffs too high—at least that is the reason he gave.

"But if he meant what he said in 1919 why is he there today?" asked Mr. Bennett after declaring the present Liberal government had continued the high tariffs of the Bennett government.

The Conservative leader criticized the Liberal administration for "killing" the wheat board act of 1935 on the grounds the statute has not been repealed and the wheat board bought no wheat in 1936-37.

PARASITE CONTROL.

Alfred Baird of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Belleville will address the Peterborough Rotary Club on Monday. His subject will be "Parasite Control."

COURT OF REVISION

The local court of revision held an impromptu meeting this morning and inspected a number of properties. The court will meet in regular session on Tuesday night next.

VOTERS' LISTS READY.

The list of eligible municipal electors for 1938 has been completed and is posted up in the office of the city clerk to-day. In this list there are no names listed under the heading of income, the payment of income tax no longer qualifying a person to vote at municipal elections.

STOLEN CAR DITCHED

Reported stolen from outside Lakefield Pavilion late last night, an automobile owned by Roger McFadden, 336 Braidwood avenue, was found this morning. It was ditched on the River Road just above Nassau.

"OH! OH!"

"Y's" men on a treasure hunt which led them to the Normal school grounds the other night discovered that the shadows of the hall of learning have merits as a trysting place. High-brow by day, as it were, low-brow by night.

PENSIONS FOR BLIND.

A number of sightless persons in Peterborough have made application for the pensions now available by reason of Ontario's adopting the amendment to the Old Age Pensions Act which makes blind persons who are forty years of age eligible for pensions.

FIRE LOSS LIGHT.

If the ratio continues to the end of the year, 1937 will set a new low record for Peterborough in the matter of fire losses, Fire Chief George Gimblett states. Up to the present the total loss here this year is only about half that registered two years ago when the total loss was the lightest on record.

A COLD JOB.

Members of Peterborough's Fire Department, assisted by a number of Boy Scouts, were on the job at 8.30 o'clock to start their line of pennies drive to raise funds for Christmas toys. It was a cold, damp job, but the fire laddies and their young assistants were cheerful, keeping their mind on the joy that their effort would represent when Christmas rolls around.

SECOND YEAR IN SUCCESSION.

Again the firemen and Boy Scouts co-operating in a Penny Day effort to raise funds for the annual toy repairing project at the Fire Department hit cold, rainy weather when they appeared on the streets today. Contributions by citizens who did venture downtown in the morning rain were generous but the forbidding weather kept large numbers in their homes.

74 LUCKY CANADIANS.

If any Peterborough persons are among the lucky 74 Canadians whose tickets were drawn in the Irish Sweepstakes yesterday, no news of it had been heard up to noon today. Non-de-plumes and ticket numbers of the 74 were made public last night but actual names and addresses were withheld on account of the Dominion lottery laws. In the past, Peterborough has been favored frequently by the Goddess of Luck who guides the fortunes of the big draw.

FEW SEEK LODGING.

Regarded as a sign of decreasing unemployment in Canada is the fact that, despite the arrival of cold Fall weather, the numbers of Knights of the Road seeking lodging at the Police Station have been negligible up to the present. Householders also report the number of door-to-door appeals for food have been few. October weather in recent years brought a steady trek of transients to the Police Station in search of food and shelter.

WHO WAS HE?

"You fellows are supposed to know everything," a citizen remarked to an Examiner reporter this morning. I wish you would find out for me who was the fellow who drove a touring car down Water street around 8 o'clock last night at a speed between 40 and 50 miles an hour and without any lights on his machine. The visibility was poor, the roadway was wet with rain and fallen leaves made the going decidedly treacherous, but this fellow came down street as if he was driving in the last lap of the Vanderbilt Cup. He should be locked up."

IDENTIFIES RUNAWAY

When on desk duty Thursday night, Constable John Deannard received a long distance call from Toronto giving him the description of a youth reported to have escaped from St. John's Industrial Home in that city. Last night the same officer was again on desk duty when a youth called at the station for a night's shelter, and was recognized by Constable Deannard as the "wanted" lad. He was booked in the name of George Lesperance and authorities at St. John's Industrial School were notified. The youth was found in possession of a watch, which police allege he stole from a Mr. Fitzpatrick, Downeyville.

STREET ACCIDENTS

Ernest Wolfe reported to police his car was damaged by a hit-and-run driver while it was parked outside 196 McDonnel street early Friday evening. Harry Allen, 113 Gladstone avenue was driving his car south on George street, when he ran into the rear of a truck owned by J. J. Turner and Sons Limited, which allegedly stopped in the centre of the road to let down a passenger. It was raining at the time and traffic was heavy. Allen's car received damages to the grill and radiator, front bumper and fenders. The Turner truck had damages to a rear tool box.

Y. W. CAMPAIGN PUT UNDER WAY WITH BANQUET

The extent to which Peterborough has been organized for the Y.W.C.A. financial drive was demonstrated Friday evening when the school room of Trinity United church was filled to capacity. So detailed had been the plans for assembling the workers by teams and committees that the seating of such a large number of guests was accomplished speedily and with no confusion.

During supper hours members of the Salvation Army Saxophone Band gave a number of much-appreciated selections. G. A. Gillespie was chairman for the evening and cordially greeted the workers and approved of the task in which they were engaged. Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, president of the Y.W.C.A., outlined the work of the local association and appealed to the workers to start on their task with courage and conviction that success would be theirs. Mayor George Macdonald, Senator Ivs Fallis, and J. J. Duffus, M.P., added words of encouragement, while the results of the poster competition were announced by F. E. Johnston, chairman of the Special Features Committee. Alex L. Elliott, M.L.A., and Miss C. McElheran, National Secretary of the Y.W.C.A., spoke briefly and T. A. Mackay, chairman of the Men's Special Names Committee, gave a most encouraging report. Miss L. Brownscombe, secretary of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., presented interesting facts which would be useful in the campaign, and the campaign manager, S. Stalford, Jr., proffered sound advice on the proper and best methods of approach in seeking for subscriptions. The splendid supper was provided by the Women's Association of Trinity church.

"Miracle" Cure

Over 5,000 persons have paid visits during the last few days to a private home in Cornwall, where a "weeping" statue of Christ is said to have already effected one cure. The plaster statue—three feet high—resting on a table in the bedroom of Leona Villeneuve, 30-year-old cripple, first attracted attention when beads of water began forming on the tip of the figure's nose, the entire statue later becoming damp. First "cure" reportedly was announced by Harry Aubin, brother-in-law of the invalid, when, after visiting the home on crutches, he walked away unaided. The statue is shown at the RIGHT, while Leona Villeneuve, suffering from paralysis, is shown at the LEFT.

Effect Of Environment On Art Discussed By Prof. Alford

Nature No Longer Shown As An Immense System But As Series Of Pictures

The effect of environment of art from the middle ages down to the present day was the subject of a lecture by Professor John Alford to the Lyceum Women's Art Association in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. on Friday afternoon.

Professor of Fine Arts at the University of Toronto, the lecturer pointed out that his talk was but a preparation for a later one dealing with art in Ontario. It was easier, he said to make an introduction in historical retrospect rather than in the subject of immediate environment is influenced by historical factors," particularly the historical development of 150 years ago, with the Industrial Revolution, that affected all mankind's habits, and social and economic relations."

Illustrating his subject with slides, Professor Alford showed the attitudes of the human mind expressed in medieval art. The mystical or spiritual feeling is shown in Gothic architecture, in which tree and plant life also play an important part in the structural design and decoration. At the time of the Renaissance, when Europe was becoming more ordered and civilized, the material or dominant attitude began to be manifest. The creation of a sophisticated urban mind, which began in the 15th century, expressed itself in a sense of controlled space and order, and then began the development of gardening, and design in town and landscape. Men felt the earth at their disposal to be controlled and developed, with the result that the dominant attitude grew stronger than the mystic.

First Exvpression Rigid

The expression of this in art was at first rigid and formal, but later came a softer type of design and more esthetic view. The two ideas were combined in 18th century England in superb landscapes and architecture, the rigid lines softened to break down the difference between man's control and nature itself. The folowing imaginative landscapes and scenes of luxury, with art a monopoly of the ruling class, were brought to an end by the Industrial Revolution. Divorced then from mystic or dominant influence; art was used for 70 years as an escape from ugliness, with depictions from a romantic and fantastic past, unrelated to the contempory world.

Nature at the present time is no longer shown as an immense system, but is merely a series of pretty pictures, showing the fluctuating qualities of light and shade. "That the immense interpretation of past ages should have come down to this conception of art, is pitiful," said Professor Alford. "Cezanne was the first painter to come back to the idea of art as a system," he said, "and he has had considerable influence not yet realized."

In her opening remarks, Mrs. F. E. Hooper reminded the ladies that the Y.W.C.A. campaign for funds commences on Monday next, saying that she "hoped the association would be able to show in a tangible way their gratitude and appreciation for the highly commendable work of the 'Y'." The matter of hiring taxis for the day to take members to the annual meeting of the Lyceum Women's Art Association of Toronto on Wednesday next, was discussed by the president. Mrs. Hooper announced the program for the next two weeks. The Guild of Arts and Crafts will meet at the home of Mrs. Widess, the subject to be Sheffield Plate, taken by Mrs. Wightman. Mrs. Widdess will also be hostess to the Art Study Club on October 26, when Mrs. Neal will speak on "Frederick Verner," and the Literary Study Club will be hostessed by Mrs. Middleton on October 28, when Miss Barns will discuss Pinero's "The Gay Lord Quex."

Tea was served in the library at the close of Professor Alford's lecture. Dark oak leaves placed on the lace cloth surrounded a silver vase of pink 'mums to make an effective and charming centrepiece for the table. Hostesses of the afternoon were Mrs. Bartlett and Mrs. Ovens.

Thrilling Experience For Hastings Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 23. — As they were returning from Campbellford on Thursday night, a carload of Hastings young people were said to have had a thrilling experience when the car they were in took to the ditch and rested with two wheels over the edge of a steep bank. The incident took place, it was said, on Duff's Hill, midway between the two towns.

Luckily, however, the car was not travelling fast, and no one was hurt. The services of another car was required to draw the ditched auto back on the road.

The other at $60,120 was awarded to W. G. Edge, Limited, Ottawa, for supply and installation of mechanical equipment in the central heating plant building to be erected at the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals Training Station, Barrefield.

Rocks Do Not Grow Good Potatoes Farmer Sends $2 To Western Relief

"THE rocks at Buckhorn do not grow very good potatoes", wrote A. A. Smith of Hall's Bridge in sending to the Western Relief Fund the sum of two dollars.

Such is the spirit in which people of the city and district are responding to the appeal of the local committee for donations of produce to be forwarded to the people in drought stricken areas of Western Canada.

Three cars have been ordered and will be placed at the south-east end of the Canadian Pacific Railway freight sheds on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

One of the cars is already there and persons having contributions to the Fund may, starting on Monday morning, take them direct to the freight siding for direct loading into the car and save double handling.

Alderman James Dutton, chairman and treasurer of the Fund is making another special appeal to all employed persons in the city to donate to the Fund and is asking churchgoers to be as generous as possible with their envelope contributions in the churches tomorrow, to be specially earmarked for the Western Relief Fund.

In addition to the donation mentioned above, from Hall's Bridge, acknowledgment is made of the sum of ten dollars from S. R. Armstrong and five from Mrs. G. Rogers.

Ukrainian Choir Delights Large Audience In Collegiate

Concert Party Composed Of Sixty Men And Women With Youth Predominating

Folk music of the Ukraine delighted a rather large audience in the Collegiate Institute auditorium Friday night. Sponsored by the Men's Association of St. Paul's Church, whose enterprise brought the Mendelssohn Choir to Peterough less than a year ago, the Toronto Ukranian Choir gave a delightful concert of the songs and dances of the home land of their race that should be accounted to the further credit of the men of St. Paul's.

The concert party was composed of sixty men and women, predominantly youthful, and many of them natives of Canada. Their choir is a project of the Ukranian People's Home in Toronto, and includes men who served in the Great War. They sang two groups of songs in the language of the Ukraine, and members of the company performed two groups of dances in the attractive and colorful costumes of the Little Russians, accompanied by a four piece orchestra: piano, violin, clarinet and muted trumpet.

To many persons in the audience the dances were a new experience, vividly reflecting the soul of the people who had evolved them. The music was all of one mood, an expression of lightness of heart, rhythmic, ingenuous, and possessing the natural simplicity of the folk song. It was free and fluid and unself-conscious, with a gay buoyancy and a note of wholesome abandon that was altogether charming. The music itself was chiefly of rondo form, replete with rapid flowing movement, and frequently marked with lovely melody. One of the dances by six girls was entitled "Katrina," memorable for several incidents as simple as children playing "London Bridge Falling Down," and especially for bars of the music that was reminiscent of Liszt's second Hungarian Rhapsody. The Scissors dance by six young men and six girls was notable for its graceful movement, and the Cossack dance by six of the men in Russian costumes featured the deep knee bending that must demand physical strength. Four girls with sickles in a harvest dance presented a symbolism suggesting the inspiration of some of the dances as coming directly from the soil, and all of them from the experiences of the people in their daily lives. And the outstanding aspect of the Ukraine folk dances was their wholesome vitality as born of the open air, vastly different from the glamour of the Vienna waltz. The Toronto company performed their dances with the zest and virility that might be expected of natives of the Ukraine.

The choir of nearly forty voices directed by Peter Yundak reflected apparently another phase of Ukranian character, repeated minor keys embodying a spirit of sadness that would have been deepened if the words were intelligible to the audience. The dances were nearly all expressive of gaiety as compared with the note of grief in "The Mound on the Steppe" and other numbers in the sentiment of lament. The tonal quality of the choir was strong and well knit, with a splendid bass section and excellence all through the middle registers, if seemingly a little thin in the higher sopranos.

Miss Mary Chrapko, one of the members of the choir, sang the song written for Schubert's Serenade, displaying a lovely voice that was especially suited to the theme. The Shklar sisters of Toronto, two violinists and pianist, played the third movement from the Concerto in D minor by Bach, the Symphonic Concertante by Dancla, as an encore "Two Guitars," displaying marked accomplishment and fine appreciation of the beauty o fheir numbers.

Choral singing is of every day enjoyment, and also violin trios, but those folk dances of the old Ukraine were delightful and thought provoking music and life out of another age and also out of another country where long ago the east and the west met, and out of the hearts of the people and also their hopes developed the music that undoubtedly lent inspiration to many later composers, Haydn and Mozart for example, music that was born of the mixture of various races and of the genius of Magyar and Slav.

Ayotte-Scollard.

The Church of the Immaculate Conception was the scene of a very pretty Fall wedding at nine o'clock on Thursday morning when Eleanor Scollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Scollard, was united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony to Peter James Ayotte, son of John Ayotte and the late Mrs. Ayotte, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Father Begley.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was beautifully gowned in blue chiffon velvet made on fitted lines with long sleeves shirred at the shoulders and high neckline finished with silver clips. A short veil and touches of silver trimmed her off-the-face turban, and she wore silver slippers and white kid gloves. Her flowers were Premier roses combined with maidenhair fern.

Miss Agnes Scollard, as bridesmaid to her sister, was gowned in wine chiffon, with leg o'mutton sleeves, gold flowers trimming the high neckline, and a gold girdle. She wore a matching halo with veil, gold slippers, and carried pink carnations.

The best man was Thomas Ayotte of Rochester, cousin of the groom.

The wedding march was played by Miss Leone Hummel, and during the progress of the Mass, Mrs. D. Campanaro sang the "Ave Maria."

A reception was held later at the home of the bride, and at half-past twelve dinner was served to forty guests with the bridal party. Mrs. W. Scollard, who received the guests, was wearing wine sheer crepe, matching hat and accessories, and a corsage of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Ayotte left by motor for Hamilton and Rochester, the latter wearing a dress of navy satin, matching hat and accesories, and a dark grey coat with wolf collar. The young couple will reside at 527 Armour Road.

BLACK AND WHITE EVER NEW

Fresh in Latest Garments as In Granny's Heyday

Seated left is black taffeta gown with velvet bands, wide velvet inset at waist; right, white brocade evening coat with black velvet lapels.

By LISBETH

BLACK AND WHITE, that old combination, shows no sign of age or wear. It is as smart and fresh today as when our grandmother or great grandmother wore it and felt perfectly dressed.

Illustrating this article are a black dress and a white coat with black accents. The dress is one of those wide-skirted period affairs that spell romance and femininity in the fashion world.

The slim bodice has the new girdle effect Paris is using so much this season. It is suggested in the black velvet insert at the diaphragm and waistline. The skirt is full and sweeping, swishing delightfully as the wearer walks. It is made of black taffeta, if you haven't guessed it, with bands of velvet. The bodice has a deep halter neckline and a deep V decolletage. A jeweled bracelet and white flower in the hair are the accessories.

The young girl who is stepping out this season will find the slim fitting white brocade evening coat, with its black velvet lapels, flattering and glamorous. It hugs the figure to bring out that smart slim waistline.

Monkey fur is returning to chic, but whether it is just a flash or whether it will continue to be worn, is a matter of conjecture at present. This long-haired fur has definitely slenderizing lines, as it shows in one hip-length jacket shown by a New York shop. It is also used to trim an evening coat and for an accompanying muff.

With emphasis being put on metal cloths for formal dresses, old gold is recommended in the gold family for its tendency to flatter the wearer. It is recommended in the dull finish in mat crepes, mat velvets, in velveteen and velvety finished woolens such as duvetyn.

It may be worn in the daytime in simple tailored dresses and draped afternoon frocks. For evening it is lovely in sheath gowns.

With dull gold you can wear mink—if you can afford luxury—with skunk cape or coat, with grape colored woolen coats and taupe woolens, also it is lovely with ruby colored evening coats or velveteen daytime coats.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Sunday, October 24.

Sunday's horoscope holds testimonies of rather conflicting nature. While things will be lively in all pertaining to employment, literary pursuits and the conventional activities, yet private affairs have untoward aspects, with possibly sickness or other domestic anxiety.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of a sudden and surprising adventure or unconventional experience. It might be in the nature of a physical mishap or a peculiar and abrupt event that may affect the domestic equilibrium.

A child born on this day may be particularly versatile, talented, practical and creative, succeeding with elders and enjoying signal success in employment or in literary occupations.

For Monday, October 25.

Monday's astrological forecast is for certain adventures of a rather hazardous or speculative nature, although with sagacity and unusual shrewdness this peril may be turned to excellent account. In this the wise counsel of elders may prevail to surprising profit. Recklessness and impetuosity would place all such prospect in decided jeopardy.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of excellent opportunity for advancement and profit while, at the same time, being beset by lures of speculation, rash and reckless indulgences or other perilous personal or business ventures. The advice of elders should be heeded, and mergers, rings or shrewd and subtle associates may turn hazards into surprising profits.

A child born on this day may be energetic, empulsive, domineering and probably rash and tempestuous. It will, however, make great success of its life by properly directing and developing such powerfyul traits.

Hedger-Barnum.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 23.—Autumn leaves, ferns and evergreens formed the setting on Wednesday last for the wedding of Jerrine Georgina, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Barnum, Rear Street, to William James Hedger, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hedger of Perry.

The marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents by the Rev. B. Simpson Black in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives.

Mrs. Cecil McCulloch, sister of the bride, played the wedding march, and the bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in a gown of turquoise blue satin with halo and hipline tulle veil and white accessories. She carried Briarcliff roses and fern. Another sister, Mrs. Cecil McLean, was matron of honor and wore beige silk point d'esprit net with brown taffeta hat and matching accessories. Miss Isabella McCulloch, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed in yellow organdie and carried a basket bouquet of Talisman roses and lily-of-the-valley. Gordon Hedger attended the groom.

The wedding was performed under an arch of evergreens, oak leaves and bank of flowers supporting the wedding bell. A buffet luncheon was served and Mrs. Charles Fraser poured tea and Miss Mary Blakely and Miss Mary McDonald assisted in serving. The bride's mother was gowned in blue and white sheer crepe and Mrs. Hedger, mother of the groom, wore a brown sheer.

Later the bridal couple left on a motor trip to Toronto, Hamilton and other points. For travelling the bride wore an Oxford grey ensemble with black accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Hedger will reside in Campbellford.

Contrasting Blouse And Skirt Especially Smart

Combination Is Especially Smart for the "Don't Dress for Dinner" Occasion, When Formality's Out

(By Central Press)

Very smart for the "don't dress" dinner is the contrasting skirt and blouse.

Two examples are pictured. Worn by the sealed figure is a smoky gray silk net gown with sequin top. It has an old-time, demure look, with its wide skirt, fitted bodice, short sleeves and low-cut neckline. Choose it also for a dance.

The sweater high-necked dress of metal and orchid-pink rayon brocade and the slim, black rayon crepe skirt, is also for that informal dinner date.

Blue Evenings

Here is a style whimsy that is delightful: A pink and silver lame evening gown, very slim and swathed, has a halter of pink and turquoise beads. It is just a hint as to how you can finish the neck of that new evening dress you are making for yourself.

As the season progresses, blue comes more and more into the limelight. In fact when color is used, it is quite likely to be blue for evenings. From pale blue to the deep, purply blues runs the color range. Also noticed are some white, some gray and a little red.

In her new play in New York Sylvia Sidney wears an interesting negligee of moss green velvet trimmed with gold braid—a rich and smart combination for evening if you want something different.

Slim Line Favored

The slim silhouette seems to be favored by opera goers. Hemlines show a tendency to that higher-in-front movement, with slight dips or sweeps of fullness at the back. High necklines and covered shoulders decorated with bead embroidery or metal braids are also popular trends as well as low cut decolletages held in place by narrow shoulder straps.

Sequins are often noted, as they are particularly popular this season. They are applied in allover patterns or are used on lace to trace the lace's pattern.

Lames in gold, silver, colors are very good for these formal evenings, and metal brocades come second only to sequins in popularity.

Seated, smoky gray silk net gown with sequin top; standing, sweater high-necked dress of metal and orchid-pink rayon brocade, black rayon crepe skirt.

Nazi Girl Camps Assist Housewife; Army of Women Has Rigorous Training

BERLIN, Oct. 23 (CP).—Twenty thousand German girls, between the ages of 17 and 25, daily lend willing hands to farmers' wives and country mothers. It's part of the labor service.

According to Reichsleiter Constantin Hierl, leader of the compulsory labor service—compulsory for young men but not yet for girls—the labor service is to build character, teach loyalty to the national-socialist idea and to the Fuehrer and to inculcate team spirit.

One hundred thousand girls have passed through this service. There are 500 camps in the Reich, each taking care of 40 girls.

The service lasts 26 weeks and each girl must prove she is "Aryan" and must be passed by a doctor before she can enrol. She gets free board and lodging, a working kit, parade uniform, two pairs of stout shoes, bed linen, hand towels and eight cents a day pocket money.

The day begins at 5.25 a.m. with the camp leader on duty banging a gong and giving the girls a gentle "good morning." Camp leaders are enjoined to avoid all appearance of militarism. Fifteen minutes of exercise is supposed to shake the sleep out of the eyes of the "Arbeitsmaid." Breakfast follows the ceremony of hoisting the flag—the usual swastika with the addition of a stencilled double ear of grain—and the giving of the Nazi salute. She is on the job by 7 a.m.

Some girls work in kindergartens for farm children or take care of the farm wife's babies.

Others help in truck gardens, bring in the hay, hoe, dig, plant, chop wood, feed hogs and chickens, drive home the cows and help in other farm work. On no account, the instruction emphasizes, is the land girl to do "men's work."

At 9.30 there is a second breakfast. Around two in the afternoon work is over for the day. After a hearty meal one hour is devoted to a good sleep. This is obligatory.

Then until 5 p.m. the girls may do as they please. In the evening state political instruction is given. After the evening meal there are singing and games. The beloved concertina is much in evidence. The day is ended with the hauling down of the colors and the solemn Nazi salute. Lights go out at 9 p.m.

Mrs. Nelson Lloyd Heads Parish Guild

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Nelson Lloyd was elected president of the Parish Guild of Christ Church which held its annual election of officers on Monday evening. The only other change of officers for the coming year was the election of Miss Gertrude Maynard to the office of vice-president. The secretary, Miss Ethel Bedford, and the treasurer, Miss L. Smith, were both returned to office by acclamation.

Rev. T. H. Floyd expressed his deep appreciation for the splendid work done by the retiring president, Mrs. Robert Belshaw, and also thanked the officers and members of the Guild for the splendid work done throughout the year. After making arrangements for the men's banquet which is being held in the Parish Hall on October 27, the meeting was closed with prayer by the rector.

A New Day Dawns

For Women Over Forty

This is not a time for worry,
If you know about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
The strain on the nervous system is great
But you can prepare for this
By regularly using this nerve restorative.
It is only women who are in a nervous condition,
Living in fear and dread of what is happening,
That break down mentally and physically at this time.
Ask your friends of more advanced age,
What they did during this time,
And you will be surprised to find how many Attribute their good health and avoidance of trouble
To Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Flowerlike Coiffures Are In Style; Pink Hair Said Perfect For Evening

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Hair tinted "a tender, tender rose," is the great new thing in women's styles, a European hair-styling expert said today.

"You mean pink hair?" he was asked.

Leo of Vienna thumbed through a small German dictionary for the word "pink." Then he looked up brightly and answered: "Ja, Ja."

Pink hair, he said, is perfect for evening "because women, at evening, should always look flowerlike."

The mild, tender rose shade looks "fresh and friendly" in the daytime, he added, with dark street clothes.

Asked if men would like it, he nodded grimly: "They will."

Women should change their style of hair dress or at least vary its lines, ten to twelve times a year, said Leo, because many men are completely sick of the way their wives do their hair.

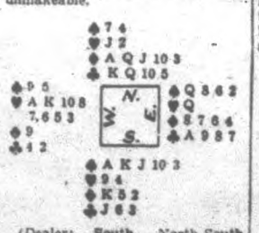
The committee has proposed a project called, "Vienna, City of Songs," at which he may exhibit some of his coiffures to show "the gaiety and charm of Vienna."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

LOTS OF NERVE NEEDED

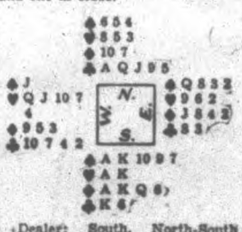
NOT ONLY a deal of nerve, but a pretty fair amount of imagination is required for a player to put his partner into a major game contract when holding only two of his partner's suit, if the latter has not rebid or otherwise shown it to be of considerable length. Such a combination of heart and mind may be the only way to offset a brilliant shutout effort made by a canny opponent. It may produce the only game in a hand in which five of a suit might have been unmakeable.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

At practically all tables of a duplicate tournament, South opened this deal with 1-Spade and West bid 4-Hearts. In all cases but one, North bid 5-Diamonds, which became the contract and was beaten with the loss of two tricks in hearts and one in clubs.

Only one North player had the temerity and vision to make the winning bid of 4-Spades. He was Sidney L. Wirt of Boston. Reckoning that 4-odd are easier than 5-odd, he reasoned that the spade suit might prove safe, even though he himself had only a doubleton. West, having seen fit to attempt a pre-empt with his hearts, undoubtedly was short in spades, and therefore the hostile spades were surely held by East, against whom South could finesse. That is exactly the way things worked out, as the contract was made with the loss of only two tricks in hearts and one in clubs.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If South bids 2-Spades on this deal, North 3-Clubs and South 7-No Trumps, what should West lead?

STYLE WHIMSIES

For the smart wardrobe the Paris fashion editor of Good Housekeeping advises you to have one main winter costume. It may be a suit, a long straight coat over a dress, or a dress with a fur coat. All three of these costumes are good.

While black continues to be the favorite fall color, various shades of green and wine shades are also popular.

Branch Notes

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH.

On Monday evening, All Saints' Branch of the A.Y.P.A. held its weekly meeting, which took the form of an intelligence night.

The meeting opened with prayer by the president, Leslie Cavalier. At the close of the general business, the members took part in a number of contests.

Next week the members are planning a Hallowe'en party. The following were appointed to look after the meeting: Entertainment, Doug. Grant and Ken Gibson; Refreshments: Dorothy White, Mary Sisson and Edith Abraham.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH.

Thurday evening St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. held a paper chase enjoyed by all. The route was through the countryside around the Lift Lock. Afterwards refreshments were partaken of and a short business meeting ensued. It was decided to donate $10.00 to the Western Relief Fund. Also it was decided to invite Lifford Line A.Y.P.A. to the Hallowe'en masquerade to be held next Thursday. The evening was in charge of Ernie Bell's group.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH.

A scavenger hunt took the form of the evening's entertainment on Wednesday by the memebrs of St. John's A.Y.P.A. Arrangements, which were in charge of Doris Davis, proved to be very successful, with plenty of fun. Some of the articles called for meant trips to the Fire Hall, doctor's office, hotels, and cafes and one item was to measure the length of a certain block on George Street. On returning to the Parish Hall, the members enjoyed a social hour with music provided by Alice Pruner and Kay Chivas.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"If thou workest at that which is before thee, following right reason vigorously, calmly, seriously, and without allowing anything else to distract thee, but keeping thy divine part sure, if thou shouldst be bound to give it back immediately; if thou holdest to this, fearing nothing, expecting nothing, but satisfied with thy present activity according to nature, and with heroic truth in every word and sound thou utterest, thou will live happy. And there is no man who is able to prevent this."

—Marcus Aurelius.

Dear Friends:

Brave words indeed, but how about circumstance, Marcus? What do you do if your desires and your duties do not go hand in hand? What do you do in case of war, or depressions, or ill health, or lack of work? How can you follow right reason seriously, calmly, vigorously, when someone throws a monkey-wrench into your life, putting everything into chaos?

What do you do with your emotions Marcus, those things which disturb you and throw you off balance? Park them somewhere? So many of us wish we could, so that we could follow all these things as you suggest.

What about the lives that mingle with ours, whose very happiness depends on us, and ours on them? What about the unexpected which crops up now and then, and all the things which do as we like, prevent us from doing what you suggest?

Don't think I do not agree with this quotation. How many times have I tried it, but other things came along and knocked it into a cocked hat. I will grant you that we let too many things distract us, but when these are the things we must do if we are to survive, what then?

Truly we are taught the wrong way of living, yet when all have been taught the same way, how hard it is for one to brave the world alone. If we could all follow this idea, we should be a race of giants, instead of pigmies.

Yet, in our limited circumstances we CAN use our divine part, we CAN keep our minds on the thing we want most, we can, even doing a little at a time, achieve some sort of happiness, "and there is no man able to prevent this." We can dwell less on the things we lack, we can shut out a lot of the turmoil, we can use our reason to show us what is worth bothering about and what is not.

We can stop comparing ourselves with those who have more than we have, and be more thankful for what we have. We can concentrate more, and stop scattering our energies by useless repining.

We can shut our minds to many irritating things, sifting out the good and discarding the bad. We can be wholehearted about life, "expecting nothing, fearing nothing," and our own will come back to us, as a bird returns to the nest.

And all this we can do, whether it be the walls of a house which confine us, or the walls of an office or factory. We can do it in a cottage or a mansion, and we all have the same chance in this respect.

We can stretch our limitations if they bind us too closely but we have to creep before we can walk, we must learn the strength of our wings if we want to fly, we must be content to build brick by brick. There is no easy way. So "hitch your wagon to a star" and maybe it will turn into an automobile. It has been done. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Women of Rebels Scouring Floors

VALENCIA, Spain, Oct. 21 (CP)—In a former Jesuit monastery outside of Valencia the Spanish government has opened a model political prison for women—without bars on its windows and with seven new showers in its tiled washrooms.

Here, amid date trees and neatly-cultivated gardens, in large, airy rooms, are held the 25-year-old wife of Miguel Prima de Rivera, son of the former dictator of Spain and her two young sisters, captured as war nurses in Brunete; the niece of Insurgent General Franco and her child; the sister of Rebel General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano; and a relative of the Duke of Alba.

The 126 prisoners, whose terms range from two to 30 years, live three or four in a room. There are 16 matrons, many of them girls, in white uniforms. Fourteen soldiers guard the walls but it is stated no escapes have been attempted.

Visitors may talk freely to the prisoners, and Senora Primo de Rivera, who speaks excellent English, said she and her sisters scrubbed floors because it took less time than sewing.

"I guess we miss most hot baths and getting real news of our people from our papers," she said. "I can't say we are badly treated here."

While officials admit that other prisons fail to match Alacuas for cleanliness and comfort, they say it will soon be followed by others as part of the government's program to modernize Spain.

Now Is Not Time For Social Workers

Mayor George A. Macdonald, commenting briefly today to The Examiner on the report of some of his remarks at the meeting of the Children's Aid Society, which appeared in this paper Friday, stated that he wanted an opportunity to clarify his position in regard to social workers.

"I desire to make it plain that I appreciate the work of those actively engaged in social work in Peterborough," said the Mayor. "I don't believe that any city is more blessed with the quality or success of social workers than is Peterborough. I have always recognized this and have done my best to help and encourage all persons and groups interested in improving social conditions."

"However in this particular instance of the Children's Aid Society," continued Mayor Macdonald, "I feel that the engaging of a paid social worker at this time is not advisable. I consider that the present staff should be given an opportunity to broaden their efforts since expense will thus be saved and we will make the best use of the machinery we have."

Larry O'Connor Picked For Australian Games

British Empire Games Picked With Thirteen From Ontario

TORONTO, October 23—(C.P.).—Signed and sealed, Canada's package of track and field talent is ready to-day for consignment to the British Empire games at Sydney, Australia. It contains 22 parts, including eight or nine potential champions and a wealth of promising material.

Olympic point-winners, veterans of International competition and youngsters—some of them unheard of outside their own regions—make up the team that Bobby Robinson, head man of the Canadian forces, calls "the best we have ever sent abroad."

Selected by Dr. A. S. Lamb's track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, the team was formally approved here last night by the organizing committee of the Canadian British Empire Games Association. And it was approved without change. The Sydney games will be held in early February.

This will be the policy of the organizing committee. When the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation has decided the seven athletes it wishes to consign to Sydney, the committee will merely nod approval. In the care of the women's track and field team, seven is the limit.

The male brigade was picked on the bases of performance in zone trials, performance during the year, reported showing of athletes in other parts of the Empire and current Empire games records.

Little Background.

From young Sigurd Neilson of Plaster Rock, N.B., a sprinter yet to show his wares outside the Maritimes, to Trail's Pat Haley, without a reputation outside British Columbia, the team is divided in its known strength. There are recognized stars and athletes with records but little background.

Neilson won his place by running 100 yards in 9.6, equalling Percy Williams' Empire record, in the Maritime zone trials. Haley, brother of the veteran Trail high jumper, Joe Haley, was caught in 9.8 in the British Columbia-Alberta trials.

Third sprinter is Jack Brown of Toronto, a consistent 9.8 dashman who has had vastly more experience than either Neilsen or Haley, but who failed to make the 1936 Olympic team. Brown has been timed in 9.7 and stands head and shoulders over Ontario sprinters.

The 440-yard corps is experienced and ready to go after records. It comprises Windsor's Johnny Loaring, Toronto's Bill Fritz and Jack Orr of Vancouver, member of the Washington State University track team. Orr is a brother of Lee Orr, point-winning sprinter on the last Canadian Olympic team.

Loaring, sixth in the 400-metre final at Berlin and Fritz, fifth in the same race, are regarded as outstanding hopes in Sydney. In addition, Loaring is a heavy favorite to win the 440-yard hurdles. He is held to be one of the best two or three quarter-mile hurdlers in the world.

Only a few other prospects are as bright as those of Loaring and Fritz. Among them are Jim Courtright of Ottawa in the javelin, Eric Coy of Winnipeg in the discus event, Larry O'Connor of Toronto in the 120-yard high hurdles, Wallace Brown of Meaford, Ont., and Jim Panton of North Battleford, Sask., in the broad jump.

O'Connor, fleetest hurdler ever developed in Canada, was selected a few hours after he won his specialty in the intercollegiate championships here in 14.6, equalling Lord Burghley's Empire record. The University of Toronto flier worked on a muddy track. His best time is 14.3.

Coy threw the discus 145 feet, 9¾ inches in the Manitoba-Saskatchewan zone trials, compared with the Empire record of 135 feet, 11 inches set in 1934 by Harry Hart of South Africa. Courtright's best javelin throw is 218 feet and the Empire record is 207 feet, 1½ inches.

The broad jump, the committee figures, may be between Brown and Panton. One of the Meaford's noted Brown twins, Wallace Brown has reached 24 feet and so had Panton, a North Battleford boy attending University of Washington. Panton won the event in the Manitoba-Saskatchewan trials.

George Sutherland of Dewinton, Alta., will be one of the few contenders at Sydney participating in the Empire games for the third time. The burly Alberta farmer was a competitor at Hamilton in 1930 and placed second in the hammer throw at London in 1934.

The three-man marathon team was named on the basis of a trial held in Toronto when Jimmy Bartlett of Oshawa finished first and Longman of Toronto was second. The third selection is Walter Young, winner of the Boston marthon last spring, who finished far back in the official trial.

GORDON RICHARDS.

On this side of the water, despite the fact that we are part and parcel of the British Empire, we hear but little of the outstanding athletes in the Old Country.

So it is that the name of Gordon Richards means little to turf fans in Canada. But this is far from true "over 'ome," for Richards is the king of the English tracks.

Although he is now in the veteran class, he is still the outstanding "boy" in the game. Just as an indication of his amazing riding we will look at the records. Richards holds the record for "booting home" the most winners in a single racing season, with no less than 257 wins to his credit.

Little wonder that the mention of his name elicits voluminous praise from the racing gentry on the other side of the big pond.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, they aint been a great deal doing in sport locally since last Saturday when our rugby teams done theirselfs proud and the Central Ontario baseball loop held their annual meeting and returned the old officers to their old posts.

Our Orfuns win theirselves a nice game here from the Cobourg galloping ghosts. It was 7 to 1 at the finish, old timer, but the battle was a whole lot tighter than that for at one stage in the last period with the Petes leading only 1 to 0 the gang from the front had a royal chance to pot 3 points with a placement and they didn't come far from doing that very thing. And a field goal at that stage would have meant a loss for our talent, most likely.

They're Boomerangs

I thing that stood out in that game, Mac, is that the forward pass is about as much a gamble as the Irish sweepstakes. It's like the old time spit ball, Mac, you never know how the darned thing is going to brake.

The Orfuns was getting along nicely and putting on the pressure early in the last period until they cut loose with a forward toss and some bozo in a white sweater got his meathooks on the ball and there was Cobourg on the aggressive and threatening to pull the game out of the fire before you knew what had happened. A little later when the white-clad invaders found theirselfs a point down and only a coupla minutes to go they had to turn loose the forward pitching too and again the play turned into a boomerang or something for our Mister Giardino intercepted the heave and had a clean run to the goalline for a touch down that put the game away in the back of the icebox.

Albert Colitch Next

Down to Bowmanville our Collegiate teams broke even. The juniors was just nosed out 2 to 1 in a game that was anybody's while the Srs. after a slow start went to town in the last half and come home in front 24 to 0. It looks like the seniors has the group in the wellknown gunny sack and all they got to do is to get lined up for Albert College at Belleville which will be their next opposition. The Belleville colitch lads aint lost a game this season so far which may mean a lot or nothing; we can't tell until we get a look at the gang.

The League Slipped

The Central loop meeting didn't develop no surprises. The old officers is back at the helm and it looks like the loop will be the same next year as this with little or no chance of Belleville coming back into the fold. They was not much business done; in fact the meeting forgot even to pass a resolution accusing the Oshawa GM-men of criminal negligence for allowing them G and W fellows to grab the championship away from them after the Motors had win the first battle by a ridiculous score. It looks like the softness of that first victory kinda acted like a Mickey Finn on the Central winners; anyway the League magnates should of took them across their knee and give them a mild spanking for letting the Ontario title drift away.

However, the Petes is determined to bring it back thisaway next season, so that is okidoke.

And that is enough for the nonce old timer for toodleloo.

Sportfully Yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THIS MIGHT be as good—or as bad—a time as any to discuss the matter of "broken time" in athletics. Not that broken times for records is the topic of discussion, but broken time in payment. And since we have lots of time and are plenty broke, we should be an authority. Recently, the Canadian Lacrosse Association came into being—merely by dropping the word "amateur", allowing pros. and amateurs to mingle, and permitting the payment of broken time—or, at least, recognizing it. And thereby severing all connections with the A.A.U. of C. horse-and-buggy Old Boys. There are, perhaps, a number of followers of amateur (or is it shamateur?) sports who are not just sure what the term "broken time" means. Well; draw up a chair.

* * * * * * *

IT MIGHT be explained as the habit of paying athletes for the time they lose at work in playing games. At so much per hour. Thus if a ball player is laboring in a factory for, say, 40 cents an hour, he will be paid 55 cents an hour for time lost when he is engaged in a ball game—or whatever amount he can kid the club treasurer into believing he should be getting at work. It is a straight business deal but frequently comes in for a bit of padding here and there, much after the manner of ye olde swindle sheet as presented by the travelling salesman to his home office.

* * * * * * *

IT HAS been stated that reporters and elephants have long memories—but both are pikers when it comes to an athlete recalling the time he lost at work at so much per. His mathematics improve from season to season. The player is not exactly in there for the dough only—no, he really is giving the old collitch try. But he never forgets dear old Alma Money. He is convinced that honor is without profit in your own country—or what is it, anyway? Yeah, he knows money is the root of all evil, but he also is confident that if you get your mitts on enough of this evil root you can maybe purchase a healthy hunk of respectability later on. The cheers and boos are okay, part of the game and all that, but why not cut in on a few shekels, too, if possible?

* * * * * * *

WE WILL admit this is not cricket—nor is it perhaps what our pioneer grandpaws fought and bled for. Nevertheless, if the oughday is there, why not spread it around among the gees that cause the turnstiles to click? If a club cannot afford any money, then it is a mule of another hue. Many of the athletes in hockey, rugby, lacrosse and baseball, are married men, and they need the money. Many more are single, and they need the money. We all need it, in fact, and guys that usually travel at the terrific pace of half a knot an hour will do the hundred in close to 10 flat when bullion beckons. We all do it every chance we have, and it's silly to arch the eyebrow at an athlete, amateur or otherwise, for doing ditto.

* * * * * * *

MAYBE WE are going socialistic, and maybe we are displeasing a few sports moguls around these parts who refuse to recognize the obvious—or wish to keep it a secret. It is about as secret as the most recent royal abdication! Players around Peterborough who lose time at work expect it back if the club can afford the money. They also look for all their expenses and a split at the end of the season—again if the cash is in the treasury. 'Tis as old as the hills but it took the modern generation—okay, degeneration, if ya wish—to bring it out in the open. There was less money for expenses and broken time in some sports during th old days, but club backers and men who bet on the boys dropped around from time to time and slipped a fin or so in a deserving athlete's shoe or pants pocket.

* * * * * * *

IT MAKES mightily interesting reading to go over the old financial statements of the C.O.B.L.. Yeah, the Central Loop of some 12 years back when Al Heckman, Jack Williams, et al, appeared on the scene. The take was big those days and the moguls generous. Harder times have hit sports around here in late years but at the end of a fair season, some of the athletes blossom forth in new fall coats or are enabled to make some heavy passes with the cacklers at the weekly game. It is a poor club indeed that cannot at least deck the squad out in nifty windbreakers. The bigger the town and the more successful the team, why the more the players collect. It is true of Montreal or Toronto or Peterborough or Port Hope. And we say to the athletic gees: More power to you, so long as the club can afford it. The only real amateur left is a fisherman who digs his own worms!

* * * * * * *

COBOURG COLUMNIST got a bad jolt the other day for a few minutes. He was informed that a girls' rugby team was being formed in his town. The stricken scribe hastily phoned the gals' athletic instructor at the high school but was informed he had his sports mixed. He was much relieved, and why not? Covering a girls' grid game would be rather awful. This is one game the damsels have not tried, possibly because of those disfiguring pads. At that, we saw a hefty lady last Xmas in a shopping rush who would do okay on the gridiron. She straight-armed us all the way from the tie counter into the lingerie department. Made yards on the first down. And instead of a colorful cravat we bought three lace handkerchiefs—imagine!

* * * * * * *

LOOKS LIKE the O.A.S.A. intermediate "A" championship isn't settled yet, mes amigos. Polish White Eagles of Toronto—who rubbed our Westclox men softballers out of the playdown picture—defeated the Western Ontario team supposedly for the title. But everyone had forgotten Sudbury, the Northern Ontario representative. They insisted on a final serial with Toronto and demanded a hundred simoleons to make the trip there for a sudden-death game. White Eagles were willing but the finances were weak. And all at once the O.A.S.A. upped and awarded Sudbury the title by default. It was a bolt from the blue, as the poets say, and T.A.S.A. officials are yelling like hogs in the slaughter house. The matter is not yet settled and they may be clearing the snow off a diamond yet to wind it up.

EXPECT UPSETS U.S. FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP).—There's every indication from coast to coast that to-day's United States collegiate gridiron returns will shell-shock the dopesters besides supplying sufficient thrills for the wildest-eyed onlookers.

Champion contenders are paired in six of the so-called "big leagues" of college football, with unbeaten records involved and the outcome highly speculative in every instance.

Top crowd forecast is 75,000 for Southern California's challenge to untied, unbeaten California, currently the nation's No. 1 ranking team, at Berkeley. Ohio State expects 70,000 to see its battling bucks tangle with Northwestern, 1936 big-ten titleholder. Close to 50,000 will be on hand for each of the two principal "Ivy League" pairings, Cornell-Yale at New Haven and Dartmouth-Harvard at Cambridge.

Navy's invasion of Notre Dame for one of the day's outstanding intersectional engagements, is expected to draw 45,000 spectators.

Here are the major prospects, as viewed from behind barbed wire entanglements:

Southern California-California — It is one of the day's best spots for the underdog, but the Golden Bears have shown no weakness so far. California.

Northwestern-Ohio State — Another shooting match. Ohio State.

Dartmouth-Harvard — The Indian have scalped four opponents, but this is a different warpath. Harvard.

Cornell - Yale. — On the upswing after last week's surprise setback at Syracuse's hands, Cornell will be tough to take, but Yale gets the call.

Navy-Notre Dame—A good spot to let the breaks decide. Notre Dame.

Wisconsin-Pittsburg—There's only one answer on form—Pittsburg.

Scoring Threat

TOMMY BURNS

One of the big scoring threats of Montreal Indians of the Big Four rugby group this season will probably be Tommy Burns, place-kicking middle wing and former Toronto Argonaut player with the team. In a recent game, Tommy scored 10 of the 17 points acquired by his team. He garnered his points with a touchdown, a placement kick and two converts.

SIEBERT - JOLIAT REFUSE CONTRACTS FROM CANADIENS

TORONTO, Oct. 23 (CP).—This holdout epidemic is getting serious. Now it has hit Montreal Canadiens, who have yet to sign up Babe Siebert, the burly all-star defenceman, and Aurel Joliat, the mite right winger.

It's New York Rangers against New York Americans tonight at Calgary, as the teams open a six-game tour of the Prairie Provinces. Manager Red Dutton of Amerks intends to use 18 men in the game and will dress two goalies, five defencemen, 10 forwards and utility man, Happy Emms.

Don't forget, you baseball fans. That isn't Gus Mancuso, the New York Giants' catcher, practising with Canadiens in Montreal. Namesake Gus Mancuso played with Hershey Bears, champions of the Eastern United States Amateur League, last year.

Few fans know it but Lester Brennan, the hefty young amateur defenceman making such a good impression in Canadiens' workouts, used to be a goalkeeper. But that was in his High School days, and now Brennan is looked upon as definite big league timber.

Look for Charlie Conacher, the giant wingman of Toronto Maple Leafs, to do some heavy bombing this year. Chuck had a bad season last year because of a broken wrist that kept him out of action for a long while. The tipoff, he's right in form, however, came yesterday, when he drove home four goals in practice.

Take it from King Clancy, coach of Montreal Maroons, that Buddy O'Connor is "going swell at centre," and has a chance to stick with the N.H.L. team. Buddy's been showing off well in Lake Placid training and Clancy says he'd like to find a spot for the Montreal amateur.

It's just possible there might be another pair of brothers in the N.H.L. this season. Johnny Gallagher's been in the big league for a number of years, and now is playing defence for Amerks. His brother Vince, of Kenora, Ont., is out with Canadiens.

Another Willard

The son of the Jess Willard who beat Jack Johnson to become the world heavyweight boxing champion, was able to stay away from boxing for two years as he played football, worked on the track squad and studied at Washington State college, Pullman, Wash., but the lure of resined canvas and heavy socking caught up with young Jess Jr. Now he is out to win a heavyweight championship of some sort. He is more than six feet tall and weighs more than 200 pounds.

NO CHAMPION IS DECLARED CANADIAN TURF

TORONTO, October 23—(C.P.)—Canada's most expensive pastime—horse-racing—to-day drew to a 1937 close.

Rich and poor jostle about at Dufferin race track to-day, stand on seats, hold anybody's elbow and scream, for their favorite color-bearer as a field of eight thoroughbreds thunder down the stretch in the seventh and final race. Not until next Spring will racing enthusiasts gather to plunge on public's choice or daringly back a long shot special.

Racing interest here waned about three weeks ago when a number of owners, trainers, jockeys and horses headed for the United States Winter racing campaign. Thoroughbreds not scheduled for the south will be unwound and stabled in Winter quarters.

The Canadian racing campaign failed to crown a clear-cut champion in any division. Only one or two performers were labeled head of their class—and then only by slim margins.

The two-year-old division—1938 King's Plate eligibles—finished in a muddle. In choosing a Winter-book favorite, turfaters were divided among Suffern, Grand Dame and Bunty Lawless. The trio showed speed and stamina, but none displayed sufficient spark to rate championship honors.

On basis of consistency Grand Dame, owned by G. M. Hendrie of Hamilton drew top-ranking position. But one victory in four tries by Suffern, H. C. Hatch's hope for a third straight Plate triumph, raised his ranking in expert's form charts.

Triumph came in the $5,000 Mrs. Orpen's Cup and Saucer, windup Juvenile test. The sweepster-saffron colt was much the best in the one mile and 70 yards route. He broke on top and stayed there. Grand Dame finished second, and Chuckler, owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, a fast-closing third.

It was agreed ordinary juvenile races over the mile and six furlongs were not long enough for the Hatch hope. His ability to stand up over a distance tickled race followers who favor a distance runner in the King's Plate, a mile and an eighth grind.

University Of Toronto Athletes Dominate Track And Field Day

Larry O'Connor Paces Varsity To 71-Point Total In Sports Events

TORONTO, October 23—(C.P.).—Seven years of famine were at an end to-day for University of Toronto's track and field team, which won the Canadian Intercollegiate team title here in competition with four other colleges.

For the last seven years, McGill University of Montreal held away in the games, but yesterday at Varsity Stadium it was University of Toronto's day as their athletes dominated the meet in which four Canadian college marks were beaten and one was tied.

Pacing Toronto to victory, and responsible for a great portion of the team's 71-point total, were Larry O'Connor, Dave Crichton, and Gordie McHenry. McGill scored 50 points, Queen's 22, University of Western Toronto 17, and McMaster University of Hamilton, 5.

O'Connor smashed two records, winning the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.6 seconds, or one-tenth second better than the mark he set previously for the distance. In the 220-yard dash he stepped home in 22.1 seconds, also slipping a tenth from the mark held by F. Halbaus of University of Toronto and Bill Fritz of Queen's University. O'Connor also won the 220-yard low hurdles.

McHenry flashed over the line in the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds to equal the record. He also won the quarter-mile in a gallant sprint down the stretch that sent him across the finish line a foot ahead of McGill's Mason.

Crichton shattered the mile mark, stepping the distance in 4.30.6 minutes compared to the record of 4.30.8 established by C. A. Conway of University of Toronto. He also won the half-mile in 2.00.6 minutes.

The other mark to fall went to Jim Courtright of Queen's, who tossed the javelin 161 feet, nine ins. The former mark of 177 10¼ ins. was set by Claude Moore of Western.

Other winners were Courtright in the shot put; Clarrie Flankton of McGill in the three-mile run; Morgan of McGill in the discus throw; Peck of McGill in the high jump; Trusler of University of Toronto in the pole vault; Detweiler of University of Toronto in the broad jump. The University of Toronto team won the mile relay.

BUSH REJECTS BOSTON OFFER

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 22 (AP).—Five successful years as manager of the Minneapolis American Association Baseball Club and the pleasant associations built up here outweighed Friday for Donie Bush a "flattering offer" to manage Boston Bees.

Bush, who had piloted four different major league clubs at various times before coming to Minneapolis, said he had wired Bob Quinn, Bees' president, his decision to remain as Minneapolis manager during 1938.

"It was hard to pass up a chance to return to the major leagues as a manager," Bush said, "but I have been so happy in Minneapolis that I am really glad that I have decided to stay. Mike Kelley (Minneapolis president), the newspapers and the fans, have been so grand to me that I didn't have the heart to leave."

Bush's Minneapolis teams have won three association pennants.

"Mr. Quinn made me a fine offer to manage the Boston Club," he continued, "but I have reached the age where money isn't everything. Fortunately, I am well fixed financially and can afford to turn down the Boston proposition.

During his baseball career, Bush also directed Washington Senators, Chicago White Sox, Pittsburg Pirates, Cincinnati Reds and Indianapolis.

IN MEMORIAM

CANN. — In loving memory of my dear Husband, Fred Cann, who died October 23, 1932.

Five years have passed since that sad day,
The one I loved was called away.
God took him home, it was His will,
But in my heart he liveth still.

—Ever remembered by Wife and Family.

NICHOLS. — In loving memory of Mr. George Nichols, who passed away October 23, 1932.

To hear his voice and see his smile
That meant so much to me.

FOXFORD, Sask.—(CP).—E. Moltzwenk, farmer, 40 miles northeast of Prince Albert, threshed 62 bushels to the acre of wheat from new breaking. Average yields run from 30 to 31 in this area.

BABY BADLY CUT UNDER MAD COW

LINDSAY, Oct. 23. — Chester Dewdney, Harvey Township, saved his baby boy from death under the flying hoofs of a maddened cow during milking time at his barn Wednesday night.

The farmer had taken his child to the barn while he performed the evening chores, and while Mr. Dewdney was milking one cow, the boy crawled under another animal. The cow started to kick and the screams of the child attracted the father's attention.

He rushed over and pulled the little tot from under the feet of the animal.

The child was rushed to a doctor, where he was found to be suffering from numerous cuts, bruises and internal injuries.

Price Of Eggs Stays At 35 to 40

The price of eggs remained firm on the Farmers' Market today, despite a generous volume. Prices from 35 to 40 cents a dozen prevailed. Fowl was plentiful, chickens bringing 20 to 25 cents a pound, and ducks selling at 23 cents. Butter was 28 to 30 cents.

Potatoes were unchanged at 75 cents a bag. A few last-of-the-season tomatoes were offered at 25 cents for the small basket. Pork cuts sold at 14 and 16 cents. In large volume, apples sold at 20 to 35 cents a peck. Honey brought 9, 10 and 12 cents a pound for the various grades.

BISHOP DEDICATES NEW PARISH HALL AT YOUNG'S POINT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

YOUNG'S POINT, Oct. 23.—On Monday evening the congregation of St. Aidan's church met at 8 o'clock in the church. The rector, Rev. E. C. Moore in charge, together with His Lordship, Bishop Beverley, of Toronto, and Rev. W. J. Creighton of Lakefield, for a service of thanksgiving and to dedicate their new Parish Hall.

His Lordship the Bishop spoke from the text, "Take no thought for your life". Among points developed were: Do not worry, "Consider the lilies" and how God has work for each individual in his own sphere.

Special hymns were sung with Mrs. David Darling at the organ.

At the close of the service in the church, the congregation, together with the Bishop, Rev. E. C. Moore and Rev. W. J. Creighton, of Lakefield, proceeded to the new Parish Hall, where His Lordship the Bishop said the Dedication prayers. At the close of the service several speeches of congratulation were given to Rev. E. C. Moore and the congregation by Messrs. J. McKendrer, of Lakefield, Mr. Wm. Bland, of Toronto, Mr. George Douglas, Lakefield and many others.

Refreshments were then served from a table draped in white linen, a candelabrum in the center with lighted white candles. Mrs. Wm. Bland poured coffee and Mrs. Andrew Wilson poured tea.

On Tuesday evening at an early hour visitors began to arrive and were served most efficiently by a bevy of willing waiters to a sumptuous hot supper of roast chicken, hot vegetables and delicious brown gravy, dressing, relishes of all descriptions, and pies in unlimited quantities.

After the very large crowd had partaken of supper the tables were removed and a dance, to music supplied by Wilson's orchestra, was enjoyed by the young folk, and many of the older ones, too, bringing to a close a very enjoyable evening in the new hall.

His Lordship, Bishop Beverley and Mrs. Beverley of Toronto, were the guests of Rev. and Mrs. Moore at the rectory on Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Charlton and Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Charlton, of Lakefield, were guests at the chicken supper on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Wm. Thompson, of Mount Julian, has been the guest of Rev. E. C. and Mrs. Moore at the rectory this past week and also attended the opening of the new Parish Hall.

Rev. W. J. and Mrs. Creighton, Lakefield, attended the opening of the new Parish Hall.

Among others who attended the chicken supper were Rev. Mr. Gault, Peterborough, Rev. Mr. McMullin, Apsley, Mrs. Downing, Apsley, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Trumpour and Mrs. Roy Thompson and daughter of Peterborough.

DEAD RECKONING

BY

BRUCE HAMILTON

READ THIS FIRST:

Tim Kennedy graduated into wouldbe homicide from the school of armchair murderers. With a lucrative dental practice and an enviable social position in a small town near London, Tim at middle age, feels happy and secure. Then Esther is run down by a truck, returning home weeks later a physical wreck, with all her former beauty shattered. Tim loses all interest in his wife, and is greatly attracted by Alma Shepherd, a widow and a new client. He manoeuvers to invite her to their annual tennis party. Tim assures Esther that he still loves her. He begins to see more and more of Alma who Esther now considers a friend of the family. Finally Tim is determined that Esther must die. He begins to ponder on the safest means of ridding himself of his wife and plans a hoax suicide. He starts to cut off her supply of drugs so that she will crave them to gain sleep.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 18.

One morning at breakfast, when Esther was looking particularly haggard after an exceptionally bad night, she said to Tim:

"You know, I hardly slept a wink last night. I'm afraid I've got so used to the aspirin that it isn't working any longer."

He nodded.

"I was afraid that might happen—it doesn't altogether surprise me."

"Do you think I could increase the dose—or have it every night instead of every two nights?"

"I shouldn't do that. It wouldn't do your nerves any good. No—I think what you need is to try something else. . . . I'll ring up Harold after breakfast."

He managed to forget to do this, however, and by keeping out of Esther's way until the time for his departure he gave her no opportunity of reminding him. He affected to remember as he kissed her goodby. "There!" he said. "I clean forgot to ring Harold. No time now, and I've a pretty full morning—will you do it yourself, dear?"

At lunch time he asked her if she had telephoned.

"Yes," she answered. "He's going to give me another prescription."

"Any idea what it's to be?"

"Bromide I think. I'm afraid it won't be much better. I wish he'd give me something stronger."

"Oh, I don't know. I dare say the change will do the trick."

He stroked his mustache thoughtfully. He was not at all pleased. Bromide suited his purpose no better than aspirin. The quantity required was too unhandy, and the result in any case too uncertain. . . . This would mean a delay of a fortnight, or at least a week. The new prescription would have to be given a proper trial.

However, he concealed his vexation, and proceeded to deal with the bromide in exactly the same way as he had with the aspirin, except that this time he never gave her a dose at all. . . . It did not take Esther more than a few days to come to the conclusion that her latest sleeping-draught had absolutely no effect on her. . . . The cycle was repeated with a curious similarity of detail. . . . This time Dr. Arkwright called at The Wilderness when Tim was at work.

"He's giving me medinal," said Esther to her husband when he returned in the evening.

A tremor of exultation passed through him.

"Medinal!" he repeated, doubtfully. "That's one of the barbituric group—a soluble form of veronal. . . . I don't know that I altogether care about that, Esther."

"But it's not really dangerous, is it, Tim?"

"Not in small quantities. . . . In fact it's a very useful and harmless drug, used in moderation. But the tendency is to increase the dose, and then it becomes definitely dangerous."

"Well, I wouldn't do anything like that. . . . And after all, Uncle Harold wouldn't let me have it if he didn't think it was perfectly safe."

"What dose did he suggest your taking?"

"Ten grains, twice a week at first, then once a week after a little while."

"M'm. . . . Well, I suppose it's all right, so long as it doesn't go on too long."

But a few days later, meeting Dr. Arkwright in the High Street Tim stopped him.

"I see you're letting Esther have medinal," he said. "I suppose it is the best thing for her."

"Well, the gentler sedatives seem to have failed," Arkwright answered. "We've got to do something about her insomnia. . . . I don't care about prescribing veronal as a rule. It loses its effect after a while, and at the same time no tolerance is established. . . . Of course you understand that she mustn't go on with it any longer than I tell her to, and she must stick to the therapeutic dose."

"That's what I'm bothered about—will she?"

Arkwright looked hard at him.

"You must see to it that she does. . . . You never used to be afraid of drugs, Tim."

"I'm not. But there's a distinction between the relief of pain and a regular hypnotic use. At least I've always drawn one."

"Are you afraid of Esther becoming an addict?"

"I don't know." Tim shrugged his shoulders. "The whole thing is rather against my instincts. . . . How long do you think she can be allowed to take this stuff?"

"Not more than five or six weeks, regularly."

"Then what's to happen at the end of five or six weeks?"

Arkwright hesitated.

"To tell you the truth I don't know, Tim," he said at last. "It may tide her over a bad period—regular sleep can make a lot of difference. Then there's this sea voyage of yours. . . . When are you going?"

"The middle of July—in about a month."

"Well, I'll overhaul her thoroughly when you get back. If she's not definitely better I'll arrange for a consultation. . . . I know her progress is slow. She seems to have slipped back just lately. But there's devilish little one can do in nervous cases like this, old man. One can't put the clock forward; one can only help things along. You must be patient."

"All right," said Tim. "I'll try to."

But the patience required of Tim was not of long duration. Everything was now in hand. He had to wait for just one thing before pro-

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE EGGS

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy one morning. From the tone of his muskrat lady housekeeper's voice, Uncle Wiggily knew something had happened.

"What's the matter, Nurse Jane?" he politely asked, at the same time twinkling his pink nose at her to show he wanted to help.

"No eggs," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"No eggs," repeated Uncle Wiggily. "It is a cross word puzzle you are doing Nurse Jane?"

"No, it's a cake I'm baking, or trying to bake," she answered. "But I can't make a cake without eggs and there isn't one in the bungalow."

"I'll hop over to the coop of Mrs. Cluck, the hen lady, and get you some," offered Mr. Longears.

"Will you? Oh, you're sweet!" said Nurse Jane.

"So will the cake be, I hope!" chuckled Mr. Longears.

Reward

"You shall have a slice all for yourself if you get me the eggs," promised the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"I'll get them," promised Uncle Wiggily, and he hopped, over the fields, through the woods, up hill and down dale until he reached the hen coop house of Mrs. Cluck. She was cackling and her husband, Mr. Rooster, was crowing when Uncle Wiggily got there.

"Eggs? Why certainly," crowed Mr. Rooster, flapping his wings cock-a-doodle like. "My wife just laid some. She's the best egg layer in these parts. Where are some fresh eggs for Uncle Wiggily, my dear?" asked Mr. Rooster.

"Oh, there are some lovely ones under the barn," cackled Mrs. Cluck. "I have to lay my eggs in the oddest places to keep them away from the chicken children," she explained. "They do so love to play marbles with them and that cracks 'em—I mean it cracks the eggs."

"I understand," said Uncle Wiggily, with a laugh. "Well, I would like about a dozen eggs for Nurse Jane's cake."

"Do you mind crawling under the barn and getting them for yourself?" asked Mrs. Cluck. "I would go but I must run over and see how Mrs. Wibblewobble the duck lady, is. She's been ill."

"I'm sorry to hear that," said Uncle Wiggily. "I can easily crawl under the barn and get the eggs myself."

"I'd ask my husband to get them," cackled Mrs. Cluck, "but he has to go to town to sell some other eggs."

A Secret

"Oh, I'll find my way under the barn," said the rabbit.

"I'll show you a hole through which you can crawl," said the hen lady. "I have to keep it secret from the children," she laughed.

By getting down on his stomach and crawling along Uncle Wiggily managed to get under the barn. There he found a dozen eggs. He put them in a basket, but when he tried to crawl backward out from beneath the barn he couldn't. He was stuck there. A nail in the floor board above him had caught in his coat.

"Help! Help! Help!" cried Uncle Wiggily squirming under the barn. "Help! I'm stuck! I can't get out! Help! Help!"

Lucky for Mr. Longears it was that Mr. Rooster came home just then. Hearing the rabbit's cries, the rooster gentleman with his beak pried a loose floor board and Uncle Wiggily got out that way with his basket of eggs.

"I'll never crawl under a barn again," he said.

But Nurse Jane's cake was very good, Mr. Longears had a large slice. And if the bathing suit will stop pretending to be a life guard and jumping into the bath tub to save the tooth brush, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's music.

CHINESE RECEIVE 12 SOVIET PLANES JAPANESE CHARGE

SHANGHAI, Oct. 23—(AP)—Chinese and Japanese troops fought along the 26-mile front today with both sides claiming gains.

In the confusion of attacks and counter attacks it was virtually impossible for foreign observers to determine the situation.

A Japanese army spokesman announced Japanese had pushed back the Chinese a few hundred yards to occupy Wwangtu, an important Chinese defence position. A Chinese spokesman said Japanese were driven back at the same point.

Shells from Chinese batteries in Pootung, across the Whangpoo River from Shanghai, fell in the Japanese-occupied Hongkew section of the International Settlement. Two of the projectiles struck a British-owned, unoccupied apartment building.

Japanese warships in the Whangpoo joined in the barrage laid down by Japanese field pieces. Repeated Chinese air raids kept Japanese anti-aircraft guns in constant action.

Chinese incendiary bombs started a fire in the eastern Pootung section. A shell exploded outside a police station in the Yangtzepoo area of the settlement, but 60 policemen escaped injury.

Fires Blaze In Chapei

Huge fires blazed in Chapei, north of the foreign area. Japanese naval officials admitted a Japanese bombing plane was shot down near Nanziang, 11 miles west of Shanghai, but said other bombers inflicted extensive damage on Chinese munitions depots and communication lines.

Japanese also said their aircraft killed hundreds of Chinese fleeing from Kwangfu and that ground forces had cut their way through Chinese lines within slightly more than a mile of Tazang.

Taking cognizance of such reports for the first time, the Japanese Shanghai News said 12 Soviet planes had arrived at Lanchow, in the northwest province of Kansu.

One Chinese report on the Shanghai battle was that 10,000 Japanese troops were in danger of being cut off from their base near Wentaozpang Creek, 12 miles northwest of the city.

EX-OFFICER GIVEN TWO-YEAR TERM

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 23—(CP)—For carrying a gun while committing a crime, Joseph Lapine, 39, former member of the Windsor Police Force, today was sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary. The term will run concurrently with a three-year sentence imposed last week for breaking and entering.

Lapine pleaded guilty to the firearms charge as he did to the breaking and entering charge. Walter Prestyko, 23, Windsor, companion of Lapine when the two were nabbed during an attempt to crack a safe in the office of Seely Products, Ltd., here, September 30, was sentenced last week to two years in penitentiary. He was charged only with breaking and entering.

Lapine, dismissed little more than a year ago from the police force for insubordination to a superior officer, was shot through the hip by police when he refused to obey a command to put his hands up. A loaded revolver was found in his hip pocket.

SEEK OIL IN ARCTIC

OVER 700 people will spend the winter at the new Arctic industrial centre on the Peninsula of Nordwic, some drilling for oil and others mining the vast salt deposits.

Fingering Millions After Crash

Millions and millions of dollars are shown ABOVE going through the fingers of brokerage clerks in New York as they toiled far into the night. More than seven million shares of stock were traded on the New York stock exchange, but though some of the certificates shown here meant ruin to some fortune to others, they are just paper and numbers to the toilers in the Wall Street beehive.

ceeding to execution—a spell of hot weather. For it was plainly impossible for him to go ahead with his plan while he was still sleeping with Esther. He had realized at once that the hour for action would strike when the uncomfortably hot nights gave him a pretext for retiring to a seperate room—a pretext based on the precedent set by many summers.

For this reason alone it had been necessary for him to have everything ready while the summer was still in full swing. And as he had now committed himself to a holiday in mid-July the margin was limited to the period before they started and perhaps a few weeks after their return. On every account he hoped that the earlier period would be available.

In point of fact he was given a good deal of anxiety. For days after midsummer a strong south-westerly wind blew with great persistency, and was followed by a week of almost continuous rain. It was not until the second week in July that the weather cleared and the temperature began to rise to an extent justifying him in leaving Esther to sleep alone. She proved reluctant on this occasion to let him go, but his usual quiet obstinacy got him his way without real friction.

He had given her two full doses of the medinal, and subsequently two further ones of five grains. He was not quite sure of the pathological requirements of the case but a renewed study of his Famous Trials and a standard work of medical jurisprudence had convinced him that the absence of any trace of the early doses was likely to be remarked upon if the organs were examined. But in view of the variation in the amounts found in similar circumstances he judged that the doses he gave would be sufficient.

He was unwilling to administer any more for two reasons. One was the need of having enough of the drug left for his purpose out of the original supply—he would have no excuse for obtaining any more until well into the autumn, if at all, and in any case it would then be too late. The second reason was more subtle. A definite improvement in Esther's health and spirits, which was a probable consequence of her taking the medinal as prescribed, would prejudice the general plausibility of the tragedy he was preparing.

His tactics worked out excellently. For rather over a week Esther averaged eight hours of sound sleep, and the benefit was sensibly reflected in her general appearance. Then she began to slip back, and the bitterness of yet another disappointment induced in her a condition so peevish and gloomy that the ideas Tim had planted in the minds of his friends were given a noticeable corroboration.

The time was ripe.

HOLD BYRNES REPORT

HAMILTON, Oct. 23—(CP)—Report of Judge Duncan C. Ross, commissioner appointed by the Hepburn Government to investigate its succession duties claim against the estate of the late aPtrick V. Brynes, public utilities magnate, will not be made public until it has been filed with the Provincial Treasurer, he announced after the close of the inquiry to-day.

Judge Ross informed counsel he could not indicate when his findings would be completed.

TELL THE TRUTH WIDOW DEMANDS OF GIRL KILLER

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).— A jury of 11 men and one woman will hear summations by opposing counsel and a judge's charge to-day and begin its deliberation of the fate of Margaret Drennan.

Miss Drennan, 20, ended her defence yesterday of the charge she shot and killed Paul Reeves, 25, father of two children, declaring she did it in self-defence.

Court adjourned in a dramatic note when Mrs. Myra Reeves, widow of the slain mill worker, stood in the witness box yesterday, pleaded with Miss Drennan to "tell the truth," and then fainted.

Called as a rebuttal witness, Mrs. Reeves was dismissed by Prosecutor Charles M. Morris with a "That's all." The widow jumped to her feet.

"No, it's not all," she exclaimed. "Margaret, please tell the truth. I have two children. Some day they have got to know the truth."

Confusion was hushed by Judge Adrian Lyon, who told the jury summations would be deferred until the next day if they preferred.

Earlier in the day Miss Drennan, who appeared calm throughout Mrs. Reeves' outburst, told the jury she shot Reeves to escape an alleged attack in his darkened bungalow on September 7. She said she believed she was pregnant as the result of an earlier attack by Reeves. The night of the shooting she visited the Reeves' home to tell him about it, carrying, she said, a revolver of her father's for protection.

A lengthy business discussion was held. Mrs. J. Maloney was nominated a delegate to the annual convention at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto on November 18 and 19. The president will also attend.

Morris, each presented the library with a book in honor of their birthday month.

Current events were taken by Mrs. Maloney and community singing added pep to the meeting. A nut contest sponsored by Mrs. Morris was won by Mrs. Aubrey Wood. A paper on meat matters, with valuable information on the cooking and advice on the choice of cuts, was given by Mrs. Morris. A demonstration on "Preparing a Chicken for the Table" was ably presented by Mrs. Birdsall.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting with the convenor, Mrs. T. Cardwell in charge. Hostesses included Mrs. R. Lobb, Mrs. F. Wilson, Mrs. McColl, Mrs. R. Douglas, Mrs. H. Neilson, Mrs. W. Wilson and Miss V. Lobb.

Disheartened By Weak Market

BECAUSE the hog market was weak, three Ennismore township farmers went on a "bender" Thursday night.

On Friday they appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to face intoxication charges and entered joint pleas of guilty.

Their counsel W. B. Gordon urging the trio were all first offenders suggested the costs might be reduced to a minimum.

"What have you fellows to say for yourselves", the Cadi demanded.

One of the trio, acting as self-appointed spokesman, stood before the Bench pipe in hand and a genial grin on his broad features. "We brought in some hogs and the hogs went down Your Worship", he laughed by way of explanation.

"You were disheartened because the price of hogs went down", the Cadi re-echoed.

"It will cost you the price of a good hog apiece", His Worship decided, imposing fines of $10 and 75 cents costs.

Still in perfect good humor the trio paid a total in fines and costs of $32.25.

Advises U.S. To "Cheer Up"

In a final burst of advice to the United States, Selfridge urged that they "cheer up." Said he—"American business must snap its fingers and plow its way through . . . it must accept what it has to expect and go on."

PASTORS DEFEND KIRKLAND LAKE

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Oct. 23—(CP).—Northern Ontario ministers expressed disagreement to-day with a report of the Home Mission Board of the regular Baptist churches that „sin truly abounds beyond anything imaginable" in this district.

The board's report was presented to the Ontario-Quebec Union of Regular Baptist Churches in Toronto yesterday. Rev. H. C. Slade of Timmins described Kirkland Lake as a "Modern Sodom and Gomorrah," and full of Satanic influences.

Rev. William R. Clements, pastor of the United Church in nearby Swastika, said "a statement like that is extreme, exaggerated and ultra evangelical." Rev. H. A. Simms, pastor of St. Peter's Anglican Church here, said: "I must be an innocent and unsuspecting person. My impression is rather different. There are certainly no open signs of wickedness."

"Among these miners I found splendid fellows and the town is no worse than York Township where I come from," said Rev. Walter Daniels, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Kirkland Lake.

"Maybe this reverend gentleman knows Kirkland Lake better than I do," Rev. Father Jodoin of the Church of the Assumption said. Kirkland Lake was "not any worse than any town in the south."

FIND BOY DROWNED

JAMESTOWN, N.Y., Oct. 23 (AP). — The body of three-year-old Timothy Heer, missing from home since Tuesday, was found in Lake Chautauqua today.

Police, G-men and hundreds of local volunteers had searched for the boy since Tuesday noon, believed he had either drowned or been kidnapped.

FOREIGN BUYERS AT LEIPZIG

Nearly 100,000 people, including 6,174 foreign buyers, attended the recent Fall Fair in Leipzig.

JAPANESE TO ASK NATIONS HOLD UP 9-POWER PARLEY

TOKYO, Oct. 23—(AP).—A foreign office spokesman indicated today Japan will plead a lack of time in which to make preparations and ask a postponement of the nine-power conference on the Chinese-Japanese situation.

The spokesman said the Cabinet Council is not expected to decide whether Japan will attend the Oct. 30 meeting at Brussels until next Tuesday, after which Imperial sanction must be obtained.

"We certainly do not have time to administer all this business," he said, also declaring the Japanese government "is greatly mystified by the lateness of the invitation since it is understood other signatories received theirs long before."

Japan received its invitation to the conference yesterday. There were indications Tokyo is attempting to learn the attitude of Germany and Italy before making a final decision.

BROADCAST UNDECIDED

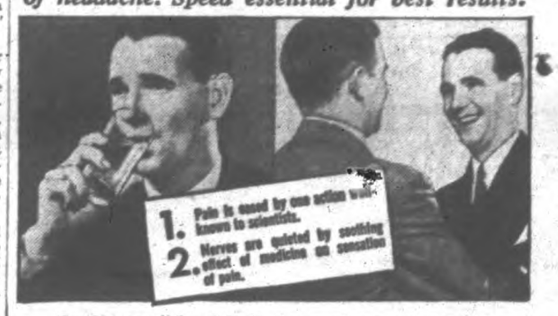
LONDON, Oct. 22 (CP Cable).—A Buckingham Palace spokesman said today the question of a Christmas broadcast by the King "has not been settled yet."

British Broadcasting Corporation officials said the King would be asked to broadcast to the Empire, but that no invitation had gone out as yet.

His Majesty last year did not continue his father's practice in addressing his subjects at Christmas time. He had then been on the throne for but a fortnight and had gone through the trying days of the abdication crisis.

WHY "ASPIRIN" ACTS SO FAST ON "Nervous Headaches"

Two way action needed to ease pain and quiet nervousness for relief of this most common type of headache. Speed essential for best results.



Insist on "Aspirin"—accept no substitute

The inexpensive way to ease headaches—if you want fast results—is with "Aspirin".

The instant the pain starts, simply take 2 "Aspirin" tablets with a half glass of water. Usually in a few minutes relief arrives.

"Aspirin" tablets are quick-acting because they disintegrate in a few seconds—ready to start their work almost immediately after taking.

● "Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

THE REASON "ASPIRIN" WORKS SO FAST

Dropan "Aspirin" tablet into a tumbler of water.

By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

This speed of disintegration enables "Aspirin" tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.

CARRY YOUR ALKALIZER WITH YOU ALWAYS

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkalizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready.

Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonfuls of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," over-acid stomach are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

REBEL-MARKED PLANES BOMB TWO FRENCH SHIPS

DUCE'S FIGURES ON VOLUNTEERS WIDEN DISPUTE

Bombing French Ship Adds Fresh Trouble

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(AP).— Foreign Secretary Eden sought a compromise formula to-day to save European non-intervention in Spain from collapse, but the outlook was gloomy.

Amid efforts to bring the bickering powers into harmony, two new incidents in the Mediterranean were reported.

The 2,412-ton French freighter Oued Mellah was bombed by an unidentified plane off Barcelona, Spain, yesterday, and abandoned at sea by her crew.

The master of the British liner Kaiser-I-Hind reported by wireless from off the North African coast that a seaplane was seen "dropping two heavy bombs from which columns of water shot up at a great height" at a submarine which "apparently submerged.

The Admiralty first announced a British flying boat was observed dropping bombs to "discover direction of the wind." Later, reiterating denials a submarine was involved, the Admiralty said the seaplane was engaged in bombing practice.

France and Italy, long at loggerheads in the non-intervention committee, were committed yesterday to policies that may keep them apart in negotiations over the withdrawal of foreign fighters from Spain.

Authoritative Fascist publications in Rome asserted refusal of the non-intervention committee to accept Italy's figure of 40,000 as the number of Italian troops in Spain would mean the collapse of negotiations.

The official Stefani News Agency disclosed that Italy's ambassadors to Great Britain and France have been instructed to inform those governments that 40,000 Italians are fighting in the Spanish civil war.

Must Be Accepted?

Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia of Milan, said the Italian communication "cannot be questioned" and "represents a warning which it would be dangerous to ignore." Virgino Gaydra, frequently a mouthpiece for official dictums, wrote that the 40,000 figure would "admit of no argument."

Premier Camille Chautemps of France warned that France was determined to defend her interests, by force if necessary. Especially "in the grievous affair of Spain," he said, "Violations of justice cannot be renewed without constraining France and Great Britain to renew their liberty of action."

Well-informed quarters expressed belief the many-sided situation left Mr. Eden little hope of finding a compromise before the non-intervention session tomorrow.

Indications pointed to an effort to induce Russia to modify her stand. Reports that Moscow will demand withdrawal of foreign fighters before the Spanish insurgents are accorded belligerent rights, however, left only a slim chance that it could succeed, despite a one-day postponement of the meeting until tomorrow to allow more time for negotiations.

AGED MAN DIES GAS POISONING

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 25 (C.P.).—R. W. Swain, 91-year-old resident of Valentia Village, 12 miles south of here, died from gas poisoning early to-day. His wife is in critical condition. Dr. G. C. R. Hall of Little Britain is administering oxygen to the elderly woman in an attempt to overcome the effects of the coal gas, which escaped from the stove when the lid was left partly off.

Pioneers of Victoria.

The house filled with gas early this morning and the couple, pioneers of Victoria County, were overcome in their beds. Mrs. Thomas Chambers, daughter, and Emerson Swain, grandson, entered the house early to-day and found Mr. and Mrs. Swain choking. The elderly man died before medical help could be summoned, while Mrs Swain was taken to Lindsay Hospital for treatment.

Besides Mrs. Chambers, Mrs. G. Joblin of Sonya, and Arthur Swain of Valentia are children of the aged couple.

14-Year-Old Bride Widow of 17 Are Held by Police

One Is Charged With Vagrancy and Theft While Other Faces a Charge of Vagrancy

The State of Kentucky with its much-publicised child marriages has nothing on Central Ontario.

In police court here today, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., remanded a 14-year-old bride of a few months whose husband was said to be in Havelock, and a 17-year-old widow, who declared she was married at the age of 13 years.

The girl who said she was 14, and who did not look any older, was remanded without plea on charges of vagrancy and car theft, while her elder companion was held on a single charge of vagrancy.

Daughters of two Campbellford families, the girls are alleged by police to have had some association with Rollie Miles who is on remand for sentence on charges of breaking and entering and car theft.

Addressing the younger of the pair after learning her age and the fact she was a married woman, the magistrate queried. "What makes you think you are 14?"

"I know it. I was born at Campbellford", the girl replied with poise. She furnished the names and address of her parents and added, "I'll be 15 in February".

"Under the circumstances it is my duty to remand you so that your parents may be notified under the Juvenile Offenders' Act. You will be held in custody until next Monday", the Bench decided.

Married Also

After reading over the charge to the other accused, the magistrate observed, "You're not married too?"

"I was four years ago. But I'm not now", was the startling reply.

"Did you get a divorce or has your husband deserted you", asked the occupant of the Bench in surprise.

"Neither. My husband is dead", came the soft-spoken reply from the girl in the dock.

"Married at 13, a widow at 17", the magistrate remarked recovering his composure.

Remanding the girl also until Monday next, His Worship said her age precluded the necessity for summoning her parents to be present.

Apparently incredulous, the magistrate asked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., "Is it true this girl was married at 13 and is now a widow?"

"I don't know, Your Worship", the Crown Attorney declared.

NEW JAP ATTACK APOLOGY DOES NOT SATISFY BRITAIN

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Oct. 25 (C.P. Cable). — Great Britain considers the Japanese apologies over the shooting of Private W. McGowan of the Royal Ulster Rifles to be inadequate. An inquiry has been ordered into the incident.

Until this report is received the government cannot determine the next step. But British troops in Shanghai, in the meantime, have received orders to fire without hesitation in self-defence against aircraft attack.

Events both in the Far East and nearer home create increasing concern. Evidence grows that Italy, Germany, and Japan, apparently working in concert, are determined in their policy of expansion.

Italian "concessions" before the non-intervention committee have disappeared. The committee, with Germany and Italy on the one side and Russia on the other, seems as far as ever from agreement over the withdrawal of volunteers from Spain.

Stirring More Trouble

Italian propaganda has stirred the Arabs against Great Britain in the Near East. It is causing trouble for France in French Morocco. The French are worried over their communications with North Africa and turn a troubled eye on the impending fate of Minorca, last outpost of the Valencia givernment in the Balearics.

Criticism of what is termed Great Britain's lack of decision grows among members of the French popular front. Its left-wing sections, particularly, see in the delays in the han-intervention committee only the means of assuring for General Franco victory in Spain.

FREIGHTER BURNS 29 SAVED, 19 LOST

HONG-KONG, Oct. 25 (AP):—The steamship Nanning wirelessed today she was proceeding to Hong-Kong with 29 survivors of the gasoline-laden British freighter Kaitangata which burst into flame.

The survivors included all five Europeans aboard the Kaitangata, the Nanning reported, but 19 Chinese were missing.

The British destroyer Thracian, which went to the Kaitangata's aid with medical supplies, was standing by to pick up other members of the 1,938-ton freighter's crew who jumped into the sea.

The Kaitangata, chartered to the Standard Oil Company, was entering the Hainan Straits in the South China Sea, bound from Hong-Kong to Haiphong, China, when the fire broke out last night.

Zeeland's Belgian Cabinet Resigns

BRUSSELS, Oct. 25.—(CP-Havas).—The Cabinet of Premier Paul Van Zeeland resigned to-day.

The resignation was announced following a cabinet meeting late this afternoon.

The step was taken by the Premier to facilitate charges of alleged financial irregularities.

Henri De Man, Finance Minister, was mentioned as Van Zeeland's probable successor.

Caught For Theft, 2 Linton Men Beat Up Police Officer

Chase Leads To Home Of One Prisoner But They Escape Second Time After Fight

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 25 (CP). — Charged with obstructing a police officer in exercise of his duties faces Gilbert Jackson and Steven Woods of Linton, today. They were held in custody. Meanwhile Chief Clare Hayes of Tweed nursed painful injuries. Woods is also charged with the theft of a robe, the charge which Chief Hayes was in the act of preferring when allegedly set upon by the two men.

Complaint was received by the Tweed officer Saturday that a motor rug was stolen from a car, and after a chase the men were cornered at the Jackson home. The men set upon him and kicked him into a semi-conscious condition and escaped. Jackson was arrested Sunday by Sergt. Harry Thompson of the Provincial Police and placed in Napanee Jail. Woods gave himself up to authorities today. The men will appear in a week.

Coronation Bunting Is Now Petticoats

Budapest, Oct. 25.

TONS of flags and bunting used for the Coronation of King George VI have been exported to Hungary and are finding a ready market in the country fairs.

The reason is that in Hungary the peasant woman's standing in village society is regulated according to the number of petticoats she wears. Twenty is the minimum for respectability, and the leaders of fashion boast of forty. Cheap supplies of surplus bunting have given the women their great opportunity. The bunting is also used for table covers and curtains.

Indian Skinning Knives And Skeleton Uncovered By Gang On Oregon Trail

AT work on the Buckhorn road, this side of Selwyn recently, gang of roadworkers unearthed a skeleton and some pieces of stone, believed to be old Indian skinning knives.

Notified by the foreman of the gang of the find, Provincial Constable David Silvester, after viewing the skeleton said he was quite satisfied the bones were not a human being. Other than that he was unable to say what animal the skeleton represented.

The officer advanced the theory the place where the bones were found was at one time, probably hundreds of years ago, the location of an Indian encampment.

He said the skeleton and the pieces of stone were found underneath the third layer of soil, and thought they might prove of interest to someone interested in biological research.

Not Childish Games

There are no see-saws, footballs or the like, but these children of sunny Italy are having a grand time nonetheless as they play the game of war in their camp near Rome. At TOP, the children, all members of Il Duce's Balilla, juvenile Fascist organization, have barrels of fun charging through clouds of gas with their little rifles, their heads encased in gas masks. Cops and robbers isn't one-half as good a game as this. BELOW, an ambulance unit of the Balilla efficiently removes a gas casualty from the scene of action.

Russia To Abandon Hands Off Group

LONDON, Oct. 25 (CP Cable). — The diplomatic correspondent of the Evening Standard declared in the paper's late editions today that Ivan Maisky, Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, had been ordered to inform the Earl of Plymouth, chairman of the Spanish Non-Intervention Committee, that Russia will no longer contribute funds for the committee's work.

Russia, he added, maintains the "whole machinery" of non-intervention has broken down and an entirely different situation" now exists.

JAMES MITCHELL KILLED EN ROUTE TO VISIT FAMILY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 25. — While preparations were being made for a happy week-end reunion of the family at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell, Scotch Line, Verulam, on Sunday, news was received of a fatality which claimed the life of one of their sons and serious injury to another. Late Saturday afternoon James Mitchell, aged 28, foreman in the Gravenhurst brush factory and his brother, Laverne, aged 30, left that town by automobile to visit their parents.

When rounding a curve on the highway near Brechin, a head-on collision occurred with a car northward bound. James Mitchell was killed instantly, while his brother sustained serious injuries, which included concussion of the brain, lacerations of the face and head and internal injuries.

Both cars were badly wrecked.

Laverne Mitchell was rushed to Soldiers Hospital at Orillia. The body of James Mitchell was taken to Brechin and later in the evening was removed to Lindsay. The young men were former students of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute. The funeral of James Mitchell will take place on Tuesday to the Dunsford cemetery.

HUNTED, SHOOTING OF HAMILTON MAN L A D SURRENDERS

HAMILTON, Oct. 25 (C.P.). — Douglas McCleery, 17, sought on a charge of shooting with intent to do grievous bodily harm after the wounding on Saturday night of Robert Misener, surrendered to-day to detectives at Central Police Station.

He came to the Police Station in company with Reg. Stott, secretary of the Big Brothers Association to whom he had gone for advice. Mr. Stott immediately advised him to surrender, and accompanied him to Central Police Station.

Misener, with a bullet wound in his chest and abdomen, is in the General Hospital, in fair condition.

Police said McCleery levelled a .22 calibre rifle at Misener as he emerged from the bathroom. They said the rifle discharged and Misener fell. There was no further explanation of the incident but police related the story of Ann Shaver, Misener's half sister.

Authorities said Miss Shaver told them McCleery pointed the gun at her, demanded all her money and keys to Misener's automobile. They said she gave him all the money in her possession—$4—and the car keys. Then, police said, McCleery disappeared. The automobile was recovered last night on the Dundas highway near the city's western boundary. A service station attendant said a young man who came to the station for oil abandoned the machine when he could not start it.

Cornish Fishermen Prefer Old, To New Modern Homes

Delegation Hopes To Persuade British Minister Of Health To Change Plans

LONDON, Oct. 25 (CP-Havas). — The fishermen of Newlyn prefer their ancestral granite cottages to the modern homes which the Health Ministry proposes to build to replace them.

So residents of the village, which is on the coast of Cornwall, about two miles from Penzance, sent a delegation to London. They chose the ten fishermen holding the most medals for courage. When the group reached here Saturday, after skirting the coast in one of their small vessels, Sir Kingsley Wood, Minister for Health, invited them to tea in his office.

After Sir Kingsley had promised to give sympathitic consideration to their plea for the old way of living, the fishermen were showered with invitations to luncheons, dinners, and so on.

WOMEN ANNOUNCERS

REGINA, Oct. 25—(CP). — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will make a place for good women announcers, when they are found, stated E. L. Bushnell, Toronto, C.B.C. program director, attending a meeting of Saskatchewan Advisory Council here.

"We are considering it," said Mr. Bushnell, "they are very difficult to find. A good woman announcer is harder to find than a man announcer.

Submarine Chaser Is Set Afire, Freighter Is Sunk

Crew Escapes Machine Gunning, Deserts Vessel; Raids Are First Pirate Successes Since Patrol

PORT MAHON, Minorca, Oct. 25—(CP-Havas)—An unidentified seaplane today bombed and set afire the French submarine chaser No. 91 in the Western Mediterranean off this Spanish-government held port.

The vessel had been placed at the disposal of the Air France Company by the Naval ministry, and was being used as a repair ship.

One bomb crashed into the ship and set it afire. First reports said there were no casualties.

The attack was understood to have occurred in or near the port of Fornells, on the north coast of this government-held Balearic Island. Fornells is about 18 miles northwest of Port Mahon.

It was the second "piratical" attack against a French ship within 24 hours. The French freighter Oued Mellah was bombed off Barcelona at 5 p.m. yesterday and sank six hours later after its captain and his crew had been picked up by French warships.

The onslaught against the Oued Mellah was the first successful piratical raid since the establishment of the Nyon anti-piracy patrol in the Mediterranean.

Use Machine Guns.

The submarine chaser also was machine-gunned.

The attacking plane, France officials said, was marked with a Maltese Cross.

Six men aboard the ship at the time of the attack were saved, officials said, but the vessel was believed to be sinking.

French frontier police at Perpignan declared the Maltese insignia was similar to that painted on Spanish insurgent planes which have bombarded Portbou, Spain — just across the Franco-Spanish frontier.

The insignia also was reported painted on a seaplane which yesterday bombed and sank the French freighter, Oued Mellah, in the Northern Mediterranean.

MILES ENTERED PLEAS OF GUILTY ON TWO COUNTS

Arrested by city police three weeks ago, Rollie Miles, 26, the adopted son of a Dummer Township farmer, was this morning remanded for sentence until Thursday morning, after he pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to charges of breaking and entering by night and car theft.

His counsel T. J. Carley, K.C., urged the young man was married and that his main fault was a weak nature which had caused him to fall in with bad companions. Asking the Bench to deal as leniently as possible with the accused on both charges, counsel stated, "He was not alone in these enterprises."

Referring to the charge of breaking and entering by night, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., in asking a remand for sentence, explained that on October 2 last the accused broke into Ross Payne's butcher shop on George Street.

Constable William R. Piercy and Archie Menzies kept watch on the shop, their suspicions having been aroused by the sound of breaking glass while they were on patrol. As the officers closed-in on the premises, the accused made a successful break. He sped from the scene of the crime in a car.

Good Police Work

The police gave chase, but did not overtake the speeding car they were after. Subsequently following further investigation however, they arrested Miles on a charge of attempted burglary. On previous appearances he had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Mr. McElderry maintained the officers had found signs in the store which indicated preparations were being made to "blow the safe." A filing cabinet had been removed from the top of the safe.

The car in which Miles made his get-a-way from the Payne store, was not the car referred to in the charge of car theft, but was stated by the Crown to have been the police matron's car which was stolen from outside her house that night. The car referred to in the other charge against the accused was the

SUNSHINE ENDS WINTER'S SORTIE

TORONTO, Oct. 25. — (CP) — Winter's first feeble sortie over Southern Ontario retreated to-day with sunshine bringing temperatures above the sub-freezing marks they touched in many sections over the week-end.

From Northern Ontario also came reports of milder weather with rain in some areas melting two inches of snow that fell over the week-end. In all parts of the province Saturday and Sunday intermittent rain and snow was reported with Western Ontario having the first snow of the season, the district being blanketed by snow.

Eastern Ontario was warmer today after an unusual week-end that saw rain, snow and hail in the Kingston district. Ottawa area was covered with wet, soggy snow, but it was disappearing to-day.

North Bay reported moderating temperatures with a light rain clearing the snow away. Galt said the sun was bright after a cold dip and the wind dying down. "Clear today and snow all gone," Kitchener reported.

5 HURT IN BUGGY AS AUTO HITS IT

MORRISBURG, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP)—Five persons, three of them children, were injured when a buggy, driven by Grant Casselman of Morrisburg, was struck by an automobile, driven by Lawrence Barnett of Cumberland, Ont., on the highway near here last night. Four other persons escaped injury.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Beckstead of Morrisburg suffered severe facial lacerations, bruises and shock, while their two children, Doris, nine, and Paul six, received cuts. They were occupants of the buggy. Glenda Barnett, two-year-old daughter of the car driver, was also hurt.

Flying Cowboy Idea Shelved In Hurry

Raton, N.M., Oct. 25 (AP)

THE round-up business appears safe from encroachment of such new fangled ideas as aviation.

Roy E. Lewis and his wranglers tried escorting a herd of adolescent beef with an airplane. The plane died within 500 feet of the steers, and they scattered.

Twenty-five cowboys retrieved all but one of the 800 steers from distances ranging to twelve miles.

Judge Delves Into Farm Tax Jumble And Comes Out With A Headache

Georgetown, Ont., Oct 25 (CP)

A TAX angle is in Judge W. N. Munro's hands. Evidence before him is:

One man tried to pay the taxes but was not allowed to.

Another man said he had paid the taxes—but hadn't.

A third man, the tax collector, reported the taxes paid but they weren't.

Esquesing township, having refused to accept the taxes, is now suing for them.

The suit is the township versus Harry Hunter, 1930 tax collector. The court ordered A. S. Thomson and E. May added as co-defendants. Evidence was hunter sought to collect the taxes from Thomson, and was told they had been paid to the bank. Hunter marked them paid on the tax roll.

Three years later auditors found the taxes had not been paid. In the meantime Ed. May had taken possession of the farm involved, agreeing to pay outstanding taxes. Then they told him 1930 taxes were unpaid and May went to pay them. Esquesing council refused payment because the roll showed them paid.

That's the judge's headache.

LEE GETS LIFE DOUBLE CHARGE MANSLAUGHTER

Guilty Plea Follows Reducing of Counts

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP)—Joseph Chalmer Lee today was under sentence to spend the rest of his life in prison. Mr. Justice A. C. Kingston sentenced the 58-year-old Hamilton, Ont., businessman Saturday after two charges of murder were reduced to manslaughter and a charge of attempted murder withdrawn. Lee pleaded guilty to the manslaughter counts.

Lee was originally charged with the murder June 4 of George Jackson and John Anderson and the attempted murder of Anthony Anderson, John's brother, three former business associates. The six-day trial before the Supreme Court justice and jury came to a sudden end when C. L. Snyder, Crown counsel, agreed to the move of defence counsel Orville Walsh to have the charge of murdering Jackson reduced to manslaughter.

Lee pleaded guilty to the reduced charge. Without leaving the box the jury returned a verdict of guilty. After the jury was dismissed Lee was arraigned on the second charge, that of murdering Anderson. This also was reduced to manslaughter and Mr. Justice Kingstone accepted Lee's guilty plea. The third charge, attempted murder of Anthony Anderson, was withdrawn.

The triple shooting occurred in front of the Ajax Horseshoe Company plant here. Evidence showed Lee placed a revolver in his pocket, cartridges in his car and drove to the plant. He called out Jackson and after a few words shot him. John Anderson came running out of the plant and fell before Lee's revolver. Next to be shot was Anthony Anderson. John Anderson and Jackson died a few hours after the shooting.

TRAIN, FIRE, CARS, BLIZZARDS COST 9 ONTARIO LIVES

TORONTO, Oct. 25. — (CP) — A snowstorm that reduced visibility to a minimum was blamed today for at least one of Ontario's nine violent deaths during the week-end. Six persons died of injuries suffered in traffic accidents, a shooting mishap took one life, one man apparently was killed by a train and another died in a fire that razed his backwoods cabin.

Report of near blizzards, rain squalls and high winds came from many centres with temperatures dropping under the freezing mark at some points. Joseph Murphy, 46, was killed Saturday during such a blizzard. The buggy in which he was riding was struck by an automobile driven by Ross Rennie, collegiate student, near Seaforth.

George Watts, 76, walking to his claims near Lardiner Lake in Northern Ontario, was killed Sunday when struck by a car driven by Louis Arsenault, who was not held by police. Bruce Mitchell, 29, was fatally injured Saturday near Orillia when the automobile in which he was riding collided with another machine. His brother, Laverne was injured critically.

Two Old People Truck Victims.

Two aged persons, a man and a woman, were killed in Toronto Saturday night. Mrs. Maud Stockwell, a 72-year-old old-age pensioner, had just spent the last of her money for food when struck by a truck. She was a cripple. Ernest Giles, 86, died six hours after he walked into the path of another truck. The sixth traffic fatality was that of James Morkin, 12, who died in Windsor of injuries suffered Sept. 25.

The body of Charles Koski, 53, was found in the ashes of his backwoods cabin near Nairn Centre Saturday. He apparently had burned to death in a fire of undetermined origin that destroyed the isolated shack some 35 miles south-east of Sudbury. A coroner's inquest termed it accidental death.

In Port Arthur, Douglas Beatty, 16, was killed Saturday while rabbit huhting with four young friends. A bullet from one of the rifles the party carried struck Beatty in the heart. The friends had not noticed Beatty climbing a nearby ridge.

Police to-day were endeavoring to identify a man found on the railway tracks near Jordan, 10 miles east of Hamilton. The body, bearing a gash in the head, was found Monday. The man was believed to have been a Rumanian farm laborer who had worked in the district.

JEAN BATTEN CUTS 16 HOURS OFF DASH FROM AUSTRALIA

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(CP).— The aviation world pulsed to-day with praise of Jean Batten, daring New Zealand distance flier, as the 27-year-old pilot rested from a record-smashing flight from Australia to England.

She dropped her little silver monoplane down on Lympne airport yesterday exactly five days, 18 hours, 15 minutes after leaving Port Darwin in Northern Australia.

Her time was 16 hours and 40 minutes better than the previous record set last May by H. L. Broadbent, Australian aviator, who took six days, 10 hours, 55 minutes for the same journey.

Miss Batten faced a severe storm for the last stage of the journey from Marseille, France, and was nearly exhausted when, after a brief stop at Lympne, she came on to Croydon, where 10,000 gathered to welcome her.

Miss Batten now holds the Australia-England solo record in both directions. Last year she took the England-Australia record away from Broadbent by covering the distance in five days, 21 hours, three minutes.

MEN LOVE PEPPY GIRLS

IF you are happy and peppy and full of fun, men will take you places. If you are lively, they will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT, if you are cross and lifeless and always tired out, men won't be interested in you. Men don't like "quiet" girls. Men go to parties to enjoy themselves. They want girls along who are full of pep.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching middle age.

Dogs Raid Flock Kill 25 Sheep

Dundalk, Oct. 25.

JOHN McDonald, Melancthon township farmer, residing seven miles northeast of Dundalk, suffered heavy loss in his flock of twenty-eight breeding ewes when all but five were killed by dogs, drowned in the river or were so badly injured they had to be destroyed. Two are still missing, but it is believed that they are dead.

Fourteen of the animals were found dead this morning, most of them being drowned in the spring creek running through the pasture. Previously two lambs owned by Mr. McDonald, were killed by dogs. Ewes are worth from $7 to $8 apiece. He will be compensated in part by the Melancthon Township Council.

GENERAL ELECTION SIGNS IN OTTAWA SEEN BY PROPHETS

OTTAWA, Oct. 25 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King was expected to name today Canada's delegates to the nine-power Sino-Japanese conference scheduled to open Oct. 30. It was generally believed he would name Senator Raoul Dandurand and Hon. Vincent Massey.

The senator, government leader in the Upperd House, was Canada's representative at the recent League of Nations assembly in Geneva, while Mr. Massey, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, is enroute to London after visiting Canada.

Participation in the Brussels conference is Canada's share of the world's worry over the Sino-Japanese conflict. Domestically three acts of the Alberta Social Credit government provided the worry.

Sometime this week, it was expected, Mr. Mackenzie King will indicate what advice his government has given the governor general on the acts, referred to His Excellency by Lieutenant Governor J. C. Bowen after their passage at a special legislative session. Mr. Bowen who previously gave royal assent to three other bills only to have them disallowed by the Dominion government, reserved his assent on the three new bills and asked the governor-in-council for advice.

The acts would permit a degree of government of control over banks and enforce newspaper publication within the province of certain governmental information. Dominion government legal experts have been studying all three for more than a week.

Signs Of Election?

Elsewhere on political fronts were seen moves indicating to some that preparations were being launched for a general election. When it would be held none appeared ready to guess, though many corridor soothsays suggested not before next summer.

Two years ago last Saturday Prime Minister Mackenzie King assumed office for the third time as leader of the nation's government. Since then his cabinet has remained intact, though reports have been current recently Postmaster General Elliott may go to the bench, Works Minister Carden to the Senate.

Meanwhile in the West, Conservative Leader Bennett, absent from platforms almost ever since a Liberal avalanche in 1935 buried a large part of his House following, has taken to the field.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Pause in cash wheat demand with easier spreads for top grades of Red Spring varieties had a dominating influence on wheat futures to-day. At the end of trading, prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange were ⅝ lower to 1⅛ cent higher, October $1.24⅝; November, $1.22⅝; December, $1.18⅞, and May $1.16⅛ to ⅝.

Wheat advanced one to two cents in early dealings with October moving sluggishly. Later, general easiness developed when United States markets lost most of their early gains.

Firmness at Liverpool appeared to be the key for market transactions during the greater part of a dull session. Moderate export business in Canadian wheat and other mixed support sent the distant futures higher.

BRIDGE OF SIGHS

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 25—(CP)—The Ambassador Bridge, connecting Windsor and Detroit, might be called the bridge of sighs. In the eight years since the bridge was opened the ashes of four persons have been cast into the Detroit river from it.

"The ashes of a Great Lakes captain were thrown from the span in 1931," A. F. Sherman, supervisor of tolls and traffic, said. "The widow, a minister and two members of the family drove in an automobile to the middle of the bridge and the ashes were thrown from the span, fulfilling his last request.

We don't ask that the families get permission and we don't inquire into their purpose in going on the bridge."

MILES ENTERED PLEAS OF GUILTY

property of Don Wood. It was stolen on September 13 from outside Johnson Motors plant and was later recovered by police, an attempt having been made to repaint the body a different color.

A Valuable Clue

How the science of fingerprinting aids in the detection of criminals was graphically illustrated during investigation of the case. At the scene of the crime city police recovered a piece of broken window glass, less than 3 inches square. It bore the impression of a fingerprint.

Together with Miles' fingerprint impressions, the glass was sent to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police fingerprinting bureau at Ottawa, and this morning Staff-Sergeant J. D. Graham was on hand to give evidence if Miles had persisted in pleading not guilty to the charges.

The officer, clad in the colorful uniform of the Mounted Police, was prepared to go into the witness box and state that the fingerprint on the glass and the fingerprint of the middle fihger of Miles' left hand bore sixteen points of comparison, pointing conclusively to the fact that both impressions were identical.

Sergeant Graham's evidence would also have included, the following: "A photographic copy of the impression found at the scene of the crime; a photographic enlargement of the impression found at the scene of the crime (enlarged 8 diameters); a photographic copy of the impression of the left hand of Rollie Miles, and a photographic enlargement of the middle finger impression of the left hand of Rollie Miles (enlarged 8 diameters).
